Pétain Gives Collaborationists High Positions In French Cabinet

Allies Admit Diplomatic Loss In Deal

Riom Trials Also Called Off Under German Pressure

VICHY, Unoccupied France, April 14 (AP)—The Pétain government said tonight it had refused to accept the United States note explaining the recent establishment of an American consulate at Brazzaville, West Africa, and declared the American communication was "insolent."

VICHY, April 14 (AP)—The Pétain government, which once ousted Pierre Laval, made a place today for the return of France's leading exponent of collaboration and, at the same time, suspended the Riom trials of France's republican leaders, to which Hitler himself had objected.

Marshal Pétain, it was announced, decided to form a new government with Laval and Admiral Jean Darlan, who has been vice premier since Laval's ouster from the position on Dec. 18, 1940.

The announcement said the three leaders met today and decided on "the constitution of a government established on new foundations."

Their next meeting was set for Thursday when, presumably, the places of Laval and Darlan will be allotted.

On the day that the Riom trials were to have resumed after the Easter recess, a special law decreed indefinite suspension to permit broadening of their scope to include political as well as military "mistakes which led to war and defeat" for the third republic.

The special law, signed by Pétain, was based on a report to the chief of state by Darlan and Justice Minister Joseph Barthelemy, which said in part:

"The responsibilities incurred from the fact of inadequacies in our national defense and of political and military mistakes which led to war and defeat are indivisible because they contributed to the same disaster."

The immediate reaction in London was that the United Nations had suffered a diplomatic defeat in their attempt to sway France from collaboration with Germany.

Both Vichy government decisions fitted into the Nazi scheme, and the feeling was manifest in high diplomatic quarters in London that much stronger measures against Vichy are the only answer—probably including a tighter blockade and new strength for General Charles De Gaulle's Free French.

Some sources predicted that with both Darlan and Laval in the French cabinet, Germany stands a better chance than ever of getting the French fleet for axis operations against Britain.

Today's steps were the sequel to sharply intensified pressure by the Nazis on the Vichy government in recent days.

Hitler personally disparaged the Riom trials in a speech last March 16, declaring their characteristic was that "not a single word of guilt of those responsible for the war is mentioned."

The Berlin radio today broadcast a DNB, official German news agency, statement that the Riom decree means "the question of responsibility for the war will be raised."

Here's What It Means

By ROY F. PORTER
NEW YORK, April 14 (AP)—Old Marshal Pétain has been forced to give in to German pressure, Pierre Laval has come back after a 16-month vacation as contact man No. 1 with the Nazis and the United Nations' diplomatic and food offensive, conducted by the United States, has failed.

These are the immediate results of today's developments in Vichy where the first steps toward government reorganization have been taken and where the Riom trial of five former French leaders, never charged with anything more than having laid down on the job, has been shifted, to suit the purposes of German propaganda, to an inquiry into "the causes of France to go to war with Germany."

All three of these results are dangerous to the United States and the United Nations—in their war against the axis.

Pétain's capitulation means that only 10 days before his 86th birthday, the only living marshal of France had to turn his back on his closest foreign diplomatic adviser—United States Ambassador Admiral William D. Leahy—and agree, in principle at least, to heightened collaboration with his country's German military conquerors.

Laval's return to the cabinet means that France's first and foremost proponent of "friendship" with Germany and Italy is again sitting in the driver's seat of the collaboration vehicle. It also means that our British allies, for whom Laval has such a deep, uncontrolled, genuine hatred that he would like to see them "crushed to a grass spot," can henceforth consider all of France, occupied and unoccupied, as outside their sphere of influence.

The failure of the diplomatic and food mission, directed by Washington and conducted by Admiral Leahy in Vichy, means that the overtures, relief assistance, suggestions and outright gifts by which the United States sought to keep the French government out of the axis camp have come to naught. It does not mean that the French people have in the smallest degree relinquished their traditional affection for us as the outstanding example of democracy in the world nor their hatred of the German axiom that "might makes right."

What can we expect in the future? Simply stated, the least that we can expect is that German influence will be spread over the unoccupied zone in France, possibly without military force, as completely as it has blanketed the occupied zone with military force to back it up.

Laval and Admiral Jean Darlan will get more of their orders from Berlin and their collaborationist representatives in German-occupied Paris.

German guards at harbors and airports in unoccupied France, specified in the armistice agreement, will be reinforced.

German control over the movements of the French battle fleet, also specified in the armistice articles, will grow stronger. The ambiguous German phrase that "it does not intend to use the French war fleet for its purposes in war" will become more suspect than ever.

German economists, already installed in Vichy, Lyon and Marseille, will increase their staffs, block trade with any countries which are not in line with the axis, and scour the markets for what is needed to offset Germany's own shortages.

German industrialists, pressed for manpower, will find new employment sources to augment the 100,000 French workmen already laboring—voluntarily and for pay, it is true—in German war and civilian factories.

There's only one ray of hope in the whole situation, I believe, and I am sure the French people believe. That's the much-talked-about and threatened British-American invasion of western Europe.

And when it comes, I predict all of us will be happily surprised at the help, friendship and cooperation we will receive from still-freedom-minded although temporarily subjugated Frenchmen.

Reds, Nazis Stories Show Varied Events

Germans Say Several Points Recaptured; Reds Report Bloodshed

LONDON, April 14 (AP)—The Stockholm radio broadcast today said that Marshal Semyon Timoshenko's forces in south Russia had forced a "deep breach" in the German lines 25 miles north of the "rust steel producing city of Khar'kov."

BERLIN (From German Broadcasts), April 14 (AP)—German forces have occupied a large number of localities on the central sector of the Russian front, the Nazi high command communique said today.

The Berlin radio reported earlier that spring thaws "seriously impeded military operations" on the Russian front.

Tank-supported Russian attacks were officially declared to have been beaten back at isolated points. The high command said 176 of the Russians' tread-track vehicles had been put out of action in a four-day period and April 13.

"In the northern sector an enemy fighting group was encircled and annihilated," its communique declared.

German Alpine units were said to have released numerous prisoners in attacks upon southern Soviet bases.

KUIBYSHEV, Russia, April 14 (AP)—Soviet forces have slain 9,000 Germans and destroyed 70 tanks on the Leningrad front from April 1 to 10 and levied fresh tolls upon Nazi sea and air strength, the Russians said today.

Recapture of a "locality of great importance on the northwestern front" and occupation of some additional communities were announced without details in a communique broadcast by the Moscow radio.

A German transport was sunk in the Barents sea Sunday.

The Soviet Indian Ocean base said destruction of 223 German planes last week increased to 1,103 the total shot down or demolished on the ground since March 11, this against a loss of 814 Russian aircraft.

Another communique said a Kalinin front stronghold was seized by the Russians in fighting which cost the Germans 900 killed, eight field guns, 15 machine-guns, a mortar battery, two tanks and eight pillboxes.

Red army men operating behind German lines on the central front wiped out more than 200 of the invaders in a day, it was said.

Japanese Encounter Resistance At Cebu

American-Philippine Forces Outnumbered But Fighting

Nervy—Master Sergeant Harry M. Hayes (above), of San Antonio, Tex., and Capt. Gerald Chermislin of Alameda, Calif., had never taken up a Flying Fortress before, but they patched one up from parts of three damaged ones, and with child refugees stowed in the bomb bay made a flight from Bandoeng in Java to Australia.

WASHINGTON, April 14 (AP)—The war department announced today that American-Philippine forces on the island of Cebu, although greatly outnumbered, were stubbornly resisting the Japanese in heavy fighting.

Communications between Cebu and Corregidor have been reestablished, the department said.

Corregidor was raided four times early today by flights of heavy Japanese bombers, and there were some casualties but only slight damage on military installations.

Both Corregidor and Fort Frank were shelled by enemy batteries from both sides of Manila Bay. Sharp skirmishes were reported in progress in the Digos area of the island of Mindanao, where American-Philippine guerrilla forces have carried out several successful raids against the Japanese in recent days.

