Local Students Attend Farm Bureau Citizenship Seminar

Attending the Texas Farm Bureau's 31st annual Citizenship Seminar here June 14-18 were Kobbi Risser and Dustin Davis.

Sponsored by the Motley County Farm Bureau, they were among approximately 400 high school junior and senior students from over 150 counties across the state.

Purpose of the seminar is to provide the students with a better understanding of their American heritage and the capitalistic free enterprise system, according to Darrell Cruse of Flomot, county FB president.

Speakers at this year's seminar and their subjects were as follows:

Jack Jackson of Fort Worth, president of Jack Jackson & Associates, "Free Enterprise Principles/Projects"; Basilio Bachor, a Polish immigrant, "Living the American Dream"; Michael Broome of Charlotte, N.C., a motivational speaker, "You and America - Two Great Champions"; Texas Rep. Susan Combs, Austin, "Our Inherent Rights"; and Texas Farm Bureau President, S.M. True of Plainview welcomed the students to the seminar. Also, a special presentation was made by Curtis Childers, president of the Texas FFA.

Commissioners Discuss County Business

The Motley County Commissioners Court met with all Commissioners in attendance, Monday, August 9. Judge Laverna Price opened the meeting. Commissioner J.N. Fletcher gave the invocation, following the reading of the minutes of a regular meeting and the special meeting by Lucretia Campbell, Motley County Clerk. The bills were read and all were approved except the one to Plainview Plate Glass Co., until the glass is replaced in the door at the Senior Citizens Building.

All reports were read - Treasurers, Sheriff and Tax Collector, County Agent and Extension Agent, and Library. The J.P. reports of fines collected Precinct 1, Place 1, $3,000; and Place 2, $225.

Gary Simpson, representing the Roaring Springs Volunteer Fire Department, made a request to the Commissioners for help in purchasing eight pagers for the Roaring Springs Fire Department, so they can be contacted by the Matador/Motley County Fire Department to help fight rural fires in the county, easier. They have responded and helped fight seven fires in the County in the last few months.

Russell and Fletcher commended the fire departments on their response to the rural fires and feel this would benefit the county to help with this. The eight pagers are $639.60. Motion passed to purchase the pagers.

James Gillespie and Rodney Williams of the Matador/Motley County Volunteer Fire Department presented to the Commissioners the fire department budget for the 1994 budget. This budget was $6,000 for 1993, but is set for $10,000 for 1994. They explained in the past years they have averaged fighting 42 fires, in 1992 they had only 17 fires, and now in 1993 they have already had 54 calls.

Gillespie also explained they had purchased their new pagers through donations and part help from the City and are now waiting for the frequency permit which should be here in about 45 days. They will continue to use the phones as backup and will have the same number.

Williams also presented a request to the Commissioners to discuss the problem and a solution concerning the fires that are deliberately set.

Williams stated all fires set in Texas are illegal unless the person who sets it has a permit from the Texas Air Control Board. The department is concerned with the cost of fighting set fires. It costs a minimum of $350 to go to a fire call, and they feel there should be a way to be reimbursed for this cost.

The Court discussed for the fire department to investigate and if the fire appears to be set with reckless abandonment, to then present a bill to the Court and the Court will elect to send the bill to the property owner or the person responsible for setting the fire or a complaint will be filed against the property owner/person responsible.

The Court approved an agreement with SPAG and the 911 Council to submit a budget to the State for the rural addressing system for 911. This agreement states that if there is any cost to the County then SPAG would reimburse the County.

Tony Rose, Farm Bureau Agent, and Roy Goodlow, Design Benefit Plan Agent of Lubbock, presented a proposed plan for health insurance. No action was taken.

Motley County Sheriff, Jim Meador, asked the Commissioners how they would like for him to pay for the meals for the law enforcement officers that will come to help patrol for the Old Settlers Reunion. After discussion, the Commissioners stated that they would prefer the Old Settlers Association pay for the meals. They elected to let Sheriff Meador pay for them out of the Sheriff's budget.

