TRAIL DUST
By DOUGLAS MEADOR

Dawn presses its face against the splendor and rugged outlines of night. Beyond the range is the winding Rio Grande and a bowl of jeweled lights tracing the streets of Albuquerque. A golden blade of sunlight is tossed into the canyon wall while the wind shudders wild morning glories laden with cold dew. A new day suckles at the breast of timeless beauty.

Miles of black paving rolled under the spinning car wheels like a moving endless belt and the night traffic drove its glaring lights into the spongy walls of darkness. Appearing suddenly from the shadows on the rolling hills the sheep continued their wandering without alarm. Near the fence an intent Collie dog walked slowly to and fro until the herd was forced back toward the range. New Mexico's economy is held together with ropes of wool.

Deserted now the rock walls of a homestead's house overlook the little valley of burned woods and yellow beargrass. Two hollow windows like sockets in a skull look out on miles of impoverished land. At some hour in the long drama of courage, the breath of a defeated man blew out the light that shone from the windows, blew out the candle at the altar of his dream. Silence and long years have covered the empty shell which once held warmth and sacred spirit of a home. Each winter the sleet and snow powder vacant window sills and melancholy cries of coyotes echo inside the roofless walls.

Good Enrolment In Adult Class

The adult classes in homemaking which met the first three weeks in June, have been completed with eighteen members enrolled, according to Mrs. A. L. Fair, instructor.

There were eleven completing six or more hours as required under the vocational plan which applies to all homemaking teachers hired for ten or twelve weeks.

The Matador teacher is hired for ten months and the plan was begun to give the high school girls a chance to make one-half credit each summer after she had had one year of homemaking, Mrs. Fair explained. The adult class is a requirement set up to supplement the girls' summer work. Twenty-one high school girls were enrolled for this summer.

Women enrolled in the adult classes were Mesdames R. E. Campbell, Jr., Joe Blagdenworth, F. Jacobs, Frank Jameson, John Lawrence, E. D. Lawrence, Lorraine Lancaster, Edgar Lee, J. Woodruff, Bill Moss, D. E. Pitts, Jr., Jim Sturdivant and Louise Lee of Matador; Mrs. Paul McDonald, Northfield; Mrs. Malcolm D. Morris and Mrs. C. H. Murphy, Whiteflat.

This year's class covered sewing techniques, foods, table setting and interior decorating.

PROSPECT GOOD FOR OIL TEST

The Tribune has on reliable authority this morning information that prospects are extremely good for a new oil test in northwest Motley county.

Efforts are being made to block 15,000 acres for the test, with part of the land under contract. The client of a Ft. Worth attorney offers to provide a seismicograph survey of the block, with agreement to drill within eight months if the prospect is promising.

While the county has been without an oil test in progress for several months, unconfirmed reports say other possible wells may be announced within a short time.

The 15,000-acre northwest test is highly probable to materialize soon if land-owners can agree on terms, the newspaper's informant declared.

Texas Gets $52 Million Road Funds

Washington, DC, June 30—Secretary of Commerce Sinclair Weeks, Wednesday gave Texas the go-ahead sign to start letting contracts on some $101,460,000 worth of new federal-aid highway systems.

Weeks announced, six months ahead of the deadline set by Congress, the apportionment of $75 million dollars in federal aid highway funds to be spent in the fiscal year beginning July 1, 1955.

There is no restraint on states to apply for the money immediately, he said. "It is physically impossible for the states to draw plans and let bids rapidly enough to exhaust the funds we already have on hand."

The new two-year federal highway program, signed by President Eisenhower on May 6 provides the largest two-year ap-

CITY TO OBSERVE FOURTH

A survey last week showed that most businesses in Matador will observe Independence Day, Sunday, July 4th, by remaining closed Monday, July 5th.

Forrest Campbell, president of Community Associates, made the survey and reported to the Tribune an almost unanimous agreement to close various places of businesses Monday with the possible exception of cafes and filling stations.

First State Bank will observe the legal holiday Monday as will the courthouse and city offices. Patrons are requested to make arrangements prior to the holiday to eliminate possible inconvenience. Printing of signs has been ordered to display in various places of business announcing observance of Monday as a holiday.