There was nothing reported here from Bataan but a Japanese communique declared today that Japanese forces had captured 40,000 prisoners, including 15 generals, from the beginning of the Bataan offensive up to last Sunday.

Of these, it said, 4,700 were United States (as distinguished from native Filipino) troops.

An imminent Japanese attempt to storm Corregidor by night from barges was indicated today in dispatches from the island fortress.

In the last 24 hours Corregidor's guns were reported officially to have sunk a medium-sized Japanese vessel off the Bataan coast, hit two Japanese tank and truck columns operating on the peninsula, and smashed a concentration of Japanese small boats at the fishing village of Mariveles.

Military observers saw in these reports indications the Japanese were making for an assault, probably just before dawn on the first night that rain blanketed the waters between Corregidor and the mainland.

The rainy season starts within the next few days. In the assault the Japanese would be able to come from both the Bataan shore and the Cavite shore of the bay. Troop-carrying barges would be given close support by military patrol craft armed with small cannon. Such patrol boats already have been reported operating in the bay.

Leader Of 'Grey Shirts' Arrested

NEW YORK, April 14 (AP)—The arrest of Hubert Schumacher, 40-year-old self-styled leader of "The Grey Shirts of America," on a charge of failing to register under the selective service act, was announced today by the federal bureau of investigation.

P. E. Foxworth, assistant director of the FBI, who announced the arrest, said that Schumacher, a wealthy industrialist, had distributed pamphlets concerning the Grey Shirt movement since 1935.

Airlines President Made Army Colonel

WASHINGTON, April 14 (AP)—C. R. Smith, president of American Airlines, has been commissioned a colonel in the army air force and called to immediate active duty, the war department disclosed today.

Lord Halifax said he lamented the possibility of over-confidence on the part of the allied nations in their war effort. Realization the allied nations will win the war must be based, he said, on a realistic view that it will be a tough job.

"Americans are fast coming to realize how the job must be done,"

Man Charged In Shooting Of Brummett

MESA, Ariz., April 14 (AP)—Victor F. Smith, 43, Mesa tourist court operator, was held tonight on bond today pending a preliminary hearing before Justice of the Peace R. A. Bird after Smith was charged with murder in connection with the street slaying of Owen Brummett, 19-year-old high school football star, whom Smith accused of attacking his daughter.

Deputy County Attorney Darrell Parker said a statement by Smith admitted the shooting of Brummett, whom he had sought after his 15-year-old daughter returned to the Smith home in tears Sunday night.

The former Big Spring, Tex., youth's body was found by his sister and a soldier escort from near Williams Field.

For the past eight months, Brummett had resided here with his father, J. L. Brummett, who signed the complaint against Smith. His mother, Mrs. Emma Aires, lives in Odessa, Tex., a brother is in the army and five sisters reside in Odessa or Big Spring.

The youth, a senior, was a backfield ace on the Mesa team. His body will be sent to Texas for burial.

Iran Kicks Japanese Diplomats Out

TEHERAN, Iran, April 14 (AP)—Iran severed diplomatic relations with Japan today, cutting off the fountain head of axis propaganda to Islamic neighbors of this allied-occupied Asiatic kingdom on the supply route to Russia and the eastern Mediterranean.

The Iranian (Persian) government notified Japanese Minister Hikotaro Ichikawa that he must leave within a week with his six diplomatic and military attaches.

Officials Of WPB Said To Be Dallying

WASHINGTON, April 14 (AP)—Robert R. Guthrie, former War Production Board official, told senate investigators today that reluctance of certain WPB officials to curtail civilian production had confronted the nation with a wool shortage similar to that existing in rubber.

Testifying at hearings conducted by the committee on request of Donald M. Nelson, WPB chairman, Guthrie said his resignation on March 14 as director of the textiles branch of the agency resulted from a "basic disagreement" with other officials as to the speed with which civilian industry should be converted to war purposes.

Four To Complete Navy Enlistment

Four men left Monday evening for Dallas to complete their enlistment in the U. S. navy. A. H. Walker, assistant in charge of the Big Spring sub-station, said Tuesday.

One, of course, was E. P. Driver, whose departure was announced previously. Joining him as an applicant for naval aviation cadet was Frances Gerard Schaffe, Odessa.

Two other men, Leonard Francis Foster, Midland, and Durwood Marshal Darris, Odessa, enlisted for V-4 as firemen.

Sgt. Troy Gibson's army recruiting office announced that three men had been sent Monday to the Lubbock induction center and that three more were due to be shipped Tuesday evening.

CC Committee Sessions Called

Two committees of the chamber of commerce have been called into session this week.

First will be the aviation committee, which has a joint session with the Civil Air Patrol and private fliers group, to consider results of the state meeting of private fliers held here during the weekend.

Thursday at 3 p. m. there is to be a meeting of the trade extension committee, called by Chairman John W. Davis.

US, British Fliers Strike Back In India

NEW DELHI, India, April 14 (AP)—American and British fliers have struck strong blows in the defense of India, threatened by a Japanese fleet of three battleships, five aircraft carriers and other warships in the Bay of Bengal, smashing 13 big flying boats in the Andaman Islands and attacking an airbase in Burma, it was announced today.

Thirteen flying boats used by the Japanese for long-range scouting, patrol and bombing were sunk, set afire or damaged when the RAF struck 600 miles across the Bay of Bengal and found them anchored in the harbor at Port Blair in the Andamans, potential springboard for an Indian invasion, the British said.

Another communique said the Japanese lost seven aircraft when the indomitable American volunteer group fiercely attacked Japanese raiding an AVG airbase on the northern Shan States in Burma at low level on Friday. Three more Japanese planes were said to have been destroyed by the AVG on Sunday at Toungoo.

At the same time the British announced for the first time in days extensive activity of their own aviation in Burma. They said a heavy attack was made by their Blenheim bombers on Japanese forces in a village north of Frons on Sunday, and that their bombers were working in close support of British land troops.

The British troops in Burma under Gen. Harold Alexander, which with Chinese forces under United States Lt. Gen. Joseph W. Stilwell, are fighting the battle for the land approaches to the Indian frontier, were still retreating, however.

Phonograph Record Manufacture Slashed

WASHINGTON, April 14 (AP)—The war production board issued orders today forcing an immediate 70 per cent reduction in the manufacture of phonograph records and radio transcriptions.

The curtailment was accomplished by reducing the amount of shellac available to producers to 30 per cent of the amount used last year.

Shellac is a necessary in record manufacture, a WPB spokesman explained, and the record industry normally uses about 1-3 of the nation's annual shellac consumption.

Experiments are being pushed, it was said, to find a suitable substitute and reclaiming of old records probably will be attempted.

Patent Pool Accused Of Hindering US

WASHINGTON, April 14 (AP)—A vast patent pool, described as linking the General Electric company in this country with Krupp interests in Germany, was pictured as a war production bottleneck today by John Henry Lewin, special assistant to the attorney general.

The government lawyer presented a mass of 134 exhibits from the justice department anti-trust files before the senate patents committee to support his charges that General Electric and its subsidiaries had entered into a patent pool arrangement with the German interests involving cemented tungsten carbide.

This, Lewin told senators, is a metal-hardening material vital to the machine-tool industry and production of guns, shells, armor-plates, airplanes and many other munitions of war.

"In contrast with the situation in Germany, the present drastic shortage of this essential material in this country is notorious," Lewin said. "The need to produce it, to retool our manufacturing plants with it, and to instruct workmen in the use of such tools had constituted one of the principal bottlenecks in our present production program."

Lewin, appearing at public hearings in a bill that would permit the government to take or license any patents vital to the war effort, said his material was collected for an anti-trust case resulting in indictments in August, 1940 in the southern district of New York.

Clean-Up Of Lots Urged

Clean up the vacant lots around you—see it, do it or have it done. This was the appeal voiced Tuesday by Ralph Linck, member of the Kiwanis club committee named to direct a campaign for cleaning up vacant lots.

