Searching For The Western Myth Begins About 4:00 a.m.

'George' assisting at a recent branding.

by Marisue Potts

For over a month spunky Georgina Brooks of Hasslemere, England, has been living the life of a Texas cowgirl whenever possible, riding, roping, branding, and dancing.

Rising at four or five a.m. "George", as she is affectionately known, has saddled up to ride with cowboys on frosty windswept mornings. With a fascination for anything Western, this nineteen year old lass has cheerfully chewed the dusty grit of cowboys, choked on the acrid smoke from flaming irons, and sweltered under the fiery Texas sun. She has ridden the range of the Pease River watershed from the plains to Devil's Gap, while working cattle with Johnny Stevens, Don Brothers, Vann Francis, Frank Potts, and others.

Through the cedar breaks and red-stained ravines, Miss Brooks has "posted" and "cantered" on a loaner dun or chestnut cowpony. With her customary English saddle replaced by the bulkier rigging of a Western model, she learned first hand that a saddle horn was meant for dallying a lasso with a struggling calf on the other end.

This veterinarian's assistant even tried her hand at castrating and helped one group of cowboys work 260 calves in an afternoon, but she never ceased to worry about the trauma to the livestock.

Although she was expecting more wilderness and less "civilization," George, who had formed her ideas from watching Western movies, found roundups and branding basically the same as 100 years ago. Ironically, however, here in the "free wheeling," independent West, Workman's Comp and Liability Insurance eliminated her chance to ride with some of the larger ranches.

Attending the ABC Rodeo in Lubbock and the Horse Show in Paducah was a treat for the experienced equestrienne. She has been riding since she was four when her parents started her off on a pony at fox hunts. From the stables near her suburban home forty-five minutes south of London, she often loads her tall thoroughbred into a "horse box" and goes "eventing" for a day of competition and jumping.

After visiting Motley County's school, Georgina, who started boarding school when she was 12, said that high school looked like "great fun". She expressed surprise that our girls begin wearing make-up so young, which makes them look older than their British counterparts. She noted that course work is handled very differently since her classes concentrated on and tested on one subject at a time, rather than dealing with our broad range of subjects.

During questions and answer periods, students showed a lively interest in cultural differences between the two countries which speaks a common language (well, almost!) Both accents were a little thick, and many common words like "tea" took on an entirely different meaning.

George, who had traveled overseas by herself to board with families she had never met and knew little about, confided that she was actually quite shy and the hardest thing she attempted while here was talking to the fourth grade class.

Country Western music, which is not well known in England, has been a source of fascination, so various cassette tapes and videos will go in the knapsack back home. And since cowboys don't work all the time, there has been a few chances to try the Two-step and Cotton-eyed Joe. Wonder if anyone told her the Shottish is our version of the Highland Fling?

Between saddle shops and "sightseeing," Georgina has checked off towns on the map with descriptive names like Plainview, Paducah, Quitaque, Gasoline (How much sightseeing can you do at a cross-road?) A few souvenirs she's picked up along the way, like a dusty black hat and blood-stained boots, are going to be difficult to fit into those already bulging bags.

Showing hospitality of the Old West, host families who have opened their homes to this lovely lass from England are Vann and Sondra Francis, Kirby and Joyce Campbell, and Frank and Marisue Potts. With her enthusiasm and good cheer, Georgina has captured the hearts of all who have crossed her path. We'll miss you, George!