Sheriff Meador and Judge Price had letters asking for the Court to set a fee or leave the fee as is for the Road and Bridge fee attached to the vehicle registration fee. Court elected to leave as is.

Elaine Hart explained the Appraisal

District is getting a new computer system and the Sheriff's Office will have to move the Voter Registration list. They can buy a license and the computer program for a minimum cost of $5,000, or pay Business Records of Dallas $65 per name for the voter list, cards, Jury list, etc.

Court elected to have Business Records send a contract for the next court date.

Hart also presented the delinquent tax roll for the Court to read and approve.

Court approved the contracts with the County and the Hospital District and School District to collect their taxes in the Tax Collectors and Accessors Office.

Cora Smallwood, J.P., met with the Court to ask permission to clean out old bank records in her office storage closet. The law says to keep seven years of these records, and Smallwood stated that there are at least 50 years of these records in storage, she needs the extra space. Court elected to let her clean out up to seven years.

Meeting adjourned.

Floydada's Caprock Hospital Could Open By September

NOTE: This article was taken from the Plainview Daily Herald.

Medical services ceased at Caprock Hospital just over two years ago, but there are signs that the facility could reopen as early as September.

"No date has been set yet, but we'd like to do it sometime in September," Ronald Ammons, Caprock Administrator, said last Thursday.

But Ammons said most of the work required for reopening has been completed - two doctors are on staff and practicing at Cogdell Clinic, renovations at the facility are complete and financial problems of the past appear to be solved.

"We're still waiting on one more doctor, and have more paper work to complete," explained Ammons. "A team from the Texas Department of Health will be in town next week to conduct a Life Safety Code walk through."

When the TDH inspection is passed, Caprock will be ready to receive its license to re-open.

Initially, 30 persons will be employed at the hospital. Ammons said it is hoped that within a short time the staff can be expanded to include 50 employees.

The two physicians on the staff include Dr. Antoine Albert and Dr. Mira Tomasevic. The board interviewed a physician prospect on Saturday and are negotiating with a Houston-area physician who is board qualified in obstetrics, Ammons indicated.

Ammons said the district has reached its goal of becoming debt free over the past two years and has set back the necessary cash reserves needed to tie the hospital over its start phase. In addition, the district has invested in renovations such as painting and beautification, construction of a new nurse's station and replacement of heating and cooling systems with new, highly efficient equipment.

"It looks real good," Ammons said. The hospital has faced some delays and setbacks recently, however. "One doctor, for instance, signed a contract saying he was coming, then we received a letter saying he was not coming," Ammons said. "That was a small setback."

by Mary Meason

I returned Saturday, July 24 from an extended visit with my nephew and family, Mr. and Mrs. Richard "Duck" Hamilton. I visited with them at their home in Willow, Alaska, and then on to my niece's home in Nordland, Washington, Dean and Jean Straub.

You know when you make a trip you are sure that all your friends are just as interested in it as you are, so when you return home you feel that you must bore everyone with all the details and pictures of your own trip into "never-never land". I suppose that I am no different.

Alaska is a long, long way from here and quite a bit of discomfort has to be expected.

Heat was my trouble on this trip. Of course, when we die and hope to get to heaven we will have to go to Dallas first. It was awfully hot at Dallas and in the plane waiting for take-off. My itinerary was from Lubbock, Kansas City and Salt Lake City - three of the hottest places anywhere in the civilized world. The hot part came while sitting in a huge plane, on the ground waiting for take off. The plane had two aisles and seven seats across. All seats were occupied.

I only had to change planes in Dallas and Salt Lake City. It was heavenly to get inside the air conditioned terminal at Salt Lake. But back on the plane again where we sat sweltering for 40 minutes waiting for two passengers who were going to Anchorage but had missed their plane connections, when they boarded the plane we were finally on our way to Alaska.

