GRUVER HDC STUDIES CLOTHING GOALS

Keeping our wardrobes in readiness was the major theme of the discussion given by Miss Pearl Locke, Hansford County Home Demonstration agent, when she met with the Gruver HDC in the home of Mrs McClellan wed-nesday afternoon March 6, 1940. Miss Locke opened the lesson by itemizing the four clothing goals and giving an explanation of each. She emphasized that the main thing for consideration in our study of clothing was not merely bringing our wardrobes up to date, but keeping them in readiness at all times. Renovation of garments was the clothing phase for the day, and she brought out five points to be considered in renovation work. The first and most importanton was: "Is the garment worth making over from the standpoint of material value the standpoint of material value and also the time required for the renovation?" She closed her discussion with the thought that making the best possible use of materials that one has is indeed practical economy.

At the close of the meeting Miss Locke displayed a dress, a housecoat, a shirt, a pair of pajamas, and several vanity sets made from sugar sacks. All memmade from sugar sacks. All mem-bers presented ideas as to how the sack garments can be made attractive as well as economical.

Those attending were: Mes-dames: R. E. Bandy, A. R. Bort, Lloyd Frier, Walter Broadhurst, D. L. McClellan, E. M. McClellan, Randolph McClellan, E. H. Taber, A. E. Woodall and Miss Locke.

Can cows be fed something that will make the milk richer? Is there such a feed? Many dalrymen have asked these questions, and the practical answer is "no." asked these questions, and the prac-tical answer is "no."

At least that's what experiments in the Cornell university depart-ment of animal husbandry indicate.

the Middle West Soil Improvement committee in a recent statement.

"Many farmers believe, that alfalfs, clover, soybeans and other legumes are the one and only prescription for building a healthy soil, the statement points out.

"The value of legumes in crop rotation should not be underestimated. But by themselves they are not a panacea for soil tills. To be effective, they must be accompanied by adequate amounts of phosphorus and potash."

The benefits from legumes lie in an emergency in the statement of the statement of the proverty of two and potash." The benefits from legumes lie in their ability to deposit nitrogen in the soil. But if farmers continually increase the nitrogen and neglect the physical solutions.

Keep Farm Records

A farmer is a business man—and also a scientist, a merchant, a finanalso a scientist, a merchant, a finan-cier, a manufacturer, and some-times a weather prophet. A busi-ness man keeps records of his profit and loss, and a farmer should do the same, says R. W. Shoffner, a farm management specialist. Money invested in land, equipment, and buildings is no different from that invested in stocks and bonds. Money invested in stocks and bonds is expected to return the owner a profit. Likewise, an investment in land and farm equipment is expected to yield a profit or give a return on the investment. In order that weaknesses in the farm setup can be determined and a basis for future operations can be worked out, farm records are highly important.

Year-'Round Clover

Aids Pasture Needs

Aids Pasture Needs

Sweet clover will go a long ways toward bridging posture needs if both first and second-year growths are available in the same season.

The second-year plot will provide early spring and summer forase, and possibly a sweet clover seed crop.
This field may then be put back to small grain in the fall.

Weamshile, the first-year clover becomes usable in the late summer entrying over to the next year.