Roaring Springs City Council Meets

The Roaring Springs City Council met April 21 for their regular meeting at 6:30 p.m. Joy Thacker called the meeting to order and heard the reading of the minutes. They were approved as read by all Council members. Frances Walters reported that a number of complaints from citizens requesting more city street lights be installed in the city had been made. After discussion, the Council didn't feel they could install lights for personal property, only on city thoroughfare. This was tabled. Brad Graves, Mission Cable representative explained the plan to upgrade and completely rebuild the Roaring Springs Cable system. They plan to add CNN soon and will make it possible to add up to 30 channels in the future. Graves asked the Council to approve the laying of some lines underground in certain areas of town. This was passed. Roaring Springs Community Volunteers met with the Council to present the fact that part of the tennis court is on an unused city street and they want the city to condemn the street so they can fence off the property to take care of it better, at some point in the future. They are cleaning the property now so they can apply for a grant to build a community center, also in the future. Mayor Thacker explained the Council was glad to see all that the Volunteer

Museum Report

Hal Hines of Sunnyvale, near Dallas, sends his good wishes and support for the Motley County Museum. His contribution assures his parents, Howe and Elsie Hines, a place on the Family Name Plaque. The family brand, Lazy H, will be added to the Centennial Branding Board.

This benefit tournament was started in 1943 or 1944 by the Women's Golf Association which was made up of women who were members of Airport Country Club. It has continued every year. Come play and help this worthy cause.

Howe and Elsie Hines, who farmed near Dougherty, were very active in the Mason and Eastern Star organizations in Motley County. Throughout Elsie's long ordeal with cancer, she maintained her wonderful sunny and happy disposition. Remembered as Hal Dean, Hines was active in 4-H and Boy Scouts. He received the coveted district Scout of the Year Award in 1956 when Major Jack Robinson returned to Matador as guest speaker for the Boy Scout banquet.

The scout went on to graduate from Texas Tech and become a Navy pilot. Since moving to the Dallas area he has been involved in building custom homes and leasing rental properties. Currently Hines and his wife, June, are working as family life marriage counselors.

Matador City Council Meets

The Matador City Council met April 16. Minutes and bills were approved, with the exception of one bill.

Bill Jameson reported on the progress of the Solid Waste plant. The Council approved two ordinances, a Liability Ordinance and a Health Insurance Ordinance.

Mayor Gary Lancaster read a letter informing the City of the latest landfill closure rules. "Any city wishing to close a landfill before October 1993, must send a letter of intent with a closure plan prepared by a registered engineer by June 1, 1992. Failure to follow procedure will put the landfill under a 30 year post closure rule."

Others attending were Council members, L.B. Campbell, Pete Williams, and E.D. Lawrence. Travis Jameson was absent. Meeting adjourned.

THOSE WHO WILL SUFFER

NOTE: Due to problems during a Paducah-Motley County Basketball game, a plan has been presented to the school to Educate the Students and Fans as to conduct during athletic events, and the consequences that could arise from lack of knowledge or actions.

seriously injured or even killed, and the day is coming soon. Almost any referee will say he has feared for his safety more than once in his career and probably more than once this past season.

It was written by Amy Woolsey, Superintendent George Blanch and taken in part from the UIL Leager.

The professional coaches whine that referees can't stay up with the game. It is hard to argue that fact. But pro basketball referees have given up calling the game by the rules intended by its founder because the players are so very fast, talented and big.

The conduct at the basketball game between Motley County and Paducah was a black mark that we all will carry for some time. The students are the ones who will suffer and pay the consequences. Sports programs are suppose to make us better adults. Sportsmanship is a main part of any competitive sport. Now students of Motley County will play competitive sports with a black mark or cloud hanging over us. We will have to take extra steps to improve our image. In the late 80's we lost 23 straight games, but we were known and admired for our courage and determination. We had pride in our efforts. We will come back - but it will take time. The sad part is, it was so uncalled for, but we have to pay!

College coaches picked up on the notion. The plethora of college basketball games on television given every fan in the country a chance to see how different coaches intimidate referees each night of the season. Ranting and raving through the manic-depressive moods of such coaching heroes as Indian's Bobby Knight and Missouri's Norm Stewart appear to be the norm rather than the exception. Major college coaches, including those in the Big Eight, bait officials throughout almost every game. That rubs off on the players and the fans. Ah, the fans. That's where the trouble is going to come from. Coaches and players face suspension and loss of game-playing privileges if they step too far beyond the bounds of sportsmanship.

