PRICE TEN CENTS

TRAIL DUST
By DOUGLAS MEADOR

When we review the past it frequently has the appearance of a row made by a blind plowman.

An acquaintance whose sweetheart eloped with a vacuum cleaner salesman, is considering reporting the incident to the Better Business Bureau.

A young friendship is easily stunted from the shock that follows a request to lend money. The relationship is almost immediately condemned if the loan is granted and will surely die if it is refused.

Some of the beauty of a paint brush sky at twilight is reflected in the peace that floods the fields of the heart. The day's futile hieroglyphs are obliterated and the pattern of tranquility is used to fashion the fabric of dreams.

Many an amateur in the game of love has been able to improve his score with a few lessons from a widow. She is usually able to convince him that matrimony is a natural hazard.

Being the outdoor type, I have always wanted to rough it in an air-conditioned automobile, with sufficient money to make reservations in deluxe motels that do not post the heathenish hour of noon for checkout.

It is a pagan thought, perhaps, but I sometimes wonder if the church collection plate doesn't frequently serve as a vehicle of convenience for the conscience.

Independent Cattlemen Hold Meeting In Austin

The first annual convention of the Independent Cattlemen's Association of Texas, Inc. (ICA) was held recently in Austin. More than 1500 ranchers from 15 districts across the state met to determine means of improving present conditions in the cattle industry.

Among special speakers at the convention were Governor Dolph Briscoe, Congressman J. J. "Jake" Pickle and Texas Commissioner of Agriculture John C. White, all of whom endorsed and praised the ICA's stand in seeking to protect the independent rancher.

Commissioner White compared the present plight of beef producers to that suffered by independent oil producers a few years ago. "If America is to survive," he warned, "it will be necessary for this nation's food-machine to survive. And that means the livestock producer and the rancher."

Among resolutions adopted by the convention delegates were: (1) the opposing of Federal Land Use regulation; (2) urging of rapid implementation of recently passed legislation providing that only domestic beef be used by state agencies and political subdivisions; (3) supporting passage of Article VIII of the proposed Texas Constitution dealing with the establishment of land use taxation formulas designed to preserve open-space land devoted to farm or ranch purposes, and supporting sales tax exemptions for agricultural products; (4) supporting passage of federal legislation limiting importation of livestock to 750,000,000 pounds; (5) supporting passage of federal legislation amending existing laws to provide for better product labeling; and (6) requesting the Justice Department to conduct investigation into possible violations of anti-trust or other federal laws by major grocery chains.

ICA was formed in September of 1974 when the bottom dropped out of the cattle market in the U.S. due to the unchecked inflow of foreign meats. Since that time, membership has grown to over 100,000, making ICA the largest non-affiliated cattle association in the nation.

REDDY'S HELPFUL FREEZER TIPS

- Defrost promptly—frost build-up of more than 1/2" makes cooling units work harder—they use more energy and wear out faster.
- Prepare food for refrigeration by letting hot dishes partially cool before refrigeration or freezing.
- Keep it full—but without overcrowding. A half-empty freezer uses more energy, because air is harder to keep cold than chilled foods and liquids.
- Check gaskets to help prevent energy-wasting air leaks. Close door on a heavy piece of paper. If it pulls out easily, gaskets may be worn.

TEXAS TALK

Movie stampedes not being what they were, and the price of feed being what it is, the Longhorn may be moving back to the pasture. The Longhorn has retained all the characteristics which made them the bedrock of the western beef industry. Number one on their list of appealing traits is their foraging ability. With pasture land being depleted by grass guzzling steers in near record numbers, producers are renewing their appreciation of any animal that excels on the least possible pasture. That's the Longhorn. An ability to not only survive but to gain on rations consisting of cactus or mesquite and whatever kind of grass is available made the Longhorn a Texas trademark in the days of the trail drive. That same quality obviously was on the minds of cattlemen early this year for the first annual Texas Longhorn Breeders Association of America sale. While exotic breeds were drawing little attention the Longhorn sale was described as standing-room-only.
