

W. L. McConnell Seeks Re-Election As District Attorney

W. L. McConnell, District Attorney for the 84th Judicial District of Texas, announces for re-election.

In making his announcement for the office Mr. McConnell authorizes the following statement: "In announcing my candidacy for the office of District Attorney of the 84th Judicial District I desire to express to the citizenship of the district my appreciation for the loyal support given me in the past, and for the splendid co-operation which I have received at the hands of the people while serving in that capacity. I have endeavored to serve you faithfully, honorably, and as efficiently as my ability permits. As to whether or not I have been successful in that effort I refer you to my record as your official, realizing that I could not have succeeded without the support which you have given me.

In carrying out the duties of this office I have endeavored to deal fairly with all and have shown impartiality to none. If re-elected I will continue to exert my very best efforts to perform the duties of the office to the very best of my ability. I feel that my past experience in the District Attorney's office has equipped me to serve you capably and efficiently. During my tenure of office I have prosecuted numerous cases covering practically every character of offense defined in the criminal statutes of the State of Texas, and the results attained are reflected by the records of the office in every county of the 84th Judicial District. In performing these duties I have acquired a wide acquaintance with the citizenship and feel that I have gained the knowledge which is required of one who would successfully represent the State in the prosecution of criminal cases in the district court.

It is with a deep feeling of gratitude for, and sincere appreciation of, the splendid co-operation given me by the people that I announce for re-election. I earnestly solicit your support and trust that you shall see fit to allow me to further serve you.

Respectfully submitted,
W. L. McCONNELL,
District Attorney.

The Morse baseball team defeated the Spearman nine by a score of 11-10 here Sunday in a 10 inning game.

Spearman entered the ninth inning leading 10-6, but at the end of the inning the score was 10-10. Morse made another run in the extra period to win the game. The fact that Spearman run in 5 runs in one inning, Morse was doing the same thing, was largely to errors by the fielders, but as a whole there was some fine playing done. Spearman captured ten hits and made six errors, and Morse got 13 hits and 7 errors. N. Womble caught and Parks scored 2 runs for Morse. F. Womble, Reid, Forester, C. Tompkins and H. Tompkins running in one score each. Two scores each were made by Cator, Shell, Mitts, and Sheets of Spearman, and Jacobs and Lynch made one run each.

Guymon has prepared a most attractive program for the Panhandle country celebrating the Panhandle of Oklahoma's 44th birthday. Every person is welcome to enter the parade and more than a hundred dollars in prizes are offered for various entries which include ox-teams, covered wagons, Ranch entry, floats, unusual entry, oldest pioneer, best dressed cowboy and cow girl, best whisker, best pack train and other entries.

Everything is free from sun to sun, is the statement made by the Guymon visitors, and they plan a mammoth barbecue with more than a quarter of a million buns already ordered to satisfy the hungry.

One of the features is a free rodeo, with over a hundred dollars in prizes offered that will bring forth the best material in the rodeo line in the Panhandle.

Snokey Joe's Bar Room will be opened for business at 8 p. m. and an old time dance will also be a feature of the entertainment. Will Rogers is expected to be one of the speakers for the days entertainment. Henry Keith Tosses Hat In the Ring For Commissioner

Henry Keith this week threw his hat into the political ring of Hansford county as a candidate for the office of commissioner of Precinct No. 1.

Mr. Keith needs no introduction to the citizens of this community, as he has farmed on his home place six miles Southeast of Spearman for the past fifteen years. He is a model farmer and by scientific study and concentrated efforts in that line has enjoyed a full measure of success, even during a period of depression.

During his citizenship here Mr. Keith has been a loyal citizen and one who has had his interest turned to civic advancement. Through his interest in the Farmers' Cooperatives operating in Spearman he has recently been elected State director of the Wheat Growers, Incorporated, previous to this he served as chairman of the local corporation.

When asked what his main purpose was in announcing for this office, Mr. Keith replied that it surely wasn't for the compensation of the position but the hope that he might if elected have the opportunity to work for the mutual benefit of the citizenship of this precinct. Mr. Keith said that many of the voters here have not concerned themselves in the selection of a person for this office, nor have they been advised how useful the Commissioner may be. I promise an honest, courageous, efficient and economical administration. I will serve, if elected, with all the energy and faculties at my command at all times.

I respectfully solicit your vote and influence.

Sincerely yours,
HENRY KEITH.

sorrowful; for he had great possessions.
23. Then said Jesus unto his disciples, Verily I say unto you,
That a rich man shall hardly enter into the kingdom of heaven.
24. And again I say unto you,
It is easier for a camel to go through the eye of a needle, than for a rich man to enter into the kingdom of God.
25. When his disciples heard it, they were exceedingly amazed, saying, Who then can be saved?

26. But Jesus beheld them, and said unto them, With men this is impossible; but with God all things are possible.
27. Then answered Peter and said unto him, Behold, we have forsaken all, and followed thee.
What shall we have therefore?
28. And Jesus said unto them, Verily I say unto you, That ye which have followed me, in the regeneration when the son of man shall sit in the throne of his glory, ye shall also sit upon twelve thrones, judging the twelve tribes of Israel.
29. And everyone that has forsaken houses, or brethren, or sisters, or father, or mother, or wife, or children, or lands, for my name's sake, shall receive a hundredfold, and shall inherit everlasting life.
30. But many that are first shall be last; and the last shall be first.

