Seminar Offers Ways To Trim Estate Tax Burden

Steps for passing on to heirs an operating farm or ranch business and at the same time lowering the estate tax burden will be detailed at a special estate planning seminar in Wichita Falls, July 22-23.

The seminar has been especially designed by economists in management with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service to help people in agriculture who want to pass on their farm operation to the next generation, said Norman Brints, area Extension economist.

The two-day program at the Activity Center, 10th and Indiana, will be limited to the first 50 persons to register. This will provide participants maximum opportunity to discuss specific problems and opportunities with the speakers, Brints said. Each day will begin at 9 a.m. and conclude at 4:30 p.m.

Registration forms may be obtained from county Extension offices or by writing to Brints, Texas A&M University Agricultural Research and Extension Center, Box 2159, Vernon, Texas 76384. The registration fee of $50.00 includes seminar materials which will help participants set up their own estate plans, lunches both days and refreshments.

The seminar will begin with a discussion on estate taxes, including tax rates, deductions and expenses. A special segment will help farmers and ranchers provide fair treatment for heirs who want the business and others who don't.

Another segment the first day will provide detailed information on estate planning tools for agriculture. This will deal with corporations, partnerships and selling part of the business to heirs.

The second day of the program will focus upon special estate tax rules for agriculture. These include farm land valuation, rules for deferred estate tax payment, life insurance, "flower bonds" and other property.

Conducting the seminar will be Brints, Dr. Wayne A. Hayenga and Marvin A. Sartin. Brints is Extension area economist-management at Vernon, where he has served since 1964, working with farmers and others on tax planning. Sartin, an Extension economist-management for 10 years, also is a certified public accountant and was formerly with the Federal Land Bank. Hayenga is project group supervisor in farm management with Extension, and an attorney. He has experience in commercial banking and economic research and maintains farming and banking interests.

The seminar will be repeated in Amarillo, August 27-28, and drew a capacity attendance in Lubbock in June.

Letter to the Editor

Dear Sir:

Last February a majority of Republicans, who for years, had steadfastly criticized any increase in the National Debt, grudgingly joined a majority of Democrats in voting for a $50 billion increase in government debt ceiling. They did so even though they were avoiding their Congressional responsibility to support a sound fiscal policy.

They also ignored the mandate given them by U.S. voters on November 4, 1980 to cut government taxes and spending.

Again in May a majority of representatives voted to increase the debt ceiling by another $14.8 billion, a total increase in OUR taxes of $64.8 billion, - hardly the tax cut we were promised. This measure has been sent to the Senate as House Joint Resolution No. 266, where it will be voted on soon.

Deficit spending by the Federal government is directly related to the constant increase in everything we buy. The more the government engages in deficit spending, the deeper in debt it goes, the higher it debt it goes, the higher it must raise the debt ceiling.

In short, Fedgov alone, not labor, not business, not farmers or ranchers, caude inflation and all of the problems that go with inflation.

Congress can help solve the problem by refusing to constantly raise the National Debt ceiling, which will put a stop to the constant raise in our taxes, there are now 46% of us who are taxpayers and 54% tax takers. A little out of balance.

More and more there is a hue and cry to stop this trend before our National Debt reaches the trillion dollar mark. And if all of us will contact our senators and representatives perhaps we can stop, not only H.J. R. No. 266, but any future increase, then perhaps get some tax cuts.

Twenty-six months ago a conservative coalition was formed by disillusioned democrats, republicans, and independents which goes under the heading of Moral Majority, to elect conservatives who will work to stop abuses of power, such as we have seen the past 45 years, - started by the New Deal.

This group is headed by some of our leading conservatives, by clergymen, farmers, businessmen, - anyone interested in ousting Limousine Liberals from our government and getting back to our Constitutional Republic. Latest reports that I've seen on Moral Majority stated that there are 55 million of us in on this grass roots move for better government.

