Editor's Life Reads Like A Novel

by Marisue Potts

Editor's Note: This is one in a series of articles on the background of the people, places, and events depicted in the Matley County Library's historical mural. In the spirit of research, corrections and additions are solicited.

Though Douglas Meador, editor and publisher of the Matador Tribune, began his days near Matador on May 9, 1901, he covered many miles, had many adventures before devoting his life to a small town weekly newspaper.

When Meador was just six months old, his parents began a covered wagon odyssey which took them to Moore County, Oklahoma, Texhoma, Dalhart, and Quanah. It ended with a homeplace in Cottle County where his no-doubt weary mother said to his father, "Jimmy, when you take me away from here, I want it to be in my coffin."

The future wordsmith attended school at Paducah and Valleyview, once completing two grades in one year. "I must have gotten the writing bug then. I can remember I had a very stiff schedule and little time to myself. So I'd get up before daylight and go into the living room of our farmhouse. I'd wrap my feet in tow sacks to keep warm and try to write for two hours. Nothing much came of it," Meador recalled.

In his senior year, he became a drop-out. A yet to work in the shipyards of Virginia almost proved fatal when he took the flue during the 1918 epidemic, and was shipped home at the point of death.

Recovered, the young man took a correspondence course from C.T. Ludwig Detective Training School. His detective certificate in hand, Meador took a job as a nightwatchman in Ft. Worth at a mattress factory. Alas, that job didn't last; the foreman found him asleep on the job.

Ever ambitious, former detective Meador took another correspondence course, this time in writing. "I learned what grammar I know and got basic ideas and just a lot of inspiration from that course," he related in an interview to free-lance writer Bob St. John in 1971.

With his latest diploma in tow, Meador headed for Hollywood in 1923 for a six year stint. There he wrote three scripts for Shellcraft Studios and was listed in Writer's Market as a scenarist. Two comedies sold for $50 each and he assisted in directing one. When the treasurer left town with $12,000 of company funds, the fledgling studio folded, once again throwing Meador out of work.

As he remembered it, he came close to starving before landing a job at a drugstore. Then he worked as an electrician on sets with such actors as Tom Mix and sold real estate before returning to Matador, where he hoped to earn enough to allow him to head back to California.

Back home, Meador found a job at Simpson's Drug Store as a soda jerk. He met a young lady from Missouri, Lila Tipton, who was working in the First National Bank as secretary. The romance flourished and they were married on June 22, 1929, with plans to live in California.

In the meantime, Dave Cameron, an old friend of Meador's offered him his first newspaper job, a good job at $25 a week, on the Childress Index in the advertising department.

When Grover Mitchell, owner of the Matley County News, offered Meador a job at $15 a week, though a reduction in pay, he eagerly returned to Matador. He learned to run Linotype, kill out pages, do the casting in small hand-poured quarter page casting box, made and sold advertising, and wrote copy. But due to hard times, Mitchell was forced to let him go.

So Meador was looking for work again. He found a job as a pile driver, building bridges between Paducah and Matador, for $2 a day or 20 cents an hour. His pay increased to $3.50 a day when he agreed to haul dynamite from Acme in his Ford roadster. This job ended when he hurt his hand and had to quit.

Undaunted, Meador borrowed $150 from his father and operated the Phillips 66 Station. Turner Campbell offered him two houses in north Matador. Meador recalled he had no money, he could hardly pay the rent, but Campbell was willing to take a chance on him. When times got worse and he sometimes couldn't make payments, Meador insisted that the owner take back the houses. He refused, and Meador finally paid off his indebtedness.

Around 1931, Meador sold his interest in the station and began talking to Homer Steen, publisher of the Floyd County Hesperian, about publishing a paper Steen tried to talk him out of it, saying Meador had no advertising, no commercial printing, no mailing permit, and no circulation. The veteran newsman was correct. Going against the competition of the established Matley County News, the free circulation Matador Tribune failed after eight issues.

While working at Joe Murrell's filling station, consisting of two hand cranked pumps, Meador was approached by Melton Thacker, owner of the Roaring Springs News, about seeing what he could do with the small circulation, less than 300, handset newspaper. Thacker offered to let Meador have money to buy stock and get started. From this time on, Lila Meador recalled, she was to be a newspaper widow.

So it was with $1.43 in his pocket in December of 1933, Douglas Meador had a chance to make his dream come true. The newspaper was moved to Matador, located in the old Kanzler building, with the name and mailing permit changed to the Matador Tribune. Howard Hamilton joined in a partnership of the Tribune Publishing and was responsible for setting part of the type.

In March of 1934, Meador purchased the Matley County News from Grover Mitchell and merged the two papers into the Matador Tribune. The paper was printed in the Masonic Building for the next 19 years. In 1953, the Tribune Building, now home of Pipkin Insurance, was constructed.

Douglas Meador worked long and hard at making the Tribune a success. He often worked all night, and it was not unusual to find him napping on the counter as he rolled up the papers for mailing. One particularly long night stretched into 28 hours without rest.

Candidate Comments

Voters will be selecting members for the different boards and councils in the election to be held May 7. There are three positions open on the School Board. The mayor and two council places are open for the Matador and Roaring Springs City Councils and three places on the Hospital Board.

Following is brief information on some of the candidates. Comment was not available from all the candidates.

LAMAR TILSON, age 33, is running for School Board. He grew up in Matador and graduated from Matador High School in 1972. He attended Amarillo College. He is employed with the State Department of Highways and Public Transportation. He has one daughter, Heather, age 11.

Mr. Tilson comments, "As a Matador graduate, I feel I have an obligation to this school and particularly to the younger people of this county. Even though my daughter is not enrolled in our school, as a parent and a former student, I do realize the importance of this school system and of its maintaining an agreeable relationship with a small community like ours. I am seeking a position on the school board because I feel a youthful approach to some of the problems that arise and the decisions that are made would be beneficial to the community. I care about the quality of education and the quality of leadership that prepares these students for their future and would like the opportunity to help ensure these needs are being met."

ALVIN D. ALEXANDER is seeking a position on the School Board. He is 43 years old. Born in Haskell, he grew up in Benjamin and attended school in Benjamin. A Graduate of the University of Texas at El Paso with a Bachelor of Science Degree in Civil Engineering, he has worked in all phases of design, construction, field inspection and maintenance for the State Highway Department for 15 years.