It was pointed out that observance of July Fourth has been recognized as a holiday by both rural and urban areas and that only a minimum of inconvenience to customers and patrons will result. The long week-end will permit both employees and employers a two-day holiday and mid-summer break in regular activities.

Rep. Reeves Wins Spurs In Austin Political Arena

Tradition has ordained that when a freshman Representative goes to Austin he must keep his mouth shut and his ears open for one or two terms. Elbert Reeves didn't know about the tradition—or elected to break it. He returned home with a record of more than 20 bills which he either authored or co-authored, becoming laws.

Outstanding on the list is House Bill 441 of which he is the author. It was a red-hot issue which frightened away more experienced statesmen. It concerned surplus commodities which the government threatened to remove from the hands of Texans unless a responsible agency was set up to receive the foods.

Reeves knew about school children and school lunchrooms and the need of surplus foods. He also knew that Texas would open its part in obtaining the surplus commodities, whether they were made available to Texas people or not—here was something which could not be lost.

He authored the bill and steered it into a law. Texas has received over $10,000,000 worth of foods because of his efforts. During the drought emergency county judges of Texas made appeals to the State Welfare Department and received $98,600 worth of foods. Hundreds of school children throughout the state received gratis meals when their families were unable to pay for lunches. School lunch rooms were able to provide good, nourishing meals at extremely small costs.

SEVEN WAR HEROES TO BE HONORED IN MEMORIAL SERVICE

A BRONZE PLAQUE engraved with the names of seven Flomot men who have given their lives for their country, will be dedicated in the gymnasium at 10:45 Sunday morning.

For the past three or four months a special committee has been assigned to raising funds for the memorial. Major Roy Amick, graduate of Flomot high school, will make the dedication address.

The memorial service will open with a song by the audience with Wilburn Martin leading. Announcements will be made by Louis Amick and invocation by Wilburn Martin. After the memorial dedication, Louis Amick will introduce Will Pritchett who will make the principal address. Benediction will be by L. B. Turner.

The homecoming will be concluded by the noon dinner. Joe Speer said last night that it was expected many of the former residents would want to remain throughout the afternoon to visit friends and relatives. "We have tried to arrange the program for the convenience of our returning friends," he said, "and we assume that some may want to leave early in the afternoon. We want them all to stay as long as possible, but some are making long journeys to attend the homecoming and will probably want to start back early Sunday afternoon."

Arrangement committee of the association has taken into consideration the need of ample time to visit. The entire homecoming has been planned around the pleasant experience of friends meeting after a period of separation.

Arrangements have been made to provide sleeping quarters for all former residents who do not have relatives in the community. Breakfast will be provided Sunday morning for guests in the homes to which they are assigned.

Sunday dinner on a community scale has been arranged for all ex-teachers and students. It will include a basket lunch, augmented by a beef which the association has purchased, and coffee and soda provided by Matador business and professional men. The beverage detail was assigned Matador Community Associates at a committee meeting in Flomot Monday night.

Forrest Campbell, president of the Matador group and Frank Pohl, secretary, attended the meeting and asked for the assignment.

While the Flomot community arranged the homecoming to entertain former residents, the entire two-day program is open to the public, it was announced last night.

That means better roads, safer driving, fewer traffic jams, stronger national defense, more jobs and stimulation of business along the improved and expanded highways," said Weeks.

One feature of the new highway law enables the commerce secretary to approve state specifications and requirements, and thereafter accept a certification from the state that a specific project meets these specifications. Previously, plans and specifications for each individual project had to be approved by the department.

Only New York, with an apportionment of $56,075,999, will be eligible for more federal funds than Texas under the new law.

Large Registration Expected Saturday

SANDS OF TIME will be poured back into the glass at Flomot Saturday afternoon when registration starts for the homecoming of ex-teachers and students of the community.

Registration will start at 5 p. m. Saturday. At 7:30 a program will open in the school gymnasium, where most of the activities are scheduled. Address of welcome will be delivered by Ralph Stapleton, to be followed by recognition of ex-teachers and superintendents, first students, first graduating class, first trustees, etc.

