THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK

"Blessed is the person who is too busy to worry in the daytime and too sleepy to worry at night."

— Leo Aikman
in Atlanta Journal - Constitution

Barbara's Bylines

The Motley County Chamber of Commerce is off and running. The new officers and board members are excited about the future plans.

Let's all join in and support the board and their plans to help pull Motley County together and become prosperous for 1995 and after.

As I was reading other newspapers this week, I was reading "By The Way" by Alice Gilroy, Editor of the Floyd County Hesperian-Beacon. She got into a conversation on the phone with a man in Austin, while trying to reach someone else. Turned out he was one of the men who was going out of office the next day. Before she finished, she said, "I told him I was sorry for the bother (I was also sorry he wasn't going to be a Senator the next day, I was starting to like the guy.)"

When she got through with her calls to Austin, she had gotten all of the addresses for the Senators, etc., for us to write or call when necessary. I am grateful to Alice for doing this and having fun while doing it. We will publish the list as often as possible for you to clip and keep. See list on page 6

We apologize that we have not run the Basketball team pictures yet. We have not been able to get all of them to come out right yet, but we do hope to run them all next week. Thank you, parents, for your patience.

Remember, our kids need our support in all their sporting events, basketball, powerlifting, and upcoming track and tennis events, as well as Academic events. UIL events will be beginning soon. We're behind you, kids!

History of American Legion Post Stands Guard At Museum

Passed from post commander to post commander through the years, The History of Fleming Post 337, American Legion has been assigned to new service, standing guard in the Veterans Room of the Motley County Museum.

The summary of the post's activities from 1936 until 1969 is chocked full of events which make treasured memories for soldiers and their families of the communities of Northfield, Flomot, Roaring Springs and Matador.

Fleming Post 337 was named for a cowboy, Frank Flemings, born in 1893 in Eufaula, Indian Territory, who was remarkable only because he was so ordinary. The young man, often known only as "Hackberry Slim," worked on ranches and farms in the county, including the Matador Land & Cattle Company as a rider with Rang Thornton's wagon.

When the time came to register for World War I in 1917, Hackberry Slim quietly rode in from the ranch and signed up. In a few months the cowhand's number was called. Disposing of his equipment, he sent his few personal belongings home to an aunt and uncle who had raised him.

Stoically he rode into ranch headquarters to turn in his string of mounts and collect his last pay check. When his name was called to board the train, he answered, "Ready."

At Camp Bowie he trained as a machine gunner and with the Headquarters Company of the 7th Infantry was sent to France. As a machine gunner on the western front he took an active part in the Allied drive that would end the war.

Just twenty-four days before the end of the war, Flemings was killed in action somewhere in the Meuse Argonne sector on October 18, 1918.

Just a few of Ole Hackberry's friends knew his real name or where he came from, few people know that Fleming Post 337 was named for this affable "gentle" man who died so far from his chosen sagebrush and sandhills of Motley County.

A boon to genealogists, the interesting volume also lists the known county veterans from the Civil War, the Spanish American War, World War I, World War II, as well as charter members and post commanders of the veterans' organization.

The post's activities described in detail include the quest for a veteran's memorial, a building dedicated for community service, observances of Armistice and Veteran's Day, the annual Father-Son Banquet, work in the cemeteries and park, and students who attended Boys State.

The museum is proud to add this important piece of the past to its archives and invites veterans and their families to view the book on Monday afternoons, 1 to 5 p.m., or by appointment on other afternoons by calling Glenn Woodruff, 347-2431.

FIGHT RUST ON APPLIANCES

Rusting of appliances hits hardest in the southeast area of the United States, near the eastern and western coastlines and around the Gulf of Mexico. Average life span of appliances in these areas may be shortened due to the moist climate.

Once the rust begins, it may be difficult to keep it from spreading. Sanding and painting or replacement may be the only solutions.

Take these preventative measures to help keep rust from occurring:

— Keep your appliance in a dry place. If you live in a warm, humid climate, place your home equipment in air-conditioned room. Don't keep the appliance on a porch or breezeway.

