

'Ready or Not TCU, Here We Come!'

Two more passenger cars and a diner have been added to the already overflowing out-of-town trip train to Fort Worth, Dan Howard, Student Council business manager, announced late yesterday.

A limited number of tickets will go on sale at 8 a.m. today and continue until 5 p.m.

STUDENTS MAKING the trip are to report to the table in the lobby of Lubbock's Santa Fe Station between 7:30 p.m. and 10 p.m. to pick up train and football game tickets and information sheets. Identification cards and receipts must be presented.

Headquarters for Techsians in Dallas will be in Parlor C of the Adolphus Hotel. Deans Lew N. Jones and Florence Phillips will be available for emergency calls.

STUDENT ID cards will also be required with tickets for admission to the football game. Regular admission is $3.50. Everyone will enter on the east side of the stadium.

Over 500 students will board the special train at 10 p.m. for a midnight ramble to Fort Worth and a weekend of fun and frolic amidst the wilds of Dallas and the Texas cow town.

CLIMAX OF the trip for many will be the TCU-Tech game Saturday night. Many anti-climaxes are assured, however, as a trip is planned to Dallas, site of the Texas State Fair and the Oklahoma-Texas football classic in the Cotton Bowl.

Techsians have been invited to attend a free dance after the Saturday night game.

A PEP RALLY is scheduled upon arrival in Fort Worth before continuing on for an autumn holiday in Big D.

Aside from the carnival gamblers and the spine-tingling rides, the State Fair also features attractions for the culture-minded students. Meredith Willson's musical comedy and current Broadway hit "The Music Man," the Ice Capades featuring "Madame Butterfly" and Walt Disney's "Fantasia" will be there for all to see.

AFTER THE DAY of fun in Dallas, students will reboard the train at 6 p.m. and return to Fort Worth, where a host of TCU student representatives will throw out the welcome mats and escort Techsians in buses to the stadium.

Good times will not be limited to the two cities, however. A baggage car will be furnished where, traditionally, a jazz band materializes without invitation. The additional diner also will contribute to dancing and relaxation.

Concession stands will be sponsored by Kappa Kappa Psi and Tau Beta Sigma music fraternities.

THREE POSITIONS ARE FILLED

Pep Rallies Encourage Tech Win

A giant pep rally at the Saddle Tramp Circle tonight will begin activities surrounding the Tech-TCU game Saturday.

The pep rally, scheduled to begin at 7:30, is the first of a series to precede the big game. Principal speaker at the rally tonight will be Beattie Feathers, baseball coach at Tech. Feathers is a former grid iron All-American.

Other entertainment at the rally will be the Flying Matadors and the Tech Band. The Flying Matadors are Tech's trampoline team.

The second pep rally of the week will take place at the Lubbock train station about 9:30 p.m. Friday, shortly before the special train leaves to carry the Raider boosters to Fort Worth.

The third rally will be at the train station in Fort Worth after the train has arrived there. Students will be given time to leave the train and eat breakfast, before the rally.

The Red Raiders, with the backing of three pep rallies, will be seeking their second victory over the Horned Frogs, who are top rated in the Southwest Conference this year. In recent years the Frogs have dominated the Raiders, but a special train and an inspired band of Red Raiders hope to carry the Frogs their second loss of the season.

Bob Dyer, Saddle Tramp president, and Joe Naylor head cheerleader, have requested that all organization banners be kept to the rear and edge of gatherings in order not to obstruct the view.

Stangel Honored

The cattle industry has honored two of its top Texas livestock educators in precedent-setting ceremonies at the State Fair of Texas.

Dr. W. L. Stangel, retiring Dean of Agriculture at Tech and Dr. J. C. Miller, former Texas A&M agriculture dean who has since become head of the same department at Oregon State College, received the first Distinguished Service Awards ever presented by the Texas and Southwestern Cattle Raisers Association.

FT. WORTH BOUND — These three coeds are preparing for an exciting week end in Dallas and Fort Worth during Tech's annual out-of-town trip. Students will board the 14-car train at 10 p.m. Friday. The girls, left to right, are Ann Cunningham, Cindy Howze and Kay Hill.

Student Council Discusses Trip

by BEN McCARTY

The Tech Student Council went through a full agenda of business Tuesday night, with Out-of-Town Trip reports holding the spotlight. Dan Howard, business manager of the Council, reported that ticket sales had been shut off temporarily until more train cars were available.

A REPORT on the finer points was given by David Steinman, Council vice-president, and it was mainly concerning the rules and regulations which will be in effect during the train trip.

Other information about the trip given by the above two in their reports can be read in the story concerning the trip.

JOHANNNA Zournas Arts and Sciences representative, gave a talk on the plans for the new bulletin boards in the newly-remodeled bookstore as determined by the Campus Planning Committee. No final decision was reached on the recommendations, but major subject of discussion was concerning the placement of election posters on the board.

THE ELECTIONS Committee report was given by Gail Petersen, secretary. She took names of those who would be available to help with the election which took place the day after the meeting.

