School Board Hears Asbestos Report

The Motley County I.S.D. Board of Trustees met Friday, July 16 at 8:00 p.m. with Guy Campbell, Donnie Cruse, Randy Barton, James Palmer, Alvin Alexander, Coy Franks and Leslie Jameson; Principal Don Ewing and Superintendent Ron Cummings and Coach Cecil Marks.

Rusty Abell of Abell-Dougherty of Lubbock was on hand to explain their Sprint 200 HB System asphalt surface for a track field. It is a rubber and latex 3/8" vented surface. It is easily repaired and maintained and can be rain cleaned or cleaned after sandstorms with a $700.00 blower, which he will give the school. He stated the hardest wear of a track surface of this kind was the local joggers, but could still be used with minimum wear if they ran only on the outside lanes. His price of $29,900 was good until December 31.

Coach Cecil Marks reported he had flown to Seymour and Denver City that day and had inspected their track surface. In this discussion the Board asked how they stood financially. Cummings explained Phase I was under the budget, just less than $30,000. Phase II was $25,030, just over the budget. They still lack the press box, lights and scoreboard being wired, and fencing, to be ready for the first home game, September 16.

The Board decided to keep comparing and take no action at this time.

Cummings reported on the Asbestos report. There was no asbestos in any of the buildings, except a possible finding of 5% asbestos in the new school and this was on the back side of some floor tile in the high school rest rooms and gym dressing rooms. They have sent off a second set of samples to be tested. A law was passed in 1973, stating, it is against the law for any asbestos material to be built in a public school facility. The asbestos material can be sealed off and replaced later. Some schools are having to spend thousands of dollars to remove asbestos from their facilities. If there is asbestos in the new school, the Board members are for contacting the construction company and having them correct this error immediately.

Cummings reported that L.J. Barkley, Jr. representing the City of Matador had approached him on several matters. The City said that all the dirt hauling for the Hackberry Creek bed had been broken up in the pavement in the road and they wanted to know if the school would help defray the cost of rebuilding this and they also wanted to use the cafeteria, July 28, for a county wide meeting for the economic development committee.

Jameson stated they noticed the road cracking when he was hauling dirt and changed his route. The trucking company then came in and used the first route with heavier loads.

After discussion of the fact they saved the city the cost of them hiring dirt hauled from the creekbed and the fact they wanted to repair and replace the road and dip more extensively than it was, they would work with the City all they could. Motion was to wait and see what the city proposed.

The sealed bid for the sound system for the football/track field was opened from Balco for $1,875 installed. This was accepted.

Bids were discussed on trackfield base installation. These will be accepted in written sealed bids.

Cummings informed the Board he had talked to the man in charge of the Federal Funding Emergency Grant (Part II for Motley County) and someone will come to inspect the records and okay the spending of the first grant money. The second application is for replacement of classroom equipment, text books, buildings that were uninsured. This is the final Impact Aid monies for the 1984 tornado.

Discussion by the board that some teachers were asking that extra duties be equitable. The Board was reminded that when contracts were signed, these extra duties were agreed on and the teachers were liable for insubordination of their contract if they have an excusable reason for not doing the extra duties.

It was noted that the Roaring Springs Ranch Club had purchased a 16 x 30 portable building for $11,000 and they could have bought one from the school for less.

Meeting then went into closed session.

Homecoming Dates Set

Homecoming President, Ruth Garnett, announced recently that the 1988 Homecoming Officers met recently with the Superintendent Ron Cummings, and Football Coach Cecil Marks to set the 1988 Homecoming date.

The dates selected were October 28-29. This home game will be against Crowell. The schedule will be announced later.

Early Deadline For Next Week's Paper

The Motley County Tribune will be closed for vacation next week, Aug. 1-5. Deadline for the paper will be this Friday, July 29, no later than 12:00 p.m. Please bring all news copy and ad copy in by this time. Thank you for your cooperation.

Wide Range of Artists to Exhibit At Burleson Roping

Western art, in a wide variety of forms, will vie for attention at the Art Show and Sale in the old barn art gallery at 10 a.m. on Saturday, July 30, during activities at the Burleson Memorial Roping.

