TRAIL DUST

By DOUGLAS MEADOR

Sequestered from the peaceful vales of the past, a childhood memory rides the autumn winds like a gentle cloud, shrouded in an immense sky. The Mexican cottonpickers tread the patched tent in the feed grounds above the ranch. The tall, black-eyed man with cows into the lots and milled me as I drove the tent to secure the rusty pipe through a hole in the back wall of the tent. Black cats of soot followed the canvas from the pipe to the wooden cans that held the cloth taut. The dry norther hit sometime during the night and thin ice covered the water barrel at the end of the morning. My hands were wrapped in ragged clothes as I broke the ice and filled two buckets with water. The wind howled in the leafless cottonwood branches and blue, broken clouds hurried across the hills. Stopped to lift the water buckets, I looked up. The Mexican girl was standing there, waiting for me to move away from the barrel. Her skin was smooth as brown satin and her dark curls played about her face. There was a trace of a smile behind her eyes as she turned her head away. I was suddenly very warm. My lips moved but no sound came out. I tried to remember some words of her language but discovered that I had forgotten my own. I tumbled away spilling icy water in my shoes while trying to walk and look backward. Presently she entered the tent and the flap closed. I did not eat breakfast that morning; my thoughts were with the clouds and my words were with the snow. Snow began falling in a short time and I could no longer see the tent from my window. When the storm broke and the other hands went to the fields, the girl remained in the tent with her mother. Our small trip was gathered before I had mastered the few words of Spanish I had hoped to use.

Crickets were chirping in the twilight near the thick grass where our horses grazed. High, white feathers of clouds were draped in gold and crimson dust and secured against the sky; a purple rim of haze fit snugly against the northern horizon. I lay on our backs and watched leaves dancing in the cottonwood saplings and my companion rolled a crude cigarette and raised his elbow to light it. He watched the white smoke trail in the clean air. Resting his face in his hands, he studied the moist soil where he had tracked the spent match, then without looking up, he told me he had enlisted to fight the Kaiser's armies. The little herd of cattle had grazed out of sight but we found them quickly and crowded the reluctant cows and calves through an open gate. A few weeks later I saw his horse's head across the other horses, his head across the fence as if in meditation. Frost fell on the cottonwood sapplings; the grass was no longer green. Horses roared across the melancholy hills. His mother, consoled the anguish in her heart, washed the dust from his boots, and long after the war had ended, used to set a plate at the table in event he should return without notice. The crickets still chirp at twilight time; white plumes of smoke from my cigarette vanish without leaving a trace.

Some people have their hands filled with four-leaf clover but they are unable to open the leaves in response to opportunity's knock. The only difference between waiting time and waiting is that time falls silent. After many experiments I have found but one positive method of keeping my ignorance secret. Unfortunately my quality makes it impossible to make the discovery.

Cut In State Aid Will Not Alter School Term

Shortage of $3,000,000 in state aid will not affect length of Matador schools terms it was announced yesterday by school officials who believe they can continue to operate the full nine months by exercising strict economy. State department of education has announced that applications for aid exceeded by three millions the amount set up by the legislature and that a cut of approximately 16% will result. Loss to local schools will be in the neighborhood of $1,750. A high per centage of tax collections will be necessary for local schools to finish the term without a deficit, which is frowned upon by the State department. School officials point out that a 3% discount (equal to almost 12% interest rate) is allowed on taxes paid during the month of October.

SCOUTS NAME NEW PATROL OFFICERS

Members of the newly registered Matador Boy Scout Troop 60 have elected new patrol leaders during the troop's two last regular Monday evening meetings. The new leaders are: Fox Patrol, Kenneth Dunning; Bob White Patrol, R. L. Giesecke; Flaming Arrow Patrol, Jerry Edwards; quartermaster, R. L. (Sappo) Giesecke; scribe, Garland Rattan and bugler, Billy Ray Neighbors.

The troop now has three full patrols and is seeking sufficient recruits to build up several more before winter camp, according to Junior Assistant Scoutmaster Billy Ray Neighbors. "Judge" Henry Pipkin was a speaker at the Monday night meeting. Scoutmaster Forrest Campbell is rapidly gaining popularity with members and is receiving the troop's complete support in Scout training and activities.

MATADORS DROP 2nd CONFERENCE GAME TO RALLS

First the Bulldogs and Friday night the Jackrabbits put the Matador Matadors in the cellar as the Ralls Jackrabbits left the local fighting eleven stunned with a score of 20 to 0, their second conference loss of the season.