It would be impossible for the club to check on all lots, go to the tax rolls and ascertain ownership and make direct appeals to the persons who really ought to keep them clean, he said. Therefore, an appeal was being made directly to residents to assume the responsibility of cleaning the worst spots on adjacent lots.

"People are getting into this clean-up campaign," said Linck. "I talked with Mrs. (Albert) Darby, general clean-up, fix-up chairman, and she said that she made a hurried survey Monday that showed 120 persons cleaning up their lawns."

Marshall Confers With Commando Chiefs

LONDON, April 14 (AP)—Reports reaching London from neutral capitals indicated the German high command was resigned to an impending invasion of Europe by allied forces and afraid the attack would come at a place where it was not expected.

The well-publicized visit of Gen. George C. Marshall, U. S. Army chief of staff, and H. H. Hopkins, advisor to President Roosevelt, has given Berlin an advanced case of jitters which was being assuaged by statements of bravado, these reports showed.

The Berlin correspondent of the Stockholm Democrat reported a German high command spokesman as saying:

"We are expecting an invasion at any time. Let them try it. We are ready."

The correspondent of the Geneva paper La Suisse reported there was "open talk" in Germany about possible British military action in western Europe.

A similar report was heard over the Rome radio last night when the Italians said that Italy already was prepared, and that Canadian troops had been assigned to spearhead the drive, London sources said, however, it was obvious that the Italians had no factual basis for the announcement.

The sum total, however, was that Germany now is suffering a severe "war of nerves," such as she has used so successfully against some of her enemies earlier in the war, expert opinion held.

Meanwhile, General George C. Marshall, U. S. Army chief of staff, conferred several times yesterday with Lord Louis Mountbatten, chief of Britain's hard-hitting commandos, and arranged for further conferences today, it was stated reliably.

Observers noted that Mountbatten, whose appointment as chief of the commandos was disclosed yesterday, is one of Britain's best-known experts on invasion tactics.

When United States troops landed in Northern Ireland, the war was heard in many quarters that they join the invasion-trained commandos and participate in raids on the European continent. There even was speculation that they might be trained as shock landing troops.

Official silence has been maintained, however, on the American objective.

We're Giving As Well As Taking -- U. S. Submarines Take Great Toll

WASHINGTON, April 14 (AP)—Frying on the enemy's vital supply lines regardless of the peril, U. S. submarines, such as the Seawolf, have accounted for approximately one-fourth of all the 215 Japanese ships sunk or damaged by American action since the war began.

Naval observers here were quick to note that the new commander-in-chief of the Pacific fleet, Admiral Chester W. Nimitz, was an old pigboat man and that the increase of submarine successes has been mounting since the supplanting Admiral Husband E. Kimmel. The Japanese radio has been eloquent in implied tribute to Nimitz's ability as an undersea raider.

On several occasions Tokyo has broadcast warnings of American submarines in Japanese waters and the possibility of raids on coastal raids.

The unofficial compilation of the toll taken by American submarines was made after the navy disclosed details of the Seawolf's highly successful cruise. It showed that of 215 enemy vessels sunk, probably sunk or damaged submarines operating from the Indian ocean to the very Japanese coast have been credited with 99 sinkings, 13 probable sinkings and 10 attacks which resulted in damage to the enemy.

The Seawolf's cruise in the Indian ocean was the largest number of successful attacks known to have been made by a single American undersea raider, and naval authorities said that his achievement probably was unmatched in the records of U. S. pigboat operations.

The Seawolf's cruise in the Indian ocean south of the Dutch Indies began late in February and continued throughout March and into early April. In that period of possibly 40 days or more the sub sank a Japanese light cruiser, a destroyer and a large transport and damaged two light cruisers, a large transport and an unidentified ship—seven ships in all.

Moreover the attacks were pressed home against strong enemy resistance and the navy called the cruise "one of the epics of submarine warfare."

The exploits of Lieut. Commander Frederick Hurst Ward, skipper of the Seawolf, who has been recommended for a navy cross, and his men were regarded all the more highly here because it is on submarines that the navy relies heavily in the war of attrition against Japan's communication lines, pending the time when a general offensive by land, sea and air can be started.

Miss Laneous Notes

By MARY WEAVER

This scene might happen to you someday.

Mamma, tell us again how it used to be before the war. You remember, you told us once about automobiles that ran on rubber tires?

And everybody used sugar in their coffee and on deserts. Gee that must have been swell.

Then women wore what they called girdles and had garters to hold up things called silk stockings.

Everybody had silk stockings, too. Wonder how they felt. Never have seen you with a pair of silk stockings Mamma, did you like them?

And Poppa used to play a game called golf. You had to have a bunch of sticks and you hit a little white ball around and tried to get it in a cup.

Poppa says he used to be a "darn good golfer." Could you tell it just to look at him mamma?

That was before the war, I know because I've seen pictures of Poppa when he didn't have a beard. He said he used to get up every morning and shave with what he called razor. Can't imagine Poppa without his beard.

Everybody has out his beard now, I'm glad Poppa's is a nice one.

And tell us again about how women used to change their styles every year so that one year you wore your dresses short and another time you wore them long.

Each year, you had to buy a whole new outfit. My goodness, I'm glad they don't do that now, it must have been awfully expensive.

Just to hear you and Poppa talk about it, it must have been awfully funny to have lived back in 1942.

Silly stockings, girdles, razors, rubber tires, and sugar and all sorts of things like that. It must have been a funny world then!

Pull The Trigger on Constipation, with Ease for Stomach, too

It calls for Laxative-Senna to pull the trigger on those laxy bowels, combined with Syrup Pepsin for perfect ease to your stomach in taking. For years, many Doctors have given peain preparations in their prescriptions to make medicine more agreeable to a touchy stomach. So be sure your laxative contains Syrup

Administration May Reject Program Of Tax Increases

WASHINGTON, April 14 (AP) — The administration was reported today to have decided against asking for drastic new tax increases as a means of combating inflation.

Attempts were under way to compose disagreements among high government officials over a broad program envisioning the freezing of prices, wages, profits and bonuses.

Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau, Jr., was represented by his aides as believing the present $7,600,000,000 tax program was sufficient, that voluntary purchases of war bonds could be stepped up to $11,000,000,000 a year thus absorbing excess purchasing power, and that consumer merchandise should be rationed.

He was understood to be opposed to most of the plans fathered by a group led by Price Administrator Leon Henderson and Marriner S. Eccles, chairman of the Federal Reserve board, who reportedly favor not only a much stiffer tax program but a simultaneous assault on all important inflationary factors as well. This would mean freezing of nearly all wages and prices, compulsory war bond purchases, profit limitations, and general retail credit controls.

President Roosevelt has curbed his engagements to devote as much time as possible to the problem, his solution of which may be outlined in a fireside chat within the next two weeks.

Strong congressional opposition has developed against any new efforts to boost taxes and Chairman George (D-Ge.) of the senate finance committee told reporters it was "highly questionable" whether congress would be willing to go beyond the present program.

Cosden Widens Bowlin League

Cosden bowlers stretched their lead in the classic league to three games Monday night, by taking a 3-1 match from Big Spring Motor while second place Schultz was on the short end of a 3-1 match with Lee Hanson. There are only three weeks to go in league play.

In the other rounds of the night H&R Theatres bested Clay's No-D-Lay by 3-1.

Luke LeBlau was high man for the evening with 652 total pins. Lacy's 219 was the best individual game.

Dempsey May Join The Coast Guard

ST. PAUL, April 14 (AP)—Assisting in a war-bond sale and an auction for the Red Cross at the annual dinner of the twin cities newspaper guild, Jack Dempsey helped 650 guests buy $56,000 worth of war bonds and stamps last night.

Before the dinner, Dempsey revealed he had applied for enlistment in the coast guard and had been offered a lieutenant's commission.

Corley Named As Coach At Oregon

EUGENE, Ore., April 14 (AP)—Assistant Coach Vaughn Corley has been named to succeed Tex Oliver as head football coach of the University of Oregon. Oliver becomes a naval lieutenant commander next week.

