FARMERS OF COUNTY PURCHASE 63 HIGH GRADE MILK COWS

W. H. HOOVER RANCH
HEMPHILL COUNTY

W. H. Hoover, county agent, announced today that the dairy industry in Hansford county took actual form today, when eleven farmers of section purchased 63 head of Jersey milk cows from Judge E. Hoover, on his ranch in Hemphill county. The milk stock of excellent breeds and were to farmers at reasonably low prices. Other farmers of the county have made known their wants to buy from three to five cows each from the Hoover group of farmers headed by B. Hale, county agent, Frank Allen, vocational agriculture instructor, J. L. Lee, L. S. McLain, and J. P. Gibson.

When the visitors arrived at the Hoover ranch, they were met by Judge Hoover, county attorney and successful stockman-farmer of the Panhandle Plains, who showed them his practical and profitable way of farming, his fine hatchery, his stock and high grade milk cows. Luncheon was served the afternoon after which Judge Hoover made a short talk to farmers on plan of diversification, that he believed to be the most profitable plan of farming.

Farmers Select Stock
The farmers then were permitted to look the herd of Jersey cows over and select the stock they wanted. No farmer bought less than three cows and the greatest number purchased by one farmer was 18.

Farmers who purchased the cows were H. H. Crooks, Frank Allen, M. W. Lackey, W. E. Dillon, S. H. Graves, W. B. Lackey, R. C. Bennett, F. K. Bannister, Archa Morse, Carl E. Hutchison and Cecil Crawford.

Since the move was started several weeks ago for more dairy cattle in this county, interest has grown steadily. It is believed that many other farmers will place good milk cows on their farms within the next few weeks.

The tournament was decided upon last Friday night at a meeting of the club with Max Lackey, president and Herb Campbell, secretary, present. The club was unanimous in its decision of having a tournament.

All this week, players have been shooting their 18 holes for qualifications. Thursday morning the fights were made out with a total of 32 players.

Those qualified for championship flight will vie for gold golf ball as a trophy. Those qualifying in the first flight will play for a silver golf ball as trophy. The first preliminaries will be played off by next Sunday. The second contest, including the eight winners of each flight out of the 32, must have their contest played off by Thursday night, August 27. Four winners of these two nights will have their play-off by the following Saturday night and the finals in both flights will be played off Sunday, September 6.

In the championship flight start off will be C. D. Richards and Raymond Keith; Fred Lusk and Guy Fuller; J. E. Gunn and Max Lackey; C. W. Smith and Roy Russell; Herb Campbell and Ike Vernon; Bill McClellan and T. C. Peffer; C. P. Cockrell and Clyde Hazelwood; J. B. Cooke and W. L. Russell.

A meeting of the club at the Legion hall is called tonight at 8 o'clock in order to go over rules and regulations and get set for the tournament.

GOOD VARIETY OF VEGETABLES COMING FROM PALO DURO NOW

The local market this week offers okra, black eyed peas, beans, cucumbers, squash and sweet corn, grown on the Electrified irrigation farm in Palo Duro Valley. Every food store in the city is handling the Hansford County grown produce and pronounce them of exceptional quality.

Through the efforts of C. J. Todd the vegetables are being offered the local trade at very low prices. Watermelons and cantaloupes are expected to be placed on the market here within the next two weeks.

Attractive cards will be placed over the vegetables in the various stores, telling where they were grown, so that strangers might learn something of the irrigation advancement that Hansford County is making.

WORK CONTINUES ON DRAINAGE OF CITY STREETS THIS WEEK

The drainage system of the streets in the residential section of the city is half completed, according to city manager R. C. Sampson. The North and South streets were the first to be completed. Work will begin today on Locust street and will continue on the East and West streets. The State Highway Department will run drainage of the Northwest part of the city down the ditch recently completed by the side of the Santa Fe railroad tracks.

This drainage system means much to the citizens of Spearman as some of their property had been greatly damaged by water standing for days in front of their houses and on their premises. The water would become stagnant and really was a menace to the public health of the people.