Outside of the score the Matadors held their hosts to an approximate average. Matador made 12 first-downs to Ralls' 15. Matador made four (20 yard line) penetrations to Ralls' five. Matador attempted six passes and failed six times. Ralls attempted one pass and failed.

Keith on Ralls squad made two touchdowns in the second quarter with both conversions being good. Gilbert scored in the third stanza without being able to make the extra point.

Resting this week the Matadors face the Floydada Whirlwinds here Thursday evening, (October 30) in what is expected to be one of the top games of the season.

High School Singers Bring Tide Of Joy To Jaded Lions

It was an ordinary meeting. Tail Twister Ralph Stapleton had been on a fine spree to start saving for another new automobile. Junior Campbell had arrived late as usual and was borrowing a cigarette. Boss Lion C. W. Giesecke, still jittery from the lights of Dallas, was talking. Most of the members had finished Chief Henry Pipkin's meal, loosened their belts and had started to doze in comfort when Lion Bert Ezzell acting as program sponsor, announced that the high school chorus under the direction of Mrs. L. D. Wilkerson, high school music instructor, would sing. Some of the young members straightened up in their chairs when the girls started their entrance.

Presently the ordinary part of the meeting was over. The line of pretty, marching girls seemed endless. Every Lion was awake. The girls had engulfed the piano and aid was summoned to move the instrument. Half of the Lions members rose as one man. The half dozen that reached the piano were unable to move it. Someone thought of moving the girls. They moved and started singing after a brief introduction by their leader.

Heavy applause followed the first song as members of the Lions Club realized that Mrs. Wilkerson and her choral club were bringing unusual talent and training of fine, young voices to the Lions luncheon meeting. Mrs. Wilkerson declared that the group of singers had rehearsed only six times previous to their appearance. With-out exception Lions declared the singing provided one of the best programs ever presented before the club. Miss Billy Frank Skaggs provided the piano accompaniment.

To round out the perfect school program, two youthful artists, Jo Ann Darsey and Sue McCaghren, students of Mrs. Randall Whitworth's speech department, presented colorful readings.

Announcements included zone meeting to be held in Paducah 2nd Tuesday in November, Donkey basket ball game December 8, and clean-up drive. Visitors included Mrs. Wilkerson, Barney Joe Martin of Flomot and his mother, Mrs. ship, as well as a lot of good exercise" he asserted. He stated all public buildings needed, should be used for community entertainment centers.

Summer Recreation Program For Youth Stressed By Parent-Teacher Speaker

Speaking on the subject of "Recreation," Grady Wilson, Superintendent of Schools of Potter County, stressed the need for community entertainment centers and some type of recreation for both boys and girls during summer months, when he addressed the Parent-Teacher Association at a parents' night program last Thursday evening. Mr. Wilson, an enthusiast, de- wholesome entertainment, he declared that he has found in his experience with recreational programs, that the best received and enjoyed entertainment is that of folk games and dances. "It gives those participating a chance for friendly companion-

One Hour Clean-up Scheduled

Smarting from a $5 fine slapped on him by Tail Twister Ralph Stapleton, President of the Matador Lions Club, C. W. Giesecke ordered a one-hour clean-up drive in Matador starting at 7 a. m. and ending at 8 a. m. this morning. Giesecke was fined for allowing the Lions wading pool to become stagnant. The drive will center in the business district where Lions in work clothes are warned to clean up the alleys, vacant lots and other unhealthy and unsightly spots.

Circulars have been printed and with volunteer distribution by Boy Scouts, the entire city is being urged to clean-up. Property owners are urged to clean-up around their homes and adjacent property so that Matador may at some time in the future deserve the title of the "cleanest town in West Texas."

Fire Department Sponsors Carnival

Full week carnival will be in Matador (courthouse square) starting October 27 through November 1, according to announcement made yesterday by Fire Chief Roy Smith. J. R. Leericht Rides and Shows, including tented theatres swings, planes, merry-go-round, ferris wheel and childrens' rides will appear here under the auspices of the Matador Volunteer Fire Department.

No Hike In County Tax Valuation

Since last week's issue of the Tribune some taxpayers have intimated that the newspaper did not print all the truth in the article which declared the county had reduced its tax rate 24%. Curbstone information declared the tax rate had been reduced but that the county valuation had been raised.

Interested only in the facts the Tribune went to the tax rolls for its information without consulting any county official. The advance in county valuation is so slight over 1946 as to add but very little to the amount of tax income.

