Treatment For Snakebite Presented To EMT Assn.

The Motley County EMT Association met Thursday, November 6 at 7:00 p.m. for their regular monthly meeting at the Plainview Savings and Loan.

Roy Tippin, R.N., presented a very informative program on snakebite treatment. He said that deaths from snakebite are rare in the United States, but Texas has led the nation in the number of victims in the past decade.

It is estimated that 1,500 persons are bitten by poisonous snakes annually in Texas. The diamondback rattlesnake is responsible for two-thirds of the total incidents, followed by the Copperhead with about 400 cases annually. Envenomation from the cottonmouth moccasin bite is about 100 per year.

The earliest signs of venom injection from a pit viper is numbness and tingling about the mouth and tongue, extending to the face, scalp, fingers and toes. A metallic taste may also be present. Nausea, vomiting, pain and low blood pressure can occur immediately after, a bite," Tippin explained.

In treating a snakebite victim, the first major problem may be in calming the patient's panic, Tippin said. Next, you should identify the type of snake and if the snake is recognized as a poisonous species, fang marks should be found. The involved part should be immobilized and the area should be cleaned thoroughly with water or antiseptic solution. Ice may be applied by placing a towel between the patient and the ice, leaving the ice on for 25-30 minutes and off for 15 minutes, intermittently. Tippin advised that tourniquets and cutting a large X over the affected area are no longer used and also said that antivenin should only be given in a hospital under a doctor's supervision. Only in an acute emergency in which severe symptoms of envenomation develop rapidly and medical aid cannot be promptly obtained should it be administered by a layman.

After the program, a draft copy of the by-laws was read and discussed. It was announced that at the next meeting a test will be given on abdominal injuries, with the program topic to be later announced.

Present at the meeting in addition to Roy Tippin were Kirby and Joyce Campbell, Dude Speed, Kelly and Renee Meyer, Joyce Meredith, Kenneth Marshall, Pennie Keltz, James and Kathy Gillespie, Orville and Ruth Lee, Joe Freeman and Rodney and Glenda Williams.

The EMT Association meets the first Thursday of each month at 7:00 p.m. at the Plainview Savings and Loan and invites any interested persons to attend.

Thanksgiving Time For Safety

The Thanksgiving Holiday has always been a day when we give thanks for the lifestyles we enjoy here in the United States - something a lot of us take for granted such as our freedom, good jobs, vacation and our automobile. Everyone agrees the automobile and all it has brought to this nation is marvelous, but it could be an instrument of suffering and even death.

Major C. W. Bell, Regional Commander of the Texas Department of Public Safety in Lubbock, stated that this Thanksgiving Holiday weekend, thousands of more drivers will be on the streets and highways. Some drivers will only be going across town - others will be crossing several states.

Major Bell also said that the Department of Public Safety wants you to have a safe and pleasant holiday, so if you are planning a trip out of town check your car, the road conditions, the weather conditions and your driving habits, and remember that the early darkness and heavy traffic call for more caution and less speed. If we think safety first and drive defensively then a safe and pleasant Thanksgiving is almost certain.

City Sales Rebates Announced Here

State Comptroller Bob Bullock Thursday said rebates to Texas cities of the optional one-percent city sales tax climbed to more than a half-billion dollars this year.

Bullock said payments of $80.1 million for November brings the yearly total to $526.9 million - nearly $60 million more than cities received during 1979. Matador's check this month will be $3,870.57, bringing the city's total for the year to $16,075.31 in sales tax rebates. Last year's total to date was $15,370.73, so the city is showing an increase of 4 per cent.

Roaring Springs will receive $1,599.07, boosting the city's payments for the last 11 months to $6,395.09. Roaring Springs is showing a 17 per cent increase over last year's rebates.

The city sales tax is collected along with the state sales tax by merchants and businesses and rebated monthly by the Comptroller's office to the cities where it is levied.