The efforts of the city manager to do away with this water and to establish a modern drainage system is appreciated by the citizens, however, some persist, he says in filling up the ditches so they can get up into their driveways. This completely stops drainage. A slight slope of the lawn toward the street would make it possible to get into drive ways and would not impair the drainage in any way.

The city manager declares that he would appreciate it very much if the people would cooperate with them in this, in working out the drainage system for the city.

Mrs. J. J. May

Mary Eliza Jamison was born January 3, 1871, at Terryville, Texas, was married to James Joseph May on the 5th day of May, 1891, at Yookum, Texas. Hogan, Edmund, Oklahoma, Joseph Carl May, deceased, Mrs. Dan Burleson, John Alton May, Louis Felton May, Mrs. Otto Crawford, all of Spearman, Texas.

Deceased had been in failing health for some months, and was taken to Shattuck hospital, a few days prior to her death, hoping that something might be done to regain her health, but all efforts were in vain and on August 15, at 4:30 a. m. death came to relieve her from all her suffering.

Funeral services were held on Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock at the family home in the Madrin community, by Rev. Steinloke of Amarillo. All living children and grand children attended the funeral. She was laid to rest in the Holt cemetery beneath a mound of beautiful flowers.

Deceased was a kind loving wife and mother, always ministering to those about her trying to make the pathway brighter for some one else in a sweet unselfish spirit.

A loving one from us has gone, A voice we loved is stilled, A place is vacant in our home, Which never can be filled.

A CHANCE FOR SERVICE

A chance for real community service, to help the cause of charity this fall and winter, is offered women of Spearman. C. J. Todd of the Electrified Irrigation Farm in Palo Duro Valley is offering fresh vegetables to the Spearman Welfare Association if some public spirited women will come forward and offer their services in canning this food.

A number of vegetables are now to be had at the irrigation farm and are ready for canning. The Spearman Welfare association should get busy. It is a real opportunity for them. If some good business man will offer the loan of canning equipment, cans and jars, such cooperation would help along with a problem that should concern everyone.

SPEARMAN MOVES FORWARD

Spearman continues to grow because her citizens have faith in her future. New city improvements have gone steadily forward this summer. In the main, there can be little complaint for business conditions. A new whiteway, new paved streets, a new water system and now a new courthouse nearing completion; all of these improvements stand out as an example of good citizens building a good town.

Other city improvements are being planned now. New business enterprises that will be for the good of Spearman are now seeking locations here. Other new buildings will be constructed before another 12 months.

Spearman's growth has been steady, stable, conservative. The kind of growth that holds its own. Not the boom kind, but a solid, thoughtful, well planned, conservative growth.

Spearman is rapidly becoming known as the fastest growing city of the North Plains. Continued efforts on the part of every citizen, will make a city of Spearman that will double in population in the next three years.

SOON BACK TO SCHOOL

School days are just in the offing. Boys and girls will soon be scampering back to their classes, bright-eyed, and eager for another year's work.

There's always something about school days that make everyone take a new lease on life. We are all a part of the school work. The enthusiasm and activities of boys and girls in their school work saturates every community with interest.

Spearman has a school system second to none on the Panhandle-Plains. Capable instructors and a course of studies rated high in the ranks of our public school system.

Let's all get behind our instructors, encourage our boys and our girls and help in every way that we can. It's a duty that we owe our community. Let's not shirk it.

FARMERS KEEP YOUR COURAGE

Many cotton farmers are now swearing vengeance on King Cotton. Many of them say, never will I plant another stalk of cotton. Wheat farmers are also saying, no more wheat, all because of the lowest price in the history of the country. But, farmers who keep their courage and faith, know full well that cotton will be a better price; that wheat will be a better price in the not too distant future. This is a most excellent time for a man to make plans to take advantage of good markets that are sure to come. One extreme calls for another. High prices on farm products are bound to come. There is no other way of figuring it.

