No. 27 Edited by students of Matador High School

Campus Klatter

All these picnics, fishing and Senior Day, I'm back with plenty to tell. If I don't know it's because I told too much and not because of final course, everyone knows why shirt had lip stick on it; one can explain the lip stick on James Ed's trouser leg. The play-practice romance between Johnnie B. and Mc carried on Senior Day, and we think it is developing into the thing (maybe).

What happened to the romance between Wanda and Bert? Don't be her saving tires and de-gas-o-line! Maybe he should be taking lessons from Ruby Willy (3 miles, whew!). When we heard that the "Sabotage" we ran to the state and found Frank hemming a corner by Elsie.

Mavine's engagement, started searching elsewhere for object of flirtation.

There has really been carry-over smile on her face the last three days, we'd tell you but we're scared to—catch? wonder why Katheryn's all Johnny-on-The-Spot when the man comes around—s-a-y! little Cooper boy really gets it—but we hear he is a breaker, and how!!!!

There is happy again now that she's back in circulation.

Steen's interest has gone on us again since Jr. is on the dating list.

Ma Lee wishes that she'd do geometry so she could have solved Bill's problems. As it is, she has it to do.

Ma Mae will be more than to move to Amarillo (doesn't they live there?) now.

Jo has for the last few been singing "Somebody else taking My Place," since that school dame has turned her eyes on James. By the way, we're on the subject of that certain like we've been hearing senior girl sing that, too—Explanation? Well, it ain't itself well enough, don't all agree?

Maatha showed Velma what a she can do when she took it away from her. Harris and Jackie what a car can do when he took Reatha away from—don't take it so hard, Jack, we still got a chance and a one at that. That goes for too, Velma.

See an object of my mud sling-coming so I'd better s-c-r-a-m —M.H.S.—

Senior Day

Have you ever been a senior? Well, I know what I'm talking about. If you haven't you've either missed something or you've got something to look forward to. At four o'clock every senior was packed securely among quilts and in the back of a cattle truck. "Oh, No! 'Get off my feet! Turn loose of my quilt. Where's my other foot anywhere?" "A few of the interesting things that were dis(?)cussed.

No Shortage Of Boys In M. H. S.

The records of M. H. S. have been very good this year. There are 134 students enrolled in the high school. There are 72 boys and 62 girls. The ninth grade consists of 19 boys and 14 girls. The tenth grade is made up of 10 boys and 22 girls. This is very unusual, and the only grade in high school that has more girls than boys. The eleventh grade has 17 boys and 13 girls; and the twelfth grade consists of 23 boys and 13 girls.

The Matador students have been in school 20,627 days and have been absent 1,445 days. There has been an average of 117 students in school every day this year.

When school began, there were 3 boys and 2 girls 12 years of age; 7 boys and 10 girls, 13 years; 17 boys and 18 girls, 14 years; 17 boys and 17 girls, 15 years; 13 boys and 8 girls, 16 years; 11 boys and 5 girls, 17 years; and 4 boys and 1 girl, 18 years old.

This is an exceptionally good record for this high school.

These could all be heard above the singing that took place.

Each stop meant a breath of fresh air and a little stretching; and, boy, were they welcome!

Say, you don't know what you've missed until you see Ida Belle pitch woo. And it's really a show when she has a cooperative partner like Billy. Anyway, it was fun, and Ida Belle got her coke.

Ah!—the final stop!—You should have seen the seniors fall out of that truck. First you fell, then you tried your legs to see if they'd still work. Yep, they're O.K.! Then there's where the fun started.

Swimming, skating, hiking and, gosh, what beautiful scenery just dotted with dames and lots of boys, of course.

After everyone was half starved to death, Mr. Ezzell decided it was time to do away with some of the food, and it didn't take long to do that. Ah, whata life! A walk, then a swim, then skate and get all ready to start packing again.

The cool air we fussed about going would have been like an angel from heaven if we could have only been lucky enough to feel it. The stop at Abilene was a most enjoyable one and "Fantasia," whew—Wonderful! Beautiful!—Nuts.

Then home and were we happy to see Matador again, even if it was 3:30 a. m. All in all, it was a wonderful trip and one I know no senior will ever forget.

Salute To The Teachers

This article is one writer's opinion of the abilities, disabilities and capabilities of the faculty members of M. H. S.

Superintendent B. F. Tunnell furnishes the brains for all Matador High. Tall, stately, and dignified, he sets an inspiring example for every student on the campus.