— Keep your appliance clean. Wipe with a clean, damp cloth frequently, using mild, non-abrasive cleaners. Consult your appliance's Use and Care Manual for specific cleaning guidelines.

— Apply a coat of paste car wax to your appliance's finish. This will give it some protection against moisture and dirt that encourage rust.

— Apply touch-up paint immediately on any scratches so that rust doesn't have a chance to form and spread. Most manufacturers sell touch-up paint to match your appliance's color.

As the earth stirs with new life this spring, bugs come out to feast - in your garden and indoors. While battling unwelcome pests with products for home and garden use, take the necessary precautions to protect members of your household, especially young children, from accidental poisoning or exposure.

Since 1981, the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) has imposed strict regulations which determine when a pesticide product must be marketed in child-resistant packaging. Child resistant packaging is generally necessary when EPA toxicity criteria require that the label of the product carry the signal words "danger" or "warning". Child-resistant packaging is designed to prevent children under the age of 5 from gaining access to the contents.

Child-resistant packaging, however, is only one line of defense in poison prevention.

Here are important safety recommendations to follow at all times:

— Always store pesticide products out of children's reach. When appropriate, install child-proof safety latches (available from hardware stores) on cabinets.

— If you have no children in your home and are expecting young visitors, be aware that accidental ingestion can occur in homes which are not set up with children's needs in mind. Alert caregivers, grandparents and others to potential hazards.

— Before using a pesticide product, read the label, follow directions carefully and pay close attention to precautions and restrictions on product use.

— Before applying a pesticide product - indoors or outdoors -- always follow label directions and when required, remove children and their toys and pets from the area for the time recommended by the label.

— If you are interrupted while using a pesticide product, make sure you put the container out of children's reach even when you don't expect to be gone for long.

— Keep child-resistant packaging intact; re-secure container properly after each use.

— Never transfer pesticide products to other containers -- especially to containers that children may associate with food or drink.

— Teach children that pesticide products are intended to kill or repel certain pests and should not be handled.

— Keep the telephone number of your area's poison control center near your telephone.

Manufacturers of pesticide products must certify to EPA that the child-resistant packaging will meet certain standards of effectiveness, compatibility and durability. Manufacturers must have data on file to substantiate their certification. The EPA now has more than 4,000 packaging certifications on file for pesticide products.

The Chemical Specialties Manufacturers Association (DSMA), whose members include manufacturers of residential-use pesticide products, has been a long-time supporter of the National Poison Prevention Council. With the Council, CSMA helps alert the public to poison prevention measures to protect children from accidental ingestion or exposure. These precautions are highlighted during National Poison Prevention Week, observed each year on the third week of March.

All around your home this spring, remember CSMA's recommendations for poison prevention - then use these safety precautions all year.

Educational programs of the Texas Agricultural Extension Service are open to all citizens without regard to race, color, sex, disability, religion, age, or national origin.

Motley County Tax News

by Brenda Osborn
Motley County Tax Appraiser

SAVING ON HOME TAXES

An exemption removes part of the value of your property from taxation and lowers your taxes. For example, if your home is valued at $50,000 and you qualify for a $5,000 exemption, you pay taxes on your home as if it was worth only $45,000. Other than exemptions for disabled veterans or survivors, these exemptions apply only for your homestead. They do not apply to other property you own.

DOES YOUR HOME QUALIFY FOR EXEMPTIONS?

You must own your home on January 1st.

Your homestead can be a separate structure, condominium or a mobile home located on leased land, as long as you own it. Your homestead can include up to 20 acres of the land is used as your yard.

A residence may be owned by an individual though an interest in a qualifying beneficial trust and may be occupied by a trustee of a qualifying trust.

You must use the home as your principal residence on January 1st.

If you have more than one house, you can only get exemptions for your main or principal residence.

If you temporarily move away from your home, you can still get an exemption if you don't establish another principal residence and you intend to return. For instance, if you enter a nursing home, your home still qualifies as your homestead if you intend to return.