"And behold," Matthew thus indicates his feeling that an important scene is coming. "One 10:17) as Christ was leaving the house where he had blessed the little children. He came running (Mark) showing his eagerness; for Christ was leaving the village—for the last time, as it proved—and he was not to have another chance at him. The runner illustrates the zeal we should show in our religious life.

"What good thing shall I do, that I may have eternal life?" By "eternal life" the young man meant endless joy, endless purity and power and satisfaction and peace. He could not possibly have asked for anything higher. He could not have possible gone to him. The youth fancied that eternal life was something to be obtained by his own merits. What good thing shall I do, that I may have it? He never for a moment cious gift of God, obtained by faith, and by faith alone.—Rev.

Jesus' discipleship than most people. Notice:
1. He really wanted, longed for, eternal life. Jesus calls such people "blessed" who hunger and thirst for possessions of that sort.

iastic, about it. Mark tells us that he ran after Jesus (Mark 10:17).

Rich, influential ruler that he was,

take up the cross, and follow me."

it is several of many things that

INTRODUCTION
I beg the indulgence of the public for a few words personal, suggested by the recurrence of this special Sunday School lesson.
I distinctly remember teaching this lesson to my Sunday School class in Eminence, Kentucky more than sixty years ago. I was then a teacher in the Eminence Baptist Seminary and also a teacher in the Eminence Baptist Sunday School. I had begun teaching in Sunday School five or six years before that time and had continued to do so through all the years since then, a total period of more than sixty six years. I wish hereby to express publicly my sincere gratitude to the kind Providence that has spared my life and has graciously granted me this blessed privilege for so many years.
This well known incident in regard to the rich ruler and his al-important question as how to obtain eternal life has been a special favorite of the International Lesson Committee. It is found in each of the three gospels. Matthew, Mark and Luke. It has been used by the committee in almost every series of lessons prepared by them. A new series of lessons covering the entire Bible has been selected by this committee every six or seven years since the uniform Sunday School Lessons, now called the International Sunday School Lessons, began to be used.
This important change in Sunday School Bible study was made only a little more than sixty years ago, and a few years after I began to teach in Sunday School.
This lesson, so emphasized by the Lesson Committee and so frequently used by the Sunday School world, is of supreme importance, and should receive our most careful and thoughtful consideration.

Christ's little ones, the nameless, fameless saints, the humble believers, who live their sweet, helpful, loving lives, may take courage that however overlooked by the world they are regarded in heaven, however misunderstood by men they are understood by God. What he asks from all, the high and the low, the first and the last, is a sin-sublimed judgment, that is first—

Chevrolet Salesmen Get $73,650.00 Bonuses

Detroit, Mich., April 16th.— Checks totaling $73,650.00 are being mailed this week to nearly 982 Chevrolet salesmen all over the United States who qualified for membership in the Chevrolet 100-Car Club by their automobile sales performance in 1933. The announcement was made today by William E. Holler, general sales manager of the Chevrolet Motor Company.
Mr. Holler also announced the national officers of the club, selection of whom is made each year on the basis of new car sales. The officers are: president, G. L.
Carlat, Chicago, 391 new cars;
vice-president, Wesley Perry, Pittston, Pa., 285 new cars; secretary A. H. Hooper, Chicago, 281 new cars and treasurer S. M.
Strott, Chicago, 243 new cars. All three Chicago men are connected with the same dealership, Nelson Chevrolet Company.
Besides the cash award of $75 and a parchment scroll recording the award each member of the club receives Chevrolet's gold 100-Car Club pin, while repeaters who already own the pin, receive an additional diamond thereon for every year they make the club.
All but 302 of the salesmen now receiving their awards had been members before, Mr. Holler said.
Nearly 100 were qualifying for the fourth time, 90 for the fifth, 57 for the sixth, 48 for the seventh and 29 for the eighth.
Since Chevrolet has led the entire industry in sales for five of the last seven years, membership in this honor roster is a good distinction identifying its holder as a leader in the world's greatest, retail selling organization.

WE BELIEVE IN AMERICA

We get a little tired sometimes of hearing people run down America. In the newspapers and magazines that come to our attention we see many articles which appear to have been written for the purpose of making readers believe that the United States is on its last legs, that we have got to discard everything that has been done in the past and change the whole nation over into something modelled on Russia or Italy or Germany, or we're going to be sunk. And there is no end to the books, novels and others, whose sole theme is that we Americans are pretty low-grade, incompetent set of ignoramuses, lacking in "culture" and intelligence, not to be compared with the enlightened and highly-cultured citizenry of other nations.

Believe the authors of these books, stories and articles mean precisely what they seem to imply. If we thought so for a minute we would be glad to join a movement to banish them to these other countries or to our own. Rightly understood, much of this sort of talk springs from the peculiarly American passion for self improvement. It has its roots in the same urge that sent our ancestors from other countries to this one, the urge to find a better way of life. These gentlemen see defects in our civilization—which everyone must admit there are—and by magnifying those defects hope that the country will be sufficiently stirred up to do something about them. But the net effect of their diatribes upon the young and impressionable is to make them feel inferior to the people of other lands, and to regard their country as rather a low sort of a place in which to live.