I've heard one student compare Mr. Tunnell to Abraham Lincoln. His sense of humor makes Principal Bert Ezzell outstanding. He combines the qualities of kindness, determination, and consideration for others with extraordinary common sense. When he has taught the Matador High scholars all he can, I think he would be a grand candidate for the Presidency of the United States!

Miss Claryce Whitten furnishes the Beauty of the school. Her ability to sponsor the Junior Class was emphasized by the lovely Junior-Senior Banquet.

Mr. Hugh C. Gray is known by many biology students to be a very good sport. He has a forceful personality and his use of words spoken with a pleasant voice inspires self-confidence to every student.

Miss Zona Beth Faulkner is famous for her ability to cook delicious meals and the excellent way she handles the boys' Home Making Class.

From where I sit...

by Joe Marsh

Every Friday night a bunch of us fellows get together over at Bill Webster's place. We wouldn't miss those weekly get-togethers for anything.

There are seven in the group—Bill Webster, Judge Cunningham, Pete Swanson, Old Doc McGinnis the dentist, and young Doc Mitchell the M.D., the government man Bob Newcomb, and myself.

We don't play cards. We don't sing or carry on.

We just sit quietly and talk—and drink a glass or two of beer.

I guess we discuss just about everything under the sun—politics, business, family affairs, music, farming, hunting, fishing, and what not.

But mostly we like to chew the fat about life's experience and a man's philosophy in these times.

To sort of help out the conversation, we've found mellow beer particularly relaxing. Every one of us likes the tangy taste of beer... and now and then Judge Cunningham insists on ale for everybody.

You mightn't think that just settin' and talkin' would be so much fun. But it is. Particularly when a man begins to get around to the age of reason. Like us.

And it's wonderful how a few glasses of good beer help bring out good talk and good sense when men get together. There's something peaceful and friendly and human about beer that brings out the best in a man.

They call beer the "beverage of moderation." That "moderation" idea is good philosophy... maybe that's why good beer and good fellowship go together so well.

Seems to me there ought to be more of this quiet talk over a glass of beer. It sure straightens out a man in his thinking.

Anyhow, men ought to get together and be friends. That's the way we were made. Why not try it more often—all of you?

Destinies Of Nations Determined By Life's Decisions -- Rev. Carroll

Inspiring Advice Offered Graduates At Baccalaureate

That the destinies of nations are determined by life's decisions, was pointed out by Rev. Moyes B. Carroll Jr., of Meridian, in the Baccalaureate address Sunday evening before members of the Matador graduating class, their relatives and friends, as he quoted from the twenty-fourth chapter of Joshua, to illustrate the text of his sermon, "Life's Biggest Moment."

"The destiny of nations and of people are changed in the twinkling of an eye," Rev. Carroll proclaimed. "Battles can be won or lost in a moment, and as a result, war can be won or lost. So also, can a nation be won or lost."

Quoting from a scripture text, the 15th verse of the chapter, "Choose ye this day whom ye will serve," Rev. Carroll admonished his listeners with regard to the kind of decisions they might make, and advised them that facing the question was the vital issue, whether answered in the affirmative or negative.

"It is an inescapable choice, so face it—now," Rev. Carroll declared, "It is a comprehensive choice, involving every circumstance and experience one can have, and will be made on the basis of your position at this point in life. . . . It is a Personal choice, which affords a glorious opportunity for the right choice."

Rev. Carroll concluded his remarks on an evangelistic note as he stated, "Life's Greatest Moment hinges on your relationship with God. He has chosen you, why not make His way your choice. Many worldly things will bid for your life. I make a bid for it in behalf of my Savior."

Conducts Sermon Series

Rev. Carroll, who is pastor of the First Baptist Church at Meridian, remained through Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday to conduct a series of evening services for the Baptist membership, which were well attended by the community.

Rev. and Mrs. Carroll and their small daughter, Ann, were guests of Mr. and Mrs. R. E. Campbell during their stay here.

Med Letter In Recruiting Office To Youth At Naval Station

A bit of paper was found to a lonely but devoted youth in one of Uncle Sam's Training Stations today. The letter, which was found in the paper bore, bore the name of a classic was the parting moments of a son.

As the advice Hamlet from his father and as the flag was the letter which the boy lost in the Recruiting Station in Office at Wichita Falls.

The letter was from Jim H. Ridout, Texas, to his 19-year-old son, Jimmy Henry Cannon, who is going to the Naval Station at Wichita Falls for his final examination to be sworn into service.

The letter was the letter of an American dad to an American son.

member to obey your superior officers.