Renting part of your home or using part of it for a business doesn't disqualify the rest of your home for the exemption.

If you qualify for a general homestead you will receive a $5,000 exemption from your school, county, and hospital taxes.

Age 65 or older homeowners.

If you are 65 or older on January 1st, your residence homestead will qualify for more exemptions.

You will qualify for a $10,000 exemption for the school taxes on your home's value, in addition to the $5,000 exemption for all homeowners.

If you qualify for both the $10,000 exemption for over-65 homeowners and the $10,000 exemption for disabled homeowners you must choose one or the other for school taxes. You cannot receive both.

Once you receive an over-65 exemption, you get a tax ceiling for that home on your total school taxes. The school taxes on your home cannot increase as long as you own and live in that home. The tax ceiling is the amount you pay in the year that you qualify for the over-65 exemption. The school taxes on your home may go below the ceiling, but the school taxes will not be more than the amount of your ceiling.

However, your tax ceiling can go up if you improve your home (other than normal repairs or maintenance). For example, if you add a garage or a game room to your home, your tax ceiling can go up. Also, your tax ceiling will change if you move to a new home.

When a homeowner who has been receiving the tax ceiling on school dies, the ceiling transfers to the surviving spouse if the survivor is 55 or older and has ownership in the home. The survivor should apply to the appraisal district for the tax ceiling to transfer. The ceiling remains in effect for as long as the spouse lives in the home.

HOMEOWNERS WITH DISABILITIES

A person with a disability also may get exemptions. "Disabled" means either (1) you can't engage in gainful work because of physical or mental disability or (2) you are 55 years old and blind and can't engage in your previous work because of your blindness. If you receive disability benefits under the federal old age, Survivors and Disability Insurance Program administered by the Social Security Administration, you will qualify.

Disability benefits from any other program do not automatically qualify you for this exemption. You may need information on disability ratings from the civil service, retirement programs or from insurance documents, military records or a doctor's statement.

If disabled, you will qualify for a $10,000 exemption for school taxes in addition to the $5,000 exemption for all homeowners.

Are you a disabled veteran or survivor?

You may qualify for a property tax exemption if you are (1) a veteran who was disabled while serving with the U.S. armed forces or (2) the surviving spouse or child (under 18 years of age and unmarried) of a disabled veteran or of a member of the armed forces who was killed while on active duty. You must be a Texas resident.

You must have documents from either the Veterans' Administration or the branch of the armed forces that show the percentage of your service related disability. Your disability rating must be at least 10 percent.

If you are a surviving spouse or child, you must have the veteran's disability records. You may need other documents such as proof of marriage or age.

This exemption ranges from $1,500 to $3,000, depending on the extent of the disability. This exemption is not only for a home - you can apply it to any property you own on January 1. However, you may pick only one property to receive this exemption for the taxing units that tax the property.

The disabled veteran's exemption is different from a disabled homeowner's exemption.

Contact your appraisal district about these or any other exemptions you may qualify for.

The forms must be returned to the Appraisal Office no later than April 30 to qualify for this year.

What Are We Worth?

A 6 pound bar of steel is worth about 3 dollars. This same bar of steel when made into horseshoes is worth 50 dollars. If that bar of steel is made into sewing needles, it is worth about 5000 dollars. When it is made into balance wheels for fine watches, it becomes worth about 250 thousand dollars. That is amazing.

What is true of steel is also true of us. Our value is determined by what we are made into. Can we let our God make us into the image of His dear Son? The Bible tells us it can be done. When we allow God to work in our lives and become conformed to His will our value goes up. We become a child of God and He cares for us. That gives us value.

Sir Thomas Buxton once remarked: "There are no little things with God." Charles M. Crow said, "We seek here to play a duet with God, we bring our small weak talents and they are glorified and multiplied and made useful by the Master Himself. It is not what we can do, but what God can do through us." Therein lies our net worth.