Twelve area artists, eager to show and talk about their works, will utilize the rustic barn setting of grain bins, hay racks, and horse stalls at the old Burleson headquarters. Subjects will include cowboy and Indian portraits, country landscapes, old houses, horses, cattle, buggies, wild-life, and of course, a few windmills.

An unusual artform on display will be a miniature chuckwagon and buggy created by Levelland dentist, Dr. Bob Robertson, who specializes in restoring wagons and buggies.

Monte McCloy, a full time cowboy at the Pitchfork Ranch, has somehow found time in the last three and one-half years to do bronze castings he'll display, sculptures of cowboys and animals in action.

At least two exhibitors, Joe Belt, art teacher and professional artist from Lubbock, and Jo Goen, artist from Floydada and coordinator for the art show, will share their special interest in Indian

ROUNDUPS

Editor's Note:

This is one in a series of articles about the people, places, and events depicted in the Motley County Mural. In the spirit of research, additions and/or corrections are solicited.

by Marisue Potts

Roundups consisted of sweeps by men on horseback over a designated territory to push or frighten cattle toward a central gathering place, the hub of twenty or thirty sections of unfenced range land. There unbranded calves were worked, that is, branded, castrated or spayed if necessary, vaccinated, and earmarked.

If delivery time, the herd was cut and shaped, selecting those of the sex and age specified by the manager or cattle buyer. The cattle were delivered or trailed to a market terminal, which in early days might have been Dodge City or Abilene, Kansas. As the railroad progressed, so did the terminals change: Ft. Worth, then Colorado City, Childress, Estelline, MacBain, and Russellville.

One roundup a day generally produced enough cattle for a day's work, before moving to the next roundup site. A crew of fifteen to twenty men per wagon would include the boss, the cook, the horse wrangler, ten or twelve hands, and some outside men who represented the interests of neighboring ranches.

"The largest roundup I ever saw was over on the Croton Flats during the general roundup times in 1886," recalled Eli Harkey, a youngster of 13 when he began wrangling horses on the Matador Ranch in 1883. "Eight stray wagons and three Matador wagons. The roundup was estimated at ten thousand cattle and it was cut into two bunches to be worked."

In Recollections, Duff Green describes roundups of smaller numbers, but still in

Cutting Horse Judges Were Cowboys First

Two former cowboys will be on hand to judge the Cutting Horse events at the Burleson Memorial Roping, both for the first time.

Bennett Reese of Hart was raised on a ranch in western Stonewall County. He's cowboied, farmed, and ranched his way across Texas, New Mexico, Oklahoma, and Louisiana. Reese's knowledge of horses has gained him the reputation of being a good horse judge.

Don "Smoky" Alexander was raised in Silverton but now lives in Lubbock. He worked on a ranch in Arizona before returning to work at the JA Ranch. For 18 years he was active in training cutting horses and has judged many cutting horse events over the years. Though a horse accident has semi-retired "Smoky" from full-time judging, he looks forward to attending the Burleson Memorial.

The Cutting Horse contest, including open, ranch, and novice categories, is always a thrill to watch and will kick off the events on Friday, July 29, at 10 a.m. Immediately following is Team Penning, where one cutting horse rider cuts an unwilling, designated, and numbered steer from the herd, then all three riders attempt to pen the animal into a set of panels placed in the center of the arena. Using teamwork and their horses' cutting ability, teams will compete for the fastest times.

office and one as a mother, Golightly still finds time to create her western painting of people and animals, mostly in acrylics. Known for his creative treatment of portraits in the commercial photography field, Jack Robertson of R Photography, Floydada, brings prints from his "Portrait of a West Texas Cowboy" series. Though portraits are his speciality, Robertson enjoys capturing the Western landscape on film.

Self-taught artist Glenn Lyles of Plainview has only been painting a short time. Nevertheless, he's found that he has a special feel for landscapes and cowboys.

As director and owner of the Western Visions Art Gallery in Floydada, Florence Parker Van Hoose hangs the works of many artists, including her own original oil paintings. During ten years of painting, seascapes, landscapes, and still life have become her favorite subjects.

Whatever one's tastes in Western art, the works of these artists beckon collectors and art enthusiasts to seek out the unique Barn Art Show-Sale at the Burleson Memorial Roping on July 30.