Byron Nelson Grabs Masters' Title In Torrid Playoff With Hogan

AUGUSTA, Ga., April 14 (AP)—Byron Nelson, called by such an authority as Tommy Armour the "greatest golfer I ever saw," sported his second Masters' championship today as the winter tour came to an official end and the professionals scattered to their respective home courses to see if they still had any balls and steel-shafted clubs to sell.

The slim, red-faced sharpshooter gathered himself together after taking a nerve-shattering six on the first hole to shoot a great 69 and defeat his old Fort Worth friend, Ben Hogan, by a single stroke in yesterday's play-off for what probably will be the last Masters' tournament until after the war. They had tied at the end of the regulation 72 holes at 280 strokes apiece.

The play-off between these two iron-nerved competitors, who have been battling each other ever since they were caddies, was a corker.

When Hogan won the fourth hole with a par three to three up it looked like it was all over.

But it proved to be only the start of a see-saw struggle that saw Nelson come back and take the lead with a sensational eagle three on the eighth hole—a lead he never relinquished. He was out in 35 to Hogan's 36, and they both blasted home in 24 as a crowd of nearly 2,500 rampaged over the fairways. If one shot could be said to have beaten Hogan toward the end of the epic match, it was when he under-clubbed on the short 16th hole and took a four to Nelson's regulation three. That did it.

When it was over and the money was split—$1,500 to Nelson, $800 to Hogan—the announcement was made that three more great players of another day had been nominated for golf's hall of fame. They were Walter Travis, Jim Barnes and Tommy Armour. This fell a little flat, in view of Armour's defiant pronouncement earlier in the day that Nelson was the best man with the sticks he ever saw.

Dallas Group To Visit City Next Tuesday

With nothing to sell but the idea of unity to win the war, 75 Dallas business executives wearing red, white and blue uniforms will pile off the annual Dallas Goodwill Tour special train here at 11 a. m. Tuesday, April 21.

With them for their stay in Big Spring will be officers of the army, navy, marine corps and army air corps.

Entertainers aboard the special train who will stage a show include the Early Bird orchestra, Cass County Kids, Peg Morland, and the Plainsmen quartette, all from 50,000-watt radio station WFAA.

The members of the Goodwill Tour, the list to be staged by the Dallas chamber of commerce, will

Lubbock Blast Kills Two Men

LUBBOCK, April 14 (AP)—A. L. McDaniel, 37, a mill helper, and J. C. Freeman, 48, a mixer, were killed in a blast that wrecked the Burrus elevators yesterday. Both lived here.

The bodies of both men, mangled in the explosion, were recovered by a rescue squad. They were trapped under tons of broken concrete, rubble and grain that filtered down through the bottoms of the 100-foot bins.

The blast was felt two miles away. Chunks of concrete, some of them weighing two tons, were tossed 300 feet.

Four other workmen in the elevator and four in the office suffered minor injuries.

H. B. Hankins, manager of the plant, said the damage could not be estimated. He added, however, it would be several weeks before operations could be resumed.

The explosion, he asserted, was probably the result of atmospheric conditions.

INJURIES FATAL

DURANT, Okla., April 14 (AP)—Joseph R. Thomas, 54, of Tyler, Tex., died early today of injuries suffered in an automobile crash near Caddo, Okla., late last night, the Oklahoma highway patrol reported.

SPORTS ROUNDUP

By HUGH FULLERTON, JR., Wide World Sports Columnist

NEW YORK, April 14.—The bands may be playing "Take Me Out to the Ball Game" today, but it's our hunch that before the season ends the tune will be "There'll Be Some Changes Made." . . . Baseball's first test blackout is scheduled in Cleveland May 22, when the Browns play a night game at the stadium. It probably won't seem like much of a novelty to the Browns. . . . The Newark International league club plans to start week-day games at 4 p. m. instead of 3, so the departing crowds won't interfere with the 5 p. m. factory traffic. . . . Vic Devincenzi, head of the Oakland club, suggests week-end baseball for the Pacific Coast league with the players working on defense jobs the other five days. . . . That's the way they're running football in England.

Today's Guest Star

Arch Ward, Chicago Tribune: "The situation is normal in baseball, despite the war. . . . Fifteen major league managers are predicting that their club will finish in the first division. . . . The 18th is Joe McCarthy, and you know how he feels."

One-Minute Sports Page

Tony Galento has been shopping around for training quarters. . . . Wonder if he's thinking of a comeback or merely had decided he must be in better shape to referee razzing matches.

Sportsmention

When the Red Sox landed in Boston during a snowstorm, Dom DiMaggio remarked that it was the first time he ever had seen snow so naturally falling. . . . Joe Cronin offered to introduce him to the novelty of shoveling. . . . Tulsa Makes It 2 Straight Over Dallas

By The Associated Press

Tulsa, the people's choice, has two wins and no losses in the Texas league chase after trouncing the Dallas Rebels for the second time in two starts, 4 to 2.

The Oilers jumped on Joe DeMoran yesterday for three runs in the first and second innings. Otho Nitcolous went in and pitched masterfully for Dallas, but the game was already lost.

Byron Humphreys pitched five-hit ball for Tulsa while his mates were getting twelve hits.

That left Dallas on the bottom with two losses; the other teams squared themselves yesterday and now have one loss and one win each.

The Houston Buffs evened their series with the Beaumont Exporters by winning 6 to 5 after knocking Earl Cook out of the box in the third inning with five runs.

Shreveport's win at San Antonio came in the eighth when, with the score 2 to 2, Vernon Washington tripped two aboard. The game ended 4 to 2.

The With two threats in the ninth and Mancuso was safe on an error. But Jerry Witte, batting for Lucas, was called out on a third strike to end the game.

Oklahoma City evened their series with Fort Worth, winning 6 to 4 as pitchers Hugo Kleauner and Clay Touchstone held the Cats to five hits, one of which was Chuck Baron's homer with nobody on.

Gil Braker, who hit a homer and two doubles in Sunday's opener, had a double and three singles in the second game. The Indian outfielder scored twice and batted in two more runs.

Today's games:

Tulsa at Fort Worth, night.

Oklahoma City at Dallas, night.

Shreveport at San Antonio, night.

Beaumont at Houston, night.

War Situation Will Be Felt At All Parks

NEW YORK, April 14 (AP)—This is the day that business men neglect their business and office boys beg off for grandmother's funeral. It's major league baseball's opening day.

Unless the weather intervenes, all 16 teams move off together this afternoon, with something like 200,000 fans in the stands.

Facing their first wartime season since 1918, the 67th annual national league campaign and the 62nd for the American circuit open in the most unusual setting in the history of baseball.

The war failed to interfere with the country's national sport because President Roosevelt bade the game go on. But the customers will have a hard time forgetting that the United States is at war.

Air raid precautions will be observed day and night at most of the major league parks. Signs and arrows will tell the fans which way to go to be safe from bombardment—information that might also be helpful to visiting pitchers in places like Yankee stadium.

Barrels of water, bins of sand and other paraphernalia will be found in strategic places. And if some clubs don't perform better than they did in spring training, they may find the customers turning to the sand piles for amusement.

The 1941 champions of both the leagues open on foreign fields. The New York Yankees, owners of the American league and world series crown, start their drive for the sixth pennant in seven years against the Washington Senators in the nation's capital.

Red Ruffing, veteran ace of the Yank hurling staff, and young Sid Hudson of the Senators will be the starting pitchers.

President Roosevelt, who has missed only one opener since his first inauguration more than nine years ago, has not indicated whether he would throw out the first ball.

Baseball's contribution to the war effort is exemplified at Detroit, where a Cleveland team without Bob Feller makes its first start under young Les Boudreau against a Detroit team without Hank Greenberg.

The Indian mound ace and the Tiger slugger, like more than 60 other major leaguers, are on a bigger team, managed by Uncle Sam.