One day, while a student, a girl asked me to pray for an unspoken request. Weeks later a professor told me her request. "She's hoping," he said, "you'll fall in love with her and marry her."

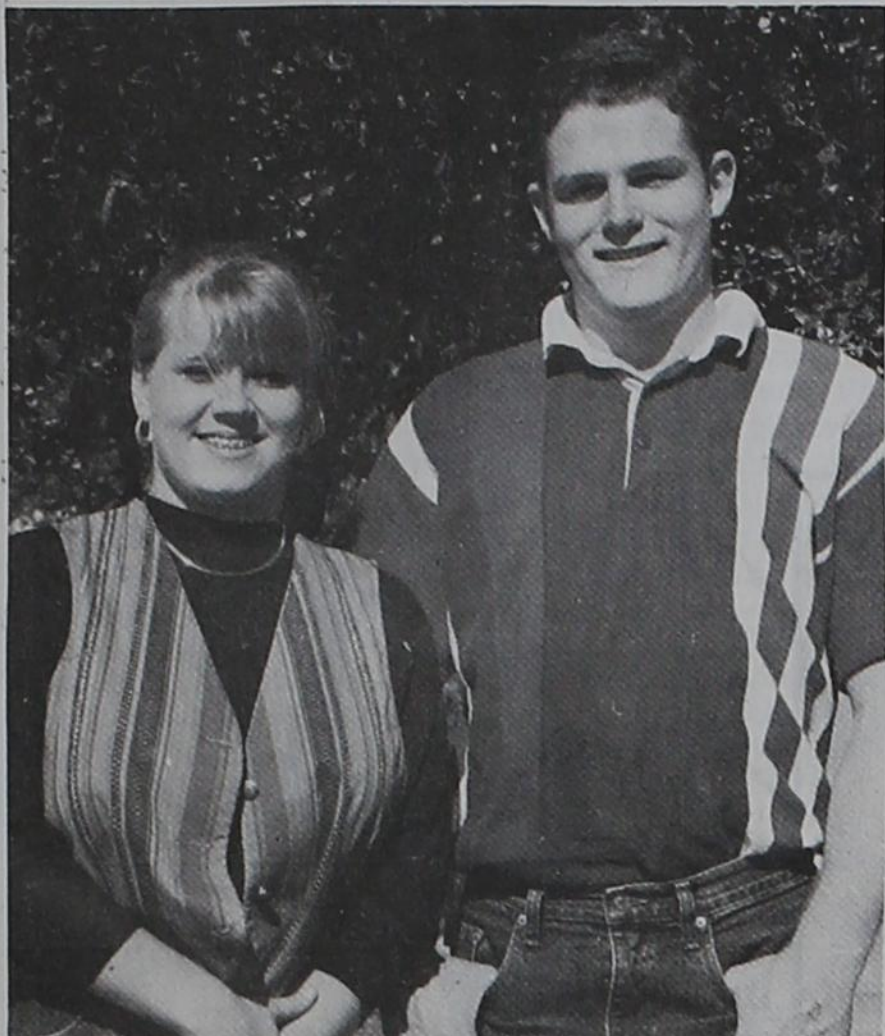

And I was praying for it. "Lord," I cried, "cancel the order." I'm glad He did.

The Lord answers prayer. He may say Yes, or Wait A While, or Here's Something Better; but He answers every prayer.

He's wise, and He never makes a mistake. He's good, and He never does anything that's bad. He's almighty, and He makes everything work for our good. Aren't you glad!

Most people who have been done a favor consider it an opportunity to show their incorruptibility rather than their gratitude. This is not only considerably cheaper morally, but it sometimes increases their pride so much that pretty soon they look down on their benefactor.