Would-Be Abductor Sought In Area

The Childress Police Department has asked local and area residents to assist in an ongoing investigation into the attempted abduction of several children in Childress since May.

Ages of potential victims range from three to 14 years of age, and are both male and female.

According to Chief of Police Jim Trulove, a hispanic middle-aged male driving a dark pickup or dark car has attempted to lure several children into the vehicle by offering them candy.

The model and make of the vehicle have not been determined.

In addition to trying to talk to the children, he has taken pictures of them, and has also attempted to get information about local children by questioning neighbors by phone.

The suspect has been seen parked along city streets watching children play.

"The description of the vehicle and the man are sketchy, due to the fact that no adults have been around when he tries to lure the children into his vehicle," officer Bill Blacksher noted.

"In some cases he has asked them (children) if they want candy. Other times he has asked them about their parents...whether they are at home. He talked to the children from his vehicle, and it doesn't matter if they are playing in a yard or behind a fence," Blacksher added.

"Six different instances have been reported to the police department and we are continuing to investigate and hopefully, with the cooperation of local residents, we will be able to make an arrest," Trulove said.

Parents are advised to be cautious and to report any suspicious activity to police.

Hundreds of trained "field enumerators," about twenty of them on the Texas High Plains, began work in thousands of cotton patches across the U.S. Cotton Belt July 22 and 23. The end result will be the U.S. Department of Agriculture's first objective estimate of 1988 cotton production, due for release August 11.

Fields to be surveyed, or "enumerated," have been randomly selected by computer. Sample sizes and areas will be pre-determined by formula, and enumerators have hit the ground counting in precisely defined locations. They have until August 3 to report findings to cooperative state-federal agencies of USDA's National Agricultural Statistics Service. State offices will analyze regional information and report results to Washington on August 9.

From the High Plains, enumerator reports will go to the Texas Agricultural Statistics Service (TASS) in Austin. TASS statistician Doug Spillman was in Lubbock July 19 through 21 for training sessions and final briefings for enumerators. In a visit to the office of Plains Cotton Growers, Inc., he assured that all information is kept strictly confidential.

Some 300 "samples," each consisting of two 10-foot row-sections at no less than two field locations, will be taken from the High Plains area, Spillman explained. Stalks, squares, blooms and bolls (if any) will be counted in each sample. Locations will be mapped and stalks tagged to permit enumerators to follow the crop's biological progress in succeeding months throughout the season. Later surveys will include boll sizes, percentage of open bolls and ultimately, lint weight.

In the process of getting entry permission from farmers, enumerators also gather information on seeding rates, acres in fields selected for survey and total acres planted. The acreage indicated by the current survey is used to adjust for acreage abandoned since the June planting survey.

Emphasizing the random nature of sample selection, Spillman says the survey information works well for projecting yields and production from the state, but is not suited to estimating the yield of an individual field. The site choice for samples within a field begin at the corner where the enumerator first arrives. From there he or she follows a pre-determined route to the next site. There's no alternative to this procedure, which sometimes produces data not at all representative of a field's potential, Spillman explains.

USDA's August crop report also covers other crops, but Texas estimates for those commodities, based as they are on mail surveys, will be subjective estimates as opposed to the objective estimate for cotton.

Carriker Addresses Rural Health Care

Rural Texans should have the same access to quality, affordable health care as other Texans, according to State Representative Steve Carriker. "No person should be denied access to basic health services at affordable costs just because they don't live in a metropolitan area," said the three-term lawmaker in a letter to the Special Task Force on Rural Health Care Delivery.

The committee has been holding field hearings and met in Abilene last Wednesday. It is chaired by Dr. Jim Bob Brame, former President of the Texas Medical Association.

Representative Carriker presented the committee with a copy of a rural health care study done by a team of public and private professionals for Fisher County, Texas. The study is applicable to over a hundred similar rural counties throughout Texas, Carriker says.

The study found that one of the biggest problems facing rural health care is unfair provider reimbursement schedules under Medicare's new "DRG" rules. "There is no valid reason that the rate of reimbursement for small hospitals and rural doctors should be half or less than their urban counterparts receive," said Carriker. The Fisher County report urged immediate changes in Medicare reimbursement schedules.