FAN BEHAVIOR MUST IMPROVE

It would be only natural to read columns and editorials about an incident after it happens. When (notice, not if) a referee is slugged, stabbed or knocked senseless, there will be an uproar of unprecedented noise in all the sports pages, sports talk shows and other news venues.

Fans rarely face such penalties. Anonymity in a mob creates bravery to perform such cowardly acts as throwing things on the court, hurling foul names and launching personal insults. Imitation is also expected. College fans, including the Antlers at Missouri, establish what is perceived as an acceptable norm for high school fans.

Some writers will bemoan the idiocy, of fandom that runs out of control. Others will decry the situation as one of dire circumstances. But the fact remains, a referee, probably in basketball, will be slugged, stabbed,

Why else would fans from small farm towns, as well as Lincoln and Omaha, feel it is acceptable to chant obscenities and verbally attack every call that goes against their team?

Even as recently as 15 years ago, 99 percent of the fans at a high school basketball game wouldn't think of waving their arms and screaming at the top of their lungs when an opposing player was shooting a free throw. As recently as last week, one school group handed out noise-makers to accentuate such activity.

This season, packs of Lincoln fans

Winifred Darsey Has Recipe Printed In Texas Country Reporter Cookbook

Winifred Darsey with a copy of The Texas Country Reporter Cookbook, in which she has a recipe printed.

Winifred Darsey of Matador is somewhat of a celebrity now that her recipe for Western Style Spaghetti has been printed in the newly released Texas Country Reporter Cookbook. She mailed in her recipe when the Texas Country Reporter asked for recipes to be sent in. She later received a cookbook and a letter informing her that her recipe had been selected and is printed in the cookbook.

Mrs. Darsey gives a little bit of history about this famous recipe — "This recipe evolved from many forms of spaghetti and meat. Most people, for a long time, thought that only people of Italian decent ate and enjoyed this wholesome food. But since the late 1940's I've used this recipe with variations until I developed the one I now use and is published in The Texas Country Reporter Cookbook. I've used it for family gatherings, parties, church socials. It's tasteful, attractive, and agrees with people who enjoy this type of food.

It can be an economical dish, since one casserole will suffice for the whole meal. After trying a new recipe for another casserole, my late husband, Robert Darsey, wanted to know why I tried a new recipe. I said that I thought he might enjoy a new recipe and casserole. He said, 'You don't need another recipe if you have this one.' For the rest of the years he lived, I made Western Spaghetti for him every week. There was always a smile on his face when he realized I had made this casserole.

When the Texas Country Reporter asked for favorite recipes, I sent this in and was surprised a few months later when I received this nice cookbook and on page 94 is my recipe."

- WESTERN STYLE SPAGHETTI
- 1 cup chopped onion
 - 1 1/2 cloves garlic, minced
 - 1 bell pepper, chopped
 - 4 TBS oil or drippings
 - 1 1/2 lbs. ground meat
 - 1 1/2 can tomato sauce
 - 2 cups water
 - 3 TBS Worcestershire sauce
 - 1/4 tsp. pepper
 - 1 tsp. salt
 - 1-10 oz. pkg. (thin) spaghetti, cooked
 - 2 cups grated sharp cheddar cheese

Lightly brown onion, garlic, and bell pepper in hot oil, add meat stirring until it is no longer pink. Add tomato sauce, water and seasonings. Simmer 40 minutes. Place cooked spaghetti in casserole dish, cover with meat mixture, then top with cheese. Bake at 350° until cheese melts and a little bubbly.

A green salad is a good side dish, garlic bread or just plain ole soda crackers.

I would be thrilled to know if you like this - use other cheese if you prefer.

The Texas Country Reporter Cookbook is for sale at the Motley County Tribune.

SWEEPSTAKE MILLIONAIRES MAY NOT BE GETTING A MILLION.....

Countless mail offers promise to make you a "millionaire" if your lucky entry is drawn in the sweepstakes. Just how likely is it that a winning number will be drawn? Not very likely.

