THE CHANGED CAPITAL

Before the World War Washington was a quiet, orderly city with about 250,000 population. The main business of the city consisted of housing Government Departments and Bureous and providing the facilities for living for vast groups of office people. But Washington has doubled its population within the last ten years and it has become an industrial as well as an official community. The city is filled with light manufacturing institutions, and at present the civic leaders of the city are making a determined effort to increase all industrial activities. This is being done in such a way as not to detract from the beauty and home comfort of the National Capital city.

FAT FOLKS SHOULD GO SOUTH

People who are eager to weigh less should refuse to get on the scales except at the equator. The result will show them several ounces lighter than in far northern latitudes, says Dr. Paul R. Heyl of the U. S. Bureau of Standards.

A man who weighs 200 pounds at the North Pole will automatically lose nearly ten ounces when weighed at the equator. A ton of coal, weighing 2000 pounds at the north pole, will telly only 1994 pounds at the equator. The difference is due to centrifugal force at the poles," he rays. "Suppose a man stood on a square foot of territory centered at the north pole. As the earth revolved, he would scarcely move. It would take 24 hours for that square foot to turn him around. But if he stands at the equator he is on the rim of a gigantic cert wheel whirling at the rate of 1000 miles an hour, and he is subject to the centrifugal force generated by that velocity of revolution.

"The difference in averdupois between a weighing made in Maine and one in Florida is quite noticeable, provided always that apring scales are used. If you use balances, no difference appears, for gravitation acts equally on both sides of the balance.

A POOR SPORT

A certain small Ohio town has a ganufacturer who never will win sack the business preminence he used back the business premined to enjoy.

He had a good idea to start with. For years he held practically a monopoly in a certain line of women's garments. He made money. But one day a new firm opened up with something similar which did not conflict with the first man's patents, and the manufacturers literally worried himself sick.

manufacturers literally worried himself sick.

The trouble was that he lacked sportsmanship. Business had always come so easily that he missed the give-and-take, the fight-and-lose side of comeptition. He grew soft. He couldn't be satisfied with his share of the business; if he couldn't get it all he felt he was being slighted.

Usually competition is helpful. It keeps the senses alert. It makes little savings worth while. It breeds a better spirit through the organization, for men always work more efficiently when there's a common cremy to fight.

Most business men know they will always have competition, but they still expect to make a living. Now and then you meet a business chief who grumbles about what his competitors are doing and who talks about the good old days when things were different. It is almost a safe bet that that man, as a boy, nover enjoyed fighting a hard game which his side lost. He lacks sportsmanship.

WAR DEBT REVISION

Agitation for a revision of allied var debts continues on both sides f the Atlantic, but whether any urther reductions in the amounts low fixed shall be made is very now fixed shall be made is very doubtful.

Recently President Hibben and 116 members of the faculty of Princeton endorsed the stand taken last December by the faculty of Columbia in advocating revision, and issued the following statement: "We, the undersigned, members of the faculty of Princeton University, heartily indorse the desire, expressed by the faculty of political science of Columbia University, for a reconsideration of the settlement of allied debts."

While there is some valid argu-

While there is some valid argument put forward on the side of revision, and the view of the distinguished educators mentioned is entitled to respect, there are many reasons for insisting upon payment of these debts, which have already been subjected to a very liberal reduction.

It is hard to reconcile the claborate military plans of France and Italy with the idea that they should not pay for their last war.

Of course, a few childhood illusions have been badly shattered. And yet the outcome may not be wholly bad. For as long as we picture Washington as a superman who could do no wrong, we are not likely to try to imitate him. But if we know that Washington was great in spite of definite weaknesses and flaws, there is some chance that the rest of us

SAYS, MAKES POOR MATERIAL

Boys who have been "spoiled children" at home makes the poorest kind of college material, according to statistics collected for the Woman's Home Companion by Dr. William Emerson. "This type of college student offers more problems than any other." says Dr. Emerson, "and the earlier they can be weeded out the better for the institution.

"In this group are found the men who fail to maintain adequate conditions of health and physical fitness because of the lack of proper control. They have been shoiled children at home, and at college they reveal themselves as shoiled young men.