THE RIGHT KIND OF GIRL

By DOUGLAS MALLOCH

The right kind of girl doesn't smoke just because she thinks she looks "smart" with a "smoke" in her jaws. The right kind of girl doesn't dress like a jade because that's the way that the dresses are made. The right kind of girl has a mind of her own. A thing isn't nice, then she leaves it alone. The world where she lives is in sort of a whirl. But it can't change the ways of the right kind of girl.

The wrong kind of girl has a wonderful time. She talks about sex and she reads about crime. The wrong kind of girl gives the fellows a thrill, and enjoys it herself, or she thinks that she will. The wrong kind of girl makes the universe stare. With the things she will do and the clothes she will wear, the right kind of girl, she might as well be a hunk of dynamite.

The right kind of girl has some fellows who call. But it's they that she likes, not their money at all. The right kind of girl sees some fellow depart. With the wrong kind of girl, and it troubles her heart, but a man wants a wife who's as pure as a pearl. When he sees one at last it's the right kind of girl.

VACATION DISHES

FOR a picnic or afternoon garden party, try these little cakes:

Cup Cakes.
Sift two cups of flour, four teaspoonfuls of baking powder, one teaspoonful of cinnamon, one-fourth teaspoonful of salt. Add one cup of chopped nut meats, one package of dates, sliced; mix these well with the flour mixture. Cream one-fourth of a cupful of butter, add one cupful of sugar gradually, then two beaten eggs. Add the dry ingredients alternately with one cupful of crushed pineapple. Bake in small cups, cover with icing and sprinkle with coconut in any desired color. This recipe makes four dozen cakes.

Ice Cream Cake Pudding.
Beat the yolks of three eggs until light, add three-fourths of a cupful of sugar gradually. Mix well, add two tablespoonfuls of juice and grated rind of orange. Fold in one-fourth of a cupful of cracker crumbs, one-half of a package of dates, one-half cupful of chopped nuts, one teaspoonful of baking powder. Mix well, fold in the stiffly beaten whites of the eggs and spread evenly in a shallow pan lined with waxed paper. Bake in a slow oven forty-five minutes. Cool, cut in cubes, serve in stemmed glasses with ice cream.

Collegiate Sandwiches.
Spread one slice of bread lightly buttered with peanut butter. Cover with a layer of dates. Spread a second slice of buttered bread with currant or cranberry jelly. But the slices together in pairs. One-half package of dates, one-half cupful of peanut butter, will be sufficient for a dozen sandwiches the size of that college boys and girls like.

City Wide Union Revival Gets Under Way Here

A citywide union revival campaign has been launched in the Union Church of Spearman by Rev. J. R. Elsom, a well known Canadian evangelist whose home is at present in Springfield, Mo. Being urged by a number of local residents who have heard him elsewhere. Mr. Elsom consented two weeks ago to pay Spearman a visit. Arriving here last Tuesday the evangelist took immediate steps to procure an auditorium and found the Union Church available, though small, quite suitable for such a campaign as he plans to conduct.

Rev. Elsom has been engaged in gospel work for over 15 years having been ordained by the Free Methodist Church in Canada in 1916. The past six years of his life have been devoted principally to evangelistic work during which time he has conducted revivals in many of the larger cities of the United States and Canada but has worked principally on the Pacific Coast. His meetings are run on undenominational lines, all the churches being invited to cooperate in the revival and share in the results. Many timely and interesting subjects have been announced for ensuing meetings and large attendance is expected at

He's All Ready With an Ark for Second Flood

WILLIAM GREENWOOD, a resident of Olympia, Wash., of advanced years, says his home city and Seattle, San Francisco and Los Angeles are so wicked and corrupt that God has decided to wipe them off the face of the earth. This, William believes, will be accomplished through a second flood that will inundate the whole Pacific coast of the United States. He has built for himself and has chosen friends an elaborate ark in which he hopes to ride the waters when that flood comes. The vessel, here shown with the builder, is 65 feet long and 15 feet wide.

Golden Text:—There is no distinction between Jew and Greek; for the same Lord is Lord of all, and is rich unto all that call upon him.—Rom. 10: 11.

Introduction

Upon which when I had fastened mine eyes, I considered, and the fourfooted beasts of the earth and wild beasts and creeping things and birds of the heaven.

