The Spearman Reporter

THE SPEARMAN REPORTER, Spearman, Texas, Hansford County
Thursday, April 15, Nineteen Hundred Sixtyfive, Volume 56, Number 20

Spearman Annual Celebration To Be Split In Two Parts

sponsored by the Spearman FFA. In place of the barbeque and picnic with entertainment in the fair.

Plans are being studied for a Christmas parade. This change came about due to several things. One being the lack of participation and interest in the last few years in the entire celebration, also that the majority of businesses of the city of Spearman would prefer a change and have two programs; one in the spring and one in the fall, and also increase the activities of the Christmas program.

The Chamber of Commerce believes they can better serve the business and entertain the citizens of the town by more varied programs. Not one single program.

Dates and details of the other mentioned programs will be published soon.

APRIL 15, 1965

When you buy a potato for boiling, you want it to behave like a boiling potato should - that is, keep its shape when cooked. And when you buy a potato for baking, you want it to turn out like a baked potato should, mealy and flaky.

But how can you be sure? Not even all potatoes of the same variety are best for boiling or best for baking.

Researchers have found a way to separate the boilers from the bakers which really works. They dump the potatoes in a brine solution of one cup salt to eleven cups of water. If the potato floats, it has a low solids content and is best for boiling. If it sinks it's a baker.

One Oregon firm is already singing this sink-or-swim test for sorting potatoes for commercial marketing. It may be used commercially in our area before long, but until then, get your own kettle of salted water and toss in the spuds!

If your family likes biscuits, (and who doesn't), here are a few hints I'll pass along to dress up the biscuits. Substitute T.U.P. or tomato juice (or other juices) for the milk in a sweet - milk biscuit recipe. A subtle new taste will give added zest to this favorite quick bread.

Or, cut in 2 tablespoons parsley flakes along with the shortening in a regular biscuit recipe (2 cups flour). This gives extra appeal, especially when biscuits are used to dress up the top of a meat pie casserole.

As I promised last week, I have a few pointers in sewing with the new stretch fabrics. Stretch is here to stay, and I must admit, I am all for it - it "gives" with the body, and then returns to its original shape. Stretch is a comfort factor, not a size factor. Stretch garments may fit more closely, but your regular sized garment (ready-made) or pattern should be purchased.

Before buying a stretch fabric ask yourself, "Is stretch necessary in this garment for comfort or action?" For example, a shift dress, or a jumper with no waistline and no sleeves doesn't require the added comfort of stretch fabric; a blouse or skirt, slacks or suit of stretch can benefit from the added comfort.

There are 3 types of stretch fabric, and stretch may be vertical, horizontal or diagonal. Read the hang tag on the bolt of fabric to be sure you get what you need.

In selecting a pattern for stretch, choose a simple garment with few seams. Buttonholes should be at a minimum. Study areas where interfacing may be needed, since interfacing will stabilize stretch fabric. In cutting stretch, place the fabric on a flat surface to relax 24 hours before cutting so that any tension or stretch created on the bolt may be released. Secure pattern to fabric with fine sharp pins.

Place pattern pieces on fabric so direction of stretch is right for garment. If fabric extends over edge of cutting surface, support it in some way, perhaps with a chair, to prevent stretching. Cut fabric with sharp shears, using long, even strokes.

In sewing, use a thread that has elasticity, such as "Taslan" Nylon, since it "gives" with the fabric; set machine for medium short stitch - approximately 15 stitches per inch or for short narrow zig-zag stitch. A somewhat loosened tension may be desirable. Check for stitch balance on a scrap or fabric.

If a straight - sew machine & mercerized thread are used, held the fabric taut (in the stretch position) as it is stitched, so that the thread won't break when the fabric is stretched.

Press all seams lightly with a minimum of steam to avoid stretching. Garments shouldn't be lined or underlined, since this will inhibit the stretch. If lining is necessary, a tricot lining with some give should be used. A tailor's hem is most suitable for stretch, ask for printed material available, in the Extension office.

Summer cooking leave you "droopy"?

Change to COOL ELECTRIC cooking!

Your kitchen will stay degrees cooler when you cook the flameless electric way. The flameless electric oven needs no draft of air into and out of it because there's no combustion. The oven is insulated on all six sides to keep heat inside where it is needed. And flameless electric surface units fit snugly against pan bottoms. The heat goes directly into the food—not up the side of the pan and into your kitchen.

The Way I C It!