Mr. Alexander states, "I feel that I can bring experience in management, budgeting and personnel to the school board. I believe that a broader selection of courses should be offered, but primarily we should be concerned about improving our children's reading and writing skills. Without these two basic skills, any further efforts in offering additional courses will be of no importance and any higher educational aspirations of these kids will be very difficult to attain."

LESLIE C. JAMESON is running for a position on the School Board. He is 36 years old and has lived in Matador all of his life. He has been married to his wife, Linda for 18 years and they have two children, Bradley and Brandi.

Mr. Jameson states that he is running for this position to help in serving his community.

HORACE EUGENE WATSON is 73 years old and is seeking the position of Mayor for the City of Roaring Springs. Mr. Watson has lived in Matley County for 63 years "off and on", owning their home in Roaring Springs most of this time, even if not living there. He and his wife, Cleo, have 4 children, 5 grandchildren and one great grandson. He has served as Mayor of Roaring Springs for 4 years and he states, "we have worked very hard with the City Council to help Roaring Springs grow and provide more jobs and businesses to open here through grants and other opportunities. We are still trying to get a water grant and money to provide a new water system here."

STACY D. REID, 24, is seeking a position on the City Council of Roaring Springs. She and her husband Jace moved to Roaring Springs a year and a half ago from Lubbock, where they both attended Texas Tech University. They are both employed at Thacker Jewelry and recently had a son, Coby, who is now four months old.

Mrs. Reid states, "The growth of a small community such as Roaring Springs is exciting to me. Since I grew up in a small town similar to Roaring Springs, I have taken a particular interest in the city's development. There are several projects that I would like to work on if I am elected, such as the water system, a city dumpground, and possibly getting new equipment for the fire department. I will be willing to listen to everyone, and I hope I can bring fresh ideas to the community."

HAROLD BRANTLEY, is running for Councilman for the City of Roaring Springs. He is 65 years old and has lived in Roaring Springs for the past 17 years. He spent his early years in McAdoo. He and his wife, Pat have one daughter, Camille of California.

Mr. Brantley states, "I worked for the City of Roaring Springs 5 years as City Secretary and Water Superintendent previously. I feel a civic responsibility to my City."

DEVONNE DILLARD, 54, is running as a write-in candidate for the City Council of Roaring Springs. She was born in Roaring Springs and has lived there all of her life. She and her husband, Bennie have two grown children, and two grandchildren.

Mrs. Dillard states, "I was asked by some of the citizens of Roaring Springs if I would agree to be a write-in candidate. I had not considered the position until this time, but do feel, as many others, that we need someone who has the people of our town at heart. We have many problems that need attention. I am not a procrastinator, but I do believe in doing what's right for the people and in the sight of God."

GARY L. LANCASTER is running for Mayor of Matador. He is 43 years old and has served as Matador's Mayor for six years. He graduated from Matador High School in 1963 and Midwestern University in 1975. He and his family moved back to Matador in 1980 and he opened a CPA office. He and his wife Carolyn have 3 children, Shanna, Clay and Wendy.

DOYLE K. ROSE, 54, is an incumbent candidate for the City Council for the City of Matador. He has lived in Matador for 35 years. He and wife Carolyn (Thrasher) were married in 1956 and they have three children Tony, Kenny and Colleen Baxter, all of Matador. They have five grandchildren, Sean, LaShea, Bradley, Stachia and Quinten.

Mr. Rose states that he is seeking this position to continue taking an active part in the community he has chosen to make his home.

BACK CARE LYING DOWN

It may surprise you to learn that you can hurt your back even when you're sound asleep, since certain lying down positions put stress on your lower back.

As with sitting, standing and all other waking activities, it's important to avoid a swayback posture when sleeping or lying down. That's why sleeping face down on your stomach or sleeping on your back with your legs straight can be bad for your back. Both of these lying down postures tend to cause your lower back to curve into a swayback position.

There are two recommended sleeping positions. The preferred one is to sleep on your side, both arms in front, with your knees and hips bent so your body is in a partially curled up position. Some people are most comfortable in this position with a pillow between their knees. The pillow helps to prevent the top leg from dropping forward over the bottom leg which causes your back to twist.

Lying on your back is also an acceptable sleeping position if your legs and knees are slightly bent and raised. You can do this by putting one or two pillows under your knees. Raising the knees and legs helps flatten out the lower back and prevents swayback.

Your mattress should be firm. Sagging mattresses spell trouble because your back won't have proper support. If your mattress isn't firm you can put a board under it to help give your back proper support.

And use a pillow just large enough to fit the space between your head and the mattress, so that your head is in line with your spine, and not tilted either up or down.

Senior Citizens Report

by Iris Blevins

The bus was busy making its regular runs last week. It went to Lubbock Monday. Our president, Ruth Baker, met with the electoral committee about our upcoming election in May. And they will send everything through the mail to Ruth when the papers are all ready. Thursday the bus went to Plainview with several people riding. It was a nice day and everyone enjoyed the trip.

Friday was fellowship evening at the center and Bill and Nora Belle opened the doors at 2:00 p.m. to a group of eighty-four players and they enjoyed the evening very much.

Again, we invite our neighboring communities to come to our luncheon and stay for the evenings of games and visiting.

THURSDAY PLAY

April 20, there were 9 players: LaVoe, Louise, Olivia, Mickey, Marion, Winifred, Brenda, Geneva and Leona.

Play was for closest to the pin on No. 6. LaVoe won on below 20 and Marion on above 20.

The after 5 players, were these: Judy C., Judy R., Nell, Mary and Vida Elkins.

We have 24 paid members and the association is glad to see some new members and renewed interest in the club.

BABE ZAHARIAS TOURNAMENT

The worst weather of the season was Sunday: wind gusts of over 50 (seemed like 90) miles per hour accompanied by a sandstorm. (Ironically, Saturday was a most beautiful day with ideal weather, and so was Monday - but alas! not Sunday!!)