"They are the constant kickers. They are down on everyone who tries to hold them to proper standards of work or sport. Their program i regulated solely by their desires and pleasures. They complain of their food; they try to get out of this and that requirement. They come to college already past masters in getting their own way.

"In one group of eigh such men whom I examined, seven deserved zero as a rating in control. Their health intelligence rating averaged 43 on a scale of 100. In their academic work they were very low, four of them being in the lowest decimal class. All were eventually withdrawn from college."

A POOR SPORT

Washington was great in spite of definite weaknesses and flaws, there is some chance that the rest of us may equal even his record if we try hard enough.

Bringing the mythical great down to the level of mankind may be a kindness, even if the writers emphasize the clay feet of some of our gods in giving us a close-up picture of the erole of these heroes. But in the end these heroes will be more human, and possibly even more likable. It is to be hoped so.

A NEW IDEA MUST BE TESTED

They send or take sam ples to housewives and dieticians and great testimonials and suggestions. They call on local grocers and arrange window displays and demonstrations. They sell a hundred po

A certain factory with 12,000 employes arranged to take out accident and group life insurance on all its workmen. A big insurance company agreed to handle the combined risk for one year for a certain sum. It lest money during that year, but it gained experience which enabled it to go out and secure other similar insurance at a fair profit.

Probably any business that is going ahead is continually trying new patterns and trimming its cloth just a bit differently to save money or

STILL NO FERTILIZER

For six years or more farmers of the country have been led to believe that they were to secure cheaper fertilizer through the operation of the big government nitrate plant at Muscle Shoals.

Promises to that effect have proved to be merely idle talk by politicians. After all these years there is still no fertilizer being manufactured at Muscles Shoals, and not much propesets of any in the near future. Congress has repeatedly shown its utter incapacity to adopt legislation on this subject, so now it is proposed that the government itself do some experimenting, temporarily for a few years, to see whether cheap fertilizer can really be produced.

No one who is informed on the subject believes that the government can operate this big manufacturing enterprise economically, particularly as the process which must be employed is rapidly becoming obsolete. New processes of nitrogen fixation developed within the last year or two

New processes of nitrogen fixation developed within the last year or two are far less expensive and it is to these, rather than to Muscle Shoals, that the American farmer must look for cheaper fertilizer.

Muscle Shoals is a great power project, capable of conferring great benefits upon the South and the nation. But its value to the government and to the public has been depreciated by politicians' talk about fertilizer.

For over seventy years Advance-Rumely threshing machinery has been builing its wonderful reputation for big capacity, thorough, fast, clean work, ease of operation, freedom from repairs, and long life

In designing the Advance-Rumely Combine Harvesters, these same qualities were built into the machines, and in arriving at this design the threshing principles that have been worked out in nearly three-quarters of a century of threshing experience were built into them.

In addition, special engineers with years of practical shop and field experience in the building and operation of combines followed the machines from the designing room to the field and they have each year incorporated new ideas and improvements which have resulted in machines that today stand without equal.

The Advance Rumely Combine Harvester is a medium sized machine and is the product of five years special work on the part of our engineering staff.

MORE HORSEPOWER FOR FARM RELIEF

All proposed plans have thus far failed to provide the farmer with farm relief by increasing his selling prices. relief by increasing his selling prices.
Industry, however, met a somewhat similar situation by lowering the cost of production. A similar solution can be successfully applied to agriculture.
The increasing of production per power, whether horse or mechanical Where one man was using a single horse or team he is now using from 3 to 8 horses, thus increasing the ground covered from two to five times. By the use of larger power units hired labor can be reduced or eliminated. An analysis of raising corn divides costs according to the following:

ered stationary, namely, the land cost Labor and power are variable and have been the main obstructions to lower production costs. Larger power units are doing much to decrease labor factors. Also, larger power units if used over larger farm areas can do much to lower the power percentage. Professor J. B. Davidson, senior agricultural engineer, United States Department of Agriculture, summing up investigational work in 36 states, of-fers this equation for farming:

I = (S-C)Q
When "I" equals income
"B" is seiling price
"C" is cost of production
"Q" is the quantity of production

Professor Davidson states: "Where quantity of production is held upper-most one finds prosperous farmers who plan to farm more acres without increasing the overhead."