"Be honest, apply yourself one hundred percent to your job—and do that job well. It will be a long hard fight. We are counting on you and several million like you to do the job.

Answer right back, we will be wanting to hear from you.
Love,
Dad."

Jimie was transferred to a Naval Training Station on April 4, his letter turned up in the middle of Navy files at Wichita Falls today. How it got there, no one knows. But the letter is going on to Jimie—it should be a big help in trying times to come.

"That letter," declared Lt. L. H. Ridout, Jr., officer in charge of the Dallas Recruiting Station, "is the type of encouragement boys need from home. America is just as strong as the number of dads and sons it has, like Jimie senior and Jimie Jr."

Jimie and his father call Delwin, Texas, their home town and it is there the family reunion will be held when "Jimie comes marchin' home."

Mr. Canon and his family will be remembered by friends here, as being former Matador residents. They made their home here several years ago when Mr. Canon was game warden for this and adjoining counties.

Trail Driving Revival Talked

FORT WORTH, May 22—Must cattlemen return to the old-time trail-driving methods of transporting cattle to market?

Mere mention of such a possibility brought a gleam to the eyes of a number of old-timers here today for a meeting of directors of the Texas and Southwestern Cattle Raisers Association.

Absurd as the idea might appear on the surface, it might come true on a small scale unless some plan is worked out to provide adequate transportation for livestock under the new orders of the Office of Defense Transportation.

Trucks which now bring cattle from the ranches to markets or to the nearest railroad shipping point must be 75 per cent loaded on the return trip. It is impossible for cattlemen to comply with such a ruling under the present setup, Charles A. Stewart, Fort Worth traffic counsel for the association, pointed out.

The directors voted to send a committee, headed by Claude K. McCan, of Victoria, association president, to Washington to confer with department of agriculture authorities, and with OPA and ODT officials, and offer to assist in working out a feasible program for the livestock industry.

"If we can get enough trucks to haul the calves to the nearest rail point, then the rest can be driven there," A. J. Swenson of Stamford suggested.

The directors went on record as protesting any reduction of tariff on livestock shipping into the United States, pointing out that this country has 74,000,000 head of beef cattle, which is an ample supply, they contend, to more than take care of the needs of the army and civilian population.

Army Changes Plane Insignia

WASHINGTON, May 23—The red circle insignia on American army planes has been ordered changed to a white star within a blue circle to avoid a confusion with Japanese plane markings.

Announcing this today, the war department said the new insignia would be placed on all combat aircraft. In addition red and white tail markings have been eliminated.

Japanese war planes are marked with an orange-red circle and in the Southwest Pacific fighting this some times confuses the defenders.

Longer Car Life To Be Obtained By Conoco Plan

PONCA CITY, Okla., May 27—A new service to motorists, designed to prolong the life of motor cars and make tires last longer, is being introduced by Continental Oil Company through its local dealers, it was announced here today by Will A. Morgan, company advertising manager.

"The new service," Mr. Morgan stated, "will be announced to the public in a series of advertisements to start this week in The Matador Tribune.

"Knowing that regular inspection and proper lubrication are absolutely vital to the long-life of cars now operating, dealers in Conoco products throughout the country are organizing Once-A-Week clubs among motorists, with the idea of making thorough checks of each car on regularly specified days every week. Conoco dealers will keep careful records, and all information necessary to the proper servicing of the car. They will remind motorists when lubrication and other services are needed, and will do everything possible to help the motorists get the maximum life from their cars at the least possible cost and trouble," Morgan said.

All Conoco dealers in this territory are cooperating in the plan, it was announced.

All postmasters are furnished Navy recruiting literature for distribution.

CONGRATULATIONS to the graduates — and don't you dare feel sorry for them because they're graduating in such chaotic times as these. We're looking up to these young folks—putting a lot of faith and hope in them—because we know they're walking right from the classroom into responsible jobs. They're not going to be pushed into obscurity by those already employed. No! They have a more important niche to fill. Uncle Sam has work to be done! Congratulations to them — and we mean it!

USED CARS AND HOW TO KNOW THEM

CUSTOMER: Both these cars appeal to me, but...

SALESMAN: You won't find a better second-hand car anywhere than either of these. Wonderful buys!

CUSTOMER: If I only knew how the engines had been treated... what oil the ex-owners used.

SALESMAN: This one, I don't know. But this red job I happen to know had nothing but Conoco Nth motor oil from its first mile!