At Chicago, the White Sox start unwrapping their pitching finery against the St. Louis Browns.

Connie Mack's Philadelphia Athletics, tagged for a repeat performance in the cellar despite an overhauling job, are at Boston to open against the Red Sox.

The Brooklyn Dodgers, bolstered by the addition of such players as Arky Vaughan, Augie Galan and Johnny Rizzo to their pennant stars of 1941, begin their bid against a New York Giant crew that has spiked up with Johnny Mize, Bill Werber, Hank Leiber and a host of promising rookies.

The St. Louis Cardinals, picked by most experts to dethrone the defending champs, open at home against the Chicago Cubs.

The Pittsburgh Pirates and their revamped lineup are at Cincinnati, opening against a crew of Reds that has been in a batting slump

Organization Of Softball Started

Groundwork for organizing softball leagues here this season was effected at a meeting of several representatives Monday evening.

Lack for a quorum necessary to take formal action limited the party to a series of discussions, but H. F. Malone, city-WPA recreation supervisor, said that understandings were reached which would permit complete organization at the next meeting, to be called within two weeks.

Among matters discussed were limiting play this season to one game per week per team. Formerly some teams played two and sometimes as high as three games a week when making up for lost time. Now with defense activities making new demands upon the public, it was felt wise to limit the number of games to be played each week.

Slow league representatives also went on record as opposing the use of "fast league" twirlers, because they contended the slow loop was one for hitters and fielders.

Tentatively, it was agreed that there would be two games per evening, one to start at 7:30 p. m. and to be played in the twilight; the other to start around 9 p. m. under the lights.

Among representatives attending the session were Tommy Robertson (Big Spring Motor), McCright, Vernon Whitlington and W. D. Carnett (ABC Club), Doyle Vaughn and Squeaky Thompson (Vaughn's Bakery). Others expected to come in are Quick Lunch, the city, Boy Scout Troop No. 3, the Lions club, a Mexican team, Big Spring State Hospital Employees and possibly the Sea Scouts.

Does OK In Golf With Only One Leg

SAN ANTONIO, April 14 (AP)—All this stuff about even distribution of weight on both feet being necessary to obtain perfect balance and thus improve your golf shots will bring a grin from Herman Hall.

Herman shoots consistently in the low 80's, has been in the 70's and once clipped off a 65.

Yet he has only one leg.

Hall, 54, took up golf five years ago. Two years later he lost his left leg in an automobile accident at San Antonio.

In nine months he was playing golf again. He shot a 50 on the first nine in his initial try after the accident.

Hall found crutches impossible on the links. So he just threw them aside and perfected his balance until he was able to swing without falling.

Can he hit that ball? Well, he drives 225 yards and is great on approach shots. Sand traps have no terrors for him.

Alsab Looks Good While He's Losing

HARVE DE GRACE, Md., April 14 (AP)—For a colt that hasn't been able to win a race this year, Alsab looked today like a mighty good bet to run away with the heavy sugar in Kentucky Derby.

Alsab went down to his fifth straight defeat in the Chesapeake trial yesterday but made such an impressive effort that many in the crowd of 12,000 tabbed him as the horse to beat in the big race at Churchill Downs May 2. Trainer Sarge Swenke sent Mrs. Albert Sabath's colt postward well rested and about 75 pounds heavier than he was after the Florida campaign, in which the 1941 juvenile champion apparently went stale.

And Alsab served notice with a great stretch finish that he is on the comeback trail.

R. Sterling Clark's Colchis beat him by a neck in the six-furlong race run in 1:12 3-5. Colchis has not nominated for the Derby.

Tigers Defeat State Hospital Softballers

The Mexican Tiger team defeated the Big Spring State Hospital ten by a 4-1 count in a softball game played Monday night. Carlos "Lefty" Roman of the Tigers pitched a fine game, allowing only three scattered hits, striking out five and walking only two. He also contributed heavily in the offense, getting a home run and a double.

The score by innings:

Hospital	100	000	0-1	3	1
Tigers	108	000	2-4	6	1

since winning the 1940 world series.

At Philadelphia, the Phils and the Boston Braves begin a battle that is expected to last all season and land the two of them in the bottom positions in the standings.

New Pipeline Service Put In Final Shape

WASHINGTON, April 14 (AP)—Petroleum Coordinator Ickes announced today that the oil industry had made plans for digging up and re-laying 1,400 miles of oil pipelines from East Texas producing fields to Mississippi river points to relieve the oil shortage on the Atlantic seaboard.

Ickes said the plan for the vast relief system had reached "the final action stage." The projects were proposed by the temporary joint pipeline subcommittee representing the oil industry in the east coast, the gulf coast and middle west districts.

Ralph K. Davies, deputy coordinator, said the plan contemplated digging up unused pipelines and others for which substitutes could be found and re-laying them from the fields to the river. He said the plan contemplated also installation of large quantities of used tankage and pumping equipment. Under the plan, oil would be piped to Mississippi river points where it would be moved eastward by pipeline, tank cars and river barges.

"From an examination of the report of the joint pipeline subcommittee," Davies said, "it is apparent to the coordinator's office that most of the projects proposed can and should be undertaken at once so that the work may be completed and the facilities placed in operation at the earliest possible date."

"The detailed engineering report should be available within the next few days. As soon as we get it, the office of petroleum coordinator stands ready to assist in any way possible to expedite completion of the recommended projects."

The committee recommended 10 projects be undertaken but did not indicate their location except that they were from the East Texas fields eastward.

Had 600 Yard Swim -- Sailor On Arizona Wounded, Goes Back Into Pearl Harbor Battle

Could you haul off and swim through a seething mass of water covered with blasting oil for a distance roughly from the Settles hotel to the high school? Brooks J. Johnson, Jr., who was aboard his ship—the Arizona—at Pearl Harbor when the Japs struck, did it, and thought little of it.

Pedestrian Control Favored By Local Safety Council

Jay-walking needs to be curbed and stopped in Big Spring if the city is really to be safe, the Big Spring Safety Council reiterated in its regular monthly meeting Monday.

In this same connection, the council went on record as recommending to the city commission for consideration the matter of stenciling slogans on intersection corners to remind pedestrians that they were to "Wait here for signal light." The signs, members thought, might overcome the tendency for folks to wait almost in the middle of the street for lights to change.

Editorial -- Recreational Effort Must Be Coordinated

Before long recreation is going to be one of our major problems. How to handle it is as big as the problem itself. Other communities have found that basically there are two sides to the matter in those where army schools or camps have been installed—on the one hand, the construction of the facilities, and another during its period of operation.

Experience also has shown that while certain mechanics perform wonders here and there, that the real difficulty has been in coordinating effort. It is to the credit of the American people that they have set to do something to help. They want to do something here to entertain the influx of population. But unless there is some central council or some responsible coordinating agency functioning, we will witness a maelstrom of confusion that shutouts at the objective and hits hits.

Of necessity we will be flooded with new people for haste and larger numbers of workers. Some will bring families some noon. Some will warm to one type of entertainment, some to another. Churches can step in to meet some needs, the city-WPA others, clubs, theatres, the parks, golf courses, baseball teams, etc. Still others. All of these need to have an idea what the other will be trying to do. Conflicts will be avoided and the entire program made more effective.

For the second phase, it should be considered that the physical type of entertainment will be handled in a measure by the army program for those in the service. Social entertainment will be a big community job in this direction. And we still will be faced with the need of providing recreation for the hundreds and hundreds of civilian personnel.

It will be no small matter, and consequently one in which we cannot afford to flounder aimlessly with good intentions as our chief reason. We need unity of purpose and action to get results, and we need to get ready before we are bewildered by sudden realization that here the big job is all around us.

Secret Orders

BY ELEANOR ATTERBURY

Chapter Eight
CONFLICT

Kurt was waiting for them at the entrance of the Officers' Club. "Hello, everybody aren't you nice come?" he said and Stephanie imagined for a moment that he was saying it directly to her.