There is nothing wrong with America. We say that in the full knowledge that there are still a great many persons out of work, a great many people who have a hard struggle to make both ends meet. Whatever is wrong with America, we are ten times better off than the people of any other country we know anything about. And whatever may be wrong with our country, there is a distinctly American way of fixing it, and the American people now, as they have always done in the past, will find and apply their own remedies, which will not be remedies prescribed by either Dr. Stalin, Dr. Hitler, or Dr. Mussolini.

MORSE NEWS

Several students of Morse High School won honors at the regional Interscholastic League Meet held at Pampa Friday and Saturday. In literary events Bub Durham placed third in senior boys' declamation, and Joyce Womble won third in Class B high school essay. In the athletic events Frederick Forester won fourth in the 440-yard dash, Robin Giblin placed fifth in the 440, and Roy Stevenson won fourth in the 880-yard run. These students and Louise Noe, Kathryn Ann Womble and John Gillispie all placed high at the recent county meet at Morse, thereby earning the right to compete in the regional meet. Considering the various schools which entered the many contests, the local school did exceptionally well for its size, and has reason to be proud of the ability shown by its students.

H. C. Coffee returned Thursday from East Texas where he worked in the oil fields. He went to Pampa Saturday where he has accepted a position there. Edgar Womble of Spearman assisted by Henry Ried, local John Deere man, gave a demonstration in Billy Barkley's field Saturday of the new John Deere on rubber tires. Quite a number of farmers saw the demonstration and they seemed impressed with the speed and efficiency of the tractor.

Ev. G. E. Tyson, Methodist pastor from Gruver, preached here Sunday morning and evening to a comparatively large congregation at each service. Shorty Bullock left this week for Tucumcari, New Mexico. He described some of the horrors and tragedies he personally met during the World War, and urged the young people do all they can toward maintaining peace and preventing the catastrophe of another war.

Mrs. Edgar Womble spent Saturday afternoon with Mrs. Henry Reid. The attendance at Sunday School Sunday was 79, the largest number in past several months. Henry Davis was in Stinnett on Monday, where he got a load of sand.

NEW PROGRAM RECEIVED FOR WHEAT SLASH

The much discussed "New Wheat Plan" was received this week by the county agent's office in the form of a memorandum from the wheat section of the Agricultural Adjustment Administration. All new contracts must go through the same channels followed by those in the original sign up campaign and are subject to the same reductions.

Contracts under the new plan will fall into the following classifications in Hansford County.

1. Any producer who prior to the close of the calendar year 1933, filed an application for a wheat allotment contract together with a complete statement of his acreage and production, shall be eligible to enter into a wheat allotment contract based upon his application and shall be entitled to receive both of 1933 payments provided for in the contract and all subsequent payments, upon performance by him of the terms of the contract.

2. Any producer who failed to file an application for a wheat allotment contract, together with a complete statement of his acreage and production before the close of the calendar year 1933 but who thereafter shall file such application shall be considered eligible to enter into a wheat allotment contract and shall be entitled to receive the second installment of the of the 1933 payments thereafter, upon compliance with the terms of the contract.

3. Any producer who has planted wheat for harvest in the year of 1932 and who planted within 25 per cent of the same acreage of wheat for harvest in 1933 may make application to enter into a wheat allotment contract. Any such producer may enter into a contract under the following conditions:

Section B. In a county in which the basic acreage and production figures for contracts heretofore accepted were determined and provided in Section 401 (d) of wheat regulations, Series 2; (Plan D) under which Hansford County operates).

1. His base acreage shall be his acreage planted to wheat for harvest in 1932.

2. His base production shall be determined by multiplying his base acreage by the county average yield, determined as approved in Section 401, (d), wheat regulations, Series 2, and dividing the result by 5.

3. Such a producer shall be eligible for both the 1933 payments and all subsequent payments, upon compliance with the terms of the contract.

Most applications for contracts in Hansford County will fall under the last classification covered in (3) above.

This is illustrated with the case of John Doe who broke out 500 acres of sod and harvested his first crop of wheat in 1932. If in 1933 his acreage was between 275 acres and 625 acres he is eligible. Taking his 1933 acreage as a base we take off the flat cut of acres. This gives an official base period average of 470 acres, this figure multiplied by 12.1 bushels gives 5687 bushels as his base production which is divided by 5. (See regulation 2 above) giving 1137 as his official base period production. The farm allotment will then be 54 per cent of this figure or 614 bushels. Cash benefit payments for 1933 of 28 cents per bushel, less any administrative costs, will amount to approximately $171.92.

Farming operation in 1934 on this farm will consist of 399 acres of wheat, 71 acres contracted and the remainder of the farm to be planted in any crop except wheat.

All new contracts made within one county must be sent to Washington at one time. And no deadline has been set for the submission of these contracts, it will be necessary for the County Board of Directors to act on this matter, newspaper reports have given the closing date as April 15. All persons interested should see the members of their county committee or the county agent before that date, if at all possible.

Chevrolet Chalks Up 230 Per Cent Sales in March Than Year Ago

Chevrolet dealers during the month of March delivered a retail total of 97,194 units, according to William E. Holler, general sales manager of Chevrolet Motor Company.

This compares with retail deliveries in March a year ago of 41,093 units or more than 236 per cent of the 1933 March figure. This is the largest March retail sales reported since March in 1930, Mr. Holler said.

Sales during the month just passed bring the total for year up to 177,271 units as compared to 124,674 units in the first three months of 1933, making the period 142 per cent of the 1933 quarter.