CUSTOMER: Well, why didn't you say so! Conoco Nth! I'll take the red job, of course! First of all, whoever owned that car knew what was best for a car when they used Conoco Nth. With Conoco Nth in the crankcase, I'm sure the cylinders and moving parts were protected by OIL-PLATING—lubricant that doesn't all drain down at every chance, but stays on the job.

SALESMAN: Well, that'd sell me the red one.

CUSTOMER: Why, man, Conoco Nth can help keep an engine so clean of sludge and carbon that it easily ought to mean good long life. I'm going to cash in on this car's value—and keep on using Conoco Nth.

You can cash in, too. Cash in by getting all the engine life and good oil mileage that are winning sensational sales success for Conoco Nth oil. See Your Conoco Mileage Merchant today! Continental Oil Company

DRIED MILK SHORTAGE LOOMS

Scientists Have Substitute That's Better.

With dried skim milk becoming increasingly hard to get, where are poultry and livestock feed manufacturers to obtain ample flavin (Vitamin G) for their rations? It is universally recognized that flavin (Vitamin G) is essential for growing chicks and animals, and for the feeding of unhatched and unborn young. It has been shown that hens fed rations low in this essential substance lay eggs that hatch poorly. Chicks fed a starter entirely lacking in flavin (Vitamin G) develop a crown-headed appearance. Young chicks and animals fed rations low in this vitamin grow slowly.

Manufacturers Need Vitamin G
But where are feed manufacturers to obtain the amount of flavin (Vitamin G) they need for their feeds? Ingredients such as the grains, grain by-products, meat scraps, and fish meal are relatively low in flavin (Vitamin G). Alfalfa leaf meal, both the sun-cured and the dehydrated, contains a suitable amount of flavin (Vitamin G), but its over-use runs up the fibre content. What feed manufacturers want is a concentrated source of flavin (Vitamin G) low in fibre.

American Scientists Were Prepared
It almost seems that American scientists had an intuition that our farmers would some day urgently need a flavin (Vitamin G) concentrate to replace milk by-products for their rations. For they have already made possible a concentrated Vitamin G source low in fibre, that is five times more potent in Vitamin G than either dried skim milk or dried buttermilk, called Puri-Flavin. Manufacturers using this ingredient have little to fear from the shortage of dried milk products. Their customers are insured against disappointments that come from feeding rations deficient in flavin (Vitamin G).

RIBOFLAVIN IMPORTANT FOR PRODUCTION OF HATCHING EGGS

"Riboflavin is a greenish orange colored vitamin present in eggs, milk, liver, dried grasses and dried alfalfa," says Dr. H. J. Smith, Director of Research for Purina Mills. "It puts the hatching spark, the 'will to live', into fertile eggs. When breeding hens do not get enough Vitamin G their eggs hatch poorly. Those chicks that do get out of the shell are weak."
"It is well to note that when baby chicks are given a ration low in Vitamin G they grow slowly. If their feed is entirely lacking in Vitamin G they get a crown-headed appearance," Dr. Smith says. "Certain forms of paralysis are claimed to be caused by a lack of this Riboflavin substance. Some chicks develop 'notched' beaks, which the California Experiment station has found to be caused by insufficient Vitamin G."

A Powerful Element
"So potent is this Riboflavin that its presence in various sources is infinitesimal," says Dr. Smith. "It can only be measured in millionths of a gram. Nevertheless the least insufficiency of Vitamin G definitely limits hatchability and restricts chick life and growth."
"The available sources of Riboflavin—such as dried milk, dried alfalfa and dried yeast—have long been studied. Investigations show that these ingredients sometimes contain large amounts of Vitamin G, and other times they contain very little."

"These observations, together with the knowledge that the slightest deficiency of Vitamin G has so marked an effect upon egg hatchability and chick livability, have caused research scientists to find a way to insure the presence of ample Vitamin G in poultry rations. The outcome has been the development of a new special Vitamin G (flavin) ingredient, known as Puri-Flavin. It is made by special bacteria under hygienic laboratory conditions, and has proven very helpful to us in insuring the Vitamin G content of our rations."

Farmers Asked To Save Bags As Warlike Measure

American agriculture will need nearly two billion burlap and cotton bags in 1942, according to W. I. Rushing, chairman of the Motley county USDA War Board, who today announced a state-wide program for bag conservation. Bagging requirements this year exceed normal needs by about 500 million bags, due to expanded war time production, he explained.

The conservation program will be sponsored by the Texas State War Board and conducted largely by County War Boards, Mr. Rushing said.