Corn controls central western agri-culture. In that area the acreage one man can farm is dependent on the man can farm is dependent on the number he can cultivate. With the single row cultivator he was unable to cultivate more than four to seven acres per day. The two row cultivator doubled this amount. Three and four row cultivators are now on the market—even six row were used this sea eon. It cultivates fifty acres per day.

An unusual record for safe flying was brought to notice a few days ago, when President Coolidge presented the Harmon trophy for 1926 to Shirley J. Short of the United States air mail service.

Mr. Short was selected for the honor for having flown 718 hours, covering 57,440 miles, during the year without a mishap. Since his raisi 1923 he had flown 235,754 miles up to the end of 1926.

During his service Mr. Short has piloted various types of airplanes used by the Post Office Department, on scheduled trips day and night in all kinds of weather.

The Harmon trophy is awarded annually to the aviator who has done most during the year to demonstrate the reliability of the airplane as a means of tarnsportation, and is donated by Clifford Harmon, a pioneer American balloonist and aviator, now hving in Paris. Mr. Harmon holds the balloon endurance record, having remained in the air 48 hours and 26 minutes in 1909, and was also the first aviator to fly across Long Island Sound.

His encouragement of safety in aviation is a most commendable contribution to the art and serves to call to public attention the dependability of the airplane in the hands of skilled and carcful pilots like Mr. Short.

STATUE TO BOLIVAR

It is fitting that the United States should cooperate in the erection of a monument to Simon Bolivar, liberator of South America, as provided in a bill signed by President Coolidge on March 4. The monument will be erected in Panama, probably to be unveiled on the 100th anniversary of Bolivar's death, which occurred on December 17, 1830.

As soldier, statesman and patriot the name of Simon Bolivar standshigh on the scroll of the world's champions of liberty. Born in Caracas, Venezuela, of a noble and wealthy family in 1783, he was educated in Madrid and spent several years in Europe. Returning to his native land in 1809, he identified himself with the cause of independence, which had become a lively issue, and for 20 years devoted his high abilities to its service.

During the early years of the struggle he met with scrious reverses, but through dogged persistence and superior military skill he finally broke the rule of Spain for over in the territory now comprised in Venezuela, Colombia, Ecuador, Bolivar and Peru, over which he was for a time virtually dictator until his retirement shortly before his death in 1830.

Bolivar's statesmanship was almost as striking as his military genius, and while the countries he liberated were torn with internal strife for many years, the peace which finally prevailed would have been impossible but for the foundations which he wizely laid.

Monuments to Bolivar have been erected in Caracas, Venezuela, and Lima, Peru, while the new statue proposed for Panama will have an international character, signifying the esteem in which his memory is held throughout the New World.

It is related of a certain family of early sottlers in an Eastern state that they would steal anything that was not too heavy or too hot to carry away. Burglars who robbed the educational building of the Firzt Baptist Church of Tuscalosa, Ala., a few nights ago might well be imagined as descendants of that family.

An inventor of missing property compiled from memory the morning after the thieves' visit contained there items: One typewriter, about 105 valuable books, including a set of "Wit and Humor," notebooks of sermons, a minister's manual, two books of evangelistic sermons, a brief case, pencils, paper weights, some gold ornaments, $6 in money and four packages of chewing gum, the last from the dest of Miss Bernice Caldwell church secretary.

Apparently the robbers were of a literary turn of mind, in which case an intellectual feast is before them.

Doubtless many of the stolen volumes are the very ones they ought to read.

MONEY MAKING TOMATOES

"Tomatoes as a truck crop," and "tomatoes for canning and manufacturing" are considered in farmer's bulletins that have been issued by the United States Department of Agriculture. The evidences are that the agricultural scientists have made the tardy discovery that there is money to be made out of tomatoes, since tomatoes appear on the first line of the menu card as soup, and bob up again in the vegetables, only to reappear in the salads. With three such chances at the dinner table the humble tomato can not live to the such chances at the dinner table the humble tomato can not live to the such chances at the dinner table the humble tomato can not live to the such chances at the dinner table the such chances at the dinner table the humble tomato can not linger in obscurity. The Department of Agriculture has likely been governed by these conditions in iscuing builetins about tomatoes.