Large gains in retail deliveries of commercial cars and trucks are also reported by Mr. Holler. Deliveries by dealers in March were more than three times those of March a year ago, amounting to 25,974 commercial cars and trucks and bringing the total for the first quarter of this year up to 59,312. First quarter sales in the commercial field were more than double those of the same period in 1933, Mr. Holler pointed out and established a record first-quarter figure unequalled in five years.

Magnolia Summer-ize Service Found Valuable By Motorists

Dallas, April 17.—With the near approach of hot weather, increasing numbers of motor vehicle owners are finding it profitable to safeguard their cars and assure care free operation with Magnolia "Summer-ize" service. J. M. Harnan, chief engineer for reports, "Summer-ize" is a coined Magnolia's technical department word describing the 7-point protective service provided only by stations and dealers of the Magnolia Petroleum Company.

"Both owners of new cars who want to insure them against early wear, and those less fortunate motorist who must keep their old cars running at least another year, are finding "Summer-ize" service their best protection," Mr. Harnan said. "The many car owners who have "Summer-ized" in former years have learned the value of Magnolia's 7-point protection and are among the first driving in for the improved service this spring."

"Just as merchants change their stock in spring and housewives clean house and re-arrange their furniture, automobile owners are rapidly coming to understand the need of preparing their cars for hot weather driving. Certain simple precautions are necessary to put an automobile or truck in condition for safe and economical summer driving. Lubricants which were suitable for winter operation cannot be expected to provide adequate protection under hot weather driving conditions."

"Thinner, quick-flowing winter lubricants should be changed to heavier grades of Lubrite or Mobiloil lubricants capable of resisting the high temperatures generated under summer heat in the crankcase, differential, transmission and other vital parts of a motor vehicle. "Summer-ize" provides a complete service made up of seven distinct operations, worked out by Magnolia automotive engineers as those most necessary to protect a motor vehicle against the high temperatures of summer driving."

LAWS OF EDEN

By Peter B. Kyne
W.N.U. SERVICE

CHAPTER I
Kershaw came to the post office at Valley Lorraine, seated on the bench, and the Kershaw man instantly that he had some mail of a nature. His head was bowed as from a blow, and there was a lag that indicated slightly greater pain induced by the bullet which had struck his hip many years ago.

"You can live the life of Kelly on it, honey, but I shall not. It will kill me to give up Eden Valley—an' you know why."

"It would have been a blessing if our family had never seen Eden Valley," the girl cried passionately. "It's been paid for in blood and tears and heartbreak and social ostracism, and all we have to show for the years is a private cemetery filled with Kershaw women who died heartbroken and Kershaw men who passed away with their boots on. And at last the Hensleys have triumphed over us."

"They got two more in their cemetery than we have, Lorry."

"But they haven't any debts—and after fighting fifty years to own all of Eden Valley they'll win at last. Nate Tichenor must have money enough to buy in our ranch at the sheriff's sale. Well, he's earned his victory. If anybody is to get our part of Eden Valley, I hope it will be Nate Tichenor. I wonder what sort of man Nate Tichenor has turned out to be?"

"I dunno, Lorry. I wouldn't attempt to figger even a half-bred Hensley. His father, folks do say, was a right peaceable, fair man, an' when he married Angie Hensley he wrote me, enclosin' his photograph, an' advisin' me that marryin' into the Hensley family didn't mean he'd married into the Hensley-Kershaw feud. I took him at his word—an' he kept it. But his son was raised a Hensley. He went armed after his fifteenth birthday. I figgered him an' your brother, Owen, would shoot it out some day, which was why I never sent Owen to the high school at Valley Center. The principal discovered Nate Tichenor was a forty-five in a shoulder holster, an' ordered him to leave it home thereafter, but young Tichenor wouldn't do it, so they bore him out of high school. An' they do say he was the smartest boy in the county."

"He's been gone from Eden Valley since the war," Lorry mused. "Nine years of life outside may have civilized him. I hope so. Whatever happens to us it will be worth while, provided it ends this senseless bloody feud."

"The feud ended," Ranceford Kershaw replied, "when your brother was killed in France. The last Hensley I tangled with put me out of the runnin'. A man so crippled he can't walk a mile or set a horse has got to wait for his enemies to come to him."

"They were passing a cluster of buildings set among some scattered blue pines in the meadow about a quarter of a mile to the left of the road. A lateral road led from a gate on the main highway down to these buildings which constituted the headquarters of the Hensley ranch. Since 1920 when Angie Tichenor, the last of the Hensleys, had died while her son was with the army in France, the Hensley headquarters had been deserted."

"For thirty years Ranceford Kershaw had never passed that gate without keeping a wary eye on the Hensley headquarters. And since the habit of many years may not be broken in six, he gazed upon the buildings now and started as he saw a column of smoke issuing from the chimney of the low ranch house. Lorry saw the smoke, also, and instantly stopped the car."

"It'll be too late to dispose of them two thousand feeders now," her father told her. "Nate Tichenor's back. Him an' Babson are both after us. They'll strike together. Ah, poor Lorry—my poor little girl. Sorry, honey—so sorry—"

He sighed deeply and lurched over against her; his head fell on her shoulder. She set the brake, moved a little in her seat, put her right arm around his neck to steady him and with her left lifted his face upward toward hers with a look of love unutterable; racked by excruciating pain, nevertheless his high courage was equal to the effort of a smile; and then the light went out of his eyes and his heaving breast was stilled forever.