It was this group that gave the White House a much needed cleaning last November 4. Hopefully between now and the elections of 1982 and 1984 this move will snowball and finish the housecleaning job that was started on November 4, 1980.

We are going to stay in trouble until we oust the Liberal, cut taxes and spending, then get to an unregulated Free Enterprise economy run by us, and not the international gangs that now completely control us.

At last count there were 2,031 in these International gangs, - Council on Foreign Relations (since 1920) and Bilderbergers (since 1954), Tri-Lateralists (since 1973) and Common Cause.

It is time we get them pinpointed and OUT of our government.

Yours truly,
 D. Bradley Upton

Press Meeting Attended

O. G. Nieman, publisher of the Hereford Brand was named new president of Texas Press Association when officers were elected during closing sessions of the association's 102nd annual summer convention June 25-27, in Fort Worth. He succeeds James Roberts of Andrews, in office.

The meeting was held at the Hyatt Regency, formerly the Hotel Texas, which has been enlarged and redecorated along lines of other Hyatt hotels. Attending from Matador were Mrs. Douglas Meador and Mrs. R. E. Donovan.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

A sincere thanks to the people of Matador who made my parent's recent visit there the happy "sentimental journey" it was meant to be. Marlin Pounds, my father, will soon have his 80th birthday and had not been back to Motley County in 41 years. But Matador "roots" are strong and deep, and he and my mother, Frankie (Meador) Pounds, had often yearned to see the people and places dear to them there.

A special thanks to Mr. and Mrs. Elvin Markham, Mr. and Mrs. Mark Hall, Mr. and Mrs. Montgomery, and Mr. and Mrs. Harrison George and Kenneth Baldwin of Flomot for their kind hospitality. Mother and Daddy enjoyed seeing their old friends and relatives so much, and thought of others that the short visit did not allow time for them to see. Many of their dear ones are now in the East Mound Cemetery and they visited there, too.

The memories, and photographs, from this trip will be very special to Marlin and Frankie Pounds for the rest of their lives, and to my husband and me as well.

Handicap Tourney

Nine players entered play in tournament Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday, Louise, Leona, Olivia, Dorothy, Geneva, Tommy, Kathryn and Loys.

After the three days play, Kathryn was winner (207) and Geneva was runner up (211).

It was reported Geneva holed out on No. 1 for a birdie. (Am sure there were other spectacular plays, but didn't hear about them).

Playing Thursday (after the tournament players) were Lucretia, Frances, Winifred, and Hazel.

Play was for most part ending in a tie between Lucretia and Loys—with six pars each.

Winifred had a birdie on No. 3...which was a thrill.

Vann, Sondra, Mike and Sue (of Bryan) spent weekend in Snyder where the men played in a golf tournament.

Vann and Mike tied for second place in championship fight.

YOUR VISION

About 41.2 million Americans over age 40 suffer from a condition called senile cataract. Each year, nearly 700,000 new cataract cases—primarily senile cataract—occur. Although doctors consider this part of the aging process, ironically, it can also strike the young and is even found in a baby's eyes at birth.

Fortunately, surgery to remove this clouded lens in the eye, is one of the safest and most successful of all eye operations.

According to the American Association of Ophthalmology, cataract surgery offers a successful means to restore vision in more than 95 out of every 100 cases.

A regular examination by an ophthalmologist—a medical doctor specializing in diseases of the eyes—can detect the development of cataracts, and these specialists are best qualified to evaluate the cataract's progress and determine the best time for surgery.

Of course, ophthalmologists examine eyes and prescribe glasses where necessary. That, however, is only a small part of their work.

In such diseases as diabetic retinopathy—a condition which affects the blood

Early examination and diagnosis is the best defense against vision problems.

Early diagnosis is the key for correction or control of many types of eye diseases. This is particularly true regarding young children. According to the Association's statistics, an estimated 468,000 pre-schoolers between three and five—one in every 20—have vision problems. Among school-age children six to 17, an estimated 12.1 million—one in four—are similarly afflicted.

