TRAIL DUST

Cowboys had arranged their camp in a semi-circle beyond the array of blankets, Dutch-ovens and the coffee pot as conversation drifted away with the campfire smoke. The hungry men ate with an enthusiasm common at a large chuck wagon after the day's thrall had relaxed. Except for the chiming sound of spurs, the rattling of knives and forks on tin plates and the crunching of corn by the chuckwagon mules, a brief tranquility had come to the camp. A small drift of clouds moved into the sunset harbor and turned to glisten gold while long fingers of twilight reached over the pines. Talk had resumed but the wagon when the mules stopped eating and pointed their ears in the direction of a dim pad. The cowboys' interest followed that of the mules. Three wagons moved slowly through the twilight and passed a short distance from the camp. They were loaded with household goods, women and children and a boy drove a small herd of milk cows behind the wagons. A plow was tied to the bulging sideboards of each lumbering vehicle. The low sunlight reflected in the glistening moldboards for a few instants and was gone while silence spread over the group of riders. There was an odor of moist earth and sage on the soft night wind that fanned the coals of the dying campfire.

Often in the pool of retrospection we see the image of strange destinies that but for the impulse of one decisive hour, would have changed the course of our lives. While the empty shells of lost opportunities are strewn in the pellucid depths, the normal attitude is one of gratefulness; if we are without pride in our decisions they are usually doomed to dereliction.

Little effrontery is required to deliver an insult but the training of three generations is needed to qualify a true act of graciousness.

Freedom's greatest danger is not created by its enemies, yet remains always with the placing of authority in incompetent hands.

Some men wear the hackmore of marriage with a dignity that becomes.

A friend declares he has enjoyed one blessing by always being poor. He has never had to worry about kidnapers catching his children and holding them for ransom.

Nothing improves a man's social attitude more rapidly than telling him that people believe him clever. The unctious has dangers, however, since he may get out of control and become a continual bore.

If my saddle-blanket size garden is overcome by dry weather this year I plan to make a picture of its appearance and send it to the gardenseed people. I feel that they will want to illustrate their seed catalogs honestly for the next crop of buyers.

Matador Schools Observe Centennial Week In Historical Program, Displays

By La Nelle Rattan

A Centennial program was enjoyed last Tuesday night by approximately five hundred and fifty people. Never have I seen such a crowd in the high school auditorium and balcony.

Mr. Ezzell made a brief talk at the beginning of the program, and presented beautiful corsages to some of the ladies who taught school years ago.

The high school choral club furnished music throughout the whole program to go with each act.

Mrs. J. R. Whitworth and Jimmy Graham narrated the program.

One hundred years ago on January 23, 1854, a group of Texas citizens covered on Austin for a mass meeting. They solemnly resolved, "We will not only be the Empire State in point of territory, but in the number and excellence of our institutions of learning." It was a bold boast from a young state which was admitted to the union less than nine years before. But just eight days later the common school law was enacted. It established the free public school system in Texas. It is well that we pause and review on this Centennial birthday of our free public schools, the enormous amount of progress that has been made in education.

Williams. Several of these ladies still live in our home town.

Mr. Clarence Nugent, first teacher in Matador was portrayed by Pat Seigler; Miss Stella Berry, who taught from about 1915-1920, in Matador was impersonated by Charlotte Campbell. Mr. Claude V. Hall, who bore a striking resemblance to Abraham Lincoln, was head of the Matador school from 1906-1917. It was during this period that the school emerged from the ranks of a country school into a full-fledged high school. He was portrayed by Thomas Scuff. Mrs. J. D. Pierce, who was probably the first woman teacher in the county was acted by Patti Craven.

The first grade portrayed the first grade class of 1915 to 1920. They wore black stockings and were really very modest creatures in that day and time. Later the modern first graders came in to show the difference.

The second grade contrasted the old "Blue Back Speller" which was published in 1880, and the modern book "Along The Way" which was published in 1940. In it are Indian stories the children love. The Indians of that particular book came to life and gave an Indian drill. Some little Indians that I noticed were Roger Vinson, Pat Cooper and Wilburn Terry.

The third grade showed us how the students of olden days took Calisthenics.

The fifth grade class showed us how students used to get to school, and how we can ride a modern school bus to school now. We surely do have it over our parents do we not?