Millions of entries are mailed, but only one big winner is drawn. And even if the winning entry draws a promise of a million dollars, it is very unlikely that the winner will actually receive a million dollars. Deception? Not necessarily. Just the terms of the pay-out.

In one well-known million dollar event, the winner will receive $25,000 a year for 30 years and a one-time payment of $250,000 in the 30th year. Although this does add up to a million dollars, each year the annual payment of $25,000 will be worth less and less. Because of inflation, the purchasing power of money declines each year. The only year $25,000 will buy $25,000 worth of goods and services is in the first year. After that, it will buy less each year. Accounting for inflation, the one million dollars paid over 30 years is only worth about $509,381 in today's terms, assuming an average annual inflation rate of about 4 percent.

If the million dollars were paid to the winner all at once in the beginning, the winner would have a greater chance to maximize earnings. A million dollars invested at 3 percent more than the rate of inflation would generate $1,427,260 in interest over a 30-year period. In contrast, the $25,000 paid out annually for 30 years plus the final $250,000 payment, will generate $439,375 in interest at the same rate. This means that the winner loses interest potential of $987,885 ($1,427,260 minus $439,375) by receiving annual installments instead of the lump sum pay-out.

Finally, the age of the winner may have a lot to do with how much money is actually received under the 30-year pay-out. Suppose the winner does not live for 30 more years. Unless the plan pays the balance to the recipient's estate, the full pay-out will not be realized.

A million dollars may sound like a lot of money. Consumers should recognize that it won't mean they'll be an instant "millionaire", even if their entry is drawn. Consider that before spending postage money on sending in the sweepstakes offer. Not only is your chance of winning extremely tiny, but you may not become a "millionaire" in the process.

Educational programs conducted by the Texas Agricultural Extension Service are for people of all ages regardless of socio-economic level, race, color, sex, religion, handicap, or national origin.

Pharmacist's discovery may end obesity

WASHINGTON -- After solving the problem of his own obesity, a pharmacist, now director of National Dietary Research, may have discovered the solution for others with the same problem.

Dr. William Morris, pharmacist, inventor and author has discovered a natural food tablet, aptly named Food Source One, that replaces some of the calories normally obtained from food. Food Source One replaces high calorie fats with other natural food ingredients with little or no caloric value so you can lose weight without giving up all your favorite foods, as explained in NDR's Lifestyle Maintenance publication, available where Food Source One is sold. "The secret to meaningful weight loss is not in decreasing the amount of food you eat, but in controlling the fat," says Dr. Morris.

According to Dr. Morris, weight loss results while using Food Source One will depend on how many pounds a person needs to lose. However some overweight people are experiencing extraordinary results with Food Source One. A Metairie, Louisiana nurse lost 71 pounds. She stated "I never had to sacrifice the foods I dearly crave!" "Food Source One is very easy and anyone could do it," says a Niagara Falls, New York woman who lost 26 pounds and 15 inches. "The results are great" she added.

Amy's Anecdotes

by Amy Woolsey

We all have our favorite time of the year. Should it be Spring, Summer, Fall or Winter, we all have a special feeling for one. I like all the seasons, but there is one season in particular I like more than any of them. That has to be summer. This coming summer is going to be the best ever for me. In my poem "Summer", I expressed what it meant to me as a little girl. Now that I'm about to graduate and go out into the "real world" it will all change. It will never be the same. My summers will still be happy, even happier since I'll have someone to share them with, but they won't be seen through the eyes of little girl, instead they'll be seen through the eyes of a grown-up.

Summer

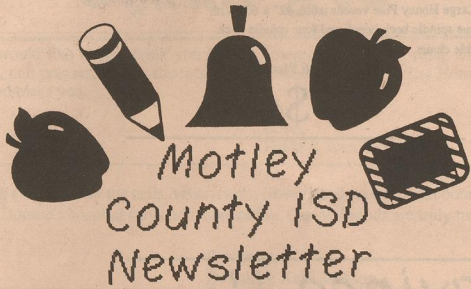

by Amy Woolsey

I like summer because I get to do all kinds of things.
I get to run, laugh & sing!
I like summer because I'm outside in the warm sun,
And that's when I have lots of fun!!