The only trouble with growing tomatoes in the past has been due to the fact that the average yield has been far below what it should be, and the department suggests home mixtures of fertilizers to regulate production. Profits, it is found, depend upon how cheaply a bushel or a ton can be produced, and generally the greater the aree yields, the less it costs to produce the crop. A fertilizer containing plenty of nitrogen, Phosphoric acid and potash is desirable. A home mixture consisting of 200 pounds of nitrate of soda, 500 pounds of muriate of potash per acre applied before setting is recommended with 100 pounds of nitrate of roda applied as a side dressing of soda specification of soda applied as a side dressing of soda specification of soda applied as a side dressing of soda specification of soda applied as a side dressing of soda specification of soda applied as a side dressing soda applied objective proving tomatoes. I start the objects in the spring with a healthy growth by applying Nitrate of Sola pefore planting; keep them freshend up with its use as a side dressing, and then when the plants begin to die lown after the first crop is rather far advanced, I find that a side application of Nitrate of Soda freshens them up and gives me a spleadid fell.

At least 4,500,000 American farmers ought to quit farming, declares the editor of Farm and Fireside in his April issue, renewing a campaign begun by that periodical four years begun by that periodical four years ago.

"There are still too many farmers in the United States," he ascerts. "Twenty-five per cent of America's workers engaged in farming. The census figures show a total of 11,000,000 farmers. Once 90 per cent of our population was agricultural.

"But another 10 per cent could move off the farms, the less capable of the group, and the 15 per cent remaining, with efficient methods, could easily feed America and make a profit of it.

"Eventually 10 per cent will be enough, and the other workers will be free to produce other necessities, conveniences and comforts.

"Eventually to per cent will be free to produce other necessities, conveniences and comforts.

"If there is a surplus of farm products, too many acres are being cultivated, and too many people own plows. As production per individual farm worker increases, fewer workers are required.

"No man in this country is compelled to remain a farmer if another job suits him better. We have only commendation for those thousands who have had the courage in recent years to exercise their American privilege of changing jobs.

"Two types of men quit farming. The poor managers, who fare better under superintendence, make up by far the largest class. Another type consists of men who, while they may do well as farmero, consider themselves misfits, able to make greater successes in other occupations. No sentimental attachment to the soil should keep either type on the farm.

"The capable farmers who are left will have more customers and fewer competitors. Agriculture will loce a few of its best citizens, but for the most part the least competent quit first, just as the land first abandoned is the infertile.

'A process that tends to better cultivation of the better acres by the ablest farmers is for the good of agriculture, cold and heartless through the process may be."

problems of developing the fabric and the use to which it would be put, and the conditions affecting it when in use. The material was developed to meet numerous demands in the world for a fabric which was better adapted to actual service conditions than the ordinary shade cloth. They found that when shades became ruined by rain, the carlessness of leaving the window open was condemned, and not the fabric from which the shades were made. The same thing happened when shades became faded by sunlight. The idea was to develop a material which when it became soiled could be cleaned and renovated, instead of being replaced. The new fabric when soiled through use or exposure can be renovated by scrubbing with soap and water. It has been specially constructed and treated chemically so that it will no crack or sag, thus avoiding two of the main reasons for the replacements of ordinary shades at frequent intervals.

The introduction of this pyroxylin coated material into window shades, it is expected, will revolutionize this part of house furnishings, because it permits a cleaning and restoration of shades even after long use.

THE AGE OF SILK

According to Government figures of manufacturers the value of silk products during the past year amounted to $808,979,399. This is an increase of nearly 39 per cent in five years. When considering the present time as the age of silk one should also remember that rayon, the silk tubstitute, is perhaps more commonly used than the real silk itself.

Don't be fooled on house paint!

"Cheap" paint isn't cheap at all!

When you are tempted by wonderful claims, elaborate guaranties and a very low price to buy "cheap"

"Cheap" paint sells at a low price because it is low in quality—poor stuff. That's the only reason a manufacturer can afford to sell at a low price.

By the gallon it costs you less. But don't let that fool you. It will cost you many times more than good old SWP on the wall—by the job and by the year—because it covers only about half the area per gallon—and lasts only about half as long.

Come in and let us tell you the truth about the high cost of "cheap" paint—why SWP House Paint is the least expensive.