The eighth grades' part on the program was "Aids For Aging Teachers." We saw a moving picture and many other interesting things during their act.

Since public schools were established in Texas one hundred years ago, eating habits have changed tremendously. In the olden days they carried buckets with boiled eggs and the like in them. (Sometimes the eggs weren't even boiled, as Duck Hamilton can well tell you!) Now we have warm lunches in the lunchroom. Meals are served to students for twenty-five cents and adults for thirty cents. How times do change!

Dewayne Martin and Lois Hughes modeled the old-fashioned football and basketball suits and Dean Martin and Barbara Neighbors modeled the modern suits.

A couple of high school boys showed us the difference in farming with horses and tractors. Times certainly have changed!!!

Styles and Fashions have changed as much as anything else! Sara Carson modeled a very short black suit, which was very popular during World War II. Rose Donovan modeled a pretty party dress heavily beaded and much too short for this day but much representative of the thirties, when length was taboo.

All in all, the program was wonderful and if you missed seeing it, you'll never know just what you missed. However, you can be sure and come next year to the Centennial program.

One of the outstanding highlights of the program was the spotlights of different colors which Jerry Swarigen and Cecil Irwin focused on the high school choir. The choir looked very attractive in their white robes. We wish to thank Mrs. Wilkerson for the music she prepared for us.

We, the students of nineteen hundred and fifty-four can not realize just how lucky we really are to have nice school buildings, lunchroom, good transportation and good books to study until we get the history of our parents and the students before them. But we promise in the future to never complain, because we really have a nice school. We may not show it sometimes, but we are proud of the Matador Schools.

SENIORS TO MAKE TRIP TO COLORADO

The Seniors had their final meeting for discussion and decision on the Senior trip. There was a lot of discussion, arguments, and ideas; but we finally voted on nominating several places and then again voting on the three highest. In the nominations, Colorado Springs, Colorado was first; New Orleans, La., second; and Shreveport, La., was third. In the final election the towns placed in the same way.

The Seniors are really enthused about their trip to Colorado and also wondering when they will get to leave. Soon we hope—them from seeing the family physician. This is unfortunate because many times an examination would reveal that they do not have heart disease. Persons whose examination shows heart impairment have a much better chance to live a happy, constructive life if they follow their physicians' advice.

If one has heart disease his doctor will advise that he do all things in moderation, if necessary outline vitamin deficiency needs, eat sensibly and if overweight tell him how to reduce. In order to take some of the strain off his heart.

It is a protection to your heart if you have all the rest you need. When you rest you give your heart a chance to slow down and get the rest it needs. So keep reasonable hours, especially on work days.

Refuse to let yourself be rushed. If you think something must be done on the run, change that attitude to allow yourself more time. This applies also to driving a car. Aside from the danger of sudden death in a high speed accident, fast driving at any time makes your nerves taut, raises your blood pressure and burdens your heart. Also, refuse to worry, be afraid or to become angry. If you allow yourself to indulge in these wasteful emotions, your own heart is being punished.

Dr. Cox has one last word of advice. If you have heart disease, cooperate with your physician. The physician's objective is for the patient to realize the maximum of their capabilities within the limits of their disabilities.

Quoting from our favorite columnist, "Efem" in Duluth (Minn) Publicity:

A radio commentator says he thinks the trouble with present-day school systems is the teachers are afraid of the principals, the principals are afraid of the superintendent he is afraid of the school board, they are afraid of the parents, the parents are afraid of the children, and the children are afraid of nobody.

Observance of Texas Centennial of Public Schools, held by the local schools last week was highly successful. We were especially gratified to hear the first graders reciting their abc's even though it was part of the program and they were impersonating Opal Estes Pipkin, Erma Graham Edwards, Wynona Ford Gilbreath, Ben Edwards, Curtis Graham, Algine Groves, Ruby Spears Thompson, Mary Hamilton Meason, Charlie Keith and others when they started to school back in 1914-15-16. Teacher never did appear to notice the youngster who so urgently held up two fingers during most of the performance!

The J. L. Woodruffs had a pleasant plane ride (their first) on their recent trip to Houston, and have become enthusiastic advocates of air travel. It's still our favorite method of transportation.

When Horace Greeley said "Go West young man..." these clover leaf traffic lanes hadn't been designed. Some get where they're going, while others just go in circles.