I was so pleased that I had a window seat so I could see the beautiful country after we got out of Utah. But we were flying at 37,000 feet and above clouds and I couldn't see a thing but clouds until just before we reached Anchorage. It was midnight and the sun was just going down. When we landed at Anchorage I was so thirsty I couldn't even swallow.

I have a definite distaste for plane restrooms and I hadn't had a drink since we left Dallas. We drove straight to a 7-11 and I drank a big glass of water and a canned coke, what a relief that was!

Dick, as he is known in Alaska, but he is Duck to everyone here, turned on the car air conditioner and after the extreme heat of those planes, it was wonderful! But the next morning I had a cold. But Patti started doctoring me and the cold never bothered me, but sleep became a problem.

At this time of year there is 20 hours of light and the sun goes down just a little, a very little, before 12:30 a.m. and it's up again in 3 or 4 hours. It never gets dark as we know it here, and I wondered how and when these people sleep. I learned that they draw their drapes and blinds and people sleep in forced darkness.

My biggest problem was when in the world I was supposed to go to bed. I finally learned to just go to bed when I got sleepy and to get up when I woke up. It seemed to me it was always light.

Duck and Patti have a beautiful home in Willow, Alaska, which is about 75 miles north of Anchorage. Their house faces a beautiful lake and a dense forest. The weather was beautiful the entire time I was there. The temperature was in the mid-eighties nearly the entire time, but there is so much snow, ice and water, it never seemed hot and the cool breeze was always just right for me.

I never did unpack my bag that carried my "cold weather" clothes I was told to bring, and only wore a light sweater twice. The temperature was cooler in Seattle than it was in that part of Alaska. The day I left Anchorage the thermometer reached 91 degrees in Fairbanks. Average rainfall in Kenai, which is south of Willow, is 20.5", snowfall is 68.5 inches and the average summer temperature is 75 degrees.

My first impression of Alaska was one of disappointment, but only in the forest. I had expected it to have all kinds of evergreens just like Washington, Oregon and Colorado, and the other northwestern states. But two evergreen trees that were evident in that part of Alaska were the black spruce and white spruce. The black spruce is certainly not a very pretty tree. It is very tall and thin with sparse foliage. The white spruce is much prettier. Duck said that the black spruce would make wonderful fence stays, if he could just cut them and ship them to the lower 48. The main part of the forests I saw was so dense you couldn't see through it and it was so green and lush. There are many birch trees, alders, willow, cottonwood, poplar and aspen and all kinds of shrubs and bushes.

The Indians make many things out of birch bark, and all the museums and gift shops have many birch bark items for sale and do they cost!

I don't think any place can even match the beauty of Alaska's mountains. It doesn't matter which direction you go there are beautiful, awe inspiring mountains. I think every mountain there was a volcano or formed by volcanoes and it seems that every one had a glacier in every crater.

Patti took me to so many interesting places but we didn't have time to visit other amazing places. I'll just have to make another trip there to see more. If I ever go again I would like to go in the winter. Everyone says that September and October are the months to see the real beauty of Alaska. That is when all the foliage puts on its gorgeous colors, and people say this Autumn show of colors is really breathtaking. I've already started saving for one more trip to Alaska and

Washington and I'm hoping my health and my knees will hold up until I can make that trip!

Everytime I talked to an Alaskan or if I answered a question they had asked me, they would always say, "Alaska is bigger than Texas." I wanted to say, "yes it's a lot cooler and prettier than Texas". I began to wonder if they thought I was so dumb that I was unaware of the fact that Alaska was larger. I soon got tired of hearing it and when a man asked something about Texas, I answered him then went on to say, "Alaska is bigger than Texas". He had already started to tell me that, but I beat him to it so he hushed. Another person reminded me that Alaska was larger than Texas, I told him "yes, I know, but Texas has had bragging rights for so many years, and that it's only fair that Alaska now has bragging rights."