Among the water colors on display at the Union is a wide sampling of all forms of art—running from traditional to modern. "Street in New Brunswick" by Luella Buros is a fine example of vivid recording of a scene, while Grace Bliss Stewart has captured abstract form in her "Sails in the Night."

★ Bits From Birdie ★

Merium Jackson

Scenes from the bird's eye this week seem to include preparations for the big weekend ahead. Many Techsians who just returned from Austin are preparing to follow the Raiders to Fort Worth this weekend. In spite of the loss to Texas Double T fans still hope to make the Horn Frogs bow.

But Boys FROM WHAT I've heard, any girl zoology student might be a dangerous companion on the trip for last weekend, one Tech coed, a zealous zoo student, rather amazed her fellow passengers on the way to Austin. It seems that she saw an excellent specimen for her bug collection crawling on a campion, and immediately whipped a bottle of chloroform out of her handbag, "to do him in." Better not take these zoo students with large handbags mad!

SEVERAL sororities and fraternities have held initiation for their spring pledges. Eighteen Sigma Alpha Epsilon pledges became members and Alpha Chi Omega recently received four new initiates.

MANY of the social groups have also begun the training of their new fall pledges. The newest sorority girls for example can be seen wearing a slime cap atop their curls and visiting members in order to get signatures. One Greek lass was anxious to compare her number of signatures with one of her pledge sister's number. However, the comparison was sadly disappointing, for that pledge sister turned out to be an active.

The weekend's activities will get under way tonight with the pep rally at the Saddle Tramp Circle, beginning at 7:30 p.m. The train to Fort Worth will leave Friday night at 9:30 and a second pep rally at the station will send the Raiders off in a winning mood.

FOLLOWING the game, Techsians have been invited to a dance at the TCU Student Center Ballroom. Alpha Phi attended a dinner meeting last night in honor of the 86th year since their founding. Each member and pledge was asked to bring one penny for every year since the sorority was founded. The money will be contributed to a scholarship fund set up by the sorority.

A SCAVENGER hunt has been planned by the Newman Club this weekend. Newmanites will begin the search for the treasures Sunday evening at their meeting hall on Main St.

BSO Meets Today at 12

The Board of Student Organizations will have its first meeting at noon today, from 12 to 1 in the Tech Union Ballroom.

BSO is composed of representatives of various organizations on the campus. BSO has asked that any organization not sending a representative to the meeting should notify the office, Ext. 254 before that time.

Organizations may pay their dues for the year at the meeting. Dues paid before November 1, will be $2.50. Those waiting later than that date will pay $3 per year.

BUSINESS to be taken up at the meeting includes election of representatives to BSO council and appointment of various committees for the year.

Also on the agenda is a discussion of the mail box system for organizations. At present, each organization has a mail box in the BSO office. Projects for the year will be discussed at the meeting.

THE TEXAS TECHNOLOGICAL COLLEGE

Editorial Page

Saddle Tramps Support College

The Saddle Tramps, known to most Techsians by their bright red shirts, is an organization made up of both independents and fraternity men who are responsible for further promoting school spirit at Texas Tech.

At the Tech football and basketball games, the Tramps sit together in one section as a sign for support for the team and to encourage the spirit of the entire student section.

Preceding game time, they line up in an orderly fashion on the field or court to give the Red Raiders an initial boost to victory.

Another responsibility of this organization is the ringing of the victory bells following all victories gained by Tech.

The ringing of the victory bells ties in closely with the next purpose of the Tramps—that of upholding the traditions of the college.

For example, it has long been the tradition to ring the victory bells after a win, but it is also the tradition not to ring the bells for more than 30 minutes, except after extraordinary occasions.

It is up to the tramps to see that the traditions are carried out, and, to do this, they have to have full cooperation of all students helping with this duty. This relates back to the first purpose—keeping school spirit high.

Another important function of the Tramps is to plan, set and sponsor pep rallies. They were responsible for building the Saddle Tramp Circle, a site for future pep rallies at Tech.

Due to the many functions of this group, there must be good organization involved, and this can not be achieved when the number of members grows too large.

Recently the Tramps had many more applications for membership than could possibly become members. Many were not allowed to pledge because of this.

It seems cruel to refuse a person membership into an organization of this type, but actually it is a good sign to see too many applicants, because competition exists. Competition leads to more effort and accomplishment.

Students, when football returns to Jones Stadium and when basketball starts, work with the Tramps in any way you can to keep up the tradition of "good school spirit" at Tech.

OH MY—I'M IN FOR IT AGAIN TONITE —IT LOOKS LIKE HE'S HAD ANOTHER BAD DAY AT SCHOOL.

two party Quiz Time

It's the middle of the week again, and zero time for most hour quizzes is drawing near. Most of us shudder to even think of them, but they roll around quite regularly.

Most of the freshmen, by now, have been partially prepared for them by getting back English themes torn all apart with a grade of "D" or below on them.