Early examinations can halt the progress of the many eye diseases of childhood. It's the best defense against vision problems.

New Life

By Bob Cozby
 Pastor Of The Assembly
 Of God Church

Have you noticed the emphasis on nostalgia these days? Seems like everywhere you look, the trend is to look back, turn to the past, stir up the memories we enjoy the most, and get lost in them. It's really not to be blamed. Things do appear to be very rosy right now, especially in the natural.

But neighbor, in the spiritual, there's a whole other ball game going on. Looking back as a means of escape, looking back to a supposedly brighter day, and getting lost in our memories of the "good old days" is not in the will or wisdom of God. Let me share with you along these thoughts this week.

In Genesis ch. 19, we find the account of Lot and his family being ushered out of their home city, Sodom, into a place of safety by two angels, before the wrath of God is poured out upon that city of great sin. In V-17, the angels told Lot to escape for their lives; look not behind thee. Lot did that very thing, but his wife did not. Some longing, desire, or memories caused her to disobey the commandments she had received.

I'm sure you know what happened next. The scripture tells us in v-26... she looked back from behind Lot, and she became a pillar of salt. About this time a lot of you are thinking, "Well, Bro. Bob, that was way back when. There's nothing like that happening today." I beg to differ with you. I know people and I see people everyday who get so caught up in looking back that they are almost as fixed and as stationary as Lot's wife became, when she looked back.

When Moses led the children of Israel through the wilderness God's "Manna from Heaven," fell fresh every day. Not to be gotten ahead of time, not to be hoarded up for later, but to be used, received, and thankful for each day, one day at a time. People, God's provision for you today is as free, as steady, as consistent, and as fresh as it was for the children of Israel back then as you get into and remain in God's will for you life.

What does God's will have to do with it? This ought to be the best day of your life. This ought to be the best year of your past years. You ought to be closer to God, more in love with Jesus Christ, and more sensitive to the Holy Spirit and its guidance for your life, than you were this time last year, let alone 20 years ago. If you're not, something is gravely wrong with either you or God. Guess which one it is. It's you!

God is a God of newness. New lives, new hopes, new beginnings, new goals and new paths for new creatures. Old things pass away. Don't hang on to them and their passing. They're taking you further away from God, not closer. God wants to do a new thing in your life. The prophet Isaiah tells us so and goes on to say, "It's a spring forth." He'll even make a way in the wilderness and rivers in the deserts of your life. Till next week have a great New Life.

BANK ON BLOOD TO SAVE LIVES

There's a 95 percent chance that by the time you're 72 you'll have had a blood transfusion, or at least have had need for one of the products derived from this vital fluid. Transfusions were once used only to replace blood lost by the patient. Today advanced technology permits utilizing parts of the blood, as well as whole blood, for many different purposes. Thus, one pint can be used to treat one patient or many.

Almost anyone can be a blood donor, according to the American Blood Commission (ABC), a consortium of 40 national organizations. There are exceptions, based on health and medical conditions, but most reasons for turning away a donor are temporary. When you volunteer to become a donor, a medical history will determine any circumstances or conditions that might affect your eligibility.

Your body won't miss the blood for long. Within 24 hours, the normal volume of blood is restored. However, it takes about five weeks for all the red blood cells to be replaced. That's why you can donate blood

Your contribution to a community blood center or hospital blood bank could save a life—perhaps even that of someone you know.

Donor blood is kept in a blood bank. But even when stored under ideal conditions (refrigerated at just the right temperature and stored with the proper preservative), it has a legal use limit of 35 days. Becoming a donor pays dividends. By giving blood you assure adequate blood supplies for you, your family and your community. And not all transfusions or other uses for blood by-products are based on emergency situations. In fact, most medical and surgical needs are scheduled in advance.