Representative Carriker also called for a revitalization of two state medical education finance programs designed to encourage young doctors to locate in underserved areas and an expansion of those programs to include RN's and other health care professionals now in short supply.

DPS Accident Report

Capt. Bob Russell, District Supervisor of the Amarillo Highway Patrol District comprising of 31 counties said, "For the month of June, our troopers investigated 5 fatal accidents, 89 personal injury accidents, and 97 property damage accidents. There were 6 persons killed and 135 persons injured in these accidents."

Sgt. Mike Thompson of Clarendon stated, "In Motley County, our troopers investigated 0 fatal accidents, 3 personal injury accidents, and 1 property damage accident in the month of June. No persons were killed and 6 persons were injured in these accidents."

quantities that we modern cattlemen can't imagine. He wrote, "Fifty-seven hundred head of counted grown cattle is the most I ever saw throuned together in one bunch. That many is a goodly-sized herd, but would look like a milk pen bunch compared to roundups made in the early days with open range and lots of wagons and men at work together."

The big roundups of an estimated ten thousand head of cattle "were made the summer following the great cattle drift when outfits went far afield in an effort to recover their cattle." Green continued, "Dreadful blizzards and snowstorms with driving, biting ice-laden winds that banked thousands upon thousands of cattle against the fences, and they finally broke through only to drift on to the next barrier, if there was one. At any rate, wagons and men from the Matador and Spur country worked clear to the Pecos, and the Panhandle or Canadian country worked this far south."

In 1901, when Arthur Ligertwood was ranch manager, the Matador Ranch employed seventy-five hands to herd over an estimated 69,213 animals, including 600 horses. That year, according to a report in the Weekly Live Stock Report, 17,674 calves were branded in roundups of up to 4,000 head. That seems like a herculean task, but reporter John Craig pointed out that only three cowboys were needed to drive 600 dry cows contentedly among the mesquites.

Since roundup grounds were centrally located, on a flat with water nearby, they sometimes grew into settlements. Aspermont, Dickens, Swenson, Spur, and Crosbyton are examples of places that were first the gathering place of hundreds, perhaps thousands of bawling and milling cattle. Only later did the gathering place become home for merchants and settlers.

I can do all things through Christ which strengtheneth me.

Wedding Vows Exchanged

Mr. and Mrs. Kwenton Karr

DeAnna Lynn McPherson became the bride of Kwenton James Karr at 4 p.m. Saturday, May 28 at First Baptist Church in Whitney.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wendell McPherson of Aquilla. The groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. James Karr of Whitney.

The groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. James Karr of Whitney, and the grandson of Mrs. Dan Barton of Matador.

The sanctuary was adorned with multi-floral arrangements featuring pink, mauve, and white chrysanthemums and daisies. An arched brass candelabra trimmed in greenery and bows sat in the middle of the sanctuary with spiraled candelabras flanking the sides. The rails on each side were decorated with English Ivy and votive candles. The isles were marked with white bows and the family pews with white and pink bows.

Pastor Charles Horn officiated at the double ring ceremony. The Westhill Singers of Corsicana performed the music and sang, "The Lord Bless You and Keep You," "Let It Be Me," "There is Love," "We've Only Just Begun," "The Wedding March," "Follow Me," and "The Old Irish Blessing."

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a formal designer gown in organza with a Sabrina neckline accented with pearls and sequins. The full puff sleeves were accented with lace and pearl appliques. The full skirt trimmed in lace, sequins, and bows swept into a full cathedral train. The bride wore a garden hat trimmed in lace and flowers with bridal illusion to complete the attire. She carried a cascading bouquet of white and pink roses, carnations, and lilies with greenery and white ribbons.

In accordance with tradition, the bride wore an antique diamond engagement ring which belonged to Kwin's paternal great-grandmother, Mrs. Charlie Barton, for something old; her gown for something new, a handkerchief was borrowed, and a garter for something blue. Before the ceremony a friend of the bride placed a new penny in her shoe.