Fall is getting chilly, so behind a coat I hide,
While winter is too cold and I have to stay inside.

Spring is a little warmer, yet it's not like summer,
In the summer I can wear shorts and go without any shoes upon my toes.
Spring is still too cold to go barefoot for I may get a runny nose!

What I like about summer best is that we have no school,
And we have no tests.

Motley County School Sponsors Career Day

by Amy Woolsey

Career Day, what's it all about? Last Wednesday, April 15, grades seven through twelve were given the opportunity to see what it was all about.

Four colleges and Dude Speed for Law Enforcement came and gave the students sessions on just a few of the many choices they'll have after high school graduation.

Texas Tech University had sessions on the Agri Texans and the Home Economics Department. South Plains College had sessions on South Plains Allied Health and business Occupation. International Business College had a session on Court Reporting. Texas State Technical College from Amarillo gave a session about its schools around Texas. Dude Speed spoke on Law Enforcement.

These sessions helped many of the students choose or consider what they would like to be.

"It was very informative, and interesting," states Kristi Timmons, a senior. "It gave me a better idea of what I'd like to become."

Not only did it let the students out of class, it helped them see what the future will be like and what they want to be.

Piper and Sailsbury To Attend Energy Science Symposium

MC Science Teacher, Jeff Piper, and Scott Sailsbury.

Motley County High School student, Scott Sailsbury and science teacher, Jeff Piper, have been chosen to attend the 32nd Annual Energy Science Symposium at the University of Texas in Austin, June 9-12.

The Symposium is jointly sponsored by the Texas Atomic Energy Research Foundation and the University of Texas. West Texas Utilities is one of the sponsoring companies in the Foundation and will pay all expenses for 50 students and teachers throughout the state attending the sessions in Austin. Participants will tour some of the finest scientific facilities available and attend lectures and workshops conducted by leading professionals in the scientific field.

According to WTU area manager, Jesse Turner, "the symposium is a chance for WTU to help students and teachers learn more about science and energy outside the classroom."

DIVORCE & KIDS

It is common to hear, "The kids are young, they'll get over the divorce." Time does have a way of helping any person heal or adjust to change - but children who experience their parent's divorce do not make it through the experience without some marks or scars.

There are a multitude of feelings and thoughts that can be experienced. The following are but a few possibilities.

Divided loyalties between the parents can be a big problem. If a child is understanding to one parent, they may feel like they are a traitor to the other. The younger child may be fearful of being left by both parents. They have questions like, "Where will I live? Eat? Am I to blame?" An older child may be concerned about leaving friends and school.

Regardless of who has custody of the children, the discipline should be fair and consistent. That will help build or maintain a sense of security with the child. One thing that is troublesome to a child is the change in the procedure or structure of things. There will no doubt be hard feelings between the divorcing parents. It is best if they can keep from criticizing the other parent in front of the children. In the long run, the parent - who does run-down the other, will be less thought of by the children.

Kids often have the fantasy of their parents getting back together someday. This can even be a part of their hopes after one or both remarry.

I suppose one of the most painful things is telling the children initially that the divorce is going to occur. Generally, it is best to inform in a honest, straight manner - no lies, false promises or excuses. To be able to answer their questions best, separate personal problems from family issues. One tough area would be if they question about an "affair" (if their really is one involved). Again, in the long-run, an honest answer without blame is best. It is usually best for both parents to tell the children together. They need to know they will be loved by BOTH parents and they are free to love BOTH parents. Research has shown that the young boys take longer than young girls to regain emotional balance. Divorce is one of the most stressful experiences faced by an individual - it is not foolish to get professional help.