Methodist Senior Youth Group Meets

by Lindsey Williams

The Methodist Senior Youth Group met on Thursday, January 12 at 7:00 p.m. To begin the meeting we discussed our ski trip. We will be leaving for Ruidoso, N.M. on February 17. Next, we discussed our Spring fund-raising project, which will be selling T-shirts. Then, we were assigned new monthly duties. We will have these duties for the remainder of this month and all of February. Every person has a different duty in the church service each Sunday. As our lesson, we talked about hate in the world today, and how we can avoid and overcome it by living in faith. Finally, we each gave a prayer request for the closing prayer. Our next meeting will be held on Thursday, February 28, at 7:00 p.m.

These teams normally consist of 3 team members and an alternate. There will be a practice meet held here on Saturday, February 11. There will be several area schools coming to participate. The practice meet will be beneficial to everyone because it gives us an idea of what it will be like at District.

COTTON NEWS

FROM PLAINS COTTON GROWERS, INC.

Preliminary marketing and price figures through the month of November show the size of the 1994 crop Upland Cotton Deficiency Payment is still uncertain. The size of the Upland Cotton Deficiency Payment is of particular concern to producers who want to know if the final payment rate will fall below the 6.45 cent advance rate means producers would have to repay at least a small part of the advance payment. PCG officials note that efforts are underway to develop alternate ways for producers to make such payments, if it becomes necessary to do so, that will not create an undue financial burden for the producer. The November figures, released by USDA December 30, indicate that U.S. cotton producers marketed over 4.3 million bales and received an average price of 69.3 cents per pound. The cumulative volume of cotton marketed through November climbed to 13.569 million bales and the weighted average price received by growers also increased to 66.48 cents per pound. The new figures produce a calculated total Deficiency Payment rate of 6.42 cents through November, 0.03 cents below the advance payment rate. The 66.48 cent weighted average price means that the deficiency payment could still go either way depending on the December figures and any revisions to previous monthly figures. Because of the possibility of revised monthly figures there is no sure way to estimate what combination of marketing's and price would keep the payment rate equal to or above 6.45 cents. The preliminary volume of marketing's and prices received by growers in cents per pound as reported by the National Agricultural Statistics Service appear below.

Social Security Tips

by Terry Richardson

MEDICARE GENERAL ENROLLMENT PERIOD BEGINS

Did you decide not to take Part B of Medicare when you were first eligible? Or did you have Part B once and then drop the coverage? If you fit into either of these situations, you'll have a chance to sign up for Part B during the annual enrollment period that runs from January 1, 1995, through March 31, 1995. This three-month period offers another opportunity to those who did not enroll when they were first eligible and those who dropped their coverage in the interim. If you enroll during the current sign-up period, your coverage will begin July 1, 1995.

If you did not enroll when you first were eligible, your Medicare Part B premium will be 10 percent higher than the basic monthly premium for each twelve-month period you were eligible but not enrolled. For 1995, the basic monthly Medicare Part B premium is $46.10. There are special premium rules and enrollment periods (generally with no penalty for delayed enrollment) for workers age 65 or older and for people under age 65 with disabilities who have group health coverage based on their own or their spouse's current employment. Part B coverage, also called "medical insurance," helps pay for doctor's services, outpatient hospital care, and other medical services. If you're age 65 or older and not eligible for Medicare's premium-free Hospital Insurance (Part A) coverage, you can buy this coverage along with Part B coverage during the annual enrollment period. (People entitled to Medicare Hospital Insurance through the Social Security or Railroad Retirement systems or through government employment do not pay this premium). Your monthly premium will be 10 percent higher than the basic amount if you delayed your enrollment for 12 months or more after you were first eligible to enroll. In 1995, the basic monthly premium for Part A coverage will be $261. For individuals with 30 credits or more of work covered by Social Security but not enough to qualify for benefits, the amount is reduced to $183.

If you have low income and limited assets, the state may pay some or all of your Medicare expenses, including buying part A coverage under the Qualified Medicare Beneficiary (QMB) program. If your income is slightly above the level to qualify for the QMB program, you may qualify for state help in paying your Part B (medical insurance) premium under the Specified Low-Income Medicare Beneficiary (SLMB) program. Contact your state or local medical assistance (Medicaid) agency, social services office, or welfare office if you think you qualify.