Angie McPherson, the bride's sister served as Maid of Honor. She wore a tea length polished cotton floral gown with full puff sleeves, round neckline, and full pleated skirt. She carried a bouquet of blue, mauve and pale green silk flowers accented with pink ribbons.

The bridesmaids wore the identical gowns as the Maid of Honor. Serving as attendants were: Konni Karr, the groom's sister and Melinda McPherson, the bride's cousin, Cindy McPherson, the bride's sister served as Junior Bridesmaid. They carried identical bouquets as the Maid of Honor.

Ricky Hines of Whitney served the groom as best man. The groomsmen were Bradley Johnson and Stephen Neely, both of Whitney.

The bride's cousin, Jacki White, served as flower girl. She wore a dress identical to those of the attendants and carried a white wicker basket filled with blue, mauve and pale green silk flowers.

The groom's cousin, Dustin Barton, served as ring bearer and carried a white satin pillow trimmed in lace and ribbon.

Serving as ushers were Jeff and Andy McPherson, cousins of the bride and John and Brent Hamilton, cousins of the groom.

Debbie Wingate of Whitney attended the register.

For her daughter's wedding, the bride's mother chose a rose tea length gown. A corsage of white rosebuds completed her ensemble.

The groom's mother wore a pink tea length gown and a corsage of white rosebuds.

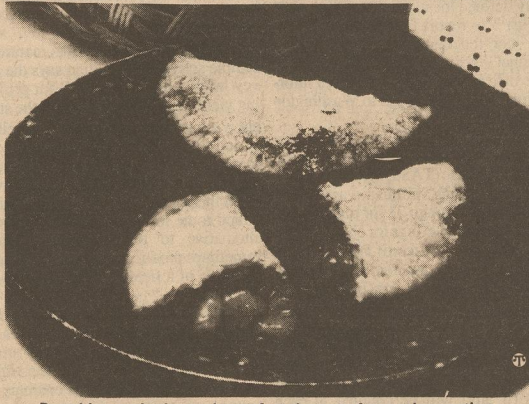

Following the ceremony, the guests enjoyed a reception at the Family Life Center adjoining the church. The bride's table was draped in lace with pink and white bows. It offered mints, assorted nuts and a three tiered wedding cake adorned with pink and white roses, carnations, lilies, and greenery.

The bride's cake was made by Dee's aunt. A crystal punch bowl served the coordinating mauve punch. A centerpiece held the bride's bouquet and a crystal candle ring surrounded by flowers and votive candles completed the table.

The groom's table was draped in burgundy cloth accented with satin roses and coordinating flower arrangement. A pair of brass deer completed the decor. The table held an antique brass coffee service, mints, nuts, and a double-heart chocolate cake, made by the groom's mother.

The bride and groom are both 1985 graduates of Whitney High School. The bride is a dental hygienist in Waco. The groom is employed in farming and ranching. After a honeymoon in San Antonio, the couple is residing in Laguna Park.

Those attending were Laurie Griggs, Mr. and Mrs. Tom Hamilton and Rob, Mr. and Mrs. Bennie Keltz.

Portable peach pies make perfect desserts for outdoor eating.

Take-Along Peach Pies

Pastry (recipe follows)
2 cups coarsely chopped, peeled peaches
1/3 cup sugar
4 tablespoons water, divided
1/4 teaspoon cinnamon
1 tablespoon Argo corn starch
1 quart (about) corn oil

In 2-qt saucepan combine peaches, sugar, 2 Tbsp water and cinnamon. Stirring occasionally, bring to boil over medium heat; boil 2 minutes. In bowl stir corn starch and remaining water until smooth; add to peaches. Stirring constantly, bring to boil; boil 1 minute. Pour into bowl; cover surface and cool. Meanwhile, prepare Pastry. Place 1 Tbsp peach filling on half of each pastry circle. Moisten edge, then fold in half. With fork, press edge on both sides to seal. Pour corn oil into heavy 3-qt saucepan, filling no more than 1/3 full. Heat to 375°F. Carefully add pies two at a time. Fry, turning once, 4 min or until golden. Drain on paper towels. If desired, sprinkle with confectioners' sugar. Makes 16.