Every minute of every day, five persons in the U.S. each need an estimated three pints of blood. Multiply those 15 pints by the minutes in a day, and the total daily consumption becomes enormous.

The ABC is working to improve the efficiency and performance of the nation's blood-service system—a complex of individuals, institutions and organizations such as business, labor, consumers, the medical profession, scientific researchers, veterans and voluntary health associations.

Want to know where to give blood? Call your community blood center or hospital blood bank, or ask your doctor.

Don't underestimate the value of your donation. All types of blood are needed... all the time!

Mac Davis Promotes Soil & Water Conservation

To promote the wise and judicious use of soil, and water and related renewable natural resources in Motley County, W. H. Marshall, Chairman of the Upper Pease Soil and Water Conservation District, announced the support and assistance of Texas born and raised singer-songwriter-actor Mac Davis.

Mac's concern for the conservation of this state's renewable natural resources, has recently caused him to lend his talents in narration and music through recorded radio public service spots to the need for conserving these resources," added Marshall.

Mac's interest in assisting Texas soil and water conservation districts promote a strong conservation ethic stems from the fact that he is personally acquainted with our problems. As a youngster growing up in Lubbock he saw what devastating high winds and hard driving rains can do to the land," said Marshall. The entertainer has expressed his interest this way. "When I was growing up in Lubbock it seemed like we had a sandstorm everyday. My daddy had a little motel and it was my sister's job and mine to haul the sand out of the flower beds. We'd fill a wheelbarrow and dump it on a vacant lot across the street. The next day the sand would blow back and we'd have to do it all over again."

In response to a question relative to the economics of conservation and the fact that the costs of soil and water conservation measures are difficult to recover in the market place Mac said, "I don't care whether a person lives in a city or on a farm. People depend on the land. So we all ought to be willing to share in the cost of conserving it and still leave room for the farmer and cattlemen to make a decent profit in the same way as anybody on the street has to."

population our soil, water and other renewable resources are becoming a shrinking resource base. It comes down to the old eye for an eye and tooth for a tooth concept. If we take from the land, we need to understand that we are going to have to give something back to what we took from," added Davis.

Mac is also supportive of conservation problems being resolved at the local level. "I have always believed that local people should take care of their own problems. Of course if they need help from state or federal sources, then they ought to be able to get it. But I think people, no matter where they live, resent having state or federal bureaucracies dictate how to resolve a local concern."

Commenting on Mac's interest in assisting Texas SWCDs with a conservation public awareness program Marshall said, "We appreciate what Mac is doing because he is expressing the point that it's time for us to become involved and take stock of our available soil, water and other renewable resources and start thinking about the future."

"Many conservation measures to protect the land have become cost prohibitive today. Farmers-like other people-produce to survive, but in the process they face a dilemma of conscience in deciding where and when to practice conservation. They have to pay their debts and they have to support their families. When existing economic conditions leave them with no choice but to tolerate a declining productivity of their land, then we all will inevitably suffer with them," concluded Marshall.

America's energy industry is in a lot better hands than many people believe. An expert explains why.

The American Oil Man—1980s
By Wm. C. Douce

There's good news for the many Americans who see our oil industry as made up of a lot of J. R. Ewings: ruthless backstabbers who'll do anything for a dollar, even if it means double-crossing their own families.

In a sense, the public views J. R. as a symbol of corporate greed that encompasses not only oil companies but other sections of business as well. J. R. is an oil man, but he could have been a steel magnate, the chief executive of a computer company or the president of a large utility. Many II. Even in the bad old days, our oil industry accomplished good things. For example, it played a key role in supporting the Allied victory in World War I. With powerful warships, planes and tanks fueled by petroleum, it was said "the Allies floated to victory on a sea of oil." AHEAD AND WITH THE OLD SETTLERS WERE THE COWBOYS from the big ranches. The above picture was made at the Estelling Supply Company. The time is about 1895. It was made while the Matador Land & Cattle Company was receiving supplies. Only one man is positively identified, Jim Meador, on the chuck wagon, father of the Tribune editor. Others in the picture have been identified as Big John Southworth, John Jackson, and "Pitch Fork Kid". The accurate list has been lost.