However, 32 players braved the gusty winds and played 18 holes: JC ss, Frances and Randy Moss, Jimm Ballew, Garland & Judy Cartwright, Ellis & Leona Terry, Darrell & Brenda Cruse, Buzz & LaVoe Thacker, Frank & Laverna Price, Geneva Wilson, Bill & Mary Jones, Tom Yeates, Vida Elkins, Mickey Bostick, Danny Monroe, Jackie Nunn, Larry Burkes, Tom Stokes, Marian Woodruff, Dudley Barber, Wade & Nell Berryman, Jake Goodson, Gerald Pipkin, Bill Tidwell and Roncho (Roy) Grundy. Winners were Garland and Judy Cartwright, Jim Ballew and Danny Monroe, with 6 under par, for which they received golf balls.

One "feme" remarked she paid $10.00 to have her hair styled at a local beauty parlor on Saturday and made a nice donation to the cancer fund, only to have the wind "blow it out" on Sunday. So goes weather in West Texas.

The players were generous in their donations to the Cancer Society for our annual Babe Zaharias Tournament. Donations amounted to $257.00 - the most we have ever received at this particular tournament, and on Monday, others made contributions (some were golfers who didn't get to play among others who donated). These included Joe & Loys Campbell, E.A. & Dorothy Day, Lila Meador, Opal Pipkin, Nell Clem, Jewell Landrum, Lucille Gaines and Hazel, bringing the total received to $332.00, all of which went to the American Cancer Society.

The Golf Association appreciates and wishes to thank all persons for their interest and generous donations to this worthy cause. Also a special thanks to Dudley for managing the tournament and setting up the teams, as well as for all the other work he did in having a successful and fun tournament.

I knew Spring was really here as I drove in Saturday morning. The roadside and some terraces and Naomi Tilson's country corner were covered with the soft yellow of buttercups and the hills were yellow-green with the new leaves of mesquite. The sand of Friday had settled and the air was cool. When I arrived at the Library, Jimmie Smith had already swept the dirt from our doorway, the beautiful Iris that Bailey Elliot had brought in the day before were still fresh, and the wildflower display that Marisee adds to or rearranges each time she comes in was certainly eye-catching.

With Spring comes not only wildflowers, but some wild weather, so you might want to come in and see Countdown to Survival: Tornado. Other films from packet two which arrived last week are:

Adventures of a Young Eagle; And I Want Time, from LOVE STORY (on death and dying); Brazil, I Love You; Casey at the Bat; Claymation, how animation with clay figures is accomplished; Come See the Dolphins; Hansel and Gretel; It's a Badger's World; "Mister...You Made a Big Mistake on My Bill"; No Man is an Island; The Rink; Rodeo Cowboy, filmed at Frontier Days in Cheyenne, WY; Senses (Most Important Person Series); Sgt. Swell; T is for Tumbleweed; The Zax from Dr. Seuss on the Loose; A Zoo's Eye View: From Dawn to Dark.

Mrs. Jesse Turner donated a master copy of the surrounding counties that are often mentioned on the tornado alerts on TV. If you would like to have a copy to keep near your TV or radio to quickly see just how near severe weather warnings are to you, we will be happy to run off a copy for you for only 15c.

The Motley County Library has just received a check for one hundred dollars from the Exxon Company. This represents Exxon's part of a matching funds grant which the company makes possible to any of its employees who make contributions to worthy community projects.

Dr. and Mrs. Ralph L. Dockendorff of Baytown contributed an equal amount to the library earlier this year making the Exxon grant possible. Dr. Dockendorff is a retired employee of Exxon who served many years as an engineer with the company, and later as its safety engineer for the entire world. Mrs. Dockendorff is the former Allie Traweek, daughter of the late Mrs. A.C. Traweek and Dr. A.C. Traweek of Matador.

Sylvia Martin of Flomat and Katie Davis of Roaring Springs visited the library on Wednesday. Friday Rhea

Lawrence, who has recently returned to Matador, brought her sister-in-law, Wyvona Willis of Des Moines, Iowa and her sister, Johnnie Belle McCarty in to see the mural. Kristen Edmondson and Daniel Pedigo from Dallas came in Saturday, and Tom and Aleda Ross accompanied their granddaughter, Aleda Elaine on a trip to the Library where she saw the mural, read a few Easy books and saw the filmstrip, "The Tortoise and the Hare."

We could certainly use some more evening volunteers to keep the Library open from 6:00-9:00 p.m. This is an ideal time for a man and wife team to work together. We plan to have a meeting at the Library on Monday afternoon, May 16 at 2:30 and Thursday evening, May 19 at 7:30 p.m. At this time, I will explain some things that all volunteers need to know, some of the changes since we have moved, and some rules for shelving books. If you have any questions I will try to answer them. To get your name on the list of volunteers, please call the Library or Mrs. Bailey Elliott, our volunteer coordinator, at 347-2216.

New books at the Motley County Library for Adults are:

 A Man Named Dundee, by Leo P. Kelly.

A Brief History Of Time: from the Big Bang to Black Holes, by Stephen W. Hawking.

We were pleased to learn that Lee Peacock's book Twigs and Branches From The Archer-Harper-Henderson-Reeves Family Tree, was included in the list of 62 books entered in the Texas Historical Commission's 1987 Publications Contest. We wish it had won a first place award, but we are proud to have the copy she donated to Motley County Library on our shelves. She continues to bring more order to our genealogy section all the time, donating her lunch break to making material easier to find when she had rather be continuing her own research. Many people are amazed at the material available in such a small library. Thanks again and Congratulations, Lee.

Remember When

By Annie B. Cloyd
Box 22
Flomot, TX 79234

Hello Folks, it's me again just coming around to visit with you a little and tell you some more stories about things that happened a long time ago. Seems like most everyone likes to look back at the times when they were young and able to go and do what ever their folks would let them do - or - what ever they felt they could get away with.

I sure do enjoy getting these nice letters and phone calls from folks that used to live around here. In fact I got another letter from Elizabeth Black or did I tell you last time? Anyway she always sends me some good old time remedies and I will get them all down one of these days so you can read them too.