A queen of homecoming will be crowned at the next event on the program. Selection will be made by a secret committee which has been selected by President Louis Amick.

Johnson Grass Killed with Hand Oil Method

PUBLISHER'S NOTE: Control of Johnson grass has been a vital problem in this area for many years. Many advancements have been made in bringing the obnoxious grass under control with the spot oil spray method proving most effective. County Agent Bill Palmeyer has prepared the following article on the subject and its publication appears in this issue of the Tribune as a public service. Bulletins on Johnson grass control may be obtained at Mr. Palmeyer's office.

(By Bill Palmeyer)

Application of an effective herbicidal oil to the crowns and the first few inches of the stem of established Johnson grass kills this grass at the ground line. Repeated application of such treatment at intervals of 10 to 15 days, as needed to control growth, will eradicate root-stock infestations of this grass in a single season. Six or more consecutive treatments are usually required. Lion 1, Esso 38, Lightfoot 23, Varsol 1, No Ho, Lion 7, Tulsa, Texol, and many other herbicidal oils are satisfactory for this purpose. Cotton can not be expected to survive the spot oilings required for the most effective treatment of established infestations of this grass. Basal treatment of the grass, however, can be successfully made in cotton rows with the accidental spraying of only an occasional cotton plant. Knapsack sprayers have proven satisfactory for use in making treatments of this type. Stems of established Johnson grass can be "cut" with oil applied from a hand sprayer faster than they can be cut with a hoe. Also, repeated oiling eradicates established Johnson grass. Hand hoeing, as done by an ordinary field hand, only temporarily delays the growth of the grass. The oils suggested for use in spot treating Johnson grass are volatile and have little or no residual effect on the soil.

Carried On Back

The knapsack sprayer is carried on the operator's back. It is light and easy to carry if it is not overloaded with oil. The spray tank usually has a capacity of three gallons, but in spot oiling established Johnson grass in cotton rows, the operator seldom needs more than a gallon of oil with him at any one time. A gallon is enough to oil the established Johnson grass in the rows of 1/4 to 1/3 of an acre of cotton in most cases. Adding a small quantity of oil to the spray tank every few "rounds" from a reserve supply at the end of the rows is much more efficient than for the operator to fill his sprayer to capacity.

The knapsack sprayer is equipped with a hand pump which is conveniently activated by the operator with his right hand as he walks. The pump on the sprayer is capable of developing 60 or more pounds of pressure per square inch, but to maintain such pressure by hand is both fatiguing and undesirable. A pressure of 10 pounds per square inch or less is more desirable than higher pressures in spot oiling Johnson grass in cotton. Such pressures are easy to maintain with only infrequent strokes of the pump handle.

The operator's left hand is free to manipulate the spray wand and the spring tension valve in the spray line. Only a single nozzle should be used on the end of the spray wand. This nozzle should be equipped with a 50-mesh screen and fan-type Teejet 8002 nozzle tip, or its equivalent. Nozzle tips with this size orifice are seldom sold with a knapsack sprayer and may have to be purchased separately.

Treatment Is Quick

The operator prepares to treat established Johnson grass in a cotton row by placing a gallon of suitable herbicidal oil in the sprayer tank, putting the sprayer on his back, taking the spray wand in his left hand and the pump handle in his right. A few strokes on the pump handle will develop adequate pressure for him to open the valve to test the spray nozzle. He is then ready to proceed down a cotton row until he comes to a clump of established Johnson grass. With spray pressure on the line, he points the spray nozzle at the base of an individual Johnson grass stem so as to treat the crown and the lower inch or two of the stem. Next, he depresses the spray tension valve handle just enough for his spray nozzle to discharge some oil. Just as soon as he has thoroughly wet the crown of the Johnson grass he releases the valve lever and stops the oil. Only an instant is required to make an individual treatment. He then repeats this operation for each and every stem of Johnson grass growing in the cotton row.

If he is alert, the operator can treat the Johnson grass without treating any cotton plants that are 2 or more inches away from a Johnson grass stem at the ground line. In the beginning the operator may have to stand still while he is making a treatment, but he will soon learn to treat the grass as he walks along the row. He will, of course, have to slow his pace and occasionally stop at intervals along the row where the infestation is heavy. After he has gained some experience, the operator may use his right foot to push cotton plants aside where they are very close to Johnson grass stem.