For a long time she had known that some day he would leave her thus—suddenly, awkwardly. . . . After a while her thumb pressed the button in the center of the steering wheel and a series of raucous, long-drawn shrieks came from the motor horn.

The Kershaw pride was in the dust at last. The last of the Kershaws had not been able, with patience, to tolerate more than a modicum of civilization. The first progenitor in America arrived with Lord Baltimore; thereafter each generation moved at least one state farther west; one might have traced the legions of the tribe by its headstones, albeit many a Kershaw never found a grave at all. They were hunters, trappers, soldiers, and cattlemen.

When Robin Kershaw, at the age of twenty-two, came home from the Mexican war, he discovered that during his absence his father's ranch in northern Texas had been raided by Comanche Indians, his family slaughtered and the cattle stolen or dead in a drought.

Robin Kershaw rode with Fremont to California and, when gold was discovered, was among the first to stake a claim in the Sierra foothills. Before the snow flew in the winter of '52, he had amassed a fortune of half a million dollars—and it was time to be moving on.

He was now twenty-eight years old and he could afford to marry and move on to the solitude the Kershaws called peace. The land hunger was gnawing at his heart; he liked the cattle business and he had in him in full measure the ancient primitive urge for free grass and free water. So he married a Juno who had walked to California beside a covered wagon in '40, and with her rode up into northeastern California and cast about for a spot where the Kershaw odyssey should end.

On a day in the year of 1853 he drove his three pack mules out of the timber on a bald spot near the Goose Nest range, and saw three thousand feet below him the land of his heart's desire.

It was a wild elliptical valley into which he gazed; Kershaw estimated it should contain nearly one hundred thousand acres. It was, in reality, a vast mountain meadow. No trouble to water cattle there. He could cut sufficient wild hay to insure bringing them out in the spring strong and fat. A large stream meandered down the approximate center of the valley.

After a long, searching, wistful contemplation of the scene below him Robert Kershaw said: "We'll call it Eden Valley."

The two youthful pioneers slid down through the talus and pine needles at last into the beginnings of Eden Valley—a canyon about a quarter of a mile wide and four miles long.

Kershaw rode his horse out into the brown whirling creek waters until they tapped his stirrups, then turned back and joined his wife on the high ground along the foot of the hills.

"A creek in the summer and fall, but a good-sized river in the winter and spring, Lorry," he announced. "There'll be no dry years in this country, Lorry; and there'll always be a world of water for summer irrigation."

The partner of his brave dreams nodded, for she, too, was a child of the soil and could understand his enthusiasm. "The country's laid out like a frying pan, Robin. This narrow canyon is the handle and the big valley is the pan."

Keeping to the high ground at the base of the hills they journeyed down the Handle to the Pan. Debouching from the Handle into the Pan (for so they continued to allude to the peculiar disposition of the country) Kershaw discovered that the creek was now, indeed, a river. And, as was the case in the Handle, so it was in the Pan. For fully a mile on the west bank of the stream the ground was inundated.

"God's the ditch-tender in Eden Valley, Lorry," he exulted. "Once a year, for perhaps a month, he gives free surface irrigation on a strip two miles wide and no man knows how long."

He left her and rode out into the sluggish wash to a point within a hundred yards of the main channel. "From a foot to six inches deep," he announced, when he rejoined her on the high ground. "What a grand soaking! And then a couple of inches of new rich silt from the high country back yonder is left behind to fertilize the grass when the water recedes to the channel!"

She smiled upon him, rejoicing with him in this discovery of unlimited free grass and water.

On a mesa about forty acres in area, and backed up against the western hills, they found the locality for their future home. Perhaps a hundred stately pine trees grew upon this mesa, with lush green grass between.

"I can have a garden," Lorry murmured rapturously. "And there's timber to our land for our home and outbuildings," he added. "We'll build a grand big log house and well furnished." They camped that night in the pine grove. Side by side, on a foot-deep carpet of soft pine needles, they lay under the stars and talked and made brave plans for their future.

come in and file on homesteads. Robin Kershaw and his wife immediately filed homestead grazing claims on the two sections immediately surrounding their ranch headquarters; thus, to a considerable extent, availing themselves of the first riparian rights on Eden Valley creek.

With the proclamation of the war between the states fully half the settlers in Eden Valley volunteered for service in both armies. One of the first recruits to the Union army from California was Robin Kershaw, despite the fact that he was the father of six children.

He returned with a permanent limp in his left leg and the title of major, to find that his business had prospered. With the farms of the Middle West denuded of their cattle to a large extent by the war, beef prices were up, so Kershaw sold every head of stock he possessed and shipped them to Chicago and Kansas City via the newly built Central Pacific railroad. Then, with his checkbook, he commenced the elimination of his neighbors in Eden Valley.

By 1870 he owned in fee fifty thousand acres of Eden Valley—and then Joel Hensley, late of the Confederate army, came. Hensley had some capital and he, too, yearned for Eden Valley. He outbid Robin Kershaw for the lower half of the valley, and Kershaw let him have it, for, after all, Eden Valley was large enough for two, and Kershaw knew he had the cream of it.

Almost before he realized it was impending he had a bitter quarrel with Joel Hensley. Like Kershaw, Hensley was a Texan—a fierce, belligerent man of the breed that was responsible for the most heroic and dramatic epiphany in history: "The Thermopylae Had Its Messenger of Defeat—The Alamo Had None!"

