Panhandle Transit . . .

Service Is For Everyone

by Jean Ann Behney

Panhandle Transit, a division of Panhandle Community Services, has come to Spearman. Pearl Pierce, Golden Spread Senior Citizen Center director, announced that Spearman residents can call 659-3866 to arrange for transportation within Spearman and to nearby towns.

"We have a new driver just hired by Bob Wharton of Panhandle Transit and a 1985 Chevro-let station wagon," Pierce said. "Anyone needing rides to the local doctors' offices, the grocery store or anywhere else can take advantage of this new service."

Spearman resident Linda Butt is the driver of the Panhandle Transit vehicle, and will be based at the Golden Spread Center. The transportation service will be available Monday through Friday, from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. Rides will cost 50 cents each way per trip.

According to Pierce, who, incidentally, serves on the Board of Directors of Panhandle Community Services, this new service is available to everyone, not just the elderly and handicapped. "Before this, the only transportation we could offer people was the Perryton-based transit that goes limited to medical appointments." to Amarillo on Monday, Wednesday, and Friday," explained Pierce. The Perryton van was also used on Wednesdays in Spearman when she could get it.

She said the Amarillo service will continue to be available but added that it is specifically designated for the elderly, the handicapped and those on medicaid who need transportation to medical facilities and social service appointments in Amarillo.

Pierce emphasized that Spearman's transit service is not limited to any groups or local destinations and added that transportation can also be arranged for trips to Gruver, Dumas, Perryton and Pampa for medical appointments. Out-of-town trips will cost seven cents per mile, with medicaid patients riding for free. Driver Butt will keep odometer readings for each person riding out of town.

"What we can't do is transport Gruver people to Spearman or Spearman people to Gruver to shop at stores." commented Pierce. "We do not want to take business away from a town. That's why the out-of-town rides are for a business that might want to buy them to give away to cust-tomers," she commented.

Panhandle Transit is funded by the Department of Human Services, HUD and other government groups. This service branch of Panhandle Community Services will maintain Spearman's vehicle and pay for its gas. The Texas Highway Department recently gave Panhandle Community Services a quarter of a million dollars in grant monies. This enabled the Panhandle Transit to provide vehicles to other counties and to reduce its Perryton-to-Amarillo shuttle fee from 25 cents a mile to

First Grade Class Studies Indians

by Cindy Clyburn First Grade Teacher

My first grade class has been studying Indians. For an at-home project the students made model teepees and brought them to school. We have studied how Indians used buffalo, what painting their face meant, what feathers were given for, and what different cuts on the feathers

Mrs. Gable came to school and painted our faces, Mrs. Freeman came to school and helped the children make Indian Fry Bread, and Mr. Freeman came up and made a big teepee that the children sit inside to read.

All the students painted Indian designs on the teepee. We made headbands and have earned feathers for good deeds and

Computers Benefit Businesses, People

by Jean Ann Behney

With the recent computerization of the Spearman Post Office and the use of computers at the library, schools, law enforcement offices, pharmacies and many businesses, one may well ask 'Who's next?'

According to Wesley Jarvis, high school computer science teacher, a business that does not computerize is missing out on potential savings in time and money. "Any business or service that has inventory and makes sales can benefit by getting a computer," he said.

It is unsurprising, therefore, that Jarvis predicts virtually all small businesses in this area, whether in sales or service, will change over to a computer-based accounting system in the next few years. Hansford County, he believes, is a microcosm of large metropolitan areas in its jump aboard the computer bandwagon. He expects those with agricultural interests in particular to start using computers soon if they haven't already done so.

Asked to describe exactly what a computer does for its user, Jarvis replied, "A computer has more accurate recall than the human brain and performs numerical operations more rapidly. Information retrieval is also faster." Computers, he explained, are designed to store a certain num-ber of "bytes" of information in their memories.

'A 'byte' equals eight 'bits' of information and a 'bit' is a binary digit," Jarvis said. He explained that data is stored in computers as a combination of ones and zeros (binary digits). The new computers at the Spearman Post Office have 640K, or 640 bytes of memory.

The Spearman Independent School District offers three computer courses, including a junior high level computer literacy course taught by Karen Swink which covers word processing, spread sheet, data base and telecommunications. Jarvis' high school computer science courses teach programming and two computer languages, Basic and Pascal. Typing is a course prerequi-

Jarvis believes that young people learn to work with computers more quickly than their parents and grandparents. "You could simply explain it by saying the circuitry in their brain imprints more easily and faster and they also retain information better," he said. He emphasized, however, that individuals of all ages can benefit from becoming computer literate and that older people usually find computer use unintimidating after some exper-See Compute Page 6

Unemployment Continues Downward Trend

Unemployment in Hansford County continued its downward trend in October, according to the Texas Employment Commission.

Figures released by the TEC indicate that the jobless rate in Hansford County stood at 2.1 percent in October, as compared with September's rate of 2.2 percent and the 2.8 percent figure or August. TEC estimates for October show that Hansford County had a total civilian labor force of 3,549 persons, of whom 3,475 had jobs and 74 were unemployed.

"We haven't had an October unemployment rate this good since 1984," Commissioner Mary Scott Nabers said. Newly released statistics from the Texas Employment Commission placed the State's jobless rate at 6.0 percent. And making the economic picture even brighter is the fact that we had the largest gain in the number of non-farm salaried jobs thus far in 1989. Things are definitely looking up," Nabers concluded.

As proof that the economy is improving, Commissioner Nabers pointed to the decline from 7.2 percent in August to 6.3 percent in September and then down again to 6.0 percent in October. Compared to October 1988 when the rate was 6.8 percent, this current month's 6.0 percent is a welcome sight but not all the news was

"Even though statewide we are seeing relief," Nabers said, "we have some areas of the state which continue to suffer from double digit unemployment rates and there are over 500,000 Texans still trying to find jobs.

There were 7.792.500 people in the state's labor force in October. That number is up by 47,900 from the previous month. Although the majority of the jobs added in October were due to completion of staffing at private and public schools and colleges, most other major industries also recorded moderate increases. Only Trade and Mining (Oil and Gas Extraction) exhibited decreases between September and October.

The majority of the 27 major metropolitan areas for which data are currently available mirrored the statewide unemployment trend, with lower rates between September and October. Only two MSA's had higher rates over the month, and those increases were small ones.

The areas with the lowest unemployment rates in October were: Bryan-College Station, at 3.9 percent; Lubbock, at 4.1 percent; Amarillo and Austin, each with rates of 4.9 percent; and Dallas, with a 5.0 percent rate.

Senior Citizens at the Golden Spread Center enjoy a Thanksgiving feast prepared and hosted by the employees of the First National Bank of Spearman.

Sarpalius Visits Spearman

Hansford County Library Accredited as State System Member--

Hansford County Library was recently accredited as a member of the Texas Library System according to William D. Gooch, director and librarian of the Texas State Library.

The Hansford County Library is a member of the Texas Panhandle Library System, one of the 10 library systems in the state. The local library, which serves citizens in Hansford and surrounding counties, had to meet strict criteria such as hours of access, professional staffing requirements, number of library materials, and local per capita support to become an accredited member. Public libraries must apply and qualify for system membership annually.

Some of the services provided for our library through Texas Panhandle Library System (TPLS) are rotating packets of Large Print books and Talking Books; continuing education workshops for librarians; book collection development funds each year; and the past 17 years.