Pastry: In medium bowl combine 2 cups flour and 1 tsp baking powder; cut in 1/2 cup margarine until fine crumbs form. Sprinkle 6 Tbsp cold water over mixture while tossing with fork. Work with hands until pastry holds together. On lightly floured surface, roll pastry, 1/3 at a time, to 1/8" thickness. Cut into 16 (5") circles.

Rita Clements Urges Students To Lead Texans' War On Drugs

AUSTIN - Texas First Lady Rita Clements challenged Texas youth to lead the fight against teenage drug and alcohol abuse during a recent address at Southwestern University in Georgetown sponsored by Texans' War on Drugs.

"With your help we can build a generation immune to the temptations of drug and alcohol abuse," Mrs. Clements told about 500 Texas junior high school students attending a three-day drug abuse conference. "We can pass the torch to new generations to ensure a drug and alcohol abuse-free Texas."

The weekend conference, "Texas Youth In Action," was held July 14, 15 and 16, and included leadership workshops and information on the development of local anti-drug and alcohol programs.

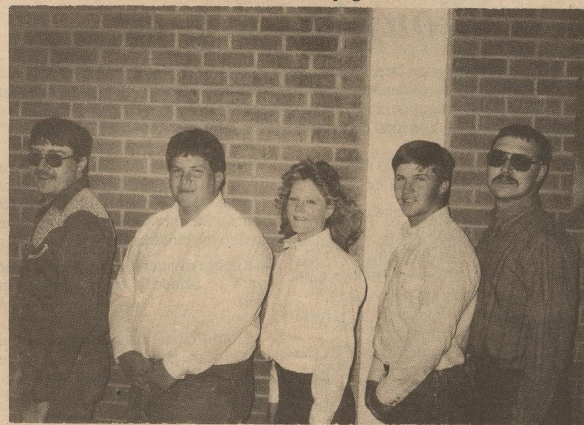

"As student leaders, you need to be thoroughly informed about the dangers of drugs and alcohol," Mrs. Clements said. "You must not only set a good example, but convince your fellow students of the importance of a drug-free life as well."

Jeffrey Lynn Taylor, son of Gail and Willie Mae Gregg of Floydada, attended Motley County I.S.D. during the time his step-father, Gail Gregg, was basketball coach. The scholarship winner graduated from Sudan High School and is currently attending Clarendon Junior College.

With grandparents and great-grandparents who pioneered in the caprock area, Taylor's roots go deep. This summer he is working with his grandfather, J.P. "Fats" Taylor, on the family ranch.

Other winners for the current year who will be recognized at the Roping are Matt Pugh from Keyes, Oklahoma; Jim Bob Beem from Tulia; Miss Leslie Floyd of Des Moines, N.M.; Clint Martin of Springtown.

Methodists Select A Trio Of Younger Bishops

The new class of bishops elected this week for the episcopacy of the United Methodist Church is one of the youngest ever and could foretell an exciting new era in the denomination's history, church leaders.

The ages of the three bishops selected by the church's South Central Jurisdiction are 50, 51 and 52, and Texas Methodist historian Walter Vernon said they represent the youngest class ever elected by the eight-state regional body which includes Texas.

The new bishops are Bruce Blake, 50, of Kansas who was assigned to the North Texas area; Bishop Dan Solomon, 51, of Corpus Christi who was assigned to the Oklahoma area and Bishop William Ogen, 52, of Oklahoma who was assigned to the Louisiana area of the church.

Because of their ages, each will be eligible to serve 16 years in the active episcopacy.

Bishop Dan Solomon is the son of Mrs. Mabel Jenkins Solomon of Tulia and the late Henry Solomon, they were formerly of Matador.

The Tulia Herald Editor, Wendell Tooley visited with Mrs. Solomon and had this story:

"Before he was born, we prayed he would be a boy...and a preacher!" That was the happy statement of Mrs. Henry Solomon after learning her son, Dan was elected Bishop of the South Central Jurisdiction conference in New Orleans last week.

The 1955 THS graduate is certainly remembered by many in Tulia and especially members of the Methodist Church.

Although Mrs. Solomon didn't know how far up the Methodist minister ladder Dan would climb, she always prayed that he would be a good pastor and preacher...that he would be successful in his calling to preach.