LANDOWNERS, PLEASE READ THIS ABOUT CROP INSURANCE REQUIREMENTS FOR 1995

If you share in a program crop that is also an insurable crop in Motley County and wish to continue to participate in the annual farm programs that offer deficiency payments and/or price support protection through the loan process, your share of that crop must have at least the Catastrophic level of insurance in 1995 and subsequent years. Washington officials are still putting the details together and it is not clear at this time exactly which programs will be affected. Programs such as ACP, CRP, Wool & Mohair, ect. are examples because in many cases, an insurable crop is not on the farm. Insurable crops include cotton, peanuts, wheat, and grain sorghum. Other program crops such as oats, barley, and corn (along with industrial crops such as sunflowers) will not be insurable as these crops are not listed in the Motley County Actuarial Document Book. CFSAs are just beginning to receive training on how to sell CAT coverage at the county office. Hopefully, sign up into the annual program will begin soon and will end around the SALES CLOSING DATE which is March 15, 1995 for all insurable 1995 crops in Motley County. Please get with your tenants as soon as possible and make your plans now on how the operation will handle its insurance needs for 1995. If you wish to buy more than the minimum amount required by law, then the additional coverage must be purchased from a private crop insurance company. I realize that most Motley County landlords have not dealt with crop insurance in the past; therefore, it is very important to remember the deadlines, and to continue looking for information (such as last months newsletter) - feel free to call us and please bear with us as we learn these new requirements.

CRP PROGRAM UPDATES
During the 1995 calendar year, USDA will consider requests from CRP participants to be released from their contracts or to modify their contracts to reduce the amount of acreage under the contracts. USDA will request and consider bids from producers to enroll new acreage in CRP after the acreage meets much higher environmental and conservation criteria. Only the most environmentally beneficial acreage will be selected for new contracts. These offers apply only to contracts expiring in 1995.

Beginning in 1996, USDA intends to offer all CRP participants the opportunity to extend or modify their contracts for another 10 years if the contract was entered into prior to the enactment of the Food, Agriculture, Conservation, and Trade Act of 1990 (November 28, 1990) will be able to extend an additional 5 years.

Before USDA will modify and/or extend a contract, rental rates will be reevaluated based on prevailing local rental rates for comparable land. With this in mind, some producers may be offered higher rental rates if this land is more environmentally sensitive while others may be offered reduced rates if the land is considered less sensitive.

CRP participants would also be able to request adjustments in acreage covered by the contract. Producers would choose to keep all or a part of their land in the contract. Also, CRP participants would be able to shift acreage from the same farm into the CRP even if the acreage was not previously in the contract. However, this acreage must be more environmentally sensitive to qualify. Producers would not be able to increase total acreage over the contracted amount.

These terms and conditions are in the EARLY STAGES and will be developed through the regulatory process. USDA hopes to have the regulations in place by the summer of 1995. Also, just like the current CRP program, participants would be subject to appropriated funding. What you have just finished reading is all the information we have at this time. Hopefully it will help you begin thinking about what you might like to do if everything "falls into place".

(NAPS)—Is college in your future? If so, financial planning should be too. After all, these days just one year at a public university averages $7,000 for in-state students. If you're considering private school—more than double that to $16,000 a year or more.

Fortunately, some good financial planning can help prevent the sticker shock many students and parents encounter when preparing for college. The best way to plan is to make two lists: one covering expenses associated with school including everything from tuition to dinners outside the dining hall; the other, detailing all the ways you can save money for school—in short, scholarships, such as the Amateur Athletic Union/MILKY WAY® High School All-American Scholarship Program, financial aid packages and student loans.

Anticipating College Expenses

Some costs associated with college are obvious—tuition, books and supplies, and room and board if you're expecting to live on campus. Other costs often take students by surprise: student activity fees, parking fees and student health insurance to name a few. All these "surprise" costs can add up to a pretty penny in the long run, but if you anticipate what you're going to need you can get ahead of the game by checking out the numerous financial aid options available to high school seniors.