Got a nice phone call today from a man that used to live here in Flomot and he told me he had some good things to tell me and would try to get them all written down. His name is Morris Gates from Van Ormy, Texas. That is down close to San Antonio. He said he was here for the last Homecoming but was sick at the time and didn't get around to visiting everyone as he had wanted to. He told me a good story over the phone and I think you will enjoy hearing about what happened when Mr. D.H. Cooper was coming to town to deliver some buckets of lard. He had the lard in his car and as he was coming to the bridge across Tom Ball creek, well, I guess he lost control and ran off the bridge - turned his car over and all you would expect, the lard went all over the car and Mr. Cooper too. Morris said that he heard the comotion and ran to see what it was all about and found Mr. Cooper just moaning that he was about to die. Told Morris to look on his head and see that he was bad hurt because his brains were coming out and running down his face. He said, "Morris, I'm going to die - I know I can't make it." "Morris, I'm going to die - I know I can't make it." Well Morris looked at his bald head and then found a rag and wiped the lard off and showed the man that it was lard and not his brains, that he had felt running off his head. Morris said after that the old man got up and found he could still get around just fine when before he wouldn't even try to move cause he had decided there wasn't any use as he was almost dead anyway.

Morris wanted to know about Delphia Jones - his phone number and address. Said he liked the stories that Delphia had written to me and wanted to get in touch with him. I'm sure when they get together there will be a lot of stories going around. A lot of memories will come back when old friends get started talking.

While Morris was talking with Leon he said something about getting old and said, "If I had known that I would live so long I would have taken better care of myself."

Something to think about till next time we 'remember when'.

Three High Plains cotton people have been named by their peers to an eight-member subcommittee to evaluate high volume instrument (HVI) strength measurements as a possible basis for premiums and discounts in the government loan program.

The three are cotton producer Steve Verett of Ralls, who is also president of Lubbock-based Plains Cotton Growers, Inc., ginner Wayne Mixon of Seminole and warehouseman Fred Underwood of Lubbock. All were chosen in February by Agriculture Secretary Richard Lyng to serve on a 16-member Cotton Marketing Advisory Committee charged with an in-depth look at all phases of the U.S. marketing system.

The subcommittee was formed April 13 at the advisory committee's first meeting after a discussion of fiber quality evaluation systems, including the use of HVI by manufacturers, the status of HVI's use in cotton classing offices, instrument calibration accuracy and the possibility of adding more quality factors to HVI.

The subcommittee is scheduled to meet in Dallas June 8 and will report its findings at a full committee meeting tentatively set for August 24 in Memphis, TN. Other subcommittee members include producer Hal Lewis of Arkansas, merchant Peter Hirschfeld of Dallas, cooperative spokesman Tom Smith of Bakersfield, CA and cotton Incorporated's fiber research director Preston Sasser of Raleigh, NC. Yet to be named to the group is a representative from the manufacturing industry.

The full committee is made up of one producer from each of the Cotton Belt's four regions and two members each representing ginners, mechants, manufacturers, cooperatives, warehousemen, and research and academics. Also from the Plains, in addition to the three subcommittee members, is C.L. Boggs, President and General Manager of Plains Cotton Cooperative Association, Lubbock.

Of the subcommittee's work, Verett says, "We can no longer think in terms of whether HVI is coming. HVI is here, it's here to stay, and it's important that producers have a say in the marketing changes that are inevitable as more and more merchants and manufacturers come to rely on it."

In other action the advisory committee addressed the need for new procedures for arriving at the market's quality premiums and discounts that are used to determine annual adjustments to cotton loan programs values. The old, much-maligned system of using market quotations committees in the eight official spot markets has been discontinued. The committee endorsed a proposed change that would establish seven growth areas from which to gather pricing data. Proposed territories would be labeled Southwest, North Delta, South Delta, East Texas-Oklahoma, West Texas, Desert Southwest and San Joaquin Valley.

More precise delineation of growth areas and other details of the proposal are expected soon in the Federal Register with time allowed for industry comment before final adoption.

Social Security Tips

by Terry J. Clements

A person whose Social Security check does not arrive on the day it is expected should wait for two mail deliveries before contacting the Social Security office.

This will take care of a good share of delayed checks. If the check still has not arrived after 2 days, the people at the local office can begin action.

The most common cause of failure to receive a check is failure to report a change of address. Many people fail to notify Social Security when they move, even though they rely on their Social Security checks as their primary source of income.

Some people think it is enough to report their change of address to the post office. The post office, however, will forward mail to the person's new address for just 1 year. After that they will send the check back to the U.S. Treasury.

If the person's check is returned and the new address provided, it usually takes about 4 or 5 days for a new check to be sent. If the check was not returned, a stop order will be put on it and the matter will be transferred to Washington, D.C. to see if the check has been cashed.

If it has not been cashed, a new check will be sent right away. This process can take up to 3 weeks. If it has been cashed, a new check cannot be sent until the person who cashed the check is identified.

Even though a person's check is deposited directly into his or her account in a financial institution, he or she should notify Social Security of any change of address.

For more information, or to file a claim, call us at 293-9623.

If you get aches and pains from minor arthritis...backache... sore knees...plus stiff or swollen joints, here's news that can help you feel better.

A natural pain remedy has been developed for everyday use. Called EUCALYPTAMINT®, this pain relieving formula is made entirely from all natural ingredients. Included are leaves from the Chinese Eucalyptus tree. Ingredients from the leaves are carefully selected...then imported to America where they are combined with two other natural ingredients. From this meticulous process comes EUCALYPTMINT.

Already EUCALYPTAMINT has been used in America 4 years with impressive results. For example, a lady from Bartlett, Illinois, writes: "This is the most marvelous stuff I have ever used for pain to injured knee and back." And Domenic Gentile, head trainer for a major professional football team, says: "I am impressed not only because EUCALYPTAMINT is consistently effective at relieving pain, but also because it is 100% natural. I highly recommend it."

Now this all natural ointment is available to you. Not just another drug store gel that "smells good" but doesn't work. EUCALYPTAMINT is a deep penetrating ointment that helps quiet pain naturally. If you do nothing else today, resolve to try this ointment on your aches and pains. Millions of people think discomfort from minor arthritis, backache, sore knees or stiffness must be endured. WE guarantee you WON'T after you try this ointment. Only $16.95 postpaid for 4 oz. bottle or $22.95 for 8 oz. bottle. Money back guarantee. Mail to:

A Sunday School teacher asked her class, "Why did Jesus know the Scriptures so well?" "Because," answered a boy, "His Daddy wrote them."

Yes, He did. God the father, through His Holy Spirit, told the writers of the Bible just the very things to record.

He wanted us to know that we're sinners, that Christ died for our sins, and that the only way to Heaven is through saving faith in Him.

