PRICE SEVEN CENTS

TRAIL DUST

By DOUGLAS MEADOR

In attempting to disguise a less than glamorous personal or family trait, the process may become involved, not unlike the problems attached to gift wrapping a goat in cellophane.

Calling attention to a fault in another is one of the oldest and most generally used forms of diverting interest from our own imperfections.

Marriage is a calculated risk that usually gives the principals a chance to equalize their gains and losses, with in-laws getting a fair roll of the dice of chance.

Winter is an old man too old to dance with spring, but stirred by the music of the wind from flutes echoing in the sky.

Ignorance could become respectable with a small amount of effort directed toward the masses. We are seldom more understanding than when we stand between our lack of knowledge and the facts, and ignorance makes most of us first cousins.

Prizes will be awarded in the following events: 1. Quickest flying kite; 2. Largest flying home-made kite; 3. Smallest flying home-made kite; 4. Highest flying kite; and 5. Best flying kite.

Boys who enter must supply their own kites, string, etc.

"Though kite flying is a safe sport, the First Baptist Church will not be responsible for any accidents which might occur during this contest," Rev. Robinson stated.

Drinks will be furnished, and each person is asked to bring a sack lunch.

Anyone may attend by paying a $3.00 fee, whether she participates in the workshop or not, it was announced.

Rehearsals Scheduled
All members of the show cast have been alerted by Director Bill Seale, who announced Tuesday night that only three rehearsals would be held. These will be Monday, Tuesday and Thursday nights, March 25, 26 and 28.

Committees in charge of arrangements have been named, and apparently everything "is under control."

3rd POLIO VACCINE
Third and final vaccine in the series will be given Sunday afternoon at the American Legion hall, it was announced here Tuesday night at Lions Ladies Night meeting.

Auto License Deadline Near
It's later than you think. Last day you can drive the old bus (truck or trailer) with 1962 license plates is Monday, April 1. At midnight on that date your old tags become delinquent and you are subject to a fine if you drive after that hour without new plates.

As a convenience to late tag buyers, Sheriff Jinks Wilson's office will be open until noon, Saturday, March 30, and, of course, open all day Monday, April 1. The office will not be open Saturday March 23rd.

New Paint Shop Is Opened Here
Newest Matador enterprise is the Budget Paint & Body Shop which opened Monday in the Spray building on US Highway 70 just east of the Main Street intersection. David Badgett is the manager.

Mr. Badgett has had 9 years experience in restoring wrecked and damaged automobiles, and installing automobile glass. He offers spot paint work and complete paint jobs. Estimates are made without charge.

Methodist Board To Hold Meeting In Hamilton Home

Mrs. Morgan Rogers of Truth or Consequences, N. M. is visiting here with her mother, Mrs. J. M. Jackson, and her sisters, Miss Annie Mae Jackson and Mrs. Pat Sheridan.

JOVIAL ENTERTAINER—Joe Martinez, right and his daughter, Lola, 13, conclude the evening's program with a song Friday night when they, with other members of the family, presented an acrobatic show sponsored by Flomot Lions Club. The crowd was gratifying to the Lions, but a little disappointing to Martinez, who likes to entertain people with his clowning, and because he has performed to much larger audiences. He has trained his children, who are adept at balancing, singly and in groups, and in turning flips. An excellent evening's entertainment was given by Eugene, 14, Henry, 12, Grasiela, 7, Juanita, 6, and of course Martinez.

Mr. Gruber, one of a group from Baptist District 9 who will go to Japan to participate in the "New Life Movement" next month, used as his subject, "Why should we have the Japanese Crusade?"

"Perhaps God is giving us a second chance because we did not go to Japan in the days prior to World War II," Mr. Gruber declared. "Christ commanded that the gospel be preached in all the world... but there are many places in the world where we are not permitted to preach, including Red China, Russia, and others."

"We should go to Japan because Japan is inviting us to come... we have an obligation to fill there in answer to an invitation from the Japanese Baptist people."

Promise Shown in Lower Growing Costs For Cotton

Cotton is still regarded as King in the south but is one of the most expensive crops to produce. First breakthrough of this economic barrier may have been achieved recently during experiments on the High Plains of Texas.

First unorthodox step was in planting the rows only nine inches apart on irrigated land. Purpose of the nine inch middles was to determine how much cultivation could be eliminated. Cultivation during the growing season to get rid of weeds is a major cost in cotton production.

Initial tests were conducted at the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station at Lubbock. Cotton was planted in the nine-inch rows, instead of the usual 40 inches, and then an application was made of a pre-emergence herbicide. On this first experiment, a bumper two bales were taken from a one-acre plot without a single cultivation.

In another test plot, cotton planted in the usual 40-inch rows yielded 1 1/2 to 1 3/4 bales per acre. The weeds in this plot were controlled by several machine cultivations and by hand hoeing.