Financial Aid Options

Most people are aware of financial aid packages offered directly from your college of choice, but there are many other, often untapped, resources. One is Gift Aid, such as scholarships that do not have to be paid back. You may not realize that there are more than 4,000 scholarships available to students. Many are based on special interests, like music, sports or agriculture. Others are based solely on academic standings.

Other forms of financial aid include student loans, such as Stafford Loans, which are based on need and are gradually repaid after graduation. There are also Supplemental Loans for Students, which are not based on need, though they also require repayment in the years following graduation. Another need-based option is College Work-Study, which allows students to hold federally-funded part-time jobs to help pay for school.

A visit to your guidance counselor will help determine what kind of financial aid is best for you. They have databases detailing the wide range of scholarship, grants and loans available.

"The art of making cheese is centuries old. Even with today's technology, we still rely on a precise blend of time and temperature to make the perfect product. Our electric cooperative understands that."

When Associated Milk Producers decided to build this automated cheese plant four years ago, we knew we wanted to locate it here in the heart of Texas dairy country.

We are fortunate to have a cooperative provide our electricity. The cooperative really understands the special needs of an agricultural-based business... when it comes to service, they are always eager to go the extra mile. And when you are responsible for turning 1.35 million pounds of milk into 135,000 pounds of cheese every day without fail, you need a power supplier that prides itself on reliable service.

You have heard people say: 'If you can't stand the heat, stay out of the kitchen'. With the cooperative backing me, I know that when the pressure is on, one thing I don't have to worry about is our electric service."

HOW TO AFFORD COLLEGE IN THE '90'S

(Or Avoiding College Sticker Shock)

filling out the appropriate forms. Since you are selling yourself, put your best foot forward! Look at the questions and ascertain how your own background applies. Before answering the questions, make a list of all of your high school experiences and activities. Don't forget anything—from intramural sports...to theater...to debate team. Also, be sure to highlight any work you did to make your community a better place, such as working with kids or the elderly, or cleaning up the environment. Finally, stress your individuality—list your talents such as playing the piano, sketching or dancing.

Next, look for the essay component, which is often required when applying for college or financial aid. Think about ways you can showcase your interests, activities and talents. There are resources to help you here too—your teachers, parents and friends can all add critical insight that will make a tremendous difference in your essay.

Remember that most applications are looking for the same background information about you. You only need to compile this information once, then simply check into all of the scholarships that you may qualify for—you may be awarded more than one. Filling out the different forms can be as easy as tailoring the appropriate information to the appropriate scholarship

IT HAPPENED IN '95

by Shelby West

I suppose, now that I think about it, there were a few indications that change was on the way. Nothing major, just a few smiles from folks that hardly ever smiled. A few hellos and how are you's tossed in from time to time. I noticed kind of a change in the atmosphere, almost like unchained electricity. It was strange the way it all came about. Someone said it had started by a random statement that had been tossed into a casual conversation among some folks who were talking about change.

Seems the conversation had to deal with all the problems and crime, welfare, murder and drive-by shootings. You know just another one of those pass the time of day conversations that leave as quickly as they started.

There was the usual suggestions of what could be done, how to improve the plight of the homeless, how to end racism and just make the world a better place to live in.

You know what I'm saying, just coffee shop talk, or maybe even Sunday School chatter. Nothing settled. Just friends or acquaintances, no real answers, no solutions, not that the folks didn't care, but you know, what can we do?

It seems that listening to this dialogue, was one of the kids of one of the men. After trying to interject a suggestion into their conversation for at least over an hour, his chance finally arrived, "Daddy, I know what we need to do." There was the usual amount of laughter and sure you do's. Just like anytime a kid tries to add to a conversation.

"But, Daddy, really. I know what needs to be done."

"Hush son, we've got to go now."

"But Daddy, don't you remember what the preacher said yesterday morning?"

Silence filled the entire room. Why it was so quiet in there, you could have heard a drop of water slide off a water glass.

