

Living Water Is Theme For Soil Stewardship Week

The Upper Pease Soil and Water Conservation District has announced they will join in the national observance of Soil Stewardship Week to take place on May 8-15, 1983, according to an announcement by W. H. Marshall, chairman of the district.

The theme of this year's observance is "Living Waters." This focus is especially appropriate as each one of us is dependent on, water and related resources. Together we must work for the good of all to utilize, conserve and properly manage those resources in our care. Participation in Soil Stewardship Week activities offers an opportunity to reflect on the nation's natural renewable resource problems and consider actions to resolve them or reduce their impact.

The Upper Pease SWCD was organized for the purpose of offering farmers, ranchers, and the local community a voluntary conservation technical assistance program through which individuals could seek and request conservation assistance to meet their individual land's capabilities and needs. "Basically it is the district's responsibility to provide technical assistance when requested relative to proper soil use and treatment, erosion control practices, solve drainage problems and assist farmers and ranchers with crop, range and pastureland management," said Marshall.

The National Association of Conservation Districts has sponsored Soil Stewardship Week in the United States since 1955, in cooperation with the nation's nearly 3,000 soil and water conservation districts. Informative material on the Soil Stewardship Week theme each year is distributed through local conservation districts to clergymen, lay leaders, civic and educational organizations and to individuals interested in participating in the celebration.

Information and materials for the 1983 observance of Soil Stewardship Week can be obtained in this area from the Upper Pease SWCD office in the county courthouse.

Today Is National Prayer Day

Thursday, May 5 (today) is our country's thirty-first National Day of Prayer. It is an occasion that Americans should note.

Observances of a national day of prayer date back to 1775, when the Continental Congress declared the first one. Other such days followed for several years. Through the succeeding decades other national days of prayer were declared from time to time until 1952, when, by joint action, the two houses of Congress established the custom of a national day of prayer on an annual basis. By this action, the nation's Chief Executive was instructed to set aside one such day each year.

The National Day of Prayer for 1983 is May 5 and a national "celebration of prayer" is scheduled for Constitution Hall in Washington, D.C.

On an individual basis, Americans are being encouraged to observe the National Day of Prayer in ways appropriate to their own traditions.

In particular, all citizens are being asked to "Take 5 at 12" - to take at least five minutes at noon, wherever they happen to be, to thank God for the blessings we enjoy, including our freedom itself, and to ask God's continued blessing on our nation in the days ahead.

We hope that Americans of all faiths will respond strongly to the National Day of Prayer appeals, and especially to the call for "5 (minutes) at 12" on May 5. All things considered, there may never have been a time when we had more to be thankful for, yet more need for God's help and guidance.

Land Bank Interest Rates To Be Reduced To 11 Percent

Interest rates on Land Bank variable rate loans will be reduced to 11.00 percent on farm loans and to 11.50 percent on rural residence and farm-related and business loans effective May 1, 1983, said Tommy R. Ogden, president of the Federal Land Bank Association of Floydada.

In addition, the Land Bank has reduced its Bank closed loan fees to 1 percent on farm loans and to 2 percent on rural residence and farm-related business loans, according to Thomas H. Benson, president of the Federal Land Bank of Texas. These reduced fees are effective April 25, 1983.

"The adjustments follow reductions made earlier this year," Benson said. On January 1, 1983, the Bank's interest rate on farm loans was lowered to 11.25 percent. The interest rate for rural residence and farm-related business loans was lowered to 11.75 percent. Bank closed loan fees subsequently were reduced in February from 4 to 2 percent on farm loans and from 7 to 4 percent on rural residence and farm-related business loans. The fee reduction was made possible, Benson said, by the decrease in the Bank's cost of funds.

The Federal Land Bank Association of Floydada makes long-term real estate loans in the counties of Motley, Briscoe and Floyd.

Book Review For Club Given By Mrs. Darsey

A book review by Mrs. Robert Darsey was the program for El Progresso Club, April 28 at the Summit Savings and Loan Community Room. Mrs. Ted Elliott was hostess and Miss Rachel Patton, program leader.

Mrs. John Hamilton, president, opened the meeting with a business session for committee reports, and ballots were cleared for two new members, Mrs. Gus Bird and Mrs. Agnes Aaron.

Mrs. Darsey reviewed the book, "The Richest Lady In Town," a real-life story by Joyce Landorf, in which she wrote of Christian experiences which had influenced not only herself, but the lives of her family as well.

As Mrs. Darsey related, in the author's words, "... I am the richest lady in town, not because of hoarded cash, immense investments in stocks and bonds, or vast property holdings, but because of God's outpouring of spiritual wealth."

She stressed the use of one's talents as a panacea for life's frustrations, and pointed out that everyone has a talent for something. Her spiritual bank she listed, contains a "talent account," "gentleness and mercy account," "the opportunity account," "the resource account," and the

"refinement account"... "These and other accounts are all available to you. They are at your fingertips, ready and waiting for you to do your own taking."

