"It is a better route than Highway 66," Mr. Kilo declared, "and with the proper promotion it can be made more popular with the coast-to-coast tourist. With the exception of a short section of road in Oklahoma, Highway 70 is in excellent condition and can carry much more traffic."

"At present we are making a bid for more tourist travel through literature being distributed throughout the east. We hope to establish a Highway 70 organization in each town which it serves. Annual membership in the association is $10."

Mr. Kilo was introduced by program sponsor Glenn Woodruff. Remainder of the program was devoted to the showing of a Southwestern Conference football film.

1912 Ford Rival To New Model

A 1912 Model "T" Ford "back-fired" plans of local dealer Glenn Woodruff to create interest in the sleek, new 1954 model. When the Matador Auto Company show room opened yesterday announcing the new model and comparing it with the pioneer "horseless carriage" of 42 years ago, the old car "hogged" the public's interest.

"People expect the modern Ford car to be tops in beauty and efficiency when a new model is announced," Mr. Woodruff declared, "but their interest is immediately drawn to the 1912 model that went so far to pioneer the automobile industry."

The Model "T" Ford is in perfect condition. It is the property of E. Kenner of Crowell, uncle of local cafe manager Bill Waybourn. He has been offered $2,000 for the ancient vehicle.

Youngsters look for the starter," Mr. Woodruff said, "and can hardly believe that it must be cranked. They also find much interest in the rubber bulb squeeze horn, the strange type foot gear shift and the coal oil and carbide lights, the high wooden wheels, etc. It is different with the older generation. They look on the old car as it chugs down a long lane of memories, frequently associated with romance."

"We have made arrangements to keep the car another week and invite everyone to see it. Also we want the people to see the greatest new Ford we have ever offered," Mr. Woodruff announced.

License Standards For Rest Homes Receive Approval

Regular licensing of nursing homes operating in Texas got underway this week, the State Department of Health said today.

The department has been issuing temporary licenses since last July to both nursing and convalescent homes. Regular licensing has been delayed until the State Board of Health approved minimum operating standards formulated by the department.

The board unanimously approved operating standards for nursing homes at its December 14th meeting, but standards of operation for convalescent homes have not yet been acted on.

The department was charged by the last legislature with the responsibility for seeing that elderly residents in nursing and convalescent homes are properly housed, fed and attended to when ill.

A nursing home can be granted a permanent license after a trained inspector has checked its method of operation for compliance with the law, State Health Officer Geo. W. Cox said.

The license must be renewed each year.

Responsibility To Aged

"We've got a responsibility to fulfill to our elderly citizens," Dr. Cox said. "We'd rather fulfill it by cooperating with nursing homes operators, rather than resorting to police tactics."

Non-compliance with minimum operating standards will mean a denial of license, and operating without a license will mean a fine. Inspectors will work through local health officials whenever possible, Dr. Cox said. Under terms of the law, a nursing home is an institution that gives routine medical and nursing or medical care.

Any home, the law says, where four or more residents unrelated to the owner are furnished services beyond board, room, and laundry will fall under a nursing or convalescent home classification.

Holiday visitors in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Green were her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Byran Eaton and a sister and family, Mr. and Mrs. Joe Rice and daughter, Debra all of Amarillo.

Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Mize of Abilene, formerly of Matador, visited here briefly Sunday, as they were enroute home from a visit in Borger with a daughter and family. Mr. and Mrs. Phil Green.

Elmer Stearns returned home Monday, Dec. 28, from a holiday visit in Sacramento, Calif., with his daughter and family, Mr. and Mrs. B. E. Shaw, Jr.

office. The obligation lies between me and God as well as between me and the people of Motley county. For me to violate that oath would be betraying a public confidence as well as my own conscience. My criteria on all problems has been my obligation to you, the people of Motley county. Your best interest has always been uppermost in my thoughts.

"Third, I see no reason why I should not seek a second term. It has always been a Democratic custom—that a person is entitled to a second term. There are many important decisions which must be made within the next few months, which only a person with a full understanding of the background of the problems, can properly make. There are several projects pending which are most vital to our county. I have particularly in mind those problems concerning the drouth, the farm-to-market roads and our public schools. I believe that with the experience of the past year and with a better understanding of these problems by that experience that I am better qualified to continue the duties of the office. I believe the contacts which I have made in connection with the drouth relief will prove most beneficial. I also believe that my contacts with the highway officials of the state will lead to a better system of farm-to-market roads.

"Again, let me make known to you my many thanks for your past as well as your future favors. Vance H. Gilbreath."