The dad's face turned red and he got deathly still. At last he gained his composure. "Well son, yeah I guess I know what he said, but you know really the preacher said a lot of things."

One of the other men spoke up. "Okay son, just what did the preacher say?"

"Well, Rev. Pastor said that God fixes every problem, and he said if just the church would begin to pray, why we could see great changes in our country."

It must have been five minutes before another word was spoken. Frustration at the highest level had set in. "Well I got to go, got a tractor needs seeing about." "Yeah, well me too, cattle gotta be fed." "Times a wasting, see you later."

There wasn't a conversationalist left in less than thirty seconds.

The dad and son left, but it seems this little boy was determined to know the truth.

"Daddy was the preacher right?" "Well yes, to some degree, but I don't believe what we were talking about, is what the preacher meant?"

"Well Daddy, he said every problem." "Son, I believe he was talking more or less about the church budget."

"Uhuh, that was last month." "Well lets talk about it some other time, I've got a living to make. You'll understand it when you're older."

The dad left the son at home while he went about the day's job. It seems that all that day the dad could think of nothing else.

Sunday morning came again, and this time the dad really paid attention to what the preacher said.

"If mankind would begin to seek God on a daily basis, what a great change would take place."

The little boy nudged his dad, "See dad, that's what he said last Sunday."

"If every household would begin to pray everyday, changes would come," Rev. Pastor said.

It must have been a hard thing to do, but the dad took it to heart.

He and his family began to have daily prayer for the county they lived in. Also it wasn't long before other people began to practice this concept. This went on for only a short while, and then people that usually just attended church on Sunday morning, began to attend Sunday night, and then Wednesday prayer meeting.

Some folks who never paid much attention to church one way or another began to talk among themselves.

"What happened to old deacon what's his name? Mr. don't care asked. "Man you got me, I've never seen any man change like he has." Mr. Grouch replied. "I've seen him taking a load of groceries over to folks who lost their jobs."

Well in six months time, there was standing room only in every church in the county.

I spoke to the Sheriff's department about this change that was taking place. He said he and his department were beginning to feel like Maytag appliance repairmen. The Sheriff said the more the church's prayed the less crime was committed.

The Sheriff even noted that some of the ones he had had his eyes on were teaching bible classes in their homes.

The principal at the school stated that he had even thought about throwing his paddle away.

Well it seemed like what had started out as a simple question, asked by a seven year old boy had brought about major changes in their county. What a wonderful euphoric.

You ask, what county this happened in, well you insert the name of the county, the time, the place. You see this could really happen. Who knows, if it did, it might even affect a change in me.

Tips To Help You

Cranberry-Apple Pie

- 3 cups diced peeled apples
- 1 cup cranberries
- 1 1/2 cups sugar
- 3 tablespoons Minute Tapioca
- 1/4 teaspoon salt
- 1 package (15 ounces) refrigerated pie crust
- 1 tablespoon margarine or butter

Heat oven to 400° F.
Mix fruit, sugar, tapioca and salt in large bowl. Let stand 15 minutes.

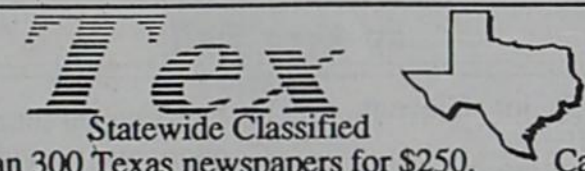

Prepare pie crusts as directed on package. Line 9-inch pie plate with 1 of the pie crusts. Fill with fruit mixture. Dot with margarine. Cut second pie crust into 1/2-inch strips. Arrange in lattice design over fruit mixture. Seal and flute edge.

Bake 60 minutes or until juices form bubbles that burst slowly. Cool.

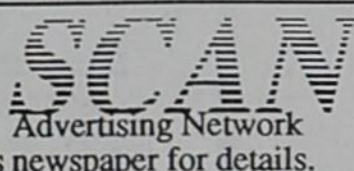

Makes 8 servings.