This incident of Cornelius occupies much space in the Book of Acts. Why? Because when Acts was written something was happening in Jewish Christian circles before which the whole world stood amazed: a wall of racial and social separation that had seemed impregnable was beginning to give way.

Cornelius' seeking and Peter's vision on the housetop bring the two men together. The Holy Spirit takes these two factors and uses them for the good of the one and the other: the centurion is led by the apostle into a saving faith, while the apostle learns from his strange vision and his contact with the soldier that the gospel of salvation is to be preached to all nations, through all the ages, upon the same terms to all—salvation through faith in the Lord Jesus Christ, and in no other way.

Cornelius—Seeking Salvation

Cornelius was a devout man, a man of prayer, a worshipper of the one true God, and one whose religion proved itself by much giving to the needy. All his household were with him in his religion.

One day this noble Roman soldier was observing, at 3 o'clock in the afternoon, the last of the three regular daily periods of prayer which were kept by earnest Jews, when an angel in dazzling raiment appeared to him openly, and not in a dream. Cornelius was terrified by the resplendent vision, but managed to ask, "What is it, Lord?" Thereupon the angel told him that God had noted his prayers and his giving and in response bade him send to Joppa after a man named Simon Peter, who would be found in the house of another Simon, a tanner, who lived by the seashore; this Simon Peter would tell him the answer to his prayers for his own salvation and that of his household. Thereupon Cornelius without weighing the chances of success or failure on such a strange errand, at once sent off his messengers to Joppa—two of his household servants and a soldier of his company, all three being devout persons like himself; for he would not send ungodly men on that holy errand.

Peter's Marvelous Vision

"I was in the city of Joppa praying," v. 5. Peter, since his raising of Dorcas from the dead (see Lesson 3 of this quarter), had remained in the city of Dorcas, Joppa, the seaport of Jerusalem. It was a large city from which many set sail, and so was an excellent center for evangelizing. Peter was observing the second hour of prayer, which was at noon, the sixth hour of the day. For that purpose he went to the housetop, which was flat, an ideal place for retired meditation and prayer. "And in a trance I saw a vision." He was very hungry, and his trance came while he was waiting for his noonday meal. "A certain vessel descending, as it were a great sheet let down from heaven by four corners." "Some thing like a great sheet." "It sank down beside him on the roof so that he could see what was in it—a horrible sight for an orthodox Jew. The great sheet was thus a parable of the mingled races of men, a mass of good and bad, learned and ignorant, pleasing and repulsive, and all piled in together. What are we to do about it all? The question confronts any one who is forced out among men, and especially it faces this nation of ours, with its unprecedented commingling of men from all parts of the world, men of all languages, all faiths, all customs. How from such a horrible jumble is an orderly Christian civilization ever to be formed?"

"What God Hath Cleansed." v. 9 "But a voice answered the second time out of heaven." "A voice came unto him again the second time" (Acts 10:13), answering Peter's objection with an authoritative and imperious command. "What God hath cleansed, make not thou common." Do not dare to set yourself up above the Almighty, declaring unfit what he has declared to be fit, and impure what he by his omnipotent fiat has purified. Peter's "Not so, Lord" was very gentle and long-suffering with his erring servant, because he was his servant.

"The meaning of this is apparent to us in a moment. It was a symbolical revelation of the fact that the restrictions of the Mosaic law were now removed; and that the distinction between Jew and Gentile, out of which these grew, and for the maintenance of which they were designed, was now abolished. It indicated that now 'creation itself had been purified, and rendered clean for our use by the satisfaction of Christ' and that men of all nations were now to be dealt with in the same manner for salvation."—William M. Taylor.