The Bible teaches us what's true and it shows us what's wrong in our lives. It straightens us out when we're wrong and helps us to do what's right.

You can understand the Bible better if you know the Author. Do you really know Him?

READER'S COLUMN

The Way It Was

by Emmett B. Jenkins

My parents were living four miles east and two miles south of Matador when I was born. The place in later years was known as the Stafford Place. The front part of the house had two rooms, which was joined by a half dugout on the back. It was used for cooking and family meals. The front of the house was painted white with red trim.

My dad filed on the section of School Land in 1898. My parents were married in 1893. To this union were born eight children: Leland, Clarence, Ethel, Mable, Emmett, Sadie Marie, Mary and Homer T. All of whom are still living with the exception of Leland.

I was five years of age when I started to the Clements School. It was located one mile east of our house. The school consisted of one room and one teacher, Miss Eula Johnson. School started November first and lasted six months.

Other than the Jenkins family, there was the John Lee family, the Gossets, Lum Lancasters, the A.D. Beauchamps, Joe Freemans, Tuschon family, also Bush Pipkin, Nathan Fulfer, Loyd and Commodore Thomas.

Near the northeast corner of the school there was a cistern with a rope and a bucket to draw the water. We all shared the same dipper with the exception of some who had folding aluminum cups. We took our lunch to school in a bucket with a lid on it. The fast food places were not the first ones to initiate the sausage and biscuit. Those were usually in our lunch pail everyday. Also, we had boiled eggs, a cup of beans, dried apricots and tea cakes.

The out houses, they forgot to build. There was a bend in the creek. The boys went to the right side of the bend, the girls to the left side. The girls had more privacy as the sage brush and plum thickets were more dense.

As for entertainment, we played town ball, long base and wolf over the river. The balls were made of yarn from unraveled socks which was wound around a small rubber ball, then stitched with sewing thread. After a few home runs, the ravelings on the ball looked like a prairie chicken after a cyclone.

There was a slanting bank on the boys side of the creek. The boys would sit down with their legs around each other and slide down. Mama always wondered why the seat of my pants were so dirty and worn.

For discipline, the rod was rarely spared. The teacher sent my brother Clarence to the creek to get a willow switch. He was gone quite awhile. When he came back he handed it to the teacher, which she promptly put to use on my brother, Leland. After a few licks she had nothing left in her hand but the handle, as Clarence had notched the switch.

Miss Johnson was a compulsive laugher. As punishment to my brother, Leland, she made him sit on the floor with his legs stretched out with his back against the wall. This embarrassed him. He told her she made him sit on the floor so she could laugh at him.

At another time, he was sitting at his desk. She asked him to stand up and he refused. She whipped him across the shoulder and neck. That was more than he could take. He got up and took the strap away from her. Then he went outside and sat on the step and cut the strap into small peices. After a trustee meeting, he was expelled from school. After a time and a sincere apology, he was allowed to return to school. As a little boy, I thought my brother was great, but a few years later, I was sorta ashamed of what he did.

The school house was the place for community gatherings, such as school programs and the community Christmas tree. Church services were held twice a month on Sunday afternoons. I remember one preacher by the name of D.B. Doak, from the Matador Methodist Church, who did the preaching. Also a singin school was held at the school.

I had a great disappointment at one of the Christmas tree gatherings. My dad was playing Santa Claus. When I recognized his shoes, I realized there was no Santa Claus.

An automobile in that day and time was almost unheard of. The wagon, buggy and horseback was the only mode of transportation. The women rode side saddle. I never knew of a woman riding astride. It just wasn't done.

One day Mrs. Beauchamp rode by the school house. She was riding "Old Rowdy" going to visit my mother. Seth saw his mother pass so he decided to walk home with me. The Tuschon boys rode along on their donkey, as their road home led by our house. We had gotten about one hundred and fifty yards from the house when Seth came out with his pocket knife and started jabbing the burro above the tail bone. That donkey downed his head and piled it's riders on hard ground. Max came off the ground and when Seth saw the look in his eyes he decided he had made a bad mistake. Seth took off toward the house. Max being bigger and faster caught him as he was trying to negotiate a barbed wire. You can guess the rest of the story!

Southwest of the school house there was a stile, which was a series of steps that was used for women to mount their horses. The horse was led up by the stile and a woman could step on with ease. If there was not a stile, a man would lock his fingers together and make a stirrup for the lady to put her foot in. Then he would lift up and she could get on with little effort. The side saddle had only one stirrup which was on the left side and far too high for a woman to get the foot in, even if she was not inconvenienced by a dress.

In 1907, I remember that my dad made a trip to Childress to buy supplies. Anything, from groceries to barbed wire. He camped out going and coming but stayed in the wagon yard while he was there. It took him five or six days to make the trip. This trip stands out in my memory because he brought me a little red rocking chair.

A year or two later we had a severe drought. There was no feed for the horses except mesquite beans. Dad went to Quanah to buy feed for the horses. He bought a wagon load of sacked, shelled corn. The horses could not chew the hard corn. They were used to a soft diet, such as grass, fodder and milo. We had to soak the corn in a barrel of water until it softened. I had never seen such poor horses on the farm but they lived and were able to do farm work.

One summer afternoon, Leland and Clarence built a new bed for the wagon. Having finished, they decided to try it out. They put the water barrels in the wagon. It was one half mile to the spring where they usually filled the water barrels. The horses were frisky. The boys wanted a little fun, so they pushed on the reins and the horses began to pick up speed. Going down the hill things began to get out of hand. So they tried to slow down. The wagon had no brakes, nor were there any breeching on the horses. It was a run away. They hit the jump off to the creek bed. The breast yoke came down, the wagon tongue stuck into the sand. The wagon, barrels and the boys became airborne. The team was found a mile away at Mr. Beauchamp's place. The end of the wagon tongue was never found. The boys got up and wiped the sand out of their eyes and hair. Other than a few lumps and some missing skin, they were uninjured.

In 1910 Clarence came down with appendicitis. Dr. A.C. Traweek, Sr., the family physician, came on call. He was driving a Franklin air cooled automobile. The hood was round like a barrel. There were no front doors. It was right hand drive and there were three levers on the right side of the driver which were used to manipulate the gears. There was a leather strap from the top to each front fender. When the doctor was ready to go, he invited my younger sister, Sadie and me for a ride. We rode up the road about three hundred yards and he let us out. That was our first automobile ride.