Council Makes Decision On Cable TV Survey

The Matador City Council has given Matador Television Cable owner Bill Jameson 30 days to sell his business following the outcome of a recent survey taken of subscribers of the system.

The survey, taken at the request of Jameson, was to determine if subscribers were satisfied or dissatisfied with service they were receiving.

According to minutes of the November 13 city council meeting results of the survey revealed that 35 customers voted they were satisfied with the system and 83 voted they were dissatisfied.

Jameson, according to the council, said he would abide with the decision of the survey and would sell the system if results were negative.

"What I said was if the majority of the subscribers were dissatisfied with service, reception and price - I would sell," Jameson said. "I have about 280 subscribers and less than half voted dissatisfaction. I don't consider this a fair count."

At the November 13 meeting Joe Smith made a motion, seconded by John Briscoe, to give Jameson 30 days to transact his business according to the outcome of the survey. The motion carried four to zero for the motion.

"Thirty days doesn't give anyone time to sell a system like this," Jameson said. "The system still has a heavy debt against it and until the debt is removed it will be impossible to spend 30 or 40 thousand dollars on the system to fix it up."

Jameson said he wanted to continue to update the system the city has, but there was not a lot of money available nor potential subscribers in Matador. He said until a year ago all the money taken in by the system went back into its operation. Now, he said, $200 a month is taken out for his expenses.

"If I have to sell the system the subscription price will more than double," he said. The price will go from $8 a month to $21 a month plus any extensions.

Mayor Kirby Campbell said the council acted on what the cable franchise had agreed to -- that being Mr. Jameson "would abide with the decision of such a survey."

The majority voting in the survey, and not the entire subscription list was under consideration, according to Campbell.

"There is no secret to the action the council took," Campbell said. "We have everything down in black and white."

The Cable system franchise and the television reception tower are the only means of TV reception now available at this time.

El Progreso Members Visit Textile Center

Program for El Progreso Club, Nov. 13, was given over to a field trip to the Textile Research Center on the Texas Tech University campus, and the adjoining West Texas Museum and Ranching Heritage unit, in Lubbock.

Texas Tech is one of only nine institutions in the United States that offers undergraduate degrees in textile technology and is the only one west of Alabama, and the Mississippi River.

Tech's internationally recognized center conducts research on all types of textile fibers, yarns and fabrics, the women making the tour, were informed. "Although the primary objective of the TRC is to conduct studies on cotton, wool and mohair, the three natural fibers produced in Texas, the center is designed to support the nation's textile manufacturing industry," Mrs. Harriet Boone, Information Specialist, told the women.

The tour took them through the departments of mechanical processing, fabric development, weaving, including carding, combing and roving; and spinning, including ring spinning, winding and twisting, and open-end spinning, also through the chemical research where modern mill-sized equipment is used for dyeing and applying finishes.

In a recent issue of the Lubbock Avalanche-Journal, an article in the Farm News disclosed that "The need for textile industry managers and executives is reflected in the textile engineering department's increased enrollments over the last three years. This fall 34 students are enrolled in the undergraduate textile technology and management curriculum, compared with only 12 in 1978."

Club members making the field trip were Mesdames W. F. Jacobs, W. N. Pipkin, Robert Darsey, Ted Elliott, John Hamilton and Douglas Meador. They were joined at lunch at Furr's Cafeteria in Town & Country Shopping Center, by Mrs. J. E. Edwards and Mrs. Harold Campbell, with their mother, Mrs. Ben Keltz of John Knox Village, who is an honorary member of El Progreso Club. After lunch, several in the group visited the museum and Ranching Heritage facility.

Guest Reviews Book For Baptist Women

Mrs. Robert Dickson of Coleman was guest speaker Wednesday, Nov. 12, when Baptist women met at the home of Mrs. Larry Hoyle for a missions program shared by the Baptist Young Women and the Dorcas Group of the Women's Missionary Union.