Looks like the Brewster Baldwins of Socorro, N. M. (She's the former Marie Hunsucker) have a little genius on their hands. Their daughter, Jeannie, 6 years old, reads like a veteran third or even fourth grader, and spells, without hesitation, such words as Pinochlio, Manzanara (the street they live on) and other such tongue-twisters. Besides all this, she prints perfectly, and writes letters to relatives, addresses the envelopes and seals them sometimes before mama Marie has an opportunity to censor the contents.

Thanks to the "Planting Patrons"—Helen and son, Keith—the Tribune now boasts an attractive window display of various plants and ivy, not to mention the unusual aquarium filled with real marine plants, snails, a borrowed goldfish and a clam that is still buried down in the sand (we think). The row of tiny pots of cactus is also their project. The flora and plant life which decorate the Patrons' dining room view windows is really something, and we feel so fortunate to have the use of their green thumbs in dressing up the Tribune.

Steve Tips the Balance

Was just leaving home this morning when the Missus reminded me to stop at Steve and Al's Meat Market for a pound of hamburger. "Be sure to get it from Steve," she said.

"Why?" I wondered. So when I got to the market I asked Steve if he knew. "I'll tell you, Joe," he said. "Al and I sell the same meat, and a pound is a pound. Maybe it's just that we go at it differently."

"Al loads the scales and takes away 'til he has a pound. But I put too little on and start adding."

news in the Legion building lobby following the reception. The excellent Patton Springs band added to the meeting's enthusiasm. Mr. Hammond observed that the audience was composed of as many women as men. Visitors were recognized from Hall, Cottle, Dickens and Lubbock counties, including W. W. Klatt, president and Bob Cook, secretary, Lubbock County Farm Bureau. Mr. Cook is mayor of Idalou. Every community in the county was represented.

Farm Led. Farm Fed Depression In his address Mr. Hammond chided the present administration at times, declaring, "The Administration says it is ready to cope with a depression when it arrives. I want to know what they are going to do with the one we already have on our hands. There is talk of cutting taxes but I do not think it is good business to cut taxes and increase the deficit. I do not see how taxes are to be lowered when they find it impossible to operate the government on the amount already being collected."

"Every depression is farm led and farm fed. When the farmer can not receive a fair price for his products he can not buy more farm machinery and factories close. His vast buying power is lost and every industry must suffer. Other factories close and the buying power of more people is lost. There is a lot of talk about the farmer being subsidized, yet every business in the nation has some kind of a subsidy. The farmer suffered when he lost his exports on wheat and cotton because the government imposed a tariff. The things he buys and the services he uses are subsidized."

Farmers On Golf Courses "A lot of criticism has been heaped on the farmer because he wants good automobiles, modern conveniences in his home and decent working hours. What is wrong with a farmer quitting at five o'clock like other workers? Who says he has to work from daylight to dark and do without the better things of life? When farmers are organized to receive a fair price for what they produce like other workers, it may be possible for them to swing a golf bag on their shoulders and quit work at 5 o'clock."

Mr. Hammond outlined his plan of control of farm surpluses. He said farmers should retire acreage (estimated at 10%) from production until the commodity had been absorbed exactly as a manufacturer controls his production.

Mr. Hammond was accompanied here by Mrs. Hammond from their home near Abilene. A transcription was made of Mr. Hammond's address and it will be broadcast over Lubbock radio station KFYO Saturday at 12:00 to 12:15.

Timely Tips

An old tooth brush makes a wonderfully handy tool for cleaning jewelry, combs or other hard-to-get-at places. Put a little household ammonia in soap suds, and you can whisk them clean in no time. When things are too wet to iron, hang them up and let an electric fan blow on them. They'll be ready for ironing a lot sooner, and have a pleasant freshness about them.

Garden tools will winter well if they are scrubbed clean and all metal surfaces coated with oil before they are put away. Try office desk blotters on your shelves under glassware and china. They're colorful, and will absorb any moisture that may collect. That nasty onion odor can be completely obliterated from your hands. Just wash them in vinegar. To keep fingers from being marred when moving furniture, slip old, heavy woolen socks over the legs.

A folded damp cloth placed under a mixing bowl will keep it from slipping while you are mixing. When starch sticks and burns on the bottom of your iron, don't use an abrasive to clean it. Sprinkle a little baking soda on a damp cloth and rub the iron until clean. The soda won't scratch the ironing surface.