But then Vicky spoke up. "Aren't you nice to ask us to come?" she said and Stephanie imagined for a moment that he was saying it directly to her.

Stephanie just went on smiling while she prayed her own thrilled statement didn't show.

Kurt took them first into the lounge where officers and their guests hovered around the fire burning briskly in the great stone fireplace.

"Want you to meet some of my men?" Kurt said and introduced several young officers and their pretty wives.

Stephanie acknowledged introductions automatically while her mind was busy with details of Kurt's easy charm, the very obvious devotion some of the men had for him. And from all directions he was hailed with hearty greetings, or flatteringly charming smiles. Not that Vicky wasn't doing her all to intercept his attention, and keep it riveted on herself.

And Stephanie noticed, she wasn't doing a bad job either. Vicky knew all the angles. She would maintain a sparkling stream of light chatter apparently indefinitely and keep everyone laughing, watching her pretty gestures. While her tongue-tied cousin stood stupid as an owl, Stephanie berated herself silently.

She sat next to Kurt at dinner. But with Vicky on his right, Kurt might as well have been in the next county. Stephanie forced an animated conversation with Henri about bass fishing on the upper bay about which she knew little and cared less. And then Kurt did murmur, under the cover of general conversation.

"Haven't you even a word to throw my way, or are you going to talk to him about boats and sail all evening?"

Stephanie heard the smile in his voice but she didn't dare look up at the wanton hunger in her eyes. So she buttered a bit of roll deliberately.

"Better to talk about bait than to swallow it," she flipped and then could have bitten her tongue out. It sounded so sarcastic.

He looked at her quickly—a little flicker of scorn from the corner of his eye. "Some bait's pretty tempting," he said coolly and then smiled as a "lids" color spread into Stephanie's cheeks and the bit of roll caught in her throat.

Torment

Choking, she gulped water frantically. But it burst forth noisily, attracting everyone's attention and making Stephanie's flushed cheeks a stream of helpless tears.

Kurt, patting her back gently, finally drew her to her feet, led her out of the dining room into an open court beyond.

"What's all this? If you'd been trying to swallow something that was good for you, yourself?" he teased a moment later when her coughing had subsided a little.

"I'm sorry," she gasped dragging at her breath. "Embarrassed to have made—such a scene."

He laughed. "Forget that." And pulling her hand through his arm. "Let's walk out here. Give you time to get your breath and—" he glanced down at her with wide eyes. "Your nose powdered?"

"Will mopping at her eyes and not at all sure that the tears were coming from the coughing, Stephanie fought hard for control.

"It's lovely out here," she managed finally as they walked through the gardens toward the tiled pool twinkling in the moonlight.

"See our new swimming pool before?" Kurt asked as they stood looking down into its mysterious shadows.

"No. It looks wonderful." "Will you try it some day?" "I'd love to."

"Good." Then with a slow smile. "Maybe I'll have a chance to rescue you from drowning. Or—do you swim better than you drive automobiles?"

"If you don't stop talking about that accident, I'll—I'll—"

"You'll what?" he prompted, watching her from behind a wide grin.

Stephanie faced him, chin up. "I'll think up some horrible torture for you—like—"

Hands grasping her elbows, he suddenly drew her toward him. "You needn't do that."

"Why not?"

"Because you're almost unbearable torment for me right now."

Started at the sudden fierceness of his grasp, Stephanie watched a stern gravity replace his smile, saw his blue eyes go black with a strange new passion.

"You know that, didn't you, Stephanie?" he said after a moment of silence that pulled down old barricades between them.

Stephanie, not trusting her tongue, shook her head. Then felt her heart stop as she saw in his eyes what he was going to say.

"You're everything a man could want in a girl, Stephanie Merrill. You're sweet, you're pretty, you're real. It would be the easiest thing in the world to fall in love with you."

Not daring to breathe, Stephanie waited, her pride shackling arms that wanted to creep around his neck. Because somewhere deep inside a warning fear percolated.

Kurt's next words justified that warning.

"You're the one girl in the world I'd hoped I would never meet."

"But—why?" Stephanie gasped.

For a long moment, his eyes searched her face in the silvery light. "In a flyer's life there is no place for a woman."

Lady Eagle

Stephanie reached for lightness to cover the terrible hurt that stabbed deep. "Not even the 'one girl in the world'?" She tried hard to send a little laugh after that but the sound broke in her throat like a sob.

"Not even the one girl, Stephanie." He released her slowly. "Women naturally want to put down roots. A flyer can't."

She shrugged, a little masterpiece of coyness. "After all, even eagles have nests."

He laughed then, the seriousness gone, the beater returned to his voice. "Right you are. But somehow I don't think I could be so deeply attached to a lady eagle!"

Stephanie laughed too and it helped her over the next few moments.

"A flyer is always a little bawmy, you know," he went on, drawing her hands through his arms. He strolled back toward the Club. "That's proven by my thinking that maybe if I hung around long enough, I could make you like me a little."

Stephanie's mind threw a cord around her rioting emotions. "Maybe—a little," she managed lightly.

"And then every time I took a plane up, I'd break a little part of your heart. Until, watching your life become continual worry, I'd know I'd given a hostage to fortune and I'd have to choose between my life and yours."

"Smart boy," she said, chin up, smile steady. "But since I'm not really interested in men who have propellers where their hearts ought to be, suppose you take me back to Henri?"

Kurt scowled. "If I must have

Let Us Forget Pearl Harbor— Men On Bataan Give America Right To Hold Head High In Pride Again

By DOROTHY THOMPSON

Let us not, as Winston Churchill said after Dunkirk, regard a disastrous defeat as a victory. We have lost Bataan, and with it America's major battle to date. The men who struggled there made the Japanese pay dearly, and all that weakens the enemy aids us in the long run. Therefore those who fought at Bataan did not fight in vain.

They faced a force six times their number. They fought with-out adequate ammunition, and they were exhausted by hunger. At the farthest outpost of America, they were surrounded by the enemy in the sea, in the air, and from the nearest land bases. There was no supply line to them. They were in an infinitely worse position than the men at Tobruk, which could be reached by ships. They fought, to be brief, for a lost cause.

That is to say, their cause, their particular battle, their individual and corporate lives were forfeit. Not the cause, the corporate cause, the greater life, the future victory. They gave their lives that others might live; endured defeat that others might win. They kept the faith.

And how far we have come, because of them.

Because of them, we can read General MacArthur's words without the slight embarrassment that great words have hitherto caused in us. Six months ago such words would have seemed overblown, so vast their disproportion to the mediocre level of our thinking and the even lower level of our feeling. General MacArthur said, "Nothing became them more than their last hour of trial and agony."

Their conduct was becoming to men; it was becoming to Americans. And the extent to which we, the civilians at home, can share in the dignity which their suffering courage sheds upon us as a people, is the extent of our realization of it, in all our thoughts and instincts and deeds.

"It is for us the living rather to be dedicated here to the unfinished work which they who fought here have thus far so nobly advanced."

The tremendous words of the Gettysburg speech, rattled off so easily in school rooms for a generation, suddenly come alive.

Comes alive again, in our hearts, that quality of feeling that except for courage, the parent of all virtue, is the highest mark of the noble spirit: Gratitude.

For by them, at Bataan, we are ennobled. Every American who wishes to be ennobled—who accepts for himself, the gift of their heroism.

The other day they were careless young Americans, no better or no worse, probably, than all Americans of their generation. They played baseball and went to the movies, read the comics, voted for Roosevelt or Wilkie.

Certainly none of them wanted war, and maybe some of them marched in peace parades.

They were just like the rest of us.

But now they are not just like the rest of us. For they met a challenge, and in meeting it became much more than themselves; they became fully men. And in becoming fully men, they became Man. They became Man as man conceives himself in the most profound depths of his being to be—as something more than flesh and blood and all its fears and frustrations, weaknesses and yearnings. Without expressing it in all words, they expressed the deepest realization of the human race: that he who loveth his life shall lose it, and that he who loseth it can gain it—can gain it in the greater life of Man and God.