Mrs. Dickson reviewed "Missions for Tomorrow" by Bill O'Brien, with focus on three components. "These," she said, "embrace the world, the Christian Witness and the Churches. Ours is not the only denomination with the goal of taking the gospel to every nation. The Baptist goal through Bold Missions is to tell everyone in the world about Christ by the year 2000 A.D."

The challenge and responsibilities surrounding Christ's command to take the gospel to every nation, in the face of communistic doctrines was given a personal touch as Mrs. Dickson told of conditions in Red China, where she had toured for three weeks this summer.

"I believe that China will again become one of our major missionary fields, although it will be difficult to witness to a people who are faring better under the Communist's regime, than in the years before," she pointed out, since it has been over 40 years since missionaries were permitted to preach there.

The program began at 10 a.m. and afterwards, the women enjoyed a salad luncheon, with these present: Mesdames Roger Vinson, Fred Risser, Larry Neighbors, Gary Hilliard and her sister-in-law, Nita Drake, and Mesdames Bill Dunning, Velma Fulfer, Stuart Dixon, Edgar Lee, Douglas Meador, J. D. Craven, Alvin Stearns, Audrey Price, and Miss Rachel Patton from the Dorcas group.

While here, Mrs. Dickson visited her daughters, Mrs. James Stanley and Mrs. Roy Tippin and their families.

"We are interested in hearing about the exciting experiences you are providing in your career education program," said ESC consultant Carolyn Dehn, and added, "If you have had a successful experience or have an idea that you would share with other teachers in the region, please send them to me via the delivery van."

GEORGE HUMPHREYS, Cowboy and Lawman

By Peggy Walker

George Humphreys is a true son of the old west. He grew up in the big ranch country of northwest Texas and became the foreman of the famed 666 Ranch of Burk Burnett and sheriff of King County. Born in 1899 in a half dugout, he seemed destined from youth to spend his years in the cattle industry. He graduated from "bronc stomper" to foreman of the 6666 Ranch in 1932. His ability as a horseman and trainer became nationwide and his riding and training of the famed cutting horse Hollywood Gold brought crowds to their feet at major championship shows. The author has told the story of this cowboy and lawman who became a legend in his own time.

THE BIG RANCH COUNTRY J. W. Williams 003-6

The Big Ranch Country reaches deep down into the stories of the folks who made ranching in the Southwest. Colorful stories of the finest cutting horse, the meanest cow thief, the most princely cowman of them all—even the hair raising details of gunplay with a bad man whose name cannot be revealed are told in bare knuckle fashion that leaves no cushion of falsehood to soften the truth. This is the Big Ranch Country of the Waggoners, the Pitchfork, the Matador, the Four Sixes, the Swensons, Callaghans, King and Klebergs, told in a homespun, yet extremely accurate fashion.

Fireplace Woodpile Can Harbor Many Pests

By Warren Multer

The hazards of a fireplace to the careless have been well advertised, but those of the woodpile are not so well known.

These hazards do exist, according to Warren Multer, Extension Agent-Entomologist, with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service. More problems are showing up since energy costs have risen and more people are using fireplaces and wood burning stoves as a means of heat for their homes.

Your woodpile can harbor many pests -- from those that are just a nuisance to others which can cause severe structural damage to your home. Pests can range from very tiny spider mites to skunks and rabbits, as well as various insects, spiders, and scorpions.

Wood boring insects are present sometimes in large numbers in firewood. The painted hickory borer is most common in our area.

These insects lay their eggs in the spring and the larvae tunnel through wood during summer months. Sawdust will be found under and around the firewood. These insects will not harm seasoned wood such as furniture and structures. Some logs stacked on the ground may become infested with termites that can also attack nearby structure. This situation can be reduced by stacking firewood on a plastic sheet.

Biting and stinging insects that overwinter in logs can be a problem when wood is brought into the house. The best way to combat this is to store wood outside until you are ready to burn it. Inspecting wood before bringing it in the house will also help prevent problems.

Never apply insecticides to firewood, whether it is to be used in a fireplace or for cooking outdoors. Some insecticides are harmful, some are toxic and some merely unpleasant.