Big Batch Brownies: Chocolate or Butterscotch
If you resort to using brownie mix because it's quicker, easier, and less messy than "from scratch", you might consider another less costly alternative. This easy recipe, just as fast as a mix, yields a bigger batch of moist brownies than even the large size brownie mix. Cholesterol counters take note: these are egg-less brownies. Take your pick of either dark (chocolate) or "blonde" (bitterscotch) brownies. For chocolate brownies, use chocolate cake mix and canned chocolate pudding. For butterscotch brownies, use yellow cake mix and canned butterscotch pudding. Since the richness of these brownies comes from canned pudding, don't pay extra for pudding-added cake mixes. Look for the least expensive generic or store brand. For an interesting change from plain brownies, an easy topper of chips and nuts is suggested. Of course, these yummy extras add to the cost of the recipe. When you compare basic brownie mix with the pudding/cake mix method, (minus the chips and nuts), you'll be saving money.

EASY CHOCOLATE BROWNIES
1 pkg. (double layer size) chocolate cake mix
1 can (17 1/2 oz.) Thank You Brand Chocolate Pudding
1/2 cup chopped nuts
1/2 cup chocolate, choco-mint OR peanut butter chips
Combine cake mix and chocolate pudding until well blended. Pour into oiled and floured 9x13x2-inch cake pan. Sprinkle with nuts and chips. Bake at 350°F. for 35-45 minutes.

EASY BUTTERSCOTCH BROWNIES
Follow above directions, using yellow cake mix, Thank You Butterscotch Pudding, and butterscotch chips.

One ostrich - the largest bird now living - weighs as much as 48,000 bee hummingbirds, the smallest birds in the world.

SAFETY TIPS
A story like this probably should be called a public surface message—because that's what it's about... getting your boat on the surface of your favorite lake or river and keeping it safe once it's there. Let's start with the thought that two ships that pass in the night is a beautiful notion but two boats that meet head-on can be a terrible mess. And then go on to say that there are rules of the road for boating to prevent that sort of thing. A few of them are:
• Sailboats and row-boats almost always have the right of way over power boats. Any boat approaching from your right also has the right of way.
• If two boats are approaching head-on, right is again right. Both boats should move to the right. If one boat is passing another, it can make the pass on either side. But remember, the boat being passed has board, the key words to remember are: Reach, Throw or Row. Reach for the person you're near a smaller boat or your arm. Or, throw the victim a rope. Life-saving insurance, a major insurer of small pleasure craft, have some other tips that will keep pleasure boating more pleasant.
Be sure your boat is in proper operating condition and has all necessary equipment. This includes horns, lights, fire extinguishers and a first-aid kit and flashlight. Flotation devices should be available for every passenger. Children should wear life jackets at all times. Don't go out in the boat if the weather is threatening. sure. If you leave it out on a quick call to your local marina or Coast Guard from the trailer so a thief will provide you can't simply hook up and drive it away.
• Install alarms. A combination burglar/fire alarm against two hazards.
• Record all serial and other identification numbers and, along with several photos of your boat, keep them at home or in a safe deposit box. It will help recovery if the boat is stolen.
Of course, be sure you have adequate insurance on your boat and contents; at today's prices, the original amount of insurance on your boat might not be enough to replace everything in case of a loss. These and other safety tips are available in free pamphlets. There's another peril that boaters are increasingly faced with. Pleasure boating has become a lucrative business. Some have suggested that leaving an alligator on board might be a first-aid kit and flashlight. Flotation devices should be available for every passenger. Children should wear life jackets at all times. Don't go out in the boat if the weather is threatening. sure.