The inspirational message contained in the book was well presented by Mrs. Darsey, who declared, "This is one of the most difficult books I have ever tried to review. It was hard to abbreviate, because it was hard to decide what to delete."

Miss Patton read the yearbook quotation, "No cord nor cable can so forcibly hold, or hold so fast, as love can do with a twined thread," and concluded with an Inspirational Thought, I Cor. 13:13.

Mrs. Elliott served refreshments of spiced tea and chocolate cake squares and canapes, from a table centered with a colorful vase of irises.

Soil Stewardship Week

PERMANENT GRASS STRIPS placed at proper intervals across a field provide control of wind erosion and produce a better climate for growing crops between the interval. Soil losses on unprotected fields in this county can exceed 20 tons per acre per year. Grass wind strips can reduce this to an acceptable level of 2-3 tons per year. Grass strips only take about 1% of a field to provide this protection. Perennial grass wind strips are cost shared through the Soil Conservation Service's Great Plains Conservation Program.

Management Of Rangeland With Graslan; Critical!

Graslan, a pelleted herbicide, was released in 1979 for the control of sand shinoak (shinnery). Approximately 4,000 acres in Motley County have been treated during the last three years. To monitor changes in the grass composition of treated areas, the SCS placed plots on the Quail Creek Ranch near Turkey. The grass plots showed 100% root kill on sandsage and shinnery by the end of the second growing season. At the same time a dramatic increase in grass production occurred. The SCS stresses that proper range management is very critical following the use of Graslan.

In April, 1980, through the Great Plains Conservation Program 640 acres of shinnery - sandsage infested rangeland were treated on the Quail Creek Ranch. J. B. Fowler, co-owner of Quail Creek, and the SCS decided to schedule two years of deferment following the Graslan application to monitor composition change. During the first growing season, a rapid kill (3 to 5 weeks) occurred on sandsage. By the end of the first growing season, approximately 65% of the shinnery was root killed according to SCS data. Grass production rose from 2500 lbs./acre in 1980 to 5500 lbs./acre in 1981. Thirteen percent of the plants were good grasses with 77% being considered fair. In 1982 grass production was 7500 lbs./acre with 28% good grass and 70% fair grasses. This was an increase of 5000 lbs. per acre of grass. All shinnery in the plots were root killed by the end of 1982.

From this data, the SCS stresses several important items besides the fact that Graslan is very effective. Deferment, following brush control, is critical. Deferment the first year allows grasses to reestablish and gain vigor, however the second year of deferment is as critical as the first. During the second year, the better grasses became more prominent. Good grasses are important for beef production and rangeland should be rested the second year to insure re-establishment of the better range plants.

With shinnery controlled, the SCS recommends that ranchers insure proper grazing management with a planned grazing system using sound grazing management principles.

For more information about Graslan in your ranch operations contact the Soil Conservation Service office in Matador.

Irrigation Efficiency Evaluations

Irrigation efficiency evaluations are being used in Motley County to measure the efficiency of sprinkler irrigation systems. Pivot, side roll, or hand move irrigation systems can be checked by local Soil Conservation Service personnel for efficiency of delivery of irrigation water to the crop.

SCS personnel are trained in the use of water metering devices and soil moisture monitoring. Monitoring of the existing moisture in the soil will enable the producer to calculate the amount of water he needs to apply. Water metering will ensure that the maximum amount of water pumped is available for crop use. SCS personnel can also assist the landuser and train him in measuring soil moisture and when to apply irrigation.

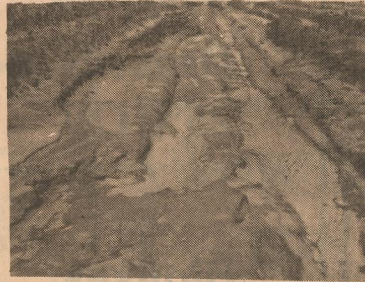

SCS personnel will also evaluate your irrigation delivery system to determine the effectiveness. This includes main lines, nozzles, time and distance of moves, or with pivot irrigation the speed of delivery. From this checkout, suggestions can be made to increase the efficiency of the system. This will ensure that as much water as possible is delivered to the crop for production, and in the most efficient means.

Irrigation farmers can request an evaluation of their irrigation system by calling the Soil Conservation office in the Motley County Courthouse. All personnel in the Matador office are trained irrigation evaluators and look forward to assisting each of you increase your irrigation efficiency.

SCS TECHNICIANS are shown placing catch cans underneath a side roll sprinkler system. The moisture caught in these cans will enable the producer to evaluate the amount of water actually being received by the crop. For an efficiency evaluation of your system contact the SCS office in Matador.