Kershaw had fenced off his portion of the valley, and in common justice, he asked Joel Hensley to pay for half this fencing. Hensley, glancing sardonically over the fence at the luxuriant meadows of his neighbor, access to which this fence denied his cattle, replied coldly that he couldn't spare the money. Thereupon Kershaw patiently informed him that he would loan him the money, with cattle as security. Hensley replied that he preferred not to be in debt.

"Well, I see you intend to be unneighborly," Kershaw answered, "so I'll not argue the matter further. However, there is another matter that must be adjusted, whether you have the money or not. I am turning loose on the summer range this year five hundred pure-bred beef-type bulls. Your herd bulls are scrubs, and your cattle and mine roam the public domain together. Hence you are bound to reap an equal benefit with me from the use of my expensive pure-bred steers. That wouldn't be fair."

"Can't help that," Hensley retorted. "I have no money to buy pure-bred range bulls and compete with you."

"I'll loan you the money, Hensley, and it will be money well invested. And you will not be doing your neighbor a gross injustice. Greed and envy incite men to strange decisions. Joel Hensley retorted: "You're too patronizing."

"Very well," And Robin Kershaw rode away.

In May the Hensley and Kershaw riders drove the cattle of their respective employers up into the summer range in the mountains. But when the Hensley riders returned to the valley the Kershaw riders remained, scoured the range and shot every scrub bull they found wearing "Bar H," the Hensley brand. Also they maintained a patrol all summer and rather effectually succeeded in keeping the Hensley cattle on a sequestered portion of the range. The result was that the Bar H had a 10 per cent calf crop that year while the Circle K (the Kershaw outfit) had 80 per cent.

Joel Hensley was torn between a desire to kill Kershaw or permit him to live, in order that he might borrow from him sufficient money to purchase pure-bred beef-type bulls. Finally he decided on the latter course.

Robin Kershaw saw him coming, so he buckled on a six-shooter and went to meet him. "Well?" he demanded coldly.

"Guess I'll have to buy them pure-bred range bulls, neighbor," Joel Hensley forced a sheepish grin. "If you're still of a mind to let me have the money—"

"The situation has changed a mite since I made you that fair offer, Hensley," Kershaw's voice was very cold. "Your scrub bulls don't worry me now, so I'm not interested in helping you out, but you wouldn't have it, so now we're enemies, and if you expect to drag yourself out of the Circle K under your own power I reckon you'd better be startin' now."

and envy of humankind that one day should make them, their children and their children's children fight to the death for this dear silent land; that one day the waves of a new civilization would engulf them; that one day they should be crowded!

The following morning they continued their journey down the valley. Half-way down, the land on each side of the creek rose to a slight angle toward the hills on each flank, thus gradually narrowing the area subject to annual overflow from the creek. The channel of the creek grew deeper, too; the man who would irrigate these lands in summer would have to erect a very expensive dam to raise the waters above the bank level and divert them out over his haylands.

Unquestionably, the upper half of the valley was, by far, the most desirable from every point of view. Yes, he must have not less than fifty thousand of those rich acres. He could support a cow to every three acres, probably less; that meant he could run, in the valley alone, not less than fifteen thousand head.

"I'll be the cattle king of Eden Valley," he told his wife suddenly. Presently the valley commenced to pitch downward, the angle of pitch increasing gradually as they rode. The quality of the soil and the quantity of grass decreased with the pitch; the valley commenced gradually to pinch in until finally they found themselves riding through a gorge about two hundred feet wide, walled in by towering granite cliffs about a hundred and fifty feet high. The gorge suddenly debouched into a vast, semi-arid plain into which the surging torrent of Eden Valley creek poured, gradually flattening out in the inhospitable soil.

Robin Kershaw turned in his saddle and looked back. "If a feller wanted to an' there was some other good country off yonder that wanted irrigation, he could easily put in a dam in this box canyon. Plenty o' bulldin' material right handy."

On the crest of the spur they halted. Directly below them lay another valley even larger than Eden Valley, but save for its eastern side it was not timbered. Nor was it, even remotely, as verdant as Eden Valley.

"There," cried Robin Kershaw triumphantly, "is the land that needs the water old Mother Nature is wastin' off yonder. Some day when we're gone, our children will build that dam I spoke of, back the flood waters up most to the crest of this spur, cut a canal across or drive a tunnel an' lead the water off down yonder. Good farmin' valley there, Lorry."

He continued: "No, the Lord ain't treated yonder valley jest right. I reckon it gits enough rainfall to make it fair dry-farmin' land, but come a dry year or a succession of dry years an' that valley'll sure raise a crop o' broken hearts. Lorry, I sort o' figger we'd ought to call that country yonder Forlorn Valley."

"Lorry, I Sort o' Figger We'd Ought to Call That Country Yonder Forlorn Valley."

He stared at her. And then he blinked because the tears of emotion were in his boy's eyes. He held out his hand across the gate. "Good-bye, Lorry Kershaw," he said with difficulty. "I thank you with all my heart. You're mighty sweet."

She accepted his hand, to the great scandal of her father; she stood at the gate and watched him jog away down the valley, sitting very straight in his carved and silver-mounted stock-saddle.

"Come, come, old settler," she said. "It's time to cease hurling maledictions and start praying. And I promised him the water."