Economic Injury Disaster Loans Available From SBA

Walter Fronstin, district director of the U.S. Small Business Administration in Lubbock announced today that SBA is accepting applications for Economic Injury Disaster Loans (EIDLs) from eligible small business concerns and small agricultural cooperatives without credit available elsewhere. Applicants must have sustained substantial economic injury because of their dependence upon farmers and ranchers who suffered the agricultural damages. Farmers and ranchers are eligible to apply for these SBA loans, Fronstin said.

Fronstin said that businesses seeking loan information and loan applications may call SBA's Area 3 Disaster Office in Fort Worth since all disaster loans are processed through that office. The toll-free number is 1-800-473-0477.

Businesses located in the following counties serviced by the Lubbock District Office of the SBA and which were affected by an early freeze, high winds, very cool weather and excessive rainfall between June 1 and November 6, 1991 have until November 2, 1992 to file an EIDL application.

Motley, Knox, King, Hardeman, Hall,

Board, Dickens, Cottle and Childress.

The EIDL loan program is intended to assist agriculture-dependent businesses and small agricultural cooperatives who sustained a substantial decrease in sales (or other forms of economic injury) direction due to losses incurred by the farmers and ranchers to whom the business usually sells. In some cases, this may include non-agriculture-related businesses which sustain a substantial economic loss directly due to the inability of the farmers affected by the disaster to purchase goods and services at their normal level. Small businesses claiming to have been physically injured by the specified adverse weather are not eligible for the EIDL loans.

Fronstin said the program is available only to those businesses that are considered small by SBA's size standards and do not have credit available from other sources.

The interest rate for loans processed under this designation is 4 percent. The loans are limited to the financial needs of the applicant based on the actual economic injury and may be made for up to $500,000. A loan may extend to 30 years, depending on repayment ability.

Match Roping Feature of the 5th Annual Drag A Ranch Steer Roping

When the 5th Annual Drag A Ranch Roping unfolds on April 24, 25, 26 at the Burleson Ranch arena near Flomot, Texas, Guy Allen and Roy Cooper will square off in a Match Steer Roping contest on Sunday afternoon. Roy Cooper has graciously consented to replace Tut Garnett who was injured at the timed events in March and has had to have surgery on his knee. Though the competitors might be friendly, the competition is serious.

Guy Allen of Venita, Oklahoma will be competing in the Match Roping for the fourth year. Raised in a steer roping family, Guy, his father, James and brother, Gip set a record in 1983 for being the only three family members ever to qualify for the NFSR. Guy has set many records in his 16 year PRC career, being the youngest to capture the world title at the age of

and the most dominant steer roper of modern day.

Roy Cooper who lives in Childress, Texas, is an original honoree of the Pro-Rodeo Hall of Fame. Roy is only the second contestant in the history of professional rodeo to win calf roping, steer roping, and All-Around World Championships in the same year.

Last year's winner of the Match-Roping between Guy Allen and Shaun Burchett was Shaun. Shaun lost his life in an automobile accident earlier this year and will be recognized as an Outstanding Steer Roper.

In the Open Roping that will accompany the Match Roping, a C-M Circuit champ two horse trailer will be given away to the winner of the "Open Roping". Last year's winner of the one horse trailer was Tut Garnett of Elgin, Texas.

Other events for the weekend will be team roping on Friday night April 24, with Circle A of Hereford furnishing the cattle.

Saturday will be the ISRA Ropings followed by a Novice Steer Roping, cattle furnished by Jimmy Smith of Denton.

Sunday morning begins with the Senior SRA members roping followed by the Open Roping and the Match between Allen and Cooper will be taking place throughout the afternoon.

Curt Robinson, Pendleton, Oregon, will be on hand through the weekend to give first hand accounts of the ropes standings and to introduce the ropers. The introduction of the Open Steer Ropers will begin at 1 p.m. on Sunday, April 26.

There is an admission of $5.00 at the gate which gives you a chance to win a pair of bits made by Wade Brannon, Silverton. You do have to be present to win.

have been warned about obscenities. One Lincoln fan shoved a referee. An official was threatened with a knife after a district wrestling meet in Iowa.