Dr. Solomon has had assignments to churches in Plainview, Amarillo, Corpus Christi, Kerrville and San Antonio.

The Solomons will make their home in Oklahoma City.

The Way It Was

By Emmett Jenkins

It was about 1910 when we got our first telephone. The line that ran to our house was a mile from a neighbor. It was on fence posts, with 4 foot two by fours, with insulators nailed to the post, with wire attached.

I remember once lightning struck the line and melted the wire, in about one inch lengths, until it reached the house. The house was painted white, and it left black spots, the size of a cowboy hat. The ground wire, took the bolt of lightning to the ground.

In later years, our Dad bought an Edison Phonograph, with cylinder records.

The record would begin with: This is an Edison record, then proceed with the music or whatever. One of the favorites was "The Preacher And The Bear," another was Patrick Henry's speech, "Give me liberty or give me death," Homer Rhodehivers rendition of "When The Roll Is Called Up Yonder." The phonograph cost thirty-six dollars. It was about eighteen inches, by sixteen inches high. It had a crank on the right side, one winding would play a record.

Being on a party line, some neighbor would call and ask us to play some music.

The telephone was an old wall type, with the mouth piece about chin high. It was necessary to have the music box close to the mouthpiece. We usually put the churn in the high chair, on top of that we put a milk crock and the Sears Roebuck Catalog, then we placed the phonograph on top, so it would be near the phone. When the phone rang, one would hear the receiver click, on the line. We would wind the music box and let it play, until all the records were exhausted. The person on the party line would thank us for the entertainment.

The telephone had a crank. The number, and length of rings would signify, who you were calling.

There was no such thing as a private conversation, on the party line. When the phone rang, there would be, from one to a dozen receivers come off the hook.

If there was some unusual news on tragedy, the telephone would ring three times, which was a signal for everyone to get on the line. We got the news faster than, "Tom Brokaw could tell it."

I don't know where I learned, that if one would put the receiver to the mouth piece, it would make an unearthly burping noise, and completely drown any conversation on the line. One day the phone rang, I took the receiver off the hook. It was Dennis White, a boy from town. He was talking to Nellie Beauchamp. Nellie, being my brother, Leland's, girl, I proceeded to put the receiver to the mouth piece.

That broke up the conversation. I thought I was doing Leland a big favor, trying to protect his romance, I dared not tell it then. But I guess it is safe now.

There was a Circus coming to Matador, from Paducah. The Elephants being too large to be hauled, were walked along the road. Livestock, especially horses, were deathly afraid of them.

Walter Ellithorp's buggy horse was old. It took quite a bit of coercion with the buggy whip, to get him into a slow trot.

Old Brown saw the elephants coming and he came to life. He cleared a four wire gate and headed for safer territory. The next day, Walter missed "Ole Brown" and started hunting him. He found him, in the back side of the pasture. He had fallen in a gully, with feet in the air. The gully was three feet deep, and three or four feet wide. He could not turn and get his feet on the ground. I don't know how Walter got him out, but he did not seem any worse, from his escapade.

The elephants came on, by our house, which was one mile west. Our horses were in the corral. They started running, round and round. They tried to break the boards off the corral. The fence was well built, and they could not break it.

Caprock Canyons State Park Rich In Texas History

QUITAQUE - About 10,000 years ago a small band of Indian hunters killed and butchered buffalo along a creek in the canyon country of the Texas Panhandle.

Known by archeologists as the Folsom culture, these people were the first of many groups to visit the shaded, watered landscape of the Caprock Escarpment.

Over thousands of years the temperature warmed and the rains diminished. Indian tribes came and went: big game hunters, small game hunters, tribes that depended on collecting plant foods, farming Indians and then Spanish explorers all stayed on the escarpment for a while.

In the 1600's, the Plains Apache and Comanche tribes ranged across the western lands and camped beside the rugged canyon walls. A period of Anglo settlement followed and some of the most famous ranchers of all times ran cattle in the high plains country along the escarpment. For a few years Charles Goodnight was a part owner in the J.A.

Ranch which operated in 2 million acres of open range including the caprock.