Low Pressure Needed

A fan-type Teejet 8002 nozzle tip will develop approximately a 15 degree fan that will have a maximum width of 2 1/2 inches if the operator maintains a spray pressure of 10 pounds or less in the line, has the nozzle at the proper height and angle and "cracks" the valve open just wide enough. Such a spray fan facilitates the treatment of cotton stems. If the spray pressure is too high, ie 30 to 40 pounds, the nozzle held too high or the valve opened too wide, the spray fan will be too wide and treatment will unavoidably be made to cotton stems as to Johnson grass stems. Both the cotton and the Johnson grass stems will be "cut" when this occurs and also oil will be wasted. However there is not justification for this to happen to a responsible operator the second time if he understands that this is a possibility. Most operators soon acquire the "feel" of their equipment.

The use of a low pressure and a nozzle tip with a large orifice (ie an 8002 instead of an 80050) makes the nozzle more responsive to the closing of the line valve and avoids "bleeding" of the nozzle due to pressure built up in the line between the valve and its nozzle. This saves the operator's time and helps him to avoid accidental treatment of the cotton. If a high line pressure, ie 40 pounds per square inch, and a nozzle tip with a small orifice, ie an 80050, are used, the nozzle will continue to discharge spray fluid several seconds after the operator closes the valve line. It takes this time to "bleed" off the pressure in the spray wand. If the operator moves the nozzle during the "bleeding" period he very likely will kill several stalks of cotton adjacent to the Johnson grass stem he has been treating. If he waits until the nozzle stops discharging spray fluid, he loses time. The use of a low spraying pressure and a nozzle tip with the proper size orifice avoids these difficulties.

2 Rows At A Time

Two rows should be taken at a time in spot oiling established Johnson grass in cotton except when the cotton is over-hip-high.

The operator can manipulate the spray wand from one side of the middle to another and in between the cotton stalks in the row. However, the operator should never get out of his middle. Otherwise, he is apt to lose track of where he has treated the grass and where he has not. Too much grass is left untreated where the operator attempts to watch four rows at a time. Some of the Johnson grass stems of the Johnson grass even when the operator is watching two rows. The treated stems are usually dead the day after treatment or at least show that they are going to die. A second trip to the field the third day after the initial treatment is nearly always needed to treat the Johnson grass stems that were missed the first time. After that the again until not be spot treated again until 3 to 4 inches from the root-stocks of the treated Johnson grass. This usually means that an infested field must be spot treated every 10 to 15 days during the growing season, two trips over the field each time.

Treatment Inexpensive

Eradication of root stock infestations of Johnson grass in the cotton rows is the reward for close attention to spot treatment throughout the season. In experimental trials in the Brazos River Valley near College Station, the per acre cost for labor and oil per season has not greatly exceeded the cost of cutting the Johnson grass with hoe. The flexibility of a hand sprayer and the freedom of the operator to travel at varying speeds along the rows are needed to successfully spot treat established Johnson grass in the cotton rows. Experimental attempts to provide these requirements in tractor operated sprayers have been less successful than the use of hand equipment.

Automotive engineers have long known that friction and corrosion are the two major causes of engine wear. Now, from the laboratories of Continental Oil, comes America's first Double-Duty motor oil. It combines two exclusive discoveries (Oil-Plating and Acid-Proofing)* to conquer both major causes of engine wear.

The unique Oil-Plating additive conquers friction wear by actually fastening a thin film of protective oil to engine parts. Unlike ordinary motor oil, this film won't drain down even when your engine has been stopped overnight. Thus you get full-time protection against damaging wear due to friction.

Exclusive Acid-Proofing additive conquers corrosive wear three ways—it neutralizes acids, prevents rust, and gobbles up tiny particles of dust, dirt, and water and seals them safely in spheres of oil until the oil is drained. ACID-PROOFING actually gives new Conoco Super twice the cleansing power of other premium oils!