Officials must be accompanied by police and security officials at all major college games and at all state high school tournament games. This isn't done as courtesy. It is done because there is enough of a threat to the well-being of the officials.

Is winning that important? Obviously, to a deranged few, it is.

The only hope is that what was started can be stopped, and stopped before the inevitable - serious injury or death caused by some maniac fans.

To borrow a worn phrase: 'Just say no'. Don't put up with the jerk in front of you. Identify him and report him to the authorities present.

Then, instead of removing the jerk from the game, hand him a whistle and a striped shirt and let him finish the game on the court.

SPORTSMANSHIP ISN'T JUST FOR ATHLETES

School officials in our state have been forced to confront the ugly demon of poor sportsmanship.

Perhaps you've read comments from a coach who took his case to the media when he alleged that poor officiating cost him the "big" game. Perhaps you've heard about the cheerleaders so they won't have to look at them.

Perhaps you've seen fans throw toilet paper onto the gymnasium floor or tennis balls or coins into the hockey ring. Perhaps you've heard fans yell derogatory remarks at coaches or athletes.

Perhaps you've seen and heard enough. "But they are only having fun," says the spectator who paid his $2 entrance fee. "No wonder school spirit isn't what it used to be," says the student after the principal pleads for decorum. "Free speech!" shouts the sports junkie who laments about the lack of respect kids have today.

Principals must exert the leadership necessary to bring this problem under control. We cannot turn our backs while the fanatics undermine the ideals of sportsmanship that have contributed much, in the past, to the moral fiber of our society.

It would be easier, and better for our blood pressure to stick our heads in the sand. However, we must take a good look around us and do whatever must be done to re-establish sportsmanship as the foundation on which we build successful athletic programs. It might also be a good place to start as we reassert the basic values of our society. Values can be taught in our public schools.

We must emphasize that winning is not the only thing to consider when it pertains to the final score. Winning is the only thing when it pertains to people conducting themselves in a manner that makes all of them winners.

There is such a thing as sportsmanship. It can be alive and well in each school if people become committed to making it a reality.

County Executive Director

Information supplied by the Office of Public Affairs

Secretary of Agriculture Edward Madigan declared recently that the Department of Agriculture one of the least understood organizations in our government." Of the $62 billion budget:

1. Less the 20% ($12 billion) of the USDA budget goes to farm price and support programs (farm programs).
2. About 54% ($33.6 billion) of the USDA budget supports food assistance programs. These include food stamps, the school lunch and breakfast programs and the Special Supplementary Food Program for Women, Infants and Children (WIC).
3. Only 27 percent of the total USDA budget is used for discretionary spending.

4. Nearly 40 percent (42,220) of the department's employees work for the Forest Service, which manages 191 million acres of land and provides more than twice the outdoor recreation "visitor days" of any other department.

5. Some 16,700 scientists, working under USDA in a federal-state partnership, are exploring a wide range of topics in such areas as protecting the environment, food safety, human nutrition, crop and livestock production, agricultural diseases and pests.

Secretary Madigan, testifying before the Senate Agriculture Committee on April 8, 1992, outlined management changes he has taken to improve the 130-year-old Department of Agriculture. The overhaul is meant to streamline management, realign subcommittee duties and tighten county offices operations that deliver billions of dollars of services to consumers and production agriculture.

In an era of tighter budgets, Secretary Madigan said it is "absolutely imperative" for the USDA to change the way it does business. "I have repeatedly said that I want my tenure at USDA to be one in which management is given special focus," he said. And he called on Congress to work with the administration for more efficient and cost-effective operations. Secretary Madigan began laying the groundwork for change last summer, beginning with the "Easy Access" program that cuts red tape and makes programs are easily available to farmers and ranchers. The department's highly decentralized structure, which puts problem solving at the local level, has worked reasonably well. But it also means a "lack of central information and control systems," he observed, leading to a need for improved management of the $62 billion department.