MacArthur dared to say this: "The sacrifice and halo of Jesus of Nazareth has descended upon them and God will take them unto himself."

The fight at Bataan was an act of redemption—redemption for a rival, why pick on a stuffed shirt like that? I don't approve of—"

Coolly, Stephanie asked, "Must I have your approval?"

Kurt's anger, his scorn, his hatred even—anything but this cool indifference, this reasoning her out of his life. "Treating love as if it were something you could pigeon-hole and forget about."

Searching frantically, her eyes found Henri, beckoned him. And, desperate lest her pride prove too weak for her rebellious heart, she held out her hand to Henri before she went down on her knees to Kurt.

manhood. Our men did not fight for Empire. They fought side by side with the Filipinos for their freedom and for ours.

And our debt can only be paid in increased devotion to the cause for which they gave the last full measure of their devotion.

"Under this people," and the world, "and God shall have a new birth of freedom."

The extent to which we comprehend the fullest glory of the fight at Bataan, is the exact extent to which the fight will prove to have been justified. Nothing less than our soldiers' obedience and their devotion is demanded of each of us. Who can grumble at discomfort, remembering them; or worry about his profits or his wages, remembering them?

Only those who are not worthy of them. Only those for whom they suffered, died, and endure captivity in vain.

They fought their hopeless cause that the will of America might be steered; the spirit of America might be inflamed; the love for America might be intensified; the Faith in our Cause rise in our hearts to the standard set by them. They died that our pride and faith and love might live.

They redressed our humiliation at Pearl Harbor. They washed it out in their own sweat and blood and hunger. They made themselves immortal, that our cause might take on immortality.

Let us forget Pearl Harbor and remember Bataan.

Life's Darkest Moment

Man About Manhattan -- Actress Finds New Use For Dogs

By GEORGE TUCKER

NEW YORK—Katharine Cornell, who has three dachshunds, thinks dogs are important to an actress on tour.

"You have to exercise them, and that makes you get out and walk instead of remaining shut up in hotel rooms. As much as I've traveled, I think I know the parks of the country better than its hotels. I've walked in the principal parks of almost every major city in America, and I've often thought how worthwhile an article called 'By Their Parks Ye Shall Know them' would be. You can tell a lot about a city by the way it keeps its parks."

The three dachshunds were rolling about the floor, and Miss Cornell identified them as (1) the Old Man, (2) the Old Man's Son, (3) and the Old Man's Wife. The Old Man didn't do much rolling. He lay in a relaxed heap and stared contentedly into Miss Cornell's face. The Old Man's Son soon found a comfortable spot at the foot of the divan upon which Miss Cornell was sitting. But the Old Man's Son's wife could not relax. She was excited and she voiced this excitement in intermittent staccato of little yelps and cries.

I found Miss Cornell in what she described as "an empty pocket." That is, she didn't know what was going to happen next. She had opened on the road in a play called "Rose Burke" which she planned to bring to New York. "But it never came alive," she said. "Somehow, it just wasn't there," so reluctantly, she gave up the idea of a Broadway opening. It isn't often—in fact, it hasn't happened more than once or twice since the days of "Little Women" that Katharine Cornell hasn't had her mind pretty definitely made up on what she is going to do next. She has always had a number of plays in mind. At the moment, there isn't a thing in sight she would like to do.

But if the play was a disappointment, the tour from which she has just returned was not altogether uneventful. . . . In San Francisco, for instance—she ran into—Pearl Harbor. The Japs struck without warning, and when the San Francisco blackout came it caught Miss Cornell in bed. It was raining outside, and suddenly all hotel lights went out. She had to rise and dress in the dark, collect her three dogs, and make her way to the theatre under conditions that seemed more like the second act of a melodrama than an interlude out of real life.

That night the 200 or so people who were near enough to get to the theatre through the blackout participated in a little get-together with the Cornell company that was novel. The theatre doors were thrown open and Miss Cornell asked them all to come down and sit in any seat they chose. They all crowded close to the stage, and then the curtain went up. "Those people were the finest audience I've ever seen, and we gave one of our best performances. When it was over they cheered. It was something I will never forget."

Hollywood Sights And Sounds -- Wherein Three Actors Burn At Once

By ROBBIN COONS

HOLLYWOOD—To see an outraged actor burn is no uncommon sight in Hollywood. To see a trio of peaceful players nearly burned up is something new again. It happened under canvas, on what is known at Paramount as the "A" tank, where water scenes are usually shot: the forest fire for "The Forest Rangers," a movie in color with Paulette Goddard, Fred MacMurray and Susan Hayward.

It was real, hot fire they used, and how they kept from burning down the tank, or the whole studio, only the little coterie of fire experts, firemen, and precaution-takers will ever know.

Paulette had been through her fiery work already, and today's involved MacMurray, the fiery-topped Miss Hayward, and Regis Toomey, somehow Toomey had landed his plane in a postage stamp clearing to rescue the other two. Quite a feat, considering the canvas, but Toomey is quite a fellow, and you couldn't doubt for a minute that he'd take it off again, safely, over the painted precipice. Not if you'd read the script, you couldn't.

Director George Marshall had taken his troupe up to Santa Cruz on location, and last year a color camera crew had found a roaring 250-acre forest flare-up near Lakeview, Ore., for long shots. These were the close-ups. To get them they:

Hauled on to "A" tank's floor truckloads of dirt, planted it with ferns and scattered pine needles. Hauled down from Big Bear and Arrowhead a "forest" of pines, firs and brush. Laid gas pipes under the dirt to strategize points.

Soaked certain trees and bushes with gasoline. Hung wire baskets full of excelsior overhead for falling ashes.

At a signal from Marshall the fire broke out. Torches were touched to the piped gas, to the soaked trees, to the hanging baskets. Wind machines roared (to keep flames from spreading the wrong way) and smoke pots belched into the foreground. In two seconds there was a nice little inferno for MacMurray and Susan to dash through—fire around them but only the ashes and smoke in their path.

Suddenly the whole rear of the stage roared into flame, a back-drop of fire crackling through acres of forest giants—starting until you recalled those background shots from Lakeview, Ore., here being combined with the close-up.

After the MacMurray-Hayward dash, assisted by Pilot Toomey,

Marshall called "Cut!" and the fire was doused. The trees got water, the burning brush got smothered under mats, the actors got out for air.

But what I noticed just then was one of those signs you see around studios.

This one said: "No Smoking."