Weeds didn't stand a chance in the narrow-row plots, according to observers. The emergence herbicide controlled the early season weed growth. As the season progressed, the closely spaced plants shaded out weeds that emerged.

The narrow-row cotton was planted by grain drill like wheat. Normally, about 30,000 cotton plants are grown on an acre but on this plot more than 200,000 plants per acre were permitted to stand. Each plant produced only three or four bolls but the dense planting offset this loss and helped raise the total yield.

The close row spacing produced plants that were more ideally adapted to stripper harvesting than plants grown in 40-inch

Soil Practices Considered By Motley Farmers

John Speer, of Flomot and Manly Thompson of Matador are farmers installing or considering the installation of water conservation practices in the way of terraces and waterways. Soil Conservation technician assisted the individuals recently to analyze water problems and lay out control measures.

B. L. Peacock of Roaring Springs is being assisted in revising his farm plan to meet changing conditions. Guy Smith of Turkey recently developed a conservation plan on his farm north of Flomot. A plan map, soils map, and plan of operations are a part of the folder furnished to these land owners under an agreement with the Upper Pease Soil Conservation District. A part of the assistance furnished through the Soil Conservation District is the help of the Soil Conservation Service.

Cost-share assistance is available in applying a conservation plan through the Agricultural Stabilization Conservation Service and the Great Plains Conservation Program. An FHA soil and water conservation loan is another aid available to help apply a conservation plan.

rows. The closely spaced plants were short and had few branches and thin stems.

The experiments were conducted primarily for the High Plains of Texas and Oklahoma where stripper harvesters are in fairly common use. These machines harvest cotton by stripping both mature and immature bolls from the plant.

Both the narrow-row and the wide-row plots in the experiment were sprinkler irrigated three times with three inches of water. The water activated the herbicide and aided seed germination. Both plots received the same fertilizer treatment - 80 pounds of nitrogen and 40 pounds of phosphorus per acre applied before planting.

Close plantings may not work in the humid areas of Texas and the South where boll rot is a problem, however. These growing conditions may be tested by this method later. And tests have not been made on the harvested cotton's spinning quality. Nevertheless, for certain areas of Texas where irrigation is available, the experiment may be a significant factor in reducing the high costs of cotton production.

COUNTY AGENT PALLMEYER SAYS:

Motley County 4-H Club members elected county officers and district delegates in February, as follows:

A. J. Dye, President and Shirley Stafford, Vice president, both from Roaring Springs; Tommie Green, Vice president, Pat Cooper, secretary and Pat Day, treasurer, all from Matador; and Clois Shorter, Flomot, reporter.

Serving on the county committee are Jane Hamilton and Sandra Sanderfer, Matador; Don Tardy and Kerry Bearden, Roaring Springs; and Sue Tiffin, Flomot.

Tommie Green and Pat Cooper are district delegates, while Clois Shorter and Pat Day are alternate district delegates. Shirley Stafford was previously elected district secretary. A. J. Dye has served as district delegate for two years and was not eligible for a third term.

I have been asked several times why a 4-H member should take part in more than one activity or contest during a year, as they are eligible to receive only one award at the County Achievement Banquet.

First, state rules are that a 4-H member may receive only one county medal provided by the state office, unless the boy or girl is awarded the Gold Star, then they may receive an additional award in the field they were selected as winner. This does not apply to awards made available by local concerns. (Soil Essay, Rifle Club, etc.) with the member earning as many as requirements are met.

Second, record books are graded on growth of projects, overall work, help given others and leadership activities, therefore the more activities entered, the stronger the record.

Walker and Hargis To be in Amarillo On Speaking Tour

(Special to Tribune)

Two of America's most outspoken anti-communist leaders have joined forces on a coast-to-coast speaking tour, and Amarillo will be the only city in Texas included in the five-week junket, extending from February 27 through April 3, to be called "OPERATION: MIDNIGHT RIDE."

Former Maj. Gen. Edwin A. Walker, Dallas, against whom a Federal grand jury in Mississippi recently refused an indictment in the Oxford, Mississippi, incident, and evangelist Billy James Hargis, Tulsa, director of the Christian Crusade anti-communist organization, will speak in the City Auditorium in Amarillo on the evening of March 28, at 7:30 p.m.

General Walker will speak on the workings of communism on the international scene, while Rev. Hargis will deal with "Communism Internally." Admission will be a $1 contribution at the door.

The two speakers declared, in a joint statement, "Inspired by the midnight ride of Paul Revere in 1775, we are taking this means to warn the American people of the dangers from within and from without, in time for the Nation to shake itself from its lethargy. The liberal brainwashing we have had for more than 30 years has finally softened the American people until the will to resist is almost a thing of the past. If we are to survive, there must be a sharp awakening immediately."

"No man in our day," said Rev. Hargis, "has paid a greater price to preserve freedom than Edwin Walker. In the Oxford incident, in which he was finally vindicated, he became a symbol of freedom and resistance to the growing tyranny of dictatorial liberalism, socialism and communism."
