Groves Petitioned Into Mayor's Race

A DEPARTURE in city politics was launched Monday when a petition was filed with the city secretary to place the name of Algie Groves on the ballot as a candidate for the office of mayor, in the April 5 municipal election. Groves, who is resident engineer for the Texas Highway Department, is currently a member of the city council, and not up for reelection.

Groves said he would allow his name to be placed on the ballot, but that he would not campaign for the office.

The petition was the first in at least a quarter of a century with the citizens seeking a candidate for the mayor's office in the manner frequently done in school trustee elections.

Six-year incumbent Mayor W. L. McWilliams, who draws a salary of $60 per month, is a candidate for reelection. First candidate to announce for the mayor's place was C. H. Sistrunk, who said in his announcement that he would serve the office without pay in event he was the choice of the voters.

The council in its meeting this week has called the election for April 5th, when the voters will elect two councilmen and a mayor.

The two councilmen whose terms are expiring are W. W. Clements and Wade Berryman. Clements has filed again but Berryman is a candidate for county commissioner and did not file.

Freddie Welling, manager of the West Texas Utilities Company will be a candidate in the place of Berryman.

Her Majesty Queen Daphene

Daphene Lynn Gets Grid Queen Roses

A BOUQUET of red roses placed in the arms of Daphene Lynn Saturday night made her a queen. It was a tense, dramatic moment, the highest point in Matador High School social life, when captains of the 1959 District Champions Matador Matadors football squad reveal the secret.

Selection of the queen is by secret ballot of squad members. Captains Clem Edwards and Bundy Campbell had circled the club room of the American Legion building and passed dozens of beautiful girls, scintillating in their gay formals, any of whom might have been a recipient of the coveted red roses. Daphene Lynn was surprised, excited and happy. Tears of joy were on her cheeks as she embraced each of the captains. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. L. L. Lynn of Whiteflat.
Traditionally excellent steak supper prepared by mothers of the squad members, pep squad and Drum & Bugle Corps members, had preceded the naming of the football queen.

About Your Health
A weekly public service feature from the Texas State Department of Health.

Henry A. Holle, M. D., Commissioner

The year 1960 sees the beginning of a new law established to add still another safeguard to the health of Texans.

The law, Senate Bill 121, enacted during the regular session of the 56th Legislature, became effective August 1, 1959, but was implemented January 1, 1960. It is called the Texas Hospital Licensing Law.

Basically it provides for the licensing of all hospitals in Texas, including general and pediatric hospitals. Excluded are state and federal hospitals.

The program is self-financing from fees received for registration. A minimum fee of $25 and a maximum of $300 is charged per year, based on a standard fee of one dollar per year per bed.

A nine-member advisory council is now in the process of making recommendations for minimum standards which are then to be reviewed by the State Board of Health for approval.

LEARNING IN NATURE'S SCHOOL

4-H boys and girls who care for a brood of chicks or watch a tiny seed sprout and grow, are learning the ways of nature while building a store of knowledge that will last a lifetime.

One of the axioms of 4-H work is that the boy or girl is far more important than the project—a tribute to the wisdom of those who direct the program. For as 4-H members help their projects grow, they grow with them and become active, responsible citizens at an early age.

We're proud to have these fine young people as friends and fellow citizens and to tell them during their special observance, National 4-H Club Week, March 5-12, how much we admire their many accomplishments.

Underground Cathedral Near Bogota Carved of Salt Rock

Pina Sue Sturdivant, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Sturdivant, Matador, is finding life in Colombia, South America far dull. She has been in Bogota since last July, where she is learning English to adult Colombians, on a fellowship from the Colombo-Americano, an institution organized for that purpose. The institution, which is self-supporting, seeks a better understanding between the Colombian and United States governments.

Supplement her salary, Miss Sturdivant does special tutoring and teaches in the American School for children of oil company employees. The following is one in a series of articles Miss Sturdivant has written at the request of the Tribune, describing the country and its customs.

scenic route winding around the mountains. It was paved except for the chugholes and washes; and it was almost wide enough for a car and a skinny burro to pass each other. High cliffs with huge boulders that played "Heavy, heavy hangs over thy head," hovered over the road on one side, and canyons sheered away the other side.

When we met other cars along the road, the driver leaned out of his window and shouted a cheery greeting: "Estupido! Ladrón!" and was answered with equally happy baninage. Twice on the way down we stopped to stretch our legs, and stretched them quite nicely while pushing the car to start it again.

Swimming Pool Inviting
In Giradot we plunged joyously into a clear, inviting swimming pool which consisted of one part water and two parts chlorine. After a couple of hours we strolled to the center of town, where we had boiled chicken and rice - or rather, boiled chicken bone and rice. Then we went across the Magdalena River on the railroad crosswalk and took pictures. Joe, owner and driver of Suavacito, made a bargain with a native and we recrossed the Magdalena in style in a hollowed-out log canoe. The nice part about it was that, although it might turn over, it wouldn't sink. The canoe made it across right-side-up however, and we were denied the dubious pleasure of swimming the Magdalena. We charged back to the swimming pool where the water was clearer and the current was absent.

