OLD THEORIES EXPLODED FOR RED-HAIRED WOMEN

The old theories that red-haired women should wear blue or gray and never tones of reddish hue, are exploded in Farm & Fireside by Mazel Rawson Cades, beauty expert.
"Brown, beige and green increase the effectiveness of red hair," she says, "while blues and grays detract fifty per cent from its attractiveness."
"Clever women with red hair are careful to keep to the ensemble idea in their clothes. It is less expensive to have all one's accessories in brown and tan and much more effective."
Shoes, gloves, pocketbooks and stockings, furs and even umbrellas and rubbers should be considered. A red-haired woman looks much better, for instance, in beaver than in squirrel or in red fox or cross fox, which has red in it, than in gray or black furs.
"Amber, carnelian, turquoise, topaz and emeralds are becoming to the red haired girl. Gold is better than silver or platinum."

The beauty expert advises her red-headed readers to use but slight makeup and to have it perfectly matched. Two rouges with a faint coral tinge are usually satisfactory.
Flesh or natural powder is usually used by them, but if the skin is ruddy or tanned, a slight pinkish Brunette shade sets off the hair to a better advantage.
The red-haired women are urged further not to have their hair too elaborately arranged or waved deeply. It should be kept clean and brushed a great deal to bring out the lights.

A PERTINENT THOUGHT OR TWO

The tent show play the other evening gave an excellent lesson on the problem of endeavoring to keep a scalp-skin woman on a muskrat salary.
It simply can't be done. Too many have tried it and failed. There is only one way to get along and avoid the sheriff, as the saying goes and that is to live within your means. Of course no one will take this advice seriously, but it doesn't cost anything to give it with the remote chance that it may possibly hit someplace where it is badly needed.—Cherokee Republican.

Son: "Dad, I know why editors
call themselves 'we'."
Dad: "Why, son?"
Son: "So the man that doesn't like the article will think there are too many of them for him to lick."

IT NEVER FAILS
"Where do you get auto parts around here?" asked the autoist, a stranger in town.
"Down at the railroad crossing," replied the smart lad to whom the question was put.

SHOW HIM THIS

Next time you hear an enthusiastic motorist talking about these days of "cheap transportation," spring this on him. Inform him account books kept by Christopher Columbus, and still preserved, show that the total cost of discovering America was $17,000. Columbus, as admiral of his fleet of three boats, was paid $300 a year for his services. His sailors were each paid $30 a year. The food allowance was figured at about five cents a day for each sailor. The pilots for the entire voyage, which lasted from August to the following May, amounted to about $4,400. Of course, if Chris could have come across in auto buses he might have saved a lot of money. But even then his hot dog and filling station and garage expenditures would probably have been as much as the entire trip cost him by boat.

WANAMAKER ON ADVERTISING

One of the most successful of American merchants was John Wanamaker. His stores, in New York and Philadelphia, stand as a monument to his merchandising genius, and his ideas have been copied by thousands of American stores. This is what John Wanamaker once said about newspaper advertising: "Our little allowance of advertising money in the early days of our store went to the newspaper as it does nearly altogether today, because if I ever have a monument for discovering anything, it will be for finding out that the only advertising of direct and instant benefit to both merchant and customer is in the newspaper of known circulation."

Everything seems to get delayed in the mails, except bills.

Considering our weakness it's amazing that some of us get along as well as we do.

Every wife thinks her own husband is particularly difficult whereas all other husbands look easy to handle.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

Saul as the first foreign missionaries ever appointed. They first preached in the island of Cyprus, the early home of Barnabas, and while there, a high official of the country, named Sergius Paulus, was converted and Saul's name was changed to Paul in the subsequent history. Passing over to the main land of Asia Minor, Paul preached at Antioch in Pisidia the first foreign missionary sermon ever preached. Being persecuted there they went in succession to Iconium Lystra and Derbe, their preaching being followed in each city by many conversions and much persecution. Undaunted by persecution, Paul and Barnabas, boldly revisited the same cities, encouraging and strengthening the churches which they had established and returned to Antioch in Syria, from which place they had started, about two years before.