He was silent at that. Then: "Well, I suppose it won't hurt us to let 'em have it." He must have thought then of his own gallant stripping son. "Just as well to take things easy now, Lorry. Even if they both come back that'll never shoot each other. If that Tichenor pup's a fair sample, the Hensley clan ain't run to seed in this generation."

Nate Tichenor's farewell sentence came back to her. She patted her father's cheek. "You're mighty sweet," she said. . . . Nathan Tichenor had come back to Eden Valley. He arrived in a glittering limousine, driven by a liveried chauffeur, beside whom sat a dignified middle-aged individual any Forlorn Valleyite would have accepted as a banker or railroad president but who was in reality Nathan Tichenor's English valet. Arrived in the grass-grown farmyard of the deserted Bar H headquarters, Tichenor alighted.

Kershaw its chief, Ranceford Kershaw, a widower of fifty, permanently crippled by reason of a soft-nosed bullet through his hip; his son, Owen, aged twenty, and daughter, Lorraine, aged sixteen. Of the clan Hensley there remained three women, Angie Tichenor, a widow, and Hattie and Beulah Hensley, both old maids.

It was assumed, locally, that in the fullness of time Nathan Tichenor and Owen Kershaw would shoot it out together; hence, with one or both of the young men out of the way there should be peace, at last, in Eden Valley.

But the World War intervened. Neither Owen Kershaw nor Nathan Tichenor waited to be drafted.

War with Germany, it will be remembered, was declared on April 6, 1917. In March a furious freshet had washed out the Hensley diversion dam in Eden Valley creek. On the morning of April 7 Nathan Tichenor rode up to the gate in the white paling fence before the old log ranch-house of the clan Kershaw, and, like his fire-eating grandfather, help up his hand, palm outward, in the old frontier sign of peace. From the veranda crippled Ranceford Kershaw glared down at him.

"Our diversion dam went out last month," said young Nate.

"Pleased to hear it, young man. Well?"

"I'm going down to San Francisco tomorrow to enlist—"

"That's to your credit, if I do say so." Old Rance appeared to show perceptibly. "Still, you're a mite slow down' your duty. My boy, Owen, left this morning."

"I wish him luck, Mr. Kershaw. What I came for was to ask you if you'd consider favorably the suggestion that one war at a time is enough for our people to be engaged in. Our dam's out, and I ask you, as a favor, to let us have the water after it's done its work for you."

"Why should you ask me a favor? And why should I grant it, young man?"

"Because my mother and my aunts have got to run our outfit while I'm in the army. I didn't figure you'd make war on women."

"How about the old fence bill, young man?"

Young Nate laid a check on the gate post. "My grandfather should have paid that, Mr. Kershaw. It was right low and ornery of him not to. There's a check for it, with interest for forty years at 6 per cent added."

Rance Kershaw's not too stable heart leaped in triumph. "Keep your check," he ordered harshly, "and I'll keep my water."

Lorraine Kershaw came out of the house. Straight down the little gravelled walk she came to the gate. She was a strikingly pretty girl; her hair was jet-black and shiny; her eyes large and dark and lustrous; her skin a pale ivory with a faint rose radiance seeping up through it.

"The Hensley apology is accepted," she cried in a clear ringing voice. "And you may keep your check. That fence was charged off to depreciation before you and I were born. Please give our compliments to your mother and your aunts and say that the Kershaws will be very pleased to see that hereafter the Bar H ranch gets all the water the Circle K can give it."

"They won't, either," old Rance shouted.

"Pay no attention to father," the girl admonished, in a tone meant for young Tichenor's ears alone. "He can't help holding his ancient grudge. But the Bar H shall have the water. I give you my word of honor it shall. I'll keep the flood-gates closed at our diversion dam and turn the water into your irrigation ditches when we're done with it. Instead of diverting it back into Eden Valley creek. Run along now, Nate Tichenor, and may God bless you and protect you and bring you safe back to your mother in Eden Valley."

He stared at her. And then he blinked because the tears of emotion were in his boy's eyes. He held out his hand across the gate. "Good-bye, Lorry Kershaw," he said with difficulty. "I thank you with all my heart. You're mighty sweet."

She accepted his hand, to the great scandal of her father; she stood at the gate and watched him jog away down the valley, sitting very straight in his carved and silver-mounted stock-saddle.

money was a small bank and bought insurance on the bull. Indeed he had to, or get out of the cattle business.

But Robin Kershaw was not yet through with him. Followed three years of subnormal snowfall in the mountains; hence, when the spring freshet came, Eden Valley creek overflowed but a tittle of the territory that was flooded in years of normal snowfall. But Robin Kershaw had put in a concrete diversion dam at the upper end of his ranch, backed the water up and over the low banks and led it by irrigation ditches all over his meadows. He could have permitted the water from these ditches to run under the fine fence between his ranch and Hensley's, thus insuring Hensley the customary hay crop and pasture. But Kershaw turned the water, when he was through with it, back into the channel of Eden Valley creek.

Of course there was nothing Hensley could do about this. Kershaw had the first use of the water and when he turned it back into the channel at the boundary line he was quite within the law.

Following the second year of subnormal snowfall in the mountains he suffered even greater losses. The third year he could stand it no longer. Again he called on Robin Kershaw. He rode up to the latter's house and before the gate held up his hand, palm outward, in the old Indian sign of peace. Nevertheless, Robin Kershaw came out with a pistol on his hip; on the front veranda Robin II fondled a repeating rifle and watched Hensley as a cat watches a gopher hole.