Nylon Takes Place Of Silk In Currency

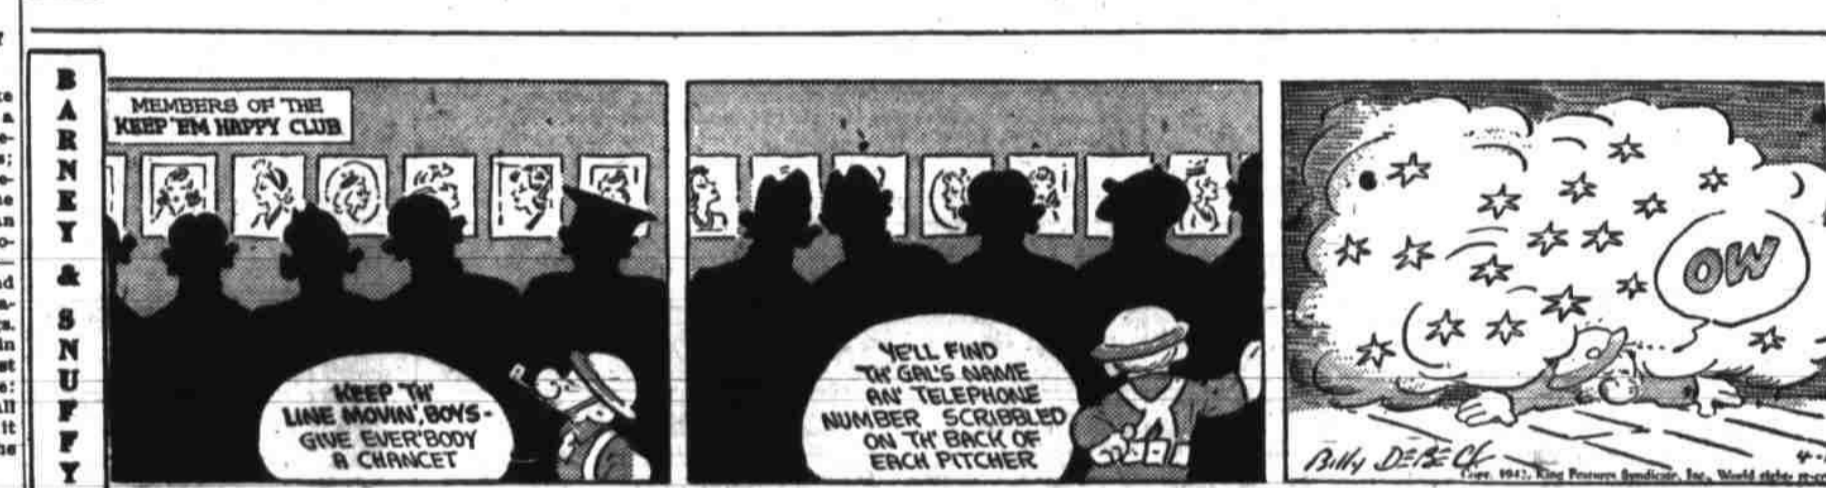

WASHINGTON, April 14. (AP)—Got any nylon money?

Treasury officials disclosed today that currency printed on paper containing nylon instead of silk was put into test circulation a few days ago but no one seems to have spotted it.

The first batch of the 100 per cent homemade brand of American money was distributed through the Philadelphia federal reserve bank as a test to determine whether it wore as well as the old kind.

General circulation of the new brand, however, must wait until the stock of silk-threaded paper is used up.

Secret service agents doubt whether anything but a chemical analysis would show the difference between the new and the old.

3,500 Attend Gail Celebration

Estimates of attendance ranged up to 3,500 as the fourth annual 4-H livestock show and Borden county homecoming event was staged Monday at Gail.

George Ledbetter had the top calf of the show, selling it to the Snyder National bank at 21 cents per pound for the 840-pound animal.

Exhibition of the reserve animal was Gerald Buchanan, who had his 790-pound calf in the recent Big Spring district show. Claude Hubert, Lubbock, bought it at 18 cents a pound. Gerald also placed first in a group of three calves in the lightweight division and second and fifth in the heavy-weight division.

Other activities included horse races, roping and rodeo events, topped by a rousing barn dance that ran into the wee hours Tuesday.

Long-Distance Birthday Party

ASHTABULA, Ohio.— Coast Guardsman John Ritonen was on duty at New London, Conn., but the fact didn't stop his parents from celebrating his 24th birthday here. Mr. and Mrs. Ritonen invited coast guardsmen from the Ashtabula station by long distance telephone.

Not Wheat but Milk and Eggs

In 1918 wheat headed the list of farm products needed for national defense purposes. In today's emergency, however, the emphasis is on foods such as milk and eggs. There is plenty of wheat on hand—in fact, nearly a two year's supply is stored in the nation's Ever-Normal Granary. The U. S. Department of Agriculture urges that farmers, in planning for next year, hold down production of surplus crops such as wheat and at the same time expand production of defense foods needed today.

Blankenship Tells Needs Of Education

"Eternal vigilance," said W. C. Blankenship in an address before the Rotary club today, "is not only the price of liberty, but it also is the price of peace."

In his talk, "Education for Life and Death," Blankenship declared that he was more apprehensive about the formulation of the peace to come than the outcome of the war, for he felt that ultimately democratic allies would prevail in the test of arms.

Basically, he looked upon education as the contributory factor in all life. If we educate falsely, unwisely or inadequately, we may educate for shorter life or even death, he contended.

Tracing the history of education in the nation, he set out the seven cardinal principles of health, the three Rs, home membership, vocational, civic education, use of leisure time and ethical character and argued that these constituted things more important than money.

"We won the last war," he said, "but we lost the peace because we were more interested in money and trade than in securing the rights of all." Protection of rights of all people, regardless of race and creed, irrespective of rank and station, to the end that justice shall prevail should be the objective for the next peace, asserted Blankenship.

Guests at the club included the Rev. J. O. Haynes, Abilene; Jim Friend, Fort Worth, and T. B. Adkins, who voiced the Kiwanis club plea to clean up vacant lots.

YOUR SCRAP IRON WILL HELP WIN THE WAR

Here 'n There

G. W. Frier, general manager of the Snowwhite Creameries, was in Big Spring Monday to confer with the local manager, Jim Kinsey, on plans for remodeling the plant here at 404 East Third street. Frier said his company was making plans to keep Dairyland products and service up to the high standards demanded by increased business which might result from the local air school. Snowwhite has plants in San Angelo, Big Spring, Pecos and Midland.

Police are investigating the loss of money taken from a lock box at the Herald office during the weekend. The amount missed was reported in excess of $100.

Judge J. E. Garlington, who has about 300 acres of small grain along the Howard-Borden county line, figures this has an excellent chance of being another bumper year for small grains. His wheat, of which he has about 260 acres, stands to make a real yield with another rain early in May. Currently it is beginning to stand up and soon will be jointing rapidly.

Add to the wonders column: A group actually is doing something about its part in clean-up week. The Kiwanis club is making an effort to see that speakers appear at every meeting of a service club this week to appeal for clean-up of vacant lots. Now it appears that other organizations, which accepted jobs, may be spurred into action by this development.

Ship Survivors Ask More Sea Service

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., April 14 (AP)—Sixty-eight survivors from two torpedoed United States merchant vessels have reached safety here and many already are planning to head back as soon as possible to the sea they escaped.

Twenty others are dead or missing and given up for lost in the sinkings which were announced by the navy today. Both were "off the Atlantic coast." Of the missing and dead, 19 were from one of the ships, a medium-sized vessel with a crew of 48. The other craft, a small commercial ship, lost only one man from a crew of 40.

Two torpedoes smashed into the larger ship on the night of April 10 and the submarine surfaced to fire five or six shells into the sinking hulk. The other vessel was struck by a single torpedo early on the morning of April 9. No effort was made to shell the survivors in either case and they were picked up within a few hours.

Franklin Roosevelts Take New Apartment

NEW YORK, April 14 (AP)—New people are moving into a Washington Square apartment today, but old residents are not speculating "what will the new neighbors be like?"

They know. The new neighbors are the Franklin D. Roosevelts. Mrs. Roosevelt was up early this morning, supervising the moving of furniture from the former Roosevelt home at 47 East 85 street to the new apartment at 29 Washington Square West, in Greenwich Village.

Woody, son of Mr. and Mrs. A. D. Woody, serving in the army somewhere in the Philippines. Each one present signed their names to the letters.

Those present at the celebration were Mr. and Mrs. A. D. Woody of Lamesa, Mr. and Mrs. L. W. Woody of Lina, Mrs. E. A. Woody, Hope and Maurice of Lina, Mr. and Mrs. John M. Britain's Budget Over 21 Billions

LONDON, April 14 (AP)—Britain's total expenditures for the new fiscal year were estimated today at 5,296,000,000 pounds ($1,344,000,000) by the chancellor of the exchequer, Sir Kingsley Wood, who declared in presenting the new budget that United States lend lease aid to this country now is running at the rate of $400,000,000 monthly.

The estimated expenditures mark an all-time high for Britain and an increase over last year's actual spending of $10,000,000 pounds ($2,040,000,000), the chancellor said.

The budget was for the new fiscal year started April 1.

Debt Adjustment Aide To Visit

Peter F. Murray, Lubbock, district farm debt adjustment supervisor for FSA, is due here Thursday with the Howard county board on farm debt adjustment.

In addition to these discussions, the board also may go into the matter of farm tenure, which is considered to be the root of many of farm financing problems.