Total tax rendition (including personal property) for 1946 was $5,485,755 as against $5,581,755 for 1947. The value of new automobiles alone in the county would offset the advance. The figures are from sworn statements as received by Austin.

Interesting fact uncovered through tax inspection is the amount of intangible assets on which some nonresident property-owners pay taxes. Most outstanding is the Texas, New Mexico and Oklahoma bus line which serves Matador with three east and west schedules daily. Also the firm does not own any property located in the county, yet it pays county taxes on a valuation of over $17,000. Smaller amounts are paid by truck lines operating through Matador.

ARRIVAL ANNOUNCED

Mr. and Mrs. L. M. Cullison of Highlands, Texas, are announcing the birth of a son, Adrian Earl, on October 10, weight 7 pounds, 3 ounces. The mother is the former Leatrice Russell of Matador.

Two-thirds Of Crop Estimated In Field

THESE are changing times. The humble cotton-picker has suddenly been elevated to the moneyed class, peeling high-denomination bills from rolls to buy top quality foods, clothing and other merchandise, while the lowly fixed-salary worker adds up small change to buy sky-rocketing necessities of life.

Business is booming in Matador and other Motley county communities. A once "total-failure" cotton crop has risen like a Phoenix from the dry, sun-baked soil to "fool" even the most optimistic farmer. Talk is everywhere of cotton making one-fourth to one-third bale to the acre without a drop of rain from the day it was planted until the harvest.

One farmer yesterday observed, "even the stalks seem to be turning to lint." Fields are white despite the hurried efforts of pickers (pullers) to fill sacks at $2 per 100 pounds. Quality of the cotton is high since there is no stain from insects or rain.

At noon yesterday a total of 5,418 bales had been harvested. County agent J. R. Emmons estimated that about one-third of the crop had been ginned. Total crop ginned in Motley county last year was 4,980 bales.

More pullers are arriving daily and farmers are anxiously procuring them to rush the harvest in advance of possible bad weather. Sprinkle of rain fell over part of the county yesterday afternoon but weather forecasts announce continued fair weather. The weather over most of West Texas has been fair since late May.

Leather Craftsman Follows Talented Father's Pattern

Bert Schweitzer, above right, is following his talented father, H. H. Schweitzer, left, in leather craftsmanship. Together they comprise the H. H. Schweitzer & Son Saddlery. Most by the handwork on the famous "wherever cowboys ride" Schweitzer saddles is still done by the senior member of the firm who quit cowboying on the Matador ranch to make saddles. When H. H. (Houston) Schweitzer started making saddles the only implements he possessed were a hammer and a bent nail. He had never witnessed the construction of a saddle. Today, after 23 years of continuous saddle-making he has yet to see a saddle made except those he has made with his own hands. Schweitzer saddles are shipped everywhere in the United States. In 1940 LIFE magazine devoted a full page picture to Schweitzer making cowboy saddles. Bert Schweitzer is following patterns made by his father and confines most of his leatherwork to belts, billfolds and small articles. Advanced orders for Christmas presents exceeds all previous years. Graduating from Matador high school in 1942, Bert Schweitzer entered the Army Air Corps in 1943, serving for 30 months. He was discharged in 1945 and shortly afterwards entered business with his father. He was married in 1946 to Miss Bernice Ruth Patton. This is the second of a series of articles on father-son partnerships in Matador. —Photo by Douglas Meador

Glenn Woodruff Selected To Attend Ford School

Glenn Woodruff, left above, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Woodruff of Matador, receives congratulations on his being selected to attend special Ford school from two Ford assistant district managers, A. He left Lubbock Saturday night via Braniff airlines for Detroit to attend the six-weeks school for sons of Ford dealers.

local church activities. Mrs. Geo. Robinson of Childress, vice-president of the W. S. C. S. of the Northwest Texas Conference, gave an interesting talk on program building. Lunch was served in the church basement by the Matador W. S. C. S.

Following a business session in the afternoon, Mrs. D. D. Denison of Crowell, closed the meeting with a dedication service.

Local friends were happy to welcome Mrs. Denison, former resident whose husband was pastor here several years ago, and Mrs. Murray Johnson, also a former resident, who is visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Homer Sheats.

Mrs. Cocanougher greeted the guests at the door and in the receiving line were Mrs. Buckner, Mrs. Kinard and Mrs. Willie.

The rooms were decorated throughout with roses and dahlias. Tea was poured at a table beautifully appointed in pink and white.