Student Deferment Available Under II-S Classification

For the information and guidance of young men graduating from high school, who may be interested in attending college, Texas Local Board No. 45, Selective Service System issues the following bulletin from Plainview:

The fact that a registrant is classified into Class I-A (a class available for service), does not necessarily mean that he will not be eligible to go to college. Normally a registrant will not be reached for induction before he has completed one full year of college work. After such time he may, if he meets the criteria as set forth in the selective service regulations, qualify for II-S classification (college student deferment).

During the first year (and the summer months preceding) a registrant will probably be classified into class I-A, and, should he be reached for induction prior to completion of said first year he may qualify for a postponement of induction if he is a full time student doing satisfactory work.

Registrants are urged to contact the local draft board office to ascertain proper procedure necessary to request a student deferment or a postponement of induction, as well as requirements for a II-S classification.

SHIVERS TO FIGHT SEGREGATION RULE

A pledge to fight the race segregation decision of the US Supreme Court rubbing out the color line in public schools drew repeated rounds of applause at Lufkin Monday night when Governor Allan Shivers opened his campaign for re-election.

Shivers, speaking from a platform in Lufkin's "Cotton Square" was within sight of a store where his father worked as a clerk when the future governor was born 46 years ago.

After a program of hymns by the Ranger Gospel Singers, Shivers was introduced by Earl Rudder of Brady, member of the state executive committee and a hero of the Normandy invasion of 1944.

Rudder termed Shivers "a man of warm heart and raw courage, a dynamic leader who won't run away, a man you can follow with complete confidence that he will do what is best for Texas."

Shivers asked for a third elective term on the basis of achievements as senator, lieutenant governor and governor. He said he had supported, sponsored or signed every major piece of school legislation during the last 20 years.

Old Age Assistance

Shivers pointed out that he wrote the first old age assistance law in the state and kept his promise to support the constitutional amendment to increase pensions, which will be submitted to voters this fall.

He said more miles of farm-to-market roads have been built during his administration than during any comparable period and that he will not be satisfied until there is a hard-topped road within sight of every farm and ranch home.

Tidelands Example

Shivers added that the philosophy of the centralists is best exemplified in the tidelands issue.

"Two years ago, in electing me by an overwhelming majority of almost half a million votes over my present opponent, you endorsed my proposal for an all-out, last-ditch fight to return Texas tidelands to their rightful owners—the school children of Texas."

"You told Allan Shivers to get the tidelands back. And, brother, we got them."

He said that in the first year, the off-shore properties brought in $32,000,000 for the permanent school fund of Texas "in spite of many of these same people who now say Allan Shivers betrayed Texas."

Decision Opposed

On the touchy issue of the US Supreme Court's recent order for a breakdown of segregation in public schools, Shivers called for cool heads.

"All my instincts, my political philosophy, my experience and my common sense revolt against this decision," he said.

"It is an unwarranted invasion of the constitutional rights of the states and one that could be disastrous to the children and teachers of both races."

Shivers reminded his listeners that his administration called for conducting schools without change this fall and has asked the court to entertain a request for solution at local level.

Declaring he never has receded to demagoguery and has never sought to inflame passions of the people for political gain, Shivers declared "flatly and positively" that "we are going to keep running the public schools of Texas as they are today." He cautioned against "night riders or moonlighters or cross burners roving around with sheets over their heads, attempting to hide their faces from God and man while they take the law in their own hands."

Matador Texas

Elbert Reeves . . .

taken into consideration the pay for his services to Childress, Donley, Hall and Motley counties. To date Texas has paid him exactly $1,275. The genial statesman was aware of the low-pay bracket which Texas pays its legislators when he first announced.

He entered the political arena because he felt he could render Texas a service. His outstanding record during a first term is evidence that he has succeeded; that he has won his spurs through experience.

Born and reared a few miles from Matador, Representative Reeves was honored by his home people with all but 12% of Motley county's voting strength in the 1952 Democratic primary.

Tips on Touring

By Carol Lane
Women's Travel Authority

Are you guilty of spending long "lost week-ends" at home buried in the Sunday paper and the doldrums? Or are you wisely using your week-ends to "get away from it all"?

This summer's long week-ends spell long breaks from daily routine for those who know how to take advantage of the family car.