"Making No Distinction." Acts 11 "And the Spirit bade me go with them, making no distinction." No distinction between Jew and Gentile, entering into the house of a Gentile and eating there. This was forbidden to Jews, and that Peter had done so rather than that he had baptized Gentiles into the Christian church, was the ground of the charge against him in Jerusalem (Acts 11:2, 3). Luke tells us (Acts 10:19) that while Peter was on the housetop and was meditating on his vision, the Spirit had announced the arrival of the three messengers, and had bidden him to "go with them, nothing doubting," for he, the Holy Spirit himself, had sent them. Going down to the street, therefore, Peter learned from the three men what their errand was, took them in and next day set out with them on their thirty-mile walk back to Caesarea—a journey which was broken by a night's rest so that they arrived on the second day from Jerusalem. "And these six brethren also accompanied me." Peter was wise and prudent. He knew that he was going to break through some of the most stringent of Jewish rules, so he took along an abundance of witnesses, to answer the criticisms that he felt sure were coming. They could say just what Peter did and what he did not do, and above all they could testify to the seal of the Holy Spirit's approval which was placed on the proceedings.

"Words, Whereby Thou Shalt Be Saved." v. 14

"Who shall speak unto thee words, whereby thou shalt be saved, thou and all thy house." This shows us that Cornelius was not only dissatisfied with heathen search of salvation. He knew that religions, but was definitely in he was a sinner, and was lost, he and all those dear to him, and he believed that Christianity had in it the power to save from sins. It was wonderful faith for a heathen, and places Cornelius alongside the centurion of Capernaum and the Syro-Phoenician woman, both of whom Gentiles, whose faith was so highly praised by the Master. "The Holy Spirit fell on them, even as on us at the beginning." The reference is to the day of Pentecost (Acts 2:1-4), when the Holy Spirit fell in fire on the apostles, bestowing on them the gift of tongues. The gift of the Holy Spirit, to which the power of miraculous speech bore witness, was bestowed upon the apostles because they believed on the Lord Jesus Christ; Peter therefore rightly drew the conclusion that since the same testifying gift was bestowed on Cornelius and his household, they must have had the same faith as the apostles.

"Then to the Gentiles also (as well as to us Jews) hath God granted repentance unto life." Their repentance and faith in Christ had brought them into the same eternal life which the apostles and the other Christians enjoyed. The door to a world-wide extension of Christianity was thrown open.

"Among politicians," says Enfranchised Fannie, "they seem to have it: if at first you don't mislead, try, try again."

MORE VISITORS TO PADDY'S POND

WHEN Honker the Goose dropped into the pond of Paddy the Beaver deep in the Green forest on his way to the Sunny Southland her eyes than those of Peter Rabbit saw him. That clear "Honk, honk, honk, honk," with which he shouted to the world below the message that Jack Frost and Rough other North Wind were coming had been heard by many ears. It reached way in to the den of Old Man Coyote up in the Old Pas-re, and he had hastily thrust his head out to look up at the sky. He seen Honker turn and lead his but down, down and finally appear in the Green Forest.

"You Think You Know It All," She Said Sharply.

Old Man Coyote had licked his lips hungrily and grinned as he tched.

"They are tired and are going to and the night in the pond of Paddy the Beaver," thought he. Then and yawned and went back to finish nap and dream pleasant dreams a fat goose for dinner. You see knew that it would be of no use go over to Paddy's pond until after Honker and his followers had had time to go to sleep.

Reddy and Granny Fox had heard that message from the sky, and they, too, had seen Honker lead the way down into the Green Forest and had guessed just where he had gone. Reddy was for going over there at once, but wise old Granny knew better than do that.

"You think you know it all," she said sharply, "but you've got a lot to learn yet, Reddy Fox. It isn't every day that we have a chance to get a goose for dinner, and if it were left to you we wouldn't have any chance at all. Honker isn't like those foolish geese in Farmer Brown's yard. Oh, my, no! You've got to have all your wits about you when you try to catch Honker. In fact, I don't expect that we are going to catch Honker at all, smart as we are. But I do think we may catch one of the youngsters of whom he is the leader, and that will be much better. Honker is old and tough. Perhaps we can catch two. But whatever you do, Reddy Fox, don't go near the pond of Paddy the eBeaver until I tell you it is time. Honker mustn't even suspect that we know that he has come."