After a long hard push, Suavacito roared into action and we headed back up the mountain to home. The scenery was lost in the night, but we didn't lack entertainment. Suavacito blew off like Old Faithful every ten minutes and we dashed to little thatched-covered houses for water.

Suavacito was a very nice car, and fearing that we would get bored with the trip, it did its best to cheer us up. Half-way up the mountain there was a terrible clatter, and we stopped to see if it was the engine or the rear axle that we had lost; but it turned out to be nothing more than the license plate that had fallen off. Another quarter of the way up Joe suddenly slammed on the brakes. "The key fell out of the ignition," he announced. "Help me find it before it falls out the hole in the floorboard."

It was only ten o'clock when we were delivered triumphantly to our doorstep.

Not satisfied with one near-fiasco, and daring the fates to do their worst, The Brave Explorers of Colombia Corporation set out the following Sunday for a little town named Mesites del Colegio. The name is much larger than the town.

The road to Mesites made no pretense of being paved. It swirled down the mountain like a sea-sick corkscrew. Like the super highway to Giradot, it was wide enough for a car to pass a skinny burro, and luckily, we didn't meet any fat ones.

See Banana Trees
Suavacito gurgled along, tiptoeing around curves; but although Mesites is actually only about sixty miles down the mountain, we traveled twice that far - most of it up and down in bounces. That old '38 Dodge sure has a sturdy roof, and it is never bothered with broken survival. The only machinery consisted of a sugar-cane press and a coffee mill for washing, husking and drying the coffee beans.

"Fritanga," a native potpourri of bananas, yucca, potatoes and meat was served for dinner. After dinner we took a tour of the finca and saw numberless strange and exotic plants, all of them bearing some useful product.

After dark we all piled into Dr. Conway's station wagon and started back to Bogota. At one place the mountain side was in flames, and our host explained that that is the method by which the land is cleared of brush. (Some of the fields stand almost on end and point to the sky

In due course the doctor prescribed a shot. Now in Colombia, the drug store gives the shot - the doctor only writes the prescription.

Blithely ignorant of Colombian shot-giving custom, we called the drug store. An hour later a little boy with dirty hands came with the needle and the medicine.

He filled the syringe, unscrewed it from the needle, and put it on the table. Then he walked over, jammed the needle in Nancy's arm, and left it there while he meandered back to the table, got the syringe, screwed it onto the needle (still in her arm) and proceeded to give the shot. However, always one to look at the bright side of life, Nancy decided that Colombia probably had a lovely funeral services.

Make Trip To Farm

It was two weeks before we left Bogota again. But with the memory of illness dimmed by the cons of time that had passed, we set out again, this time by bus, to a little town called La Vega, where we visited a finca (farm). The bus was relatively new, being about a '48 or '49 model, and it was filled to capacity - or rather, all the seats were taken. On the way down, the driver stopped at little roadside stores and villages and picked up the passengers waiting there. By the time we got to La Vega, we were as squeezed as pressure-packed coffee.

We were met at the bus station, and started off on foot up a narrow mountain trail to the finca, where our host, Dr. Conway, assured us that someday they were going to build a road wide enough for a car.

The finca itself was a self-sufficient little world, raising all of the things necessary for

Around MGS

By Janie Waybourn

The eighth grade is looking forward to a holiday tomorrow, but besides that, things are pretty dull now for those lively kids. The fifth grade is now studying Latin America in geography. They have also made several maps of our southern neighbors. They have enjoyed learning about different people of the world.

Students of the third grade are studying pioneer life. The first grade has built a toy farm. They have also drawn large pictures of themselves. They are studying all about Texas.

- M. H. S. B. -

Robert Brown Future Poet

Robert Brown, eighth grade, has a secret talent that has just been discovered, he is a poetry writer. This poem of his was read at the Football Banquet.

"Galloping Ghost"

The two great teams of Turkey and Matador

Were playing a hard game, each trying to score.

The clock showed two minutes, the score stood 8 and 6

Both of the mighty teams were using all their tricks. Up in the grandstands came a mighty roar,

For all they wanted was someone to score.

Back in the huddle the faces were grim,

They all knew the townsfolk were counting on them.

In the grandstands there rose a triumphant roar.

For through the Turkey line the Galloping Ghost tore.

He ran to the 40, the 30, and then he slipped.

This was a bad break, now maybe they were whipped.

The crowd was unhappy and sat very still.

For they knew this was no dream, but was for real.

Back in the huddle there was quite a debate.

The quarterback had just called faithful 48.

The tackle crouched, and the ends took their stance

There could be no slip, this was their only chance.

The Galloping Ghost grabbed up the ball.

But waiting for him was a man-made wall.

Cut to your left, cut to your left, came a crying roar.

And left to the man-made wall he tore.

He drove down the field with heart and soul,

And when finally tackled, was over their goal.

Matador must have had the best fate,

For up on the scoreboard were 12 and 8.

The crowd went wild, they had something to boast.

For out on the field stood the Galloping Ghost.

