Metrics Explained At Meeting Of Club

Meeting Thursday, Jan. 12 in the home of Mrs. J.E. Edwards for a program on "Standard of Weights and Measures." El Progreso Study Club was given a preview of the metric system which will become effective in this country before the end of the current year.

Mrs. Edwards presented the facts and figures which bore out the quotation for the day's program: "We live in a number-numbered society and the metric system, like the bad penny, is not going away." (Winifred Reutter). "When we were children the numbers on the clock and calendar were the main figures to keep track of... now there are hundreds of numbers we must use daily in this computerized world," Mrs. Edwards pointed out in her introduction.

She cited numbers involving such items as writing a mail order, using a charge account, numbers in newspapers and magazines, polls and government reports, reports required in farming and ranching operations, social security and zip code numbers, income tax forms "and our telephone which is a real numbers game!"

"Now something else is seeping into our numbers," she continued as she outlined the many ways the metric system will affect the lives of the people. She started with highway signs which inform in kilometers rather than in miles.

"Weather forecasters, after boring you to tears with their talk of stagnant highs, ominous lows and fast moving frontal systems finally tell you what you want to know... Or do they when they say 14 degrees celsius?"

She went on to household measures which embrace three basic measurements, gram, liter and meter, and explained the combinations for household equivalents. She handed out literature from the office of Extension Agent Bill Pallmeyer, including a metric quiz and tables for converting figures to metric. A chart prepared by General Motors Corp., and distributed locally by Matador Motor & Implement, "Learning how to use the metric system," was also given the members.

The chart explained that the U.S. Congress enacted legislation calling for a coordinated national program to establish the metric system in 1975. But as far back as 1791, Thomas Jefferson outlined a decimal system of weights and measures.

"A lot of fine old phrases will soon disappear, unless you want to say things like (all wool and 91.44 centimeters wide' or 'She's a perfect 86.36 - 60.96 - 86.36'." "Maybe it is not too late... small guerrilla bands may yet be formed to resist. After all, 28.350 grams of prevention is worth 453.592 grams of cure!"

Mrs. Edwards said that all weather information is to be converted by Jan. 1, 1979; use of pints, quarts, fifths is to be dropped by distilleries in 1979; President of Sears announced that by 1980, all of its products will be manufactured and sold in metric measures; Montgomery Ward made a similar announcement; by 1978 all U.S. cars will have speedometers measuring both miles and kilometers per hour.

"Despite these steps, and many others," she concluded, "government officials say they are not underestimating public resistance to change. Even after you have studied the information I have given you, you won't have all the answers about the metric system, but don't worry about it. You're probably not going to be asked all the questions."

Mrs. Franklin Price, president, presided and presented several items of business to be considered by the club. For Inspirational Thought, the members read the Club Collect.

Others present were Miss Mary Keith and Mesdames E. A. Day, John Hamilton, J. L. Woodruff, Furman Vinson, L. B. Campbell, Douglas

Meador, Ben Keltz and W. C. Pallmeyer.