From where I sit ... by Joe Marsh

"Take Pen in Hand"

This column has been running for so long that its readers, in towns like ours all over the country, are beginning to "take pen in hand" and write us what they think.

Some of them take me over the coals for what I say—like the column I ran on planting alfalfa. Others write, "I liked your column yesterday, but..." All of them have different points of view.

From where I sit, that's the way it should be. Everybody's entitled to an opinion—and it's those very differences, and friendly criticism, that make for tolerance and better understanding—whether it's ideas on planting alfalfa or choosing between beer and cider.

The more folks air their differences right out in public, with a neighborly respect for the other person's liberties and point of view, the closer we are to the American principle of individual freedom—whether it's in a choice of crops or beverages.

Kosta X,
 Somewhere in Greece.
 Dear Kosta:

You don't know me and I don't know you. I know you are a boy about 10 years old. I know that your father was shot by the Germans and that your mother starved to death. I know that your grandmother is trying to take care of you. You see I got your name off the Australian Red Cross rolls for Greece.

I thought, Kosta, that you and many other little children in Europe deserve some sort of explanation. It was about six months ago, wasn't it, when a kindly doctor came to your home back in the mountains northwest of Athens? You were taken to a camp called Eagle's Nest, at the town of Karpensisi, and there you were given dozen of you, or even a hundred of you were to come over here. The people in America are really generous, Kosta. They give millions of dollars every year to help little children everywhere. But there are so many millions of you, that the figures numb the minds and the hearts of the people, and you are no longer desperate, wide-eyed hungry little boys and girls—but just statistics.

Frankly, Kosta, I don't know what we are going to do about you. A lot of us are sending boxes of food to Europe, but they reach such a pitifully small number of children. Our government is making great plans about sending grain over, but there is so much talk and so much delay that it may be too late. The great United Nations, about which you probably never have heard, has set up a committee known as the International Children's Emergency Fund Committee. Well-fed people are always setting up committees, Kosta; very few of which accomplish anything. The plan was to gather a 450 million dollar fund in order to feed 20 million babies in Europe a 6-cent meal every day. But the nations on the committee lost interest, and it looks now as though they may raise less than 70 million dollars, which won't go very far.

can't make heads or tails of it. But just sit tight, little Kosta, and maybe things will come out all right. Some of you will come through. Your own countries will get back on their feet some day, and start growing crops and raising cows so you can have food and milk as you should. And we over here will keep on doing the best we can. We'll try to look at you as a hungry little boy instead of a statistic. And if we can do that, we'll try harder to help.

Good bye, Kosta. When men have quit quarreling and everybody gets back to work again, maybe there won't be any hungry children any where on earth. Isn't it strange, Kosta, that people who can do such marvelous things as fly across oceans and release energy from atoms, can't see to it that all the little children have food? Hopeful yours,

 The Editor,

Ask any oil man what that means in terms of protection for your engine. Yes, a fine crude . . . plus Phillips expert refining and practical experience . . . all these factors together turn out a smooth, tough, sturdy lubricant that's able to do a real lubricating job in your motor.

Phillips 66 Premium Oil is a brand new Phillips product. Detergent type and corrosion-resistant, Phillips 66 Premium Oil cleans, as it protects your engine.

clothes and food and shoes to replace the old pieces of automobile tire you had bound to your feet. They put you under a shower, remember, Kosta? You hadn't had a bath for months. And they shaved your head to get rid of the lice. And for the first time you began to see what civilization was like.

For several months you had good food, and even a little milk and some cod liver oil once in a great while. But not enough, not nearly enough.

That lasted a few weeks. Then your grandmother took you by the hand and you began the long, rough walk back to your home nearly 25 miles through the woods and rocky hills. The food was gone and the money was gone, Kosta, and they could not take care of you any more.

Since then the Americans have sent over more money and more food, but the chances are you haven't heard about it, and it is doubtful if the authorities know that you are back home again, your new shoes worn out, your hair grown and matted again, and the food that you ate at Eagle's Nest only a belly-tightening memory.

You see, Kosta, there are so many little children in the world who are hungry and ragged that it's hard to keep track of them all. The fact is, Kosta, you are better off than some of them. Over in Italy, for example, there are thousands of little boys and girls, forgotten by the world, living in wretched homes and institutions, who are not only hungry and dirty and lonely, but who were hurt by the bombs in the war. Some of them are blind, Kosta; some have only one leg or one arm. The welfare people are doing what they can for them, Kosta; but there are so many of them, so very many of them!