In 1912 we moved three and one half miles east of town, which was on the highway. Dad hauled the lumber from Childress for our house. If there was a knot in a plank, he shoved it back. I'm sure there were not many houses that

GFWC El Progreso Club Hears Program On Religions Of Asia

An interesting and informative program on Religions of Asia was given Thursday, April 14 for GFWC El Progreso Club in regular meeting held at the Senior Citizens Building. Speaker was Mrs. Robert (JoAnn) Dickson of Anson, a member of the local club.

The meeting was called to order by the president, Mrs. Douglas (Lila) Meador and minutes of the previous meeting were read by the secretary, Mrs. Joe (Loys) Campbell. Mrs. Meador extended a special welcome to Mrs. Campbell, who was injured in a fall while attending the GFWC Santa Rosa district convention in March.

Mrs. Frank (Lola) Pohl served as program leader and gave the Inspirational Thought at the conclusion of the program.

In discussing the religions of Asia, Mrs. Dickson first gave a brief outline of each, which she later described in more detail. Her introduction began with a quotation:

"There is a remarkable prophecy, fully 1,200 years old, made by a monk who brought Buddhism from India to Tibet. It says, 'When the iron bird flies and horses run on wheels, and when Tibetans are scattered like ants across the face of the earth, then the universal laws taught by the Buddha will come to the land of the red man.' In this day and age, the old monk's prophecy has been fulfilled," she observed, pointing out that "the tibetans are scattered across the earth, driven out by the Chinese Communists. Among these religious refugees are many spiritual masters who have established Buddhist centers in the United States. Truly, the universal laws have arrived 'in the land of the red man.'"

She continued with quotations of early New England transcendentalists that supported some of the Asian beliefs, and listed seven best-known religions in Asia: 1. India gave birth to Hinduism, Buddhism, Jainism and Sikhism; 2. China developed Confucianism and Taoism; and 3. Japan is the native land of the Shinto religion. "Taoism and Confucianism are studied and admired by Westerners, but they do not attract converts," she said.

Her discourse continued with a comparison of Judaism and Christianity and an in depth view of the four major Asian so-called religions: Hinduism, Buddhism, Confucianism and Islamic, from the standpoint of origin, supreme being, scriptures, salvation, immortality, worship and man's purpose.

As an example, Mrs. Dickson were built with lumber as good. Ben Speagle and Nels Pender did the carpenter work. The house was painted brown inside and out. The idea was that dark paint showed less hand prints.

We attended the Ballard School in 1912, which was located three miles east and one mile north of town. The Reeves, the Rattans, John Lees, J.T. Hulseys, the Algie Groves, J.D. Lawrence family and others. Some of the teachers were: Miss Virgie Whitten, Fred Simpson, Fay Gaines and Con Singleton.

During the 1918 blizzard we missed one day of school. Elbert Reeves was the only student who went to school. The teacher was not there so he went home.

The Matador pasture No. 1 joined our place on the west. The cattle drifted to the south and east against the fence. A number of found that Hinduism has no creed and no founder, although they believe in having had 33 chief gods who have been incarnated into literally thousands. "Three greatest gods are: Brahma, the creator; Vishnu, the protector, and Shiva, the destroyer. Hinduism considers all are but representatives of one true god, Brahma, the creator. Their scripture is the Vedas, written over a period of several centuries. Man is what he is in respect to his caste, and rises in caste through life after life, or through reincarnation."

After a brief resume of Buddhism and Confucianism, Mrs. Dickson outlined the religion of Islam: "The religion of Islam has its origin in Muhammad, born A.D. 570 in Mecca, Arabia. When 40 years of age, he began to experience visions by which he received a prophetic call. Angel Gabriel convinced Muhammad that he was a messenger of God (Allah, Arabic for God). He proclaimed his mastery of Arabia just before his death A.D. 632. The creed of these believers is 'There is no god but Allah, and Muhammad is the apostle of Allah.' Jesus was only a great prophet. Their scriptures are confined to the Koran, given by Allah to Muhammad through Angel Gabriel. The Koran is absolute authority in doctrine, ethics and customs, although Judeo-Christian Old and New Testaments are also considered divine writings. The Koran does not solve the problem of human responsibility for the Moslem. One accepts whatever happens because Allah wills it.

"But, praise be to God, there is yet one more Asian religion...the Christian religion, whose believers worship Jesus Christ," Mrs. Dickson concluded. "His followers were first called Christians at Antioch during the first century A.D. Believers know He is the son of God and the fulfillment of God's redemptive plan for man.

"But for the grace of God we could have been born into Confucianism, Buddhism, Hinduism or Islam. Aren't you glad and grateful to be a Christian?"

Refreshments of delicious coconut cake and coffee were provided by Mrs. L.B. (Lucretia) Campbell, hostess for the meeting who was unable to attend due to illness in the family. In her stead, Mesdams Grace Campbell, Marguerite Edwards and Dorothy Day served the refreshments to Mmes. Josephine Hamilton, W.D. (Vena) Lipscomb, Loys Campbell, Ted (Bailey) Elliott, Gene (Mary) Louder, Meador, Pohl and Dickson.

When the ice was about three inches deep on the horse trough, it was hog killin' time. We put a fire under the wash pot. Then we would dig a hole to fit a fifty gallon barrel inserted at an angle. When the water in the pot was at the right temperature, it would be carried in buckets to fill the barrel about a third full. Two men would get the hog by the legs and douse him in the barrel head first, as that was the toughest hair was. Then after a few turns, we would reverse and put the other end in the hot water and follow the same procedure. Then pull him out and scrape the hair off. If the water was too hot it would set the hair, if too cool it would not scald. After that the hog would be hung by the hind legs from a tree or to a propped up wagon tongue to be dressed. Next he was put on a table or platform and cut up. Hence the ham, shoulders, middlings and sausage meat, which was ground by hand in the sausage grinder.

Be strong and take heart, all you who hope in the Lord.

coming. Less than a year after it began in the latest Tribune, Meador's column, "Trail Dust," earned him a first place cup at the State Fair in Dallas for the best weekly newspaper column in Texas. A collection of "Trail Dust" articles became the book Trail Dust, published by Nortex Press, which is featured with Meador's portrait in the historical mural at the Motley County Library.