With Silas as his traveling companion, instead of Barnabas, Paul started on his second missionary tour, going northwestward through Asia Minor, being joined by Timothy at Lystra and by Luke at Troas (ancient Troy). At this place he saw the vision of the "man of Macedonia" saying to him, "Come over and help us." Accepting that as a divine command to preach the gospel in Europe, he crossed the narrow Aegean Sea and came to Philippi. Here was the first convert in Europe, a woman named Lydia. Because of the healing of a half demented fortune telling young woman and the consequent loss of revenue to her masters, Paul and Silas were severely beaten and thrust into a miserable dungeon. Praying and praising God at midnight, their prayers were heard, a great earthquake opened the prison doors, the jailor was convicted, converted and baptized. All the members of the jailor's household, also, hearing Paul preached, believed and were baptized.

Leaving Philippi, Paul went to Athens, the capital of Greece and preached there his famous sermon on Mars Hill, Acts 17:22-31. Thence to Corinth, where he made his living by working at his trade, tent making, in the home of Aquila and Priscilla, who became Christians and remained true and loyal friends to Paul ever afterwards. When Paul's life was threatened in Corinth, he was encouraged by a vision of the Lord who said to him: "Be not afraid: I am with thee and no man shall set on thee to hurt thee!" After preaching in Corinth a year and six months, Paul returned to Jerusalem and to Antioch, thus completing his second missionary journey, A. D. 52. Deut. 6:4-9; Phil. 3:4-6; Acts 22:3, 27, 28. Hazel Hurd Players Will Present "Why Wives Worry" Next Monday

"Why Wives Worry," which is as its name might indicate, a domestic comedy, one of the most humorously interesting plays provided the stage in the past year. The Hazel B. Hurd players will offer this comedy drama on Monday night, October 1, in the new Lyric theatre. The story being one of exceedingly novel complications, it would not do to unfold the plot or details before presentation. To thoroughly enjoy it, you should not know the gist of the trouble before hand, how or when the terrific fire of discontentment is going to be extinguished.

Simply human, two men and their wives love and fuss and share their troubles and their joys, but their troubles seem to be far in the majority. There is good, clean fun and merriment, guaranteed by the name of the author, Charles Harrison, who, with a score of successes, has never written a dirty play.

Mr. Twyman and Mr. Patterson will have the parts of the two husbands, while Mrs. Twyman and Mrs.

Neal will be seen in the roles of their wives, and these four will contribute the major portion of the fun. The best laid plans of mice and men—you know the old saw. Well Roy B. Baker and Roy L. Baker laid the best made plans they could and with the shrewdest connivance to help each other, they thought. But they both had wives, and that's where the story of "Why Wives Worry" waxes warm. It wouldn't do to relate the story in this advance notice, for that would deprive the big round of fun in waiting for those who see the play as it will be given by the Hazel Hurd Players, at the Lyric Theatre, Spearman, on Monday night, October 1.

Charles Harrison is the author of the play. A man past three score ten, he has been writing plays for many years, always remembering that people like to laugh and that it is good for them.

No man expects a great deal from marriage. He is quite satisfied if his wife is a good cook, a good valet, an attentive audience and a patient nurse.

DIVORCE BEFORE 1801 UNHEARD OF, SAYS FOSDICK

Blaming the present day revolt against old-fashioned family life upon the beliefs still held about the "good old days," Dr. Harry Emerson Fosdick, noted New York pastor, points out that until 1801 no woman had ever dared ask for a divorce from a man. In the next forty years there were only three, he continues. "A revolt against old-fashioned family life was inevitable," says Dr. Fosdick in the October American Magazine. "With our inveterate tendency to believe in 'good old times' and to see our present degeneracy against the far background of an imagined past, we commonly glorify the old fashioned home. But even conservatives who count their opinions on the family orthodox, and who are now filled with indignation at the modern revolt, need only imagine themselves precipitated back a few centuries into the thick of ancient customs to see how intolerable old-fashioned family life would be. The old English laws which continued well into our time, conferred no rights upon the woman. As for divorce only the man could hope to get it in England. No wonder that for a half century the revolt has been persistent and vehement."