LIBRARY LAPSE

by Ida Fair

Next to Valour by John Jennings is an exciting novel about the life of a highlander, James Ferguson.

It tells of how he had to leave his homeland when his father was killed in the war against Britain and how he and his family moved to America. Here they lived with his mother's brother, but soon had their own home and a saw mill.

Jamie soon learned scouting from Toby, an old Indian who became his lifetime friend and companion. He went on many expeditions with Toby and other scouts from Suncook, the community in which he lived.

When he married Dorcas Drev, a girl he had met when he first came to America, he moved to Portsmouth. The city life and social affairs did not suit him, so when the French and Indian War broke out, he joined Roger's Rangers, a group of scouts for the regulars. Be sure to read this book to find out about Jamie's capture and trial for spying, his cousin Hubert's sly movements, his capture by the French and many other exciting happenings.

Next to Valour will hold your attention to each of its 300 pages. It may be found in the MHS library.

JUNIOR JOBS

by Ida Fair

The juniors finally got their show on the road. After the "Junior Spectacular" we expect some talent agencies to be after our stars.

If you don't know by now, we are going to take this opportunity to warn you: Tuesdays and Fridays are "smell" days in MHS. On these days the junior and senior chemistry students invade the lab and under the instruction of Mr. Moore mix up those terrible smells that float through the building. We strongly advise against visits to the school on these days except when you are properly equipped with gas masks.

The Home Ex III girls were kept busy until the last minute working on the decorations for the Football Banquet.

We all enjoyed the banquet, and were proud of the members of our class who participated in the program. The junior football boys honored this year were Buddy Davis, Petyes Timmons, Jimmy Welling, Dink Wilson, Gale Stafford and Guy Campbell.

CAMPUS CUES

By Carolyn Pohl

Swirls and swirls of color, boys all dressed up, and surprised faces were some of the scenes at the Football Banquet held last Saturday night.

The gala affair is one which is looked forward to all year long. Girls save their new formal until that very special night without letting anyone see them. The trophy case has an extra sparkle now that we have added our new football District Championship trophy to our collection. The trophy was presented at the banquet by one of our captains.

The basketball girls have also added their District Championship trophy to the MHS collection.

See ya next week!

"THANKS" TO MRS. FAIR

COUNTY AGENT PALLMEYER SAYS:

ARRANGEMENTS OUTLINED FOR CONTACTING AGENT

Persons who call at the county agent's office during his absence will find on the desk, a calendar pad with information as to where he is and how long he will be gone. A pad is also provided for callers to leave a message stating what they want, and these will be taken care of as soon as the agent returns.

In case no listing is made on the calendar pad, the agent is out for a few minutes; sometimes at the post office, across the street, or at the bank, etc. For urgent messages, the county agent may be contacted by radio in the sheriff's office.

It is impossible to stay in the office at all times. If your agent did this, no 4-H club meetings could be held, farm visits made or work done for individuals.

If the people of Motley County will follow the instructions above, information can be provided to callers quicker, and return trips can be reduced

Your assistance will be appreciated.

VISIT SPUR STATION

Several Motley County residents interested in the feeding of livestock attended the feeders field day at the Spur Experiment station recently. Research work that was carried out on a 140-day feeding period was studied and results compared. Anyone interested may drive down and visit the station at any time by making arrangements through Paul Marion, superintendent of the station.

HOME GARDEN TIPS

For Motley County people planning a home garden, the following tips will help you to enjoy your 1960 garden more.

1. Plan your garden in advance.
2. Keep the garden small.
3. Make a succession of plantings. The idea here is to stagger the plantings so as to have a continuous supply of highly vegetables.

4. Plant a variety of table crops. There are many Texas gardens.

There is a lot more to gardening, of course. Information is available at the county office.

Governor Proclaims Week of March 5-12 For 4-H Club Observance in State of Texas

Governor Price Daniel has by official proclamation designated the week of March 5-12 as 4-H Club Week in Texas and has asked all citizens to participate in the observances being planned by 4-H members in the communities and counties of Texas.

"An expanding 4-H program not only teaches the latest practices in agriculture and home economics, but emphasizes character, development and good citizenship. Club members learn by conducting result demonstrations and participating in 4-H activities. By putting into practice in their homes and communities what they learn, club members live and serve through 4-H. County extension agents work with voluntary 4-H adult leaders, 4-H members, their parents, and friends of 4-H in developing a program which provides education and leadership opportunities for the youth of Texas. The 4-H program is under the direction of the Agricultural Extension Service of the Texas A & M College System.

"Any boy or girl from the ages of 9 to 21 can take part in 4-H Club work. The opportunities offered to 4-H Club members to grow in citizenship and in practical skills are especially valuable to them, the State of Texas and the Nation."

In a letter to all Texas 4-H Club members the Governor said, "Please accept my best wishes for 1960 and the years ahead. May you continue to build yourselves, your homes and communities, and thus help build our State and Nation. The future holds bright promise for our land, and you as 4-H Club members have a vital share of this future. I join the people of Texas in saluting you and the parents, adult leaders and friends of 4-H who make this program possible."