ROBERT CORDES, PASTOR FAITH & OSLO LUTHERAN

Robert Cordes, Pastor OSLO & FAITH LUTHERAN "And he came up to Jesus and said 'Hail Master' And he kissed Him. (Matt 26:49)

We wonder what must have gone through the minds of both Jesus and Judas. Judas probably kissed Jesus on the cheek, and both knew the kiss was not meant as an expression of love. It was "The traitor's kiss." It is difficult to imagine anything more revolting. Judas could not have been happy about it even though it brought him thirty pieces of silver. His later action showed his despair.

This incident shows how low a man can stoop. It also shows again the amazing love of Christ. Jesus was grieved, not because of what the kiss did to Him but because of what it did to Judas.

In a last minute effort to reach Judas with His compassion, Jesus still called him friend. The greatest treachery man has ever known and the greatest love God's love, face to face. And Easter showed that the victory was on the side of love.

But what a terrible thought that man can be a Judas and not avail himself of that love! How have you betrayed your Lord. Not with a kiss I'm sure, but in many other ways. You have sinned against Him in thought and word as well as in deed or action. None of us stands before Christ perfect. We have all fallen short in sin and are found guilty of breaking God's law.

But Jesus went on to die for all sin. Even Judas could have found peace and forgiveness if he had gone to Jesus instead of working out his own solution-hanging. Let each of you go to Jesus this Easter and see there the greatest act of love you have ever known-God dying to forgive your guilt and sin. God there lets to restore you to His saving presence.

Lord, we thank you that you do love us even though we have betrayed you. Grant that we may respond to your love. May none of us think we have never betrayed you-for when we think his, we are admitting we do not need your forgiveness. Help us not to reject your love.

Zing into spring!
 in a new Chevrolet

If you've been sitting tight waiting for just your kind of car, with just your kind of power, at just your kind of price—wait no longer!

Chevrolet. It's a bigger, more beautiful car this year. Which is why that handsome silhouette could be mistaken for cars costing a thousand—even two thousand—dollars more.

Chevy II. No car so trim has a right to be so thrifty. But thrifty it is, with money-savers like brakes that adjust themselves and a long-lived exhaust system.

Corvair. This one's got lively looks, spirited power, a softer ride—and remarkable room atop a highly maneuverable wheelbase. No wonder it's today's favorite mid-size car.

Zing into spring in a new Chevrolet, Chevelle, Corvair, Chevy II or Corvette

So-You're Going To Drill A Well

"I want to drill a well; what do I have to do?" These are familiar words in all the county offices of the High Plains Under-ground Water Conservation District. And if it doesn't rain, these words will likely be repeated more and more often.

The land owner or agent must file application with the High Plains Under-ground Water Conservation District before drilling a new well or replacing an old well. When selecting a well site, keep in mind the spacing requirements. Your site must be 400 yards or more, from an existing irrigation well to drill an 8-inch well; 300 yards for a 6-inch, 250 yards for a 5-inch and 200 yards for a 3-inch or 4-inch well.

After selecting a location for the proposed well, distances to the nearest two non-parallel property lines - that is, north or South and east or west - must be measured. Also measure the distances from your site to the three nearest irrigation wells within a quarter-mile radius. Take these measurements, along with the legal description of your property, to your local county office. Your County secretary will begin the processes necessary for drilling your well.

Without the above mentioned information, your county secretary will be unable to help you. Many landowners ask why the measurements and information must be exact. The answer is relatively simple. It offers the same protection to ALL of the people.

If you go to get a permit and your neighbor is virtually following on your heels, also to get a permit, how can he know you have chosen a well site and its location?
It is up to you to provide the Water District with exact information; then it is up to the Water District to do everything in its power to help you protect your investment.

F.H.A. Members Have Eventful Week

On Thursday the girls baked cookies and took them to Pioneer

Wildlife Habitat on Vera B. Wroten Ranch. Trees for cover and water have been provided for wildlife. Area has been fenced to protect from grazing.

Mrs. Vera Wroten Winner In Wildlife Conservation

Mrs. Wroten has won the State Fort Worth Press Awards Contest for outstanding work in conserving wildlife on her ranch southwest of Spearman. She will be honored at the awards banquet in Fort Worth to be held May 1st. A plaque will be awarded to her for her outstanding work.