The Agriculture Department has four farm service agencies: Agriculture Stabilization and Conservation Service (ASCS); Farmers Home Administration (FmHA); Soil Conservation Service (SCS); and Federal Crop Insurance Corp. (FCIC). Sometimes there are four or five separate offices in a single county. More than 300 offices have been closed in the last 5 years, and steps have been taken to locate offices under one roof or create "one-stop shopping" for farmers and ranchers. To tighten management and improve services, Secretary Madigan has:

1. Ordered a short-term review of local ASCS operations. State directors were asked to review offices, suggest changes and report back in one month. The report is due in late April. "I plan to proceed by closing and consolidating those offices that can no longer be justified," he said. Such changes will be made "with compassion" and be accomplished through attrition.
2. Pledged a more thorough, long-range review of the department's entire field structure in each state, with an eye toward sharing buildings, staff, telephones, copiers, and other expenses.

3. Promised to seek comments from farmers and ranchers on how to improve through a series of town meetings. Deputy Secretary Veneman is leading these forums, the first of which was held in Salina, Kansas, last month. A town meeting is planned in Abilene, TX on April 24. For more information about this town meeting, contact either the ASCS or SCS county offices.

4. Raised the possibility that a single, farmer service organization be placed under the jurisdiction of a single assistant secretary. This requires congressional approval.

I would like to say thank you for supporting me and voting for me in the recent Motley County Sheriff's Run-off Election. I appreciate your confidence in me, and am proud to be elected as Motley County Sheriff.

I am looking forward to serving this county and its people and will strive to do the job to the very best of my ability.

There's a better way to stay cool...

Call your cooling and heating dealer instead

The best way to stay cool this summer is to have your cooling system serviced now. A checkup by a cooling and heating dealer could help prevent a costly, uncomfortable breakdown during the heat of summer. Proper maintenance can also help reduce operating cost and extend the life of cooling equipment.

And if your present system has seen too many summers, replace it with an all season electric heat pump. Ask your dealer or WTU for details.

Monita Smith called the business meeting to order, but due to no birthdays or anniversaries, it was short. We were glad to have Ruth and Ruby back with us again. We hope Dee will get to feeling like being with us again soon.

County Home Extension Agent Beverly Thomas, and a friend, gave a good talk on ways to keep us Senior Citizens from getting crooked out of money by watching and not getting to think all the things that come through the mail are good for us. The gimmicks they put out about if you will pay $5, $10 or more, that you will win a million or two dollars. The advice was real good. We need to take and throw that junk mail in the waste basket.

Barbara and Carla we missed you two for lunch. We always appreciate all the things you do for us. The picture was beautiful of Amy and Brandt, we wish for you two the best that life can give.

As you Senior Citizens know by now, we have lost our big bus, only six people can ride the small one. Those that have doctors appointments will come first being able to ride. If you have a doctors appointment please call and let us know several days ahead so your name can be put down. I'm sorry but that's the way it is.

Come play 88 each Friday afternoon at 2:00 p.m. The next luncheon will be April 28th. See you there!

A Look Into Our Hearts

Our God sees us in a much different light than do our friends and family. Reputation and influence are factors in how people look upon us. The Bible says, "For the Lord seeth not as man seeth; for man looketh on the outward appearance, but the Lord looketh on the heart." (I Samuel 16:7). While we often make judgements based on education, culture, prestige, clothes, wealth, etc., our God is judging from what He sees in the heart!

The Lord God sees us in our everyday walk of life. We need to remember that God watches our business transactions, our quest for entertainment, and our efforts to serve Him. Think on this consciousness of God's presence. Think of it as a deterrent from sin. For example: The husband may be far away from his wife, but God is there. The son or daughter may be separated from parental care and guidance, but God is there. Christians may far away from the people with whom they regularly assemble to worship. But God still sees.

There is no better realization which will help one to be true to right principles than this: "Thou God seest me!"