Dr. Fosdick, in his discussion, talks of trial marriage and is certain, though it is gaining in favor, that it is not the opposite extreme to which people will turn. Making divorce more difficult, however, he is also certain is not a solution.

"Many people see what we are revolting from," he declares, "but so few see what we are revolting to. It seems to be trial marriage. But is that really where we wish to end? If not, now is the time to face the question. At present we are undoubtedly headed in that direction."

WHEAT SOWING ESSENTIALS

W. B. Bainer, Director Southwest Improvement Association, says the best seed obtainable is the best seed. The resulting crop is to a large extent, by the old standard varieties that they are better. Unless there is an unnecessary lowering of the grade and the selling price. In buying seed wheat, look for the seed. A large part of the wheat in wheat is nothing but seed. The fanning mill is a great wheat improver. It removes weed seed, cracked kernels, stocks, straws and chaff, insuring a more uniform stand and more vigorous plants. 6. Proper seed treatment is an absolute insurance against smut. Smut decreases the yield and lowers the price. 7. It is a mistake to sow too much seed per acre. Too thick a stand often draws too heavily on the soil moisture, causing a dwarfing of the plants, shriveling of the grain and a reduction in yield. 8. For best results, neither the extremely early or the extremely late sowing dates are as good as the dates between these extremes. 9. There is no single factor that will increase the wheat yield more than early disking, plowing or listing. Every Experiment Station in the Southwest, as well as thousands of the best wheat farmers, have clearly proven that July preparation insures bushels more wheat per acre than later work. 10. For best results wheat land should be rotated. There is no possibility of being able to maintain a healthy and highly productive soil, under a "one crop" system. Continuous cropping to wheat not only decreases the yield but increases the risks and damages by insects, plant diseases and weeds.

FROM BUYER TO CONSUMER
Miss Miriam Fajrbanks, a fourteen-year-old daughter of an Iowa poultry keeper, wrote her name and address on an egg which her father sold in a case for 19 cents a dozen. The local buyer sold them to a New York firm for 27 cents a dozen, less a charge of 4 1/2 cents for transportation, cartage and case. The marked egg with others was sold to a family in Brooklyn, and a daughter of this ultimate consumer wrote to the Iowa girl that the eggs had been bought at 60 cents a dozen, which was 49 cents a dozen more than the producer got. This spread was made up of 3 1/2 cents a dozen profit to the Iowa buyer, 2 1-3 cents a dozen for transportation, 1.6 cents for case and 33.6 a dozen profit to the city distributors. No one seems to have got an undue part of the increase in price until we reach the market men of New York and Brooklyn, who divided the 33.6 cents a dozen between them. The two firms that handled these eggs in the city market each got almost as much as the producer did. If there had been a cooperative association functioning in Iowa to handle these eggs the producer would have gotten at least 15 cents a dozen more for them than he did, which would have been just about the price the members of the West Coast cooperative associations were getting for their eggs after paying all expenses. Eggs from Washington, Oregon, Idaho and California were being sold for about 38 cents a dozen at the time these Iowa eggs went on the market. This would mean about 33 cents after paying expenses, and the freight from the West Coast is more than twice as much as it is from Iowa.—The Breeder's Gazette.

A feature has been added to the fair program of the Texas county and Panhandle Free Fair in the daily community singing. The program for the entire four days of the fair, so far as this community singing is concerned, will be under the direction of W. W. Grooms, of Goodwell, who for several years past has been president of the Tri-county Singing Convention. It is proposed to have a program of community singing every afternoon at the fair grounds, that will be held at the big tent the fair officers are providing for the churches in the morning sessions. This tent will be at least 30x50 feet and will provide a seating capacity for several hundred persons. Mr. Grooms is in communication with song leaders from all over the Oklahoma-Texas Panhandle and it is