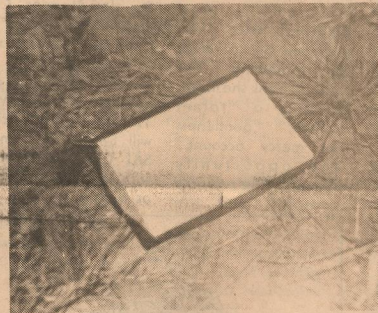

HOW MANY TURKEYS do you see in this picture? The Soil Conservation Service works with local landowners to carry out good range management programs that are beneficial to wildlife as well as to livestock.

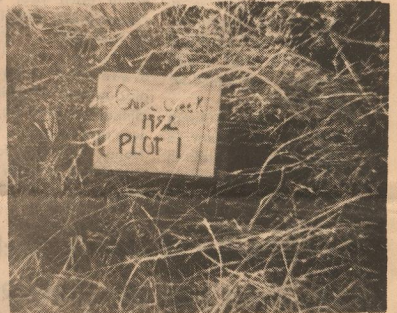

SEVERE WATER EROSION DAMAGE to cropland such as above occurred throughout Motley County during the spring of 1982. This damage occurred mainly to terraces, diversions, waterways and other erosion control structures.

The combined effort of the Soil Conservation Service, Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service, Farmer's Home Administration, County Extension Service and the Motley County Commissioners produced Emergency Conservation Program (ECP) funding for area farmers. Cost share assistance was provided for the rebuilding of these structures through ECP.

Damage occurring last spring was severe enough to allow cost share assistance for structure rebuilding. A total of 38 systems were repaired by area farmers with the assistance of ASCS and the Soil Conservation Service.

sound grazing management principles be used following Graslan application to insure range improvement.

Fire - Brush Control Method

FIRE! The newest brush control method around is fire. This may be right but only in the sense that we as managers are now using fire for brush control. Wildfires controlled brush all across Texas before the ranchers began grazing this range. Then came the control of wildfires and continuous grazing on the native lands and with this came the encroachment of brush species.

According to the Soil Conservation Service (SCS) and others, fire is now being used in a controlled situation as a very effective and economical method of controlling certain species of brush. However the SCS warns landowners that fire that is uncontrolled or set under the wrong conditions will do serious damage to the grass and can even increase the brush problem.

The SCS uses specific guidelines as to when and how fires will be effective for brush control or renovation of pasture grasses such as Weeping Lovegrass. Following of the guidelines is important if success is to be achieved with fire. One of the most important of these rules is plan ahead. The SCS is now planning for controlled burns for next year. Planning a year in advance will assure that the conditions are correct when the fire is set. Contact the Soil Conservation Service in the courthouse at Matador for assistance in prescribed burning.

THE WILDFIRE that occurred in the photo on the left will slow grass production seriously for several years while the controlled burn on the right will increase production and effectiveness of the grass. A wildfire can be accidental or a fire set by man under the wrong conditions.

CONSERVATION TILLAGE, reduced tillage, minimum tillage or whatever name you prefer to go by is fast becoming the farmers preferred choice of farming. The Soil Conservation Service reports that several county farmers are using various forms of conservation tillage. The SCS says benefits include less soil compaction, increased soil moisture, fewer trips across the field, reduced erosion problems, crops not blown out, equal or better yields, and less equipment needed (although the equipment needed is more specialized).

PARALLEL TERRACES installed in Motley County are helping to reduce runoff of valuable topsoil while increasing yields. Parallel terraces can be adapted to fit any type of farming operation and aid in utilizing rainfall for crop use. Come by or call the Soil Conservation Service to discuss parallel terraces for your farm.

Range Improvement With Lovegrass

Rangelands in Motley County should periodically be rested during the growing season to improve condition and production. Sometimes ranching operations find it hard to provide adequate rest during the growing season without a high producing, pasture grass. According to the local Soil Conservation Service, weeping lovegrass is an excellent summer grass that allows ranchers to rest rangeland.

Weeping lovegrass is an excellent summer grass when properly managed. Its peak production is in May, June, July and August. During this period, stocking rates of 1.5 to 2.0 acres per animal unit can be used. Proper management and a good stand is the key to the high stocking rates. Required management is rotation, fertilization, and a fall deferment.

During lovegrass peak growing season is the optimum time to rest native rangeland. Cattle can graze lovegrass and allow range grasses to produce seed and build root reserves. With deferment on a regular basis, rangeland will improve in condition and production.

Besides providing rest for native grazing lands during the growing season, lovegrass provides a second alternative for ranchers. Lovegrass can be cut for high quality hay. Lovegrass hay can provide up to 16% digestible protein with proper management and timely cuttings.