With Soil Conservation technical assistance Mrs. Wroten has developed several wildlife habitats that provide food, water and protection for dove and quail. The areas are fenced out to protect them from grazing. Burch piles have also been located at strategic areas throughout the ranch. She plants maize with a hand garden slow to provide food. Maize is scattered or placed in feeders which are filled at all times. Water is provided from nearby vinomil in the high plains there is very little cover to be found naturally, so habitat and food must be provided by man. Mrs. Wroten says wildlife just seems to flock to her place.

She is planning to add to wildlife areas this year by planting more wild plums for cover and food.

The citizens of Hansford County owe a great debt to her. Mrs. Wroten is paving the way in Wildlife Conservation.

LAWN CARE

For an attractive lawn this summer homeowners should review and plan lawn care, reports

J. Neal Pratt, area Extension Agronomist with Texas A&M University.

Proper fertilization, watering and mowing are important, he says.

Fertilization should continue through the growing season. Start when grass begins to grow using a complete fertilizer if needed. Pratt suggests one having equal amounts of nitrogen and phosphorus for this first application. Apply at the rate of two pounds of actual nitrogen per 1,000 square feet.

During the growing season, apply nitrogen every eight to 10 weeks at the rate of one to two pounds of nitrogen per 1,000 square feet, Pratt points out that nitrogen is the key element in turf growth. It produces the deep green color homeowners desire.

When watering the lawn, Pratt believes you should soak the soil to a depth of six inches.

"This encourages a deep root system that will utilize plant nutrients more efficiently and be more resistant to diseases," Pratt said. "Light sprinkling produces shallow, weak root systems that encourage weed infestation and disease."

Mowing should be frequent with a small amount of plant growth removed with each cutting. "Lawn mowers should be sharp," he said. "The blade should cut the leaves, not shredding or crushing tips. The machine should be in good running condition and have adequate safety devices. Stones, sticks and other objects should be removed so they won't dull the blade or be thrown dangerously by power mowers."

Additional information about lawn care can be found in the Extension publication B-203, "Home Lawns" available at my office.

Filing Income Deadline For Tax Is Today

The deadline for filing federal income tax returns is today, Thursday, April 15.

Persons who file timely income tax returns but discover after the deadline that they inadvertently omitted income or reported income incorrectly should file an amended return as soon as possible, showing the correct amounts. Normally in cases of this kind, no penalties are assessed.

In most cases where a person has filed his return, made corrections, but for some reason has not paid his income tax before the deadline, interest is assessed on the amount due at the rate of 6 per cent per year.

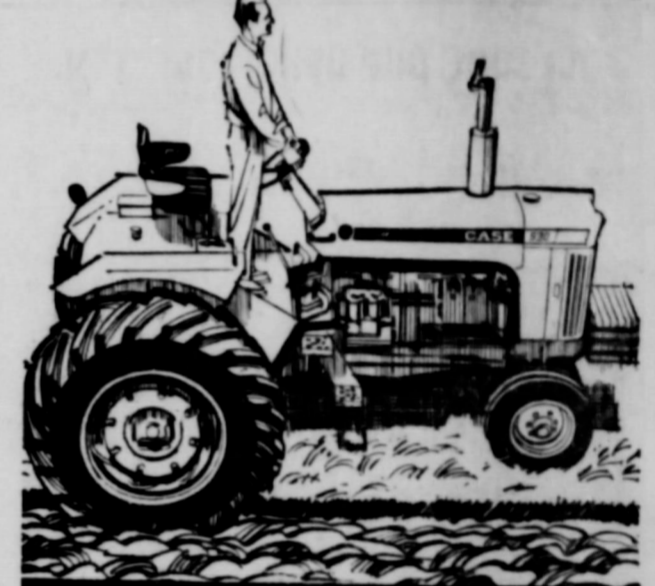

Occasionally there are persons who, due to various reasons, do not file their income tax returns before the deadline. Internal Revenue statistics show that only two-tenths of 1 per cent of all taxpayers fall into this category. Any person who, for any reason does not file his income tax return by the April 15 deadline should contact the nearest Internal Revenue office and file his return along with a letter explaining why he filed late.

In certain cases, when there are valid reasons for filing late, penalties can be waived. All matters of explanation are considered by the Internal Revenue Service. The most common penalty for filing late is 5 per cent per month of taxes owed for five months after the deadline. However, there are other penalties which can be levied, depending on the individual case.

Income tax returns post-marked before midnight April 15 are considered delinquent by the Internal Revenue Service.

If you have not mailed your return, better do it today.