Reddy promised to do just as old Granny Fox said, although he was so impatient that he just had to go down on the Green Meadows and hunt for Danny Meadow Mouse so as to keep from thinking of Honker the Goose and his followers. So it was that Honker and the other geese, of whom he was the leader, went to sleep without hearing or seeing a single thing to make them anxious or suspicious. And so it was that in the still small hours of the night when those who sleep at night are usually deepest in dreamland stealthily feet trotted softly through the Green Forest toward the pond of Paddy the Beaver, the feet of Old Man Coyote coming from the Old Pasture, and the feet of Granny and Reddy Fox coming from the Green Meadows.

Winding up State Seed Inspection

Austin, Texas, August 20.—Entering upon the final week of field work inspectors for the field seed certification division in the state department of agriculture report a slight decrease in the total acreage devoted to producing certified seed.

After reports on the present inspections are made, the division's annual directory of firms measuring up to certification standards will be issued. This directory was recommended by R. V. Miller, chief of the division, as a source of information for those desiring to learn the names of breeders of pure-line seed. The division tests primarily for varietal purity.

There was a large increase this year in the inspection of sorghum breeders' crops, twenty-two firms requesting inspection as compared to seven last year. Whether the seed from these firms will be certified by the state depends upon the inspectors' reports.

The sorghum growers have approximately 2,600 acres, with 1,039 acres in dwarf Yellow Milo, 861 acres in Hegari, 668 acres in Texas Blackhull Kafir and the balance in Sumac, Red Top and Sudan. Cotton acreage inspected will total approximately 60,000 acres, a decrease of about 12,000 from last year. The reports show the greater part of the crops are measuring up to the standards set by the state plant board, Miller said.

The final inspection this week is devoted principally to determining the varietal purity of the growing plant through field inspections. The inspectors entering the fields carefully examine all cotton in selected blocks for off-type or rouge plans, grading the cotton on the findings of this examination on a per centage basis.

Texas Ranks Fifth In Graded Produce Shipped to Market

Austin, Texas, August 20.—Texas ranked fifth among all states in the number of carloads of state-federal inspected fruits and vegetables shipped during the season just ended, records of the division of markets in the department of agriculture show. Inspected shipments from Texas totaled 21,230 cars, an increase of nearly 100 per cent over last year. California led all states in total inspected shipments, with 58,561 carlots. Other states ranking Texas were Washington with 47,001 cars; Idaho, 35,221 cars; and Colorado, 26,711 cars.

W. A. Canon, marketing chief, emphasized that these totals do not reflect the total shipment from Texas or the other states, since inspection is only for those shippers or growers requesting it. Because of the many advantages of this service, the number of growers subscribing to it increases year by year, he said. In Texas, nearly 50 per cent of all shipments are inspected, an average much higher than in some other states.

Shipping point inspection is for quality and grade, the product bearing an inspection certificate always commanding the best market price for that grade.

Meeting With Opposition Here

They strive to dispose of schemes and in some of the year are not with success in Spearman. According to J. W. Ratekin, of the Spearman Chamber of Commerce, in a statement today he said:

This season of the year has her annual crop of who toil with us who are as scarce as stars on a Christmas day, Alaska on which we would spin with us, provided the material, are opportunists; they and the; they spent as possible and take out of all that they can get their hands on.

"The merchants of Spearman are with us twelve months in the year. They have great sums invested in merchandise, they pay taxes, they support all civic activities, they take the bitter with the sweet. But the peddler—the opportunist—comes in, smiles around a few days and if business is good, he stays longer. But if his business isn't good, he cusses the city that we are building, calls us a bunch of tight wads, and moves on to what he hopes may be some place where the pickings are easier.

"As citizens of a city that we are building, we should look on the peddler as an evil that we can get along without. We, as citizens of Spearman, should remember that every dollar that goes out of Spearman unnecessarily, is a dollar that should stay at home in order that more business may be done here to keep our own institutions busy and thereby provide employment for our people.

"The Chamber of Commerce has a committee which approves advertising schemes and any solicitor calling on the business men of this city without a letter of endorsement from the Chamber of Commerce are requested to ignore all. The past week there were more than a dozen peddlers, solicitors in Spearman."