My nephew in Seattle said, "You should have told him, 'yes, but when all the ice and snow melts, Texas will have bragging rights again.'"

One unusual place we visited was a musk ox farm which is the only one in the world. I have always thought the musk ox is a native of Alaska, but it isn't. They were transported from Lapland and I believe from Greenland and placed on Nunivak Island which is located off the west coast of Alaska in the Bering Sea where they are now thriving. In the native language, Oomingmak means "the bearded one" (the musk ox). The musk ox is combed for the soft and fluffy underhair then it is sent to a spinning mill and returned as yarn of several sizes to the Musk Ox Producers Cooperation. Over 150 knitters work at home in isolated villages to help buy necessities to tide them over when hunting and fishing is impossible in the winter. This musk ox yarn is called quiviut. The knitters are Eskimos and some of them have created their own designs, others have taken their design from traditional art, but each village has a signature pattern. Caps for adults, babies, tunics, scarves, and headbands are made from quiviut yarn.

I was looking for something to bring to Leanne, Barbara's granddaughter and priced the baby cap. It was $95! I backed away quickly! The tunic shown was $450.

This yarn is three times warmer than wool, doesn't scratch, is light as a feather and can be handwashed or dry cleaned.

One day we decided to go to Homer, a town quite a distance away. Patti started out a good while before Duck and I left. We were flying down and Patti was driving down to meet us at the airport in Homer.

Mike, Cindy, Mark and Steve Lancaster recently attended a family reunion in Canyon Both Cindy's grandparents families, J.H. Bell and John Ho-Gland celebrated together.

Mrs. Ruby Myles returned last Friday from a two weeks visit with her son and wife, Mr. and Mrs. Joe Brown in Fort Smith, Arkansas, and her sister, Mrs. Margaret Price of Fremont, Nebraska. Mrs. Myles explained from Lubbock to Fort Smith; the Browns then took her by car to Fremont to see Mrs. Price, several years younger than Mrs. Myles, who has had strokes which have left her left side paralyzed. She is in the Dodd County Hospital confined to a wheelchair. Mrs. Myles and the Browns visited Mrs. Price for several days then they returned to Fort Smith where Mrs. Myles was given royal treatment for a week in the Brown home before returning home. Mrs. Myles expressed appreciation of rides given her to catch the plane and to come home by Mr. and Mrs. Brown Hinsons.

Mrs. Nita Sanders of Lubbock spent Monday with her cousin, Mrs. Vera Mitchell. The ladies lunched at the L&L Cafe and visited Mr. and Mrs. Grady Webb.

Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Lefevre helped their son, Billy, get settled in his Canyon apartment Saturday, which will be his home as he attends West Texas A&M University where he will be a junior, having recently graduated from Clarendon College. He is employed by Pay-N-Save Grocery there, having begun work this week.

WOOL, MOHAIR COMMENTS DUE AUGUST 13

USDA's Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service invites wool and mohair growers and the public to submit comments on the methods for calculating price support for wool on unshorn lambs (pulled wool) and mohair for 1993.

Written remarks must be received in Washington, D.C., on or before August 13, to be considered.

In accordance with the National Wool Act of 1954, pulled wool must be supported at a level in relationship to the support price for shorn wool, that will maintain normal marketing practices for pulled wool.

Pulled wool is the wool removed from the pelt of a slaughtered sheep. In the past, this provision has been implemented through payments based on the hundred-weight of live, unshorn lambs marketed.

"Mohair must be supported at about the same percentage of parity as shorn wool, plus or minus 15 percent," the ASCS official said. The shorn wool support price is based on a formula prescribed in the National Wool Act. Based on current USDA data, the 1993 shorn wool support price will be $2.04 per pound (grease basis).

Wool and mohair comments should be addressed to the Director, Fibers and Rice Analysis Division, USDA/ASCS, Room 3760-S, P.O. Box 2415, Washington, D.C., 20013.