"Kershaw," Hensley began, "you're ruining me."

"That's a lie. You've ruined yourself."

"I've got to have more water this year," Hensley shrieked. "When you're through with the water I want you to run it under the fence to my ditches. If you don't, by G—d, we'll argue this in the smoke. It's plain dirty of you to run it back into the creek again."

"Well, I suppose I could run it into your ditches," Kershaw mused. "See that you do," Hensley reminded him, and rode off, little realizing that he had made an error of judgment. He thought he had bluffed Robin Kershaw.

When Kershaw was finished with his irrigation that summer, Hensley connected his lower irrigation ditches with Kershaw's and the water started running merrily down over the Hensley meadows. But almost immediately the flow ceased. Kershaw had opened the water gate on his diversion dam and turned the water back into the channel of the creek at the upper end of his ranch instead of the lower!

Hensley was now in a most unpleasant predicament. In the presence of witnesses (Robin II and two of the Kershaw cowboys) he had threatened, if denied the water, to argue the issue with Robin I in the smoke. "He'll make good," Robin Kershaw I decided. And he and his sons and his riders all rode armed with pistols and rifles.

But again Joel Hensley visited the Circle K. "Kershaw," he called from the front gate. "I'll pay for my share of that fence. With interest," he added.

"I don't need the money," Kershaw taunted him. "And I doubt if you'd maintain your share of the upkeep of that fence. How would you like to sell out to me? That's the best and easiest way to shed your water troubles. I'll meet you in a liberal spirit for the sake of peace. Eden Valley," he added, "ain't big enough for us both."

Two weeks later, as he rode in alone from the nearest settlement, Joel Hensley rode out on Kershaw from a clump of pines. Neither man hesitated; it did not occur to either to ask questions; simultaneously they drew and fired.

Mark now the perversity of Fate. Had each killed the other the feud which, for the next forty years, was to make of Eden Valley a dark and bloody ground, would have ended then. But Joel Hensley's first cartridge had a defective primer—and Robin Kershaw's did not. Whereupon, a coroner's jury at Gold Run, the county seat, returned a verdict of justifiable homicide and restored Robin Kershaw to the bosom of his family. But Joel Hensley left a son—several sons in fact—and these inherited the casus belli.

CHAPTER III

DURING three generations eleven Kershaws and four hired gunmen died with their boots on and two went to state's prison for varying terms. Of the Hensleys thirteen were killed, with five gunmen.

Neither side ever complained to the authorities; as they often said they preferred the good old six-gun law! Only very inquisitive sheriffs invaded Eden Valley seeking redress for the outraged law; and of the half-dozen who did, two, who knew too much, never returned.

At that, the feud surely must have died of inanition at times when the count on each side was even, but for the perennial casus belli of water. Years of lean snowfall in the mountains were years of lean profit for the Hensleys. Despite this disadvantage, the Hensleys prospered in the cattle business to the point where, in the year 1900, they were enabled to put in a diversion dam of their own in Eden Valley creek.

In 1917 there remained of the clan (continued next week)

An American nailing a horse shoe over the door for good luck.
Please PAUSE! Think with me—IDOLATRY?
How far removed are we Americans from "Idol Worship"? Those who observe special days, special seasons, etc. Are they not going contrary and doing despite to the spirit of Christianity? Since when can any man observe Easter Sunday, Lent, Holy Week, Christmas and such like, without violating the Holy Word of God? Visiting to God's Word.
"But now that ye have come to know God, or rather to be known of God, how turn ye back again to the weak and begardly rudiments (elements) whereunto ye desire to be in bondage over again? Ye observe days, and months, and seasons, and years. I am afraid of you, lest by any means I have bestowed labor upon you in vain."
Galatians 4:9-11.
Much communion with our God will get us out of observing days, seasons and months and years. We are the prayers of Christians often really pagan in character? Let us pray!

Waka Operetta Will Be Given On April 27th

On Friday, April 27th, "The Pioneer," a colorful Indian operetta, will be presented at the Waka school house under the co-direction of D. K. Thurston and Virginia King.

Tuneful solos and snappy choruses make prominent the half-wild inimitable spirit of the Red man in peace and in war.

The majestic chief of the Tomahawks will be played by H. N. Elledge, bass. Chief Tomahawk's son, Prince Whiteface, will be played by Walter Elledge, tenor.

The Medicine Man, played by Harry Miller, tenor, supplies an especially good vein of comedy. With his trusty rattle he always kills or cures, and it takes one adept in the black art to keep him from becoming a victim of his own boasting.

The Pioneer, Mr. Van Earl Steed, accompanied by his daughter Ruth Waltzie, played by Ruth Stump, soprano, satisfies his desire for revenge against the Arrowheads, a neighboring tribe. A real dance is staged by the braves.

Lillamush, Mrs. H. N. Elledge, soprano, voices the Indian ideal of beauty.

The principals will be supported by a chorus of Indian braves and maidens composed of talent from the Waka community. Colorful Indian costumes lend a gala atmosphere to the stage setting of a forest scene.

A small admission fee of 10c and 15c will be charged. The proceeds will be divided between the Women's and Girl's Home Demonstration Clubs to apply on traveling expenses of delegates from each club which will be sent to short course at A. & M. College.

Special features will be "Red Wing," "Silver Bell," and Indian Lullaby by the Waka Male Quartette.