The cooperation of farmers, farm organizations, bag, feed, seed and grain dealers and of the Texas Agricultural Commission will be sought to make the bag conservation program as effective as possible in this state.

"War has caused a shortage in bagging material," he said. "We cannot depend upon imports of burlap from India this year and while there are ample stocks of cotton in the United States, the mills equipped to manufacture bagging material are running full capacity to fill war orders for other materials."

"This means that every fabric bag now in use must do more than double duty in 1942 and that every farmer who uses bags must see to it that he gets the most out of them by careful handling and use. We can prevent the shortage from becoming critical if we make every effort now to save the bags already in use and keep them in circulation so that they will serve a maximum of purposes."

Cook Just Escapes Being Eaten, In Front of Own Kitchen Range

R. S. McIlwraith, veteran camp cook up in the Montana foothills of the Rockies, has served many a meal to a hungry crew. But he never expected, he says, to face the prospect of becoming a meal himself—and that in the middle of his own kitchen.

As he tells the story, his adventure resulted largely from an inspiration which hit him some time ago. He built himself a bedroom onto one end of his cookhouse. From it, on a cold morning, he had only to step through a doorway to start breakfast for the crew.

He was asleep, he says, in these cozy quarters when, around midnight he was brought straight up in bed by a thunderous din in the kitchen. At the moment he had only a confused impression of wood ripping and glass falling. But as he sat there, trying to collect his wits, the uproar broke out anew. A water bucket hit the floor, his favorite dishpan gave off a startled clang as if socked with a hammer, and his kerosene lamp smashed and bounced against a wall.

Summoning his nerve, McIlwraith reached for his flashlight, eased himself out on to the cold floor, and pointed his light into the kitchen. The beam fell directly on a pair of eyes like dancing green flames—the head of a huge bear, gaunt and snarling. The animal had broken his way in through the only window big enough for the cook to crawl out of. Also, he was between this window and the door, the only other exit.

McIlwraith knew he was trapped—cornered in his own kitchen by a hungry and frightened bear, ready to fight. In an attempt to hold off the animal for a moment, the cook kept the beam of his flashlight in the bear's eyes. He hoped he could blind him temporarily, perhaps make him retreat.

But the bear, too, thought he was cornered. Growling and blinking, he advanced. The cook had nowhere to go but back into his bedroom. But there the bear could easily get at him—probably kill him with one blow of a tremendous paw.

R. S. McIlwraith

"I didn't know what to do," McIlwraith says, "so I just kept that flashlight pointed at his eyes. I had put in some fresh batteries and the beam was sharp as daylight. But the old-timer had his nerve—I'll give him credit. He couldn't see what he was up against, but he came forward to fight."

"He stopped once, then he moved my way again—one step, another. It was all over for me—I couldn't defend myself. Then Mr. Bear stopped again. He seemed to be thinking. He began backing up, slow at first, then faster. He kept at it, going in reverse right across the kitchen until his rump hit the wall near the window. Up he reared there, high in my head—and jumped! Next thing I knew, he was clawing his way out through the window, carrying the rest of my sash with him."

McIlwraith boarded up his wrecked window and spent the rest of the night trying to get to sleep. He says his bear visitor, in good condition, would weigh between five and six hundred pounds.

YOUR CAR

How to MOST

KEEP 'EM ROLLING

Did you get 10, 20 or 40 thousand miles off your tires? If you want to graduate into the 40 thousand those on your present car, here are some things to watch.

Have your wheels balanced, and check them for alignment at least twice a year. Improper alignment causes the tires to drag instead of roll. Improper balance scrapes off the tread in waves. Watch your brake adjustment too, because uneven brakes cause wear in one spot.