Mrs. Meador, his right arm and mainstay, who had typed and kept books from the beginning, joined the staff full time, twenty-four hours, it was said, in 1945, to write the club news, weddings, obits, and her own column, "Pied Pinions."

Across the state of Texas, Meador became known as the cowboy philosopher. In 1952, he was honored as Newspaperman of the Year by the Dallas Professional Chapter of Sigma Delta Chi for doing something outstanding for newspaper, community, region, or state.

Among the causes he served as president were Motley-Dickens Counties Old Settlers, Lions Club, West Texas Press, Panhandle Press Associations. In addition, he was mayor of Matador. According to the Matador High School Seniors of 1954, who dedicated their annual to him, Meador "is behind every worthwhile project and has given unselfishly of his time, energy, and money to the citizens of Matador."

A highlight of his career must have been on October 15, 1972 when a historical plaque was dedicated to him during a reception held in Matador. People overflowed the town with their heartfelt love and gratitude. A special edition of the Tribune, printed without his knowledge, was dedicated to Douglas Meador, Editor and Publisher.

Through the years, until his death in 1974, Meador covered the tragedies and the triumphs of the people of Motley County. His philosophy was summed up when he said, "It's not as important what you put in a country newspaper as what you keep out of it." But he created spells with his words, painted poignant pictures, once read never to be forgotten.

We would live "High on the Hog" for awhile. The fat was rendered in the wash pot and stored in ten gallon cans. The cracklings were used to make lye soap.

No Sense Of Humor?

by H. Soltwisch

My English she ain't rit so good;
She 's spoken even worse;
So if'n a sense of humor you ain't got,
Don't read the second verse.

Some folks reads a little,
and some reads a awful lot, but an eddicashun they ain't persued and smarts they just ain't got.

But reel comunicashun ain't all words,
that be put together properly;
It can be jest a settin real silent
Injoyin' another's company.

So my English she ain't rit so good,
and she's spoken even worse.
But a great big smile never hurt a soul, and they's the reason fer this verse.

Smile! The Good Book says a merry heart doeth good like a medicine! I believe it!

How To Raise A Delinquent

1. Begin in infancy to let him rule your life. Satisfy his every whim and never require anything of him like putting him in the Church Nursery. In this way when he grows up, he'll think the world rotates on his axis.
2. Laugh at his "dirty words" and think they are "cute". He will soon run off and pick up some others that will blow your hat off.
3. Don't give him spiritual training until he is twenty-one and then let him decide for himself. By the same logic, don't teach him the English language. Maybe when he's old enough he will speak Bantu.
4. Praise him in the presence of the neighbors and make him feel he is better than any child around - smarter, too.
5. Avoid the use of the word "wrong" or "Sin" because it may develop a guilt complex in him. This will prepare him to believe that when he is punished later on for stealing cars or assaulting women, our society is "against him" and that he is being "persecuted."
6. Pick up everything after him. Do everything for him so that he will be experienced at throwing responsibility upon others.
7. Let him read and see everything his heart desires. Provide good food for his stomach, but let his brain be filled with poisonous filth in words and ideas.
8. Quarrel frequently in your child's presence. That will prepare him and arm him with all he needs for a broken home of his own later.
9. Give him all the spending money he asks for; never let him earn it or learn responsibility in caring for it.
10. Gratify all his sensual desires from the first with all the food, drink and every other craving pertaining to his taste, touch and tantrums.
11. Take his part against policeman, teachers, neighbors. They are all "prejudiced" against your child and he might as well learn it while he is young.
13. Prepare yourself for a life of grief. You will likely have it.

Now parent, brace yourself, because your authority will be challenged and your motives questioned. If you are wondering about the approach - try the honest one. If you are looking for the best time to start - do it now!

Children play major role in Mother's Day gifting

Are children today different from the way their parents were between the ages of six and 11? Most of us would say yes, and Neil Postman's best seller, The Disappearance of Childhood, supports the idea that, over the past 20 years, children have become extremely sophisticated and are very responsible young adults.

In support of Postman's observations, recent studies on child behavior have shown that, due to widespread changes currently taking place in American family life, children today learn to adapt quickly, and are more receptive to taking on a greater number of adult responsibilities.

Additionally, the studies indicated that children willing to accept this rapid growth and change in their lifestyle also expanded their roles as consumers, and were encouraged to exercise a predominant influence on family purchases.

Of the several purchasing surveys conducted, Mother's Day proved to be the single most important family gift-giving occasion in which children have a very strong input.

This Mother's Day, May 8, 1988, over 20 million six-to-11 year old children will be shopping with their families for the perfect gift for their mother or grandmother.

Since traditional gifts and family togetherness are two significant aspects of the celebration of Mother's Day, many fathers can help their children select the right gift by arranging for the family to go together on a shopping spree.

Traditional gifts for Mother's Day, like the millions of mothers who receive them, come in various sizes, shapes and colors.

The rose, America's favorite flower and National Floral Emblem, has been the traditional floral symbol and gift for Mother's Day for more than 80 years. A gift of roses on Mother's Day pays tribute to our mother's beauty year after year.

This year alone, over 85 million roses will be produced in the month of May, allowing for every mom to receive one rose on her special day.

Like their mothers, all children have their own set of unique personality traits, which of course can make for interesting gift shopping. Finding a gift to complement mom's style and one that expresses the family's heart-felt sentiments can be an exasperating even for the most proficient shopper.

By choosing a rose gift, every family member can be confident in knowing that each American grown fresh-cut rose is an original. The variety of rose gifts dad and the kids can bestow on mom or grandmother is limited only by the group's imagination.

One, three or five blooms can carry many glad tidings. Roses purchased in various numbers—a few or many—can be priced to fit any budget.

There is no need to break a piggy bank when choosing a rose gift for mom. A rose given by each child in the family or a single bloom for every year of their age is an ideal family gift.

One tried-and-true way of showing mom how much she is appreciated would be to place a single rose in a bud vase on the nightstand or dresser in her room. This thoughtful gesture will get her special day off to a rosy start.

Mom...this rose is for you!
May, 1988

85 million

There are 85.7 million moms in the United States according to the U.S. Department of Commerce Census Bureau.

Close to 85 million roses will be produced and sold in May, 1988, allowing every mom in the U.S. to receive one rose on her special day—Mother's Day, Sunday, May 8.