ROCK ISLAND OFFICIALS HERE ON INSPECTION
Rock Island officials, including President J. F. Gorman, Vice-President Fritch, Chairman of the Board of Directors Brown, Chief Engineer Morse, and other officials of that road, passed through Liberal last Friday on No. 1. The party went to Amarillo, and from there on a special train up the new line to Stinnett, Texas, then in automobiles up as far as Gruver, to where the new line will be completed on or about November 1st. The authorization to extend this new line on into Liberal has not been made by the Board of Directors of the road and will not be made now before the first Wednesday in October, when the next meeting will be held in New York City. Liberal has the opportunity to be obtained, in this proposed road, which will connect this territory with the oil fields of Texas, and pierce a fertile productive territory southwest of us, but considerable work and money will be necessary to procure the necessary right-of-way for this road. A general meeting of the Chamber of Commerce will probably be held during the coming week, when all matters pertaining to the new rail line will be taken up.—Liberal News.

Durant Motors Introduce Vastly Improved Body Construction—Squaks and Rattles Eliminated on New Bodies

The new Durant models of the Durant Four and Durant Six series "60" by Durant Motors, Inc., have bodies of advanced designs, both squeak-proof and rattle-proof. Unlike bodies used on other expensive cars, the Durant bodies are made of the best grades of seasoned hardwoods, having ten per cent more wood in them than any car of their size, irrespective of price, on the market today. This extra wood strengthens these bodies materially and in addition, the bodies are liberally strengthened by steel plates. All joints are both glued and fastened firmly with either wood screws or bolts, not a nail being used, thereby insuring absolute quietness. Heavy gauge metal is used for the panels and these of course, when fastened in place, further strengthen the bodies. In fact this body construction is of the same type as that used on most expensive cars in America, such as the Locomobile.

Durant Executives on The Way To Europe.
John S. Hunt, General Manager of the Durant Motor Company of New Jersey, H. G. Gilpin, Export Manager, and Carl L. Phillips, Chief Body Engineer, sailed at midnight Friday, aboard the steamship Paris, for Europe, where they will meet W. C. Durant, President of the Durant Motors.

This trip is in connection with the building of the new Durant plant in Berlin, Germany.

While in Europe this party will visit France and Germany and possibly England, where European automotive plants will be inspected. A visit will also be made to the Automobile Show in Paris for the purpose of inspecting new European automotive developments.

AS TO BEING RICH

Somewhere today I read a short item which told about a man who wished he were rich in order that he might do something to make people happy.

He expressed this wish at lunch, and his friend to whom he made his confession observed that he was so irritable about his food that he had the poor waitress on the verge of tears. He sent back his steak because he said it was overdone, he complained that his dessert was not at hand when he wanted it, and he found his coffee unfit to drink.

Many are like that man. They would be different—if they had money.

All of us, I fear, are something like him.

If we were rich we would send our wives baskets of flowers every day, we would build playgrounds for poor children, and infirmaries for dogs and cats.

Just at present we fail to offer even a wild daisy to the wife, we turn down our thumbs on a request for a $2 subscription to a playground fund, and as for stray dogs and cats, we give them an occasional kick, but nothing else.

We all know, if we dig deep, that it isn't the possession of money that makes people, thoughtful, and liberal. These virtues are found among the poor as often as among the rich.

The poor man's act of kindness is not blazoned on the pages of newspapers; often the rich man's is. Perhaps the mean man mentioned in the first sentence of this item was looking for an easy way of satisfying his personal vanity.

He just wanted to Do Good because it would enable him to cut a pretty figure.

EFFECTS OF A SONG AND SMILE

People may come and people may go, But this is one thing I know that I know.

It's the song ye sing, and the smile ye wear That's a-making the sun shine everywhere.

Let's speak to our classmate in the hall And don't pretend we can't see them at all, For a nice little smile won't break your face And a friendly "Hello" is not a disgrace.

So let this be your motto long and true And life won't be such a burden to you, 'Cause it's the song ye sing and the smile ye wear, That's a-making the sunshine everywhere.

When the day is done, do you stop to say— "How many feelings have I hurt today?" Then count them over one by one And see how much in a day you've done.

No, I'm no one to be telling you The things I think you ought to do, Perhaps to me, you could suggest Just worlds of things that I need best.

So let's sing our song and wear our smile And we'll keep the sun shining all the while.

By Gertrude McNeill.