The whole family can learn while having fun by taking what I call "Tour-ettes." These are short week-end trips within a 200 mile radius of your home town.

Adventure lies just up the road or around the corner on little known highways and byways off the main turnpike. Chances are 10 to one you can discover a museum, an historical landmark or an exhibition that both younger fry and parents will enjoy. In addition, many factories open their doors to industrial tours. Such tours will take you behind the scenes of a textile mill, a cereal plant, an iron foundry or a food canning or packaging plant. An advance phone call usually insures you of a kindly cook's tour—and maybe some free samples.

Local Items

Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Osborn and son, Dean of Seminole, and Mr. and Mrs. William Earl Briscoe and children of Plainview were recent visitors in the home of Mrs. Doug (Chloe) Meador, mother of Mrs. Osborn and Mr. Briscoe.

Mr. and Mrs. Houston Patton and son, David of Wichita Falls, were week-end visitors here with relatives, including his mother, Mrs. W. T. Patton, his sister, Mrs. B. C. Cox and family and brothers, Marvin and Paul Patton and families.

Jeff Daffern visited recently at Yukon, Okla., and was accompanied home by his daughter, Mrs. R. W. Powell and children, Joy, Jan and James Stanley. Mr. Powell will join his family here for the July 4th week-end holiday and accompany them home.

Mrs. J. B. Simpson, accompanied by her son and family, Mr. and Mrs. Jack Simpson and daughter, Joyce, drove to Daingerfield, Texas, Monday, where they are visiting relatives.

Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Daffern returned Tuesday from a trip to Farmington, N. M. and points in Colorado. They were accompanied on the trip by his brother, Robert Daffern of Plainview.

Over Five Million People Receiving Federal Benefits

Well over five and one-half million people are receiving Federal old-age and survivors insurance benefits, John G. Hutton, manager of the Lubbock social security office, said today. Mr. Hutton reported that in 18 county areas served by his office, about 4923 persons are now receiving the monthly payments.

He pointed out that 82 per cent of all jobs in the United States are now covered by social security, and that about 25 million people have already worked in covered employment or self-employment long enough to be permanently insured under the system.

"The national average monthly retirement check is now a little over $50," Mr. Hutton said. "In those cases where the benefit is based on earnings after 1950, the average for a retired worker without dependents is about $65; for an aged couple, somewhat more than $100; and for a widow with two children, about $150. Four out of every five mothers and children are protected under the program in the event of the death of the family breadwinner."

The Lubbock office of the Social Security Administration, a part of the new U.S. Dept. of Health, Education and Welfare, is located at 1616-19th Street. Mr. Hutton urges anyone desiring further information about old-age and survivors insurance, or who thinks he is eligible for benefits, to get in touch with the Lubbock office. He emphasized that a claim must be made in each case before payment can begin.

A representative from the Lubbock office will be in Matador on July 14, at the First State Bank at 9 AM, and will be glad to assist in all matters pertaining to social security.

Suspended Strings Found To Attract Flies To Poison

(Special Release)

COLLEGE STATION, June 7—Have you noticed how flies seem irresistibly drawn to a string hanging in a barn or other out-building?

Combining this tendency with a new kind of poison, Texas A. and M. College scientists are gaining excellent fly control—even over DDT-resistant strains.

The new poisons are organic phosphorus compounds which kill in much the same manner as DDT, although they are completely different, chemically. They gave up to 92 percent control for as much as seven weeks in recent tests.

Malathion, L-1359, diazinon, 21/199—These are the new compounds. Some already have been approved for general use. Others are being tested.

Using malathion in amounts of five to 25 percent total weight, in a dried whey and water solution, Assistant Professor Manning Price of Entomology tested the string method in dairy barns. With short lengths of absorbent cotton string hung from a line of carpenter's cord, he planted the traps in handling areas and feed rooms, and obtained results mentioned earlier.

Where children and livestock will not be endangered, and in spots where it might be more effective, the poison is being mixed with a sugar bait and placed in shallow dishes or scattered on floors.

Organic phosphorus compounds attack the nervous system of the fly. They die of convulsions within 10 to 20 minutes. None have shown resistance in tests so far.