The rose, America's favorite flower and National Floral Emblem, has been the traditional floral gift for Mother's Day for more than 80 years. Nearly 60% of the 85 million roses purchased in May will be arrangements featuring 1, 3 or 5 rose blooms.

Let mom sleep in late and then wake her up with a delightful breakfast of corn flakes, juice and toast—in bed. Placing a rose inside a card or presenting her with a Mother's Day corsage on the breakfast table can make the celebration last all day long.

Roses can also add something extra to your personalized gift. For instance, place a rose and a heart-shaped note inside a gift of pottery or a gift box that one of the children has made at school.

Be creative—when wrapping a present with traditional ribbon and bows, add a rose or two.

Take your child along with you to call on a "shut in" grandmother who can't venture out this holiday. A personal visit means so much more when the children accompany you. Prepare a basket of fruit or sweet-smelling fragrances tied up with a big ribbon and a red rose for each child to give.

If the family is posing for a photo to give mom this year, use red roses as the crowning touch. Roses are always in season, and are available when you're ready to say "cheese."

Remember, children and roses both need a little special care from time to time. Handling and caring for their roses can help build a tender-loving-care attitude when youngsters are responsible for their rose gift.

Here are a few simple tips you can pass on that will help ensure that you receive the longest life from your roses!

• Any rose that has been out of water long enough for the base end of the stem to dry out will benefit from having an inch or more of the stem cut off under water with a pair of shears. After making the cut, place the rose in a water-filled container for display.

• Keep your roses out of direct sunlight and drafts.

• If a rose should wilt prematurely, follow the cutting-under-water procedure detailed above but, after the cut is made, leave the rose laying flat in a sink or pan of tepid water. Let it float there for an hour or so, and it will revive. Then, replace the rose in your arrangement.

It is the spirit of love that makes Mother's Day memorable. While you are out shopping, remember...your mom is an original and your family knows the gift that best expresses how you feel.

This Mother's Day, start your own family tradition by including the kids and giving mom the very best—fresh-cut American grown roses.

In Sincere Appreciation

To everyone who contributed in any way to the success of the 47th Annual Motley County Livestock Show, March 21, 1988.

Submit nominations for '89 Outstanding Mother Awards

No one could possibly know all the good and deserving mothers in this great land of ours. There are just too many moms who are unknown and unsung, and who never have been recognized for their contributions to our lifestyle. You can help fill the gap!

Send your recommendations for "Everyone's Outstanding Mother" to the National Mother's Day Committee, 1328 Broadway, New York, NY 10001. Every nomination will be considered by the Selection Committee.

Here are the criteria by which the judges are guided:

1. A nominee must be, or have been, a practicing mother—biological, foster, adoptive or step.
2. She must have a history of close involvement with her own family and children, in all phases of their growth and development.
3. A nominee must be, or have been, involved in community activities with young people, i.e. Boy or Girl Scouts, YM or YW group activities, leadership of church youth groups, etc.

4. Avoid nominating anyone involved in litigation of any sort. You would not want to prejudice, in any way, the traditional values of American motherhood.

Provide the National Mother's Day Committee with a summary of the qualifications that commend your nominee for the coveted OMA Award, limiting your summary to approximately 100 words.

"Lo, children are an heritage of the Lord; and the fruit of the womb is his reward: As arrows are in the hand of a mighty man; so are children of the youth.

Psalms 127: 3,4

DIET TIPS FOR SENIORS

As individuals age, their metabolism slows down. This can mean extra weight for those who do not watch their calorie consumption. According to Shelley Fillipp, outpatient dietitian at Methodist Hospital, calorie needs decrease 20 percent from 20 to 60, or five percent each decade.

Maintaining proper weight is possible through calorie monitoring and exercise. Special diets that are for controlled fats, diabetes, low sodium or weight control, are sometimes necessary as people age.

To achieve a reduction in calorie amounts, some recipes can be adapted to use less sugar and fat, Mrs. Fillipp noted. For example, the four tablespoons of butter usually called for in prepared macaroni and cheese can be reduced to two with little change in the result. The same practice often can be applied to many cookie recipes by reducing the sugar by a third to a half.

The important point to consider in fat consumption is the amount of saturated fat. Just because a food item is void of cholesterol does not mean it is without saturated fat, Mrs. Fillipp notes. The dietitian offered the following tips to consider when reducing cholesterol and saturated fat.

--Remember that food preparation methods can effect fat content. Baking, broiling, boiling, steaming or roasting is healthier than frying.

--Emphasize fish and poultry in the diet. Red meat is higher in cholesterol and fat.

--Limit egg yolks to three per week. Egg yolks are extremely high in saturated fat and cholesterol.

--Use skim milk and dairy products made from skim milk. Avoid whole-milk dairy products.

--Cook with small amounts of corn and safflower oil. Avoid butter, lard and other saturated fats.

--Read all labels and make a list of packaged items that contain recommended ingredients. Avoid all items with coconut oil, palm oil, lard, beef fat and chicken fat used in processing.

MOTHER'S DAY: EIGHTY YEARS OF CELEBRATION

This May 8th marks the 80th anniversary of Mother's Day! The annual tradition was born in Philadelphia in 1908, through the efforts of Anna Jarvis who, having lost her own mother two years earlier, wanted to have an official day set aside in recognition of mothers.

Motherhood has undergone some exciting changes in recent years. Modern-day mothers have come out of the house, and into the business and social worlds!

They are focused on fulfilling personal goals, advancing their education, participating in political campaigns and supporting worthy causes.

Whether your mother is the traditional or the contemporary kind, you are probably wondering what to give her as a gift this year.

Why not select an enchanting floral fragrance such as Chloé...a scent that's elegantly beautiful, created from fresh green notes, tuberose, ylang-ylang, honeysuckle, jasmine, orange flowers and wooden notes. With this exquisite blending of florals, Chloé is the classic choice of fragrance for all mothers.

The Chloé fragrance family consists of Parfum, Parfum Vaporisateur De Luxe Spray Naturel and Eau De Toilette. Chloé's bath collection provides a selection of products with which to pamper mother. They include perfumed talc, perfumed body creme, perfumed body mousse, body lotion with pump, foaming bath powder, bath and shower gel, and soap in a luxury case.