"Oh, ho!" the General admonished her playfully. "Going through my pockets already, eh?"

ing the tea wagon, General Hindau was beaming hospitably at a load consisting of a steaming pot, two cups, sugar, cream, and a box of napkins—a neat and appetizing display. She managed to receive him as he stepped into the wagon toward the couch and an amiable bustle. A common event—ending how?

"I didn't take such a terribly long time, did I?" observed the General.

"Oh, no."

"I was waiting, in the end"—she thought he nipped the last word short. She was aware, while she was staring absently at the pot, that he stood frozen in the act of pouring a cup of coffee. She was that he had seen the cigarette case was smoking.

"Madame, still staring away from me, she laid the cigarette down on the edge of the tea wagon. She saw that his transfixed gaze followed it. Then he stirred, recovering from his momentary paralysis.

"I was forgetting myself," he said with a bland smile. "No doubt you'd be glad to pour."

"Of course," she agreed. He handed the pot to her. As she bent her head to pour he strolled casually to the other side of the room. Watching him under her eyelashes, Magda wondered if he would whirl upon her, sending the moments seemed dragging till he picked up his overcoat.

Then with his back to her he took out his cigarette case, and she was sure that he was counting its contents. The next moment there was a snap, and Magda could not repress a gasp. The case closed, the General thrust it into his pocket, and turned toward her. There was no suggestion of menace in look or manner. He appeared as unruffled and unctuous as ever when he drew up a chair beside the tea wagon and picked up one of the two cups which she had just poured. But she knew that he would not need the coffee now to clear his head.

She was conscious that he was watching her vigilantly out of the corner of his eye—just as she was keeping him under an incessant surveillance. With a manner as respectful as at a garden party she picked up a lump of sugar with the tongs.

"How many?"

"One, please," he said in a voice equally controlled. His glance rested quietly on the cigarette she had deposited. Abruptly he picked this up and took a puff at it as if unconscious, while she could not help admiring the aplomb of his acting. Suddenly, as if puzzled, he concentrated on the cigarette and looked at her.

"Isn't this a Russian cigarette?" he asked.

"Yes," she said indifferently, picking up the cream jug. "Cream?"

"Just a tiny, thanks," he answered, contemplating the amoulinging cigarette. "These are so rare nowadays. How did you happen to get this?"

"From your cigarette case," she answered, equally guileless, "in your overcoat."

He sneaked a playful, admonishing finger at her. "Oh, ho!" he chortled. "Going into my pockets already, eh?"

"I looked everywhere for a cigarette," she said, with disarming, apologetic smile, indicating the empty smoking stand. "I just remembered that you put your case in your overcoat—in the car." The glance which she lifted toward him through her lashes was naive, almost childlike.

"Do you mind—very much?"

"Oh, no, not at all," he chimed in. "You can stand the taste."

She divined that his alarmed suspicions had been lulled—for the time being—at least. He had at least put his distrust of her in abeyance, he rose, moved to the couch where she lay, and he held her up and sat down with her on his lap. He held her close, murmuring endearing phrases.

She felt as if she were on top of a flower-covered hill that might explode at any minute into a volcano. His proximity seemed to make the tension intolerable. She drew back.

"I—maybe that cigarette didn't agree with me," she said. "Would you mind giving me a drink of some

Churches and Society

Presbyterian Church

Sunday school at 10 a. m. Worship services at 11 a. m. and 3 p. m. The subject for the 3 o'clock service is "The Devil." Many believe that the Protestant churches have formed their beliefs of the Devil more from the writings of John Milton than from the Bible. Was Milton right? What does the Bible teach? Come and worship with us at all these services. A cordial welcome awaits you at all times.

B. W. BAKER, Pastor.

Methodist Church

Services as usual. Sunday school at 10 and preaching at 11 a. m. League at 7:45 and evening worship at 8:15. Now is a good time to attend all services and to make up for the absences of the past summer, while you were away on your vacation. Less than three months remain of this conference year. Let's be loyal in every way so we may close the year by going over the top on all lines. We can, we must, we will. The Leaguers rendered a splendid program last Sunday. They have a very interesting report of the trip to the mountains. They had charge of the evening hour. We are glad to give an hour to any of the departments of the church.