Today a portion of the escarpment is preserved in Caprock Canyons State Park. Visitors can experience the desolate grandeur of the high plains and spectacular views of cliffs and canyons along the escarpment by hiking to unimproved primitive camping areas. Wildlife abunds in the area, and many visitors use a bird checklist available at park headquarters.

Lake Theo provides a swimming and fishing spot that is also suitable for small boats. Playgrounds, campsites with water and electrical hookups, restrooms with showers and a dump station also are available.

Campers should call (806) 455-1492 for reservations and fees. The park is located about 100 miles southeast of Amarillo and is three miles north of Quitaque, Briscoe County, on FM 1065.

CARD OF THANKS

Words are inadequate to express our thanks to you for your acts of kindness shown us during the loss of our loved one, son and father. Our appreciation for the flowers, cards, prayers and donations made to the much needed organizations, the food brought to our home and the church. God Bless each and everyone of you.

Laverne, Robert and Crystal Norris

Thank you for your prayers, calls, cards, food and visits. For any kindness shown to us, in anyway.

In our hearts you will always be remembered.
May God bless you!

Questions & Answers

Q. - Do the eligibility assessment procedures for VA medical care apply to veterans age 65 and older?
A. - VA's eligibility assessment procedures apply to all nonservice-connected veterans regardless of age. Public Law 99-272 repealed a provision in The Veterans Omnibus Health Care Act of 1970 that allowed veterans 65 years of age or older to receive care in VA facilities regardless of income.
Q. - I have questions about my recent Agent Orange examination. Whom should I talk to about my concerns?
Q. - If you have any questions about your Agent Orange examination, contact the environmental physician at the VA medical center where you had the examination.
Q. - Can a veteran get a VA-guaranteed loan to purchase a condominium unit?
A. - Yes, provided the unit is located in a condominium complex approved by the Veterans Administration.

Safety Belt Use In Past Six Months

Six out of 10 Texans now buckle up when they get behind a steering wheel. According to a survey conducted in June for the highway department, safety-belt usage has increased since January, and is less than six points from the peak rate reported in 1986.

The statistics are based on a semi-annual survey by the Texas Transportation Institute. In the 1986 TTI study, observers recorded driver restraint use in 14 cities to determine average compliance. Four additional cities were surveyed in the two 1988 studies.

The 14-city average in 1986, shortly after the law mandating seat-belt use took effect, was 66.1 percent. That average dropped to 55.7 percent by January of this year, but climbed to 60.6 percent in June - a gain of 4.9 percentage points. The 18-city figure rose even more, from 54.1 percent in January to 59.2 percent in June, a 5.1 point rise.

"We attribute much of the rise to a stronger law enforcement efforts," said Gary Trietsch, safety and traffic operations engineer with the highway department. "Without police out there writing tickets, some people just won't take the time to buckle up," he said.

"We're very encouraged by the increase in safety-belt use," Trietsch added. "Public education is important in getting people to understand why they should use seat belts, but it seems some people have to believe they really might get a ticket before they'll change their behavior," he said.

Laredo showed the most startling change, increasing compliance by 17.7 percentage points between January and June, followed by El Paso with a 17-point rise and Tyler with a 14.3 point increase. All three cities recently have made substantial increases in enforcement.

Laredo, Tyler, and Austin participate in a federally funded program to encourage safety-belt enforcement. Austin has the state's second-highest usage rate at 72.8 percent, while Corpus Christi takes top honors with 83.3 percent.

"The bottom line is that safety belts save lives, and making Texas highways safer is what we're out to accomplish," said Trietsch. Several state agencies, including the highway department, have adopted the national goal of achieving 70 percent usage of safety belts and child-safety seats by 1990.

SEEDS FROM THE SOWER
By Michael A. Guido Metter, Georgia

A magician mingled with some guests with a hidden microphone, and he recorded everything they said. When they heard their cruel and dirty words they were horrified. "But," said the magician, "I'll erase them." "Thanks," sighed a guest. "Although you've erased them, Someone else has a recording - the Lord." He has, and He says, "You must give an account on Judgment Day for every idle word you speak. Your words now reflect your fate then."
Do you want the recording of your life erased? Confess your sins to the Lord, and He'll say to you, "I have blotted out your sins."