The people who keep books on children like you say there are 30 million of you in Europe alone who need help desperately. And they say there may be as many as 60 million in the Near and Far East just as bitterly hungry as you are, Kosta.

That's the trouble with the whole thing. There are so many of you that you become just figures; and it's hard to get excited about figures starving.

If you were to come to America, Kosta, thousands of people would reach out friendly hands to help you. Our well-fed little children over here would share their food with you. They would give you clothes. They would even make way for you in their homes. That's what would happen if any one of you, or a

Race For Carnival Queen Runs Close

It is believed that the four contestants for carnival queen are running a very close race, and the winner can be decided for certain only on the night of the Halloween carnival, Friday, October 31. Boxes are all over town soliciting penny votes and excitement is growing as considerable shaking is being done.

The senior nominee, Clara Marshall, and junior nominee, Ann Harp are probably running the closest race in the highest brackets, according to reports, although the Sophomore selection Melva North, and freshman candidate, Dolly Smallwood are little, if any, behind.

Crowning of the queen is one of the feature attractions seen at the high school carnival every year, and usually takes place at the close of the amateur hour, an entertainment program in which performers compete for cash. Judges are businessmen from town, and arrangements are being made whereby Douglas Meador, Tribune publisher, shall act as master of ceremonies.

A large crowd is expected to turn out Halloween night to see the many attractions now being planned for the carnival which will be held in the high school building.

The senior class will receive 35% of all proceeds for the show, and it is hoped that a large crowd will attend as the money is needed to begin work on the remodeling of the stage, which the seniors have set as their project for this year.

It covers food preservation and entertainment washing and ironing and time-telling and sewing and a lot of other things besides. It's the biggest bargain in your family budget. Students Receive Achievement Tests

All Matador Grade School students have completed a series of achievement tests and results are now being tabulated and will be compared with national Norms. Another form of the same test will be given during the month of May and teachers and students will be able to measure the progress of the student in relation to thousands of other students of the United States.

All students are to be given a mental ability test soon and these will be placed in the students permanent record and his average grades will be compared with his mental ability grade in order to determine whether the student is working up to capacity or not. These tests will probably be finished by the second week in November, according to Superintendent Bert Ezzell.

DEFICIENCIES NOTED IN STUDENTS AFTER PHYSICAL CHECK-UP

Many deficiencies were noted in Matador students following recent physical examinations, and cards are being mailed to parents notifying them of corrections that should be made.

Among deficiencies which were found in the highest percentage of students were eye defects or poor vision. Doctors recommend that any student showing less than normal vision in both eyes be examined by an eye specialist.

A number of students were found to be suffering from a deficiency in diet, and especially in the nutritional needs of a balanced diet. Parents are urged to see that children drink plenty of milk and eat plenty of green vegetables or canned vegetables with plenty of fresh fruit.

Proper care of teeth was also high on the list of things needing attention.

Doctors said however, that one outstanding characteristic of all students was strong hearts.

School officials pointed out that students should be in the best of health in order to do the best possible work in school, and that it is the duty of parents to see that the deficiencies remedied as soon as possible.

All students are to be given a tuberculosis test soon and parents will be notified of any positive evidence of this disease.

Flomot High School Sophomore News

Well, folks, here we are again with the latest gossip of the sophomore class of Flomot High School.

Saturday, October 25, we are having a rummage sale at the former Frank Garrett store. Be sure to come and see what we have for sale.

Boo-Boo, whom did you and Punk go to the show with Thursday night after the ball game? Couldn't have been Preston Price and Minner Crabtree!

Bobbie Jean, doesn't it get pretty cold in that convertible, and especially without the top; or maybe Juke Simpson held you pretty close so you would not get cold. How about that?

Yeah, Betty Jo has that Ear-to-Ear grin again. It couldn't be because Duane Titus started to school again could it??

Tuffy Cavitt is having Starkey over to his house pretty often. Could he be coming to see him or his cousin, Mary Ruth Cavitt?

We are looking forward to seeing all of you out at our school carnival October 31. Be sure to visit the Spook House and Lovers' Lane, and also have your fortune told. Also see the coronation of the King and Queen. And BE SURE and vote for our candidates: Boo-Boo Gilbert for Queen and Tuffy Cavitt for King.

We will try to show you a good time.

More expensive cuts of steaks are made better and waste is reduced, it is declared. The TENDERATOR or cube steak machine, was installed last week and many customers are enthusiastic with meat which has been processed between the revolving steel blades.