The Laymen will have the first program. We are looking forward for a great day and hope that a great number of laymen will be present. Everybody is invited to all religious services.

H. A. NICHOLS, Pastor.

"Ghost House" Mystery Play Coming Here

"Ghost House" the thrilling mystery play of the age is to be produced at the high school auditorium, September 10 and 11 under the auspices of the Women's Missionary Society. The production is something entirely out of the usual home talent class. This is one of the first mystery thrillers ever to be staged by local people. It is a clean, breath-taking mystery play with an unusual plot. The production will be offered by Spearman people using effective costumes and scenery. Much time and thought will be given to the casting of Ghost House and Spearman's most competent and experienced talent will be selected.

CAT'S EYE

By Wm. A. Wilbanks

The Cat's Eye has been criticized several times recently. C. J. Todd the man that keeps the well from going dry out at the Electricity Irrigation Farm has persistently criticized the Cat's Eye for writing about the political bench that was in the alley back of Hastings but recently remodeled and placed in front of Burl's Cafe. He said that I should write about deeper subjects. He was really just joking, but I am not the joking kind and there wasn't anything for me to do but take it as criticism. The Cat's Eye was given a big bunch of squash by Mr. Todd and invited to come to the valley and get more when they were eaten. They surely were good and by the way, they have already been devoured by the Cat's Eye household. Confidently I think Mr. Todd had his eye on that bench and was anticipating it to be a comfortable luxury to be used in between the rows in his garden. If that were the case, I want to apologize to Mr. Todd. There's nothing like comfort.

Another criticism came from Fred R. Kreiger, editor of the Hansford County News at Gruver. He said a silly column like I write is very appropriate for silly people. All I have to say in rebuttal is that Fred is still receiving the Reporter.

The Cat's Eye is working with renewed matrimonial hopes. You won't believe this, but it is true. He has sailed forth on the sea of matrimony with Miss Ruth Owens of Lipscomb.

The Cat's Eye was down in the South part of town late the other night and saw two men helping a crippled man into a house. The crippled man was no other than Lucin White, the man with the smiling face and the gold tooth, that works at Bryan's Grocery. Lucin had been to a Sunday school picnic and some how fell down and hurt his leg. There's the mystery, and a Sunday school picnic too. It's too deep for the Cat's Eye to work out. Lucin got two days off duty on the strength of it.

Sheriff Wilbanks left today for Toas, New Mexico, and Lucile Wolverton is taking his place in the office. The Cat's Eye has been wanting to see Lucile make an arrest. Among the many visitors she has in the office, none look like thugs, and they have no cars to register.

Condolence Expression From Chamber Commerce

The Chamber of Commerce wishes to express the following to Dr. G. P. Gibner and other relatives in sympathy of their recent bereavement:

The sympathy of the directors and members of the Spearman Chamber of Commerce is extended to you and relatives in the bereavement that came with the death of your mother. Most sincerely,
Spearman Chamber of Commerce,
by J. W. Ratekin, Secy.

Welfare Association

The Association has been promised vegetables free of charge if the people will furnish jars and do the canning work. We are urging everyone who can give jars or who can give several to report at once, and they will be appreciated very much. All jars given are to be brought to the chamber of commerce this week if you can possibly do so. We are hoping that the women's clubs, auxiliaries of the church and other organizations of women will take charge of the canning of the vegetables, etc. The American Legion Hall has been offered to the women to be used. We will set certain days in the week for canning. If anyone wants to contribute clothing, canned goods, or anything to help carry on the work we shall be very grateful to you. We have not gotten the amount of wheat we anticipated, but we are hoping that many farmers will give us 25, 50 and 100 bushels. We helped perhaps a hundred people or more the past year, and we are starting in time now so we will be able to take care of the local situation.

REV. H. A. NICHOLS, President.