Ranchers in Motley County should consider weeping lovegrass as an important alternative to be worked into their grazing program to provide hay and range deferment. For more information on using lovegrass in a ranching operation, contact the local Soil Conservation Service in the Motley County Courthouse.

WEEPING LOVEGRASS on the George Hughes farm south of Roaring Springs provides high quality forage during the summer months and allows Hughes to rest his rangeland to improve range condition and production.

RANGELAND CAN IMPROVE in production when it receives adequate rest during the growing season. The use of weeping lovegrass to give rangeland rest is one alternative ranchers should consider in their operation.

Exhausted, Sandy Cropland? TRY LOVEGRASS

Motley County, like most of West Texas, has great potential for growing farm products in its dry, sandy soils. Some of the soils, however, are too sandy for farming. They have severe wind and water erosion problems. According to the local Soil Conservation Service, farmers have an alternative for sandy, exhausted cropland with the use of Weeping Lovegrass.

For years, the sandy soils in Motley County have been used for the production of cotton. These soils were naturally low in fertility and have steadily declined in production because of continuous cropping, wind, and water erosion. Erosion on sandy soils can reach as high as 60 tons/acre/year through wind erosion and ten tons from water erosion.

Weeping Lovegrass is a warm season, perennial grass that furnishes excellent forage and cover when properly managed. Management requires proper grazing, fertilization, rotation and a late season deferment. Eli Lilly Company steer trials showed gains of 1 3/4 to 2 pounds per day on properly managed lovegrass.

With good gains possible and reduced erosion, lovegrass can make low productive cropland profitable.

For more information about using lovegrass in your farming operation, contact the local Soil Conservation Service.

Emergency Loans Available From Area FmHA

Emergency loans for farmers, ranchers, or aquaculture operators are available through county offices of the Farmers Home Administration (FmHA), Larry J. Clements, FmHA county supervisor, said today.

Clements asked that those who need farm credit as a result of heavy rains, hail, high winds, tornadoes, and flooding occurring primarily during May and June 1982, and drought conditions experienced during the other months of the year which damaged 1982 crops make their needs known at the Farmers Home Administration office at 401 N. Burlington Spur, Texas.

Applications for assistance in the disaster stricken counties will be accepted by Farmers Home until October 18, 1983, for physical and production losses.

FmHA loans covering actual physical and production losses may be used to replace installations, equipment, or buildings, (including homes) lost through this disaster. Funds may be used to buy feed, seed, fertilizer, livestock, or to meet interest and depreciation payments on current real estate and chattel debts.

"Funds can be used for essential operating and living costs," Clements said.

Applicants that certify that other credit is not available may receive loans covering actual losses at an interest rate of eight percent and are scheduled for repayment as rapidly as feasible consistent with the applicant's ability to pay. Applicants who certify that other credit is available may also receive these loans at higher interest rate.

To be eligible for an emergency loan, an applicant must have suffered losses from the disaster.

Pipelines... make good neighbors

America has over 220,000 miles of petroleum pipelines carrying crude oil and products to refineries and storage terminals across the United States. Each day, more than 1.5 billion ton/miles of crude oil and products move through this network. These pipelines have a safety record second to none in the transportation industry... and we want you to help us keep it that way.

liquids on or a mist above the ground in the area of a pipeline.

- Flames originating from an opening in the ground.
- If you become aware of a pipeline leak...
- LEAVE THE LEAK AREA IMMEDIATELY.
- Avoid driving into vapor clouds.
- Avoid direct contact with the escaping liquids.

When you see signs like those shown above, they tell you that there's a pipeline nearby. If it's underground, you can't see it, of course. But it's there, working quietly to provide energy for you and other consumers throughout this nation.

- Some of these signs list the commodity transported in the pipeline, the name of the operator, and a telephone number where the operator's representative can be reached at all times.
- Although pipelines have an exceptionally good safety record, once in a while a leak can occur. Indications of a leak might include:
- A strange or unusual odor in the vicinity of a pipeline.
 - A hissing or roaring sound (caused by petroleum or product escaping from a pipeline).
 - A dense white cloud or fog.
 - A spot of dead or discolored vegetation.
 - An accumulation of petroleum

- Avoid creating sparks or sources of heat which could cause the liquids or vapor to ignite and burn. If you find yourself in a suspected vapor area, do not light a match, start an engine or even switch on an electric light.
- Notify the pipeline operator as soon as you reach a safe area. Call collect. Give your name, a description of the leak and its location. If you do not know who the pipeline operator is, call your local fire, police or sheriff's department, or the state police. Advise them of the nature and location of the emergency.
- If you see someone digging near a pipeline or doing other construction work... or if you plan to do such work near a pipeline yourself... please call the telephone number shown on the sign and let the pipeline company know so damage can be avoided. It's in your interest... and the nation's.

America's Petroleum Pipelines

Pipelines are the safest way to move petroleum and products and you can help keep it that way!