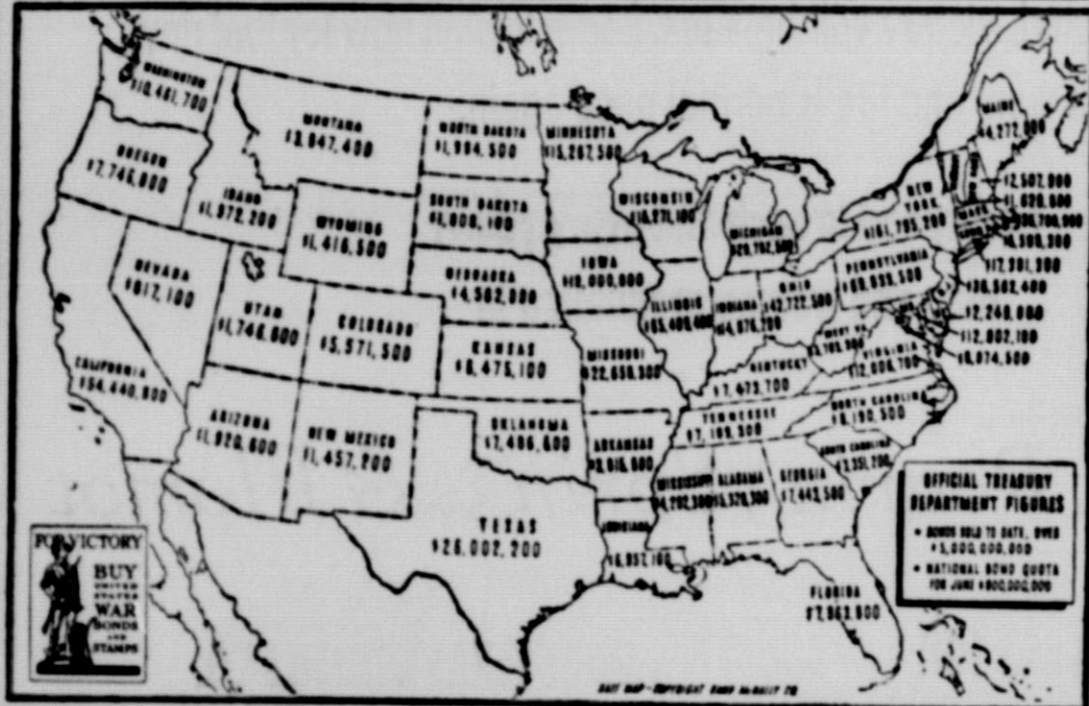

Criss cross your tires every four to five thousand miles. This evens tread wear and keeps your spare in use. Five tires used 16,000 miles each is better than four tires used 20,000 miles plus one unused spare. Rubber degenerates rapidly with exercise.

Watch for tread cuts and have them repaired if you have to store tires, keep them in a dark cool place free of air currents.

Tires that have been retreaded or recapped will give more miles of service, but don't drive at excessive speeds.

Official U. S. Treasury War Bond Quotas for June

The above map of the country shows the War Bond Quota by states for the month of June totalling $800,000,000. Everybody every pay day is expected to invest at least ten per cent of his income in War Bonds to aid in financing America's offensive against the Axis powers.

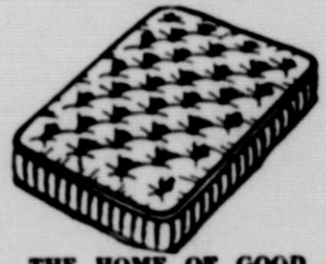

The ultimate quota for the nation will be on a basis of one billion dollars per month effective in July. This sum is necessary to provide for all-out production of planes, guns, ships and munitions adequate to arm our fighting men with the tools necessary to win the war.

are expected to assist farmers in conducting the program by suggesting methods of handling, cleaning, storing and caring for bags so that there will be an adequate supply on hand in the harvest season. Wherever it is feasible, the County Boards also may establish bag exchanges where farmers may sell surplus bags or buy those they need. The exchanges are expected to serve the double purpose of preventing local shortages of bags and of keeping excess supplies in circulation in areas where they are needed.

KNOWLEDGE
 —The Greatest Weapon Of All

The strength of the Mighty Oak lies not in glane trunk or in its lofty limbs. Its strength comes from deep in the ground where its roots have taken firm hold, roots that gather nourishment from soil and water, roots that provide an anchorage that defies the elements.

A Mighty Nation is like a Mighty Oak. Its strength and its survival depend not on a mighty show of arms but the soundness of its structure. It, too, must be deep rooted. Its people must be deeply rooted in the knowledge of what they are living for, what they are fighting for, and how they are going to accomplish their goals. With Knowledge come Faith and Courage and with these Victory.

The challenge that faces the Youth of today is one that calls for far more than a willing heart and eager patriotism. He who would serve must be able to serve. Never before in the history of the world have the demands on the individual been as great as today. And Knowledge is required. Knowledge for the Faith and Courage in the Cause. Knowledge that gives skill to hands and minds that they may accomplish the task that is before them.

He who is best prepared can serve best. Swords and Guns and Planes and Ships may be forged and thrust into his hands but unless he knows how to use them, they are but worthless. And because without knowledge they are without value, Youth must forge the weapon that gives them strength—his own Knowledge—the greatest weapon of them all.