The upperclassmen know they are coming and what to expect, but nevertheless fear the consequences. It's tough settling down to the old grind, especially with Out-of-Town trips and what not, but we might as well face it—quizzes are part of the game.

Speaking of Out-of-Town trips, Techsians have a dilly coming up. It seems that the TCU Student Body is going to be much more hospitable than the SMU crew last year.

It would be mere drudgery to recap what Tech students went through last year at the basketball game in Dallas, so let's see what TCU has in store.

When we get back from the State Fair, TCU students will have busses available to carry Techsians to Amon Carter Stadium to see the football tilt.

After the game, a dance has been planned, and Tech students are invited. The dance will end in time (about 12:30 a.m.) to allow us to get back aboard the busses for a trip back to the train.

We should appreciate the cooperativeness of the Horned Frogs in their attempt to make our trip a good one, and in return should act in such a way to generate in them a better feeling for Tech.

Lately, as I have been in and out of places on campus, several people have asked, "can I get something in the TOREADOR?"

My usual answer has been, "yes, but—" This "but" refers to what they should do in order to have news appear in the newspaper.

I think an explanation here of the TOREADOR and its function would be appropriate. First, the paper is for the students in that it is supported financially by the students and is staffed by students.

Each organization should have a person responsible for getting its news in. That person should become acquainted with the operations of the TOREADOR, and strive to work with the staffs of the various issues.

The proper time to bring news to the newsroom (Journalism Building, Room 206—to your right after going up the stairs) is between 1 and 3 p.m. on Monday, Wednesday and Friday. When news comes up later than that, it is less likely to appear the next day.

We continually hear gripes of persons who didn't get their story in. This is understandable, but if one stops and thinks, he can realize that we can't possibly get in all the news of every organization on the campus.

The staff has been instructed to do the best they can in evenly distributing the news coverage among the organizations. As a result, each group should receive about equal representation over the semester.

We are not above reproach, but if each representative will do his best work with us, the whole operation will be made easier and each organization can get coverage on their bigger events.

james hamm

When a tradition is practiced long enough, the different elements tend to be thought of as symbolic, spiritual, rather than real.

This was the case with Tech Beauty and the Red Raider Rider who lead the football team onto the field before games. Students thought of the two as symbols, rather than a fellow student facing typical problems such as passing courses and meeting expenses, and a horse who has all the familiar horselike qualities.

Techsians were jarred out of this line of thought, however, when the TOREADOR announced last spring that Tech Beauty was with colt.

The foal was born July 14, and Tech Beauty's future in pre-game activities looked dark indeed. But showing the spirit of a true Techsian, the black quarterhorse mare overcame the weakening effects of her experience, and is leading the Raider football team on the field this year as usual.

Another myth shattered by the foal's birth was the belief of some Techsians that Tech Beauty was a stallion rather than a mare. She does show all the fire and spirit of a stallion in her pre-game activities.

Tech Beauty, owned by Tech farms, was not the first horse used in this tradition—in fact, this is only the third year she has been used. The first horse used was a palomino stallion named Silver.

The Saddle Tramps, male organization dedicated to promoting school spirit, originated the idea of horse and horsemanship leading the Raider team onto the field in 1937.

The rider and horse have held the esteem of Techsians unshared, except for one short period. A group of students decided once to get a mascot, and picked a bull from the Tech farms.

The bull, worth several thousand dollars, was painted, supposedly by Texas A&M students. The powers-that-be promptly retired the bull from its mascot duties.

The Raider Rider is a Tech student, generally from the school of Agriculture. He seldom holds the job more than one year.

After her recent recovery, Tech Beauty appears to be in shape for several more years for her pre-game activities. Hats off to a Gallant Lady.

Techsians Talk Back

CHEERLEADERS

Being one of the lucky Tech supporters who was able to attend the Tech-Texas game at Austin Saturday night, I discovered something that maybe more Tech students should know.

While campus elections are usually nothing more than popularity contests, I would like for Tech students to think over something of a more serious nature.

As an example of the type of jobs being done by some of the people who are elected to leading positions, I shall take Saturday night and the cheerleaders who attended the game.

What cheerleaders that were there did a good bang-up job. It looked kind of funny that Tech had only three cheerleaders there, two girls and one boy. I have heard a rumor that the two that didn't make it had to attend a social.

I've got nothing against socials, but it looks like that if the Tech band and some three hundred supporters could make the trip to Austin, all the cheerleaders could.

While Texas had eight cheerleaders, we had to be content with three.

Hats off to the cheerleaders who were present, they did a great job.

SCHOOL TRIP

"Everyone buy a ticket and go to Fort Worth on the school trip. See the State Fair of Texas; watch the O.U. and Texas game; and then cheer for your Alma Mater when the Raiders take on the TCU, Horned Frogs."

Sounds great, doesn't it! But what about the unfortunate victims of circumstance who have Saturday classes conducted by professors who will, under no condition, give these students an excused absence.

It seems rather unfair to deny

Director of Public Information

PI Director Reverses Role for Interview

by RALPH W. CARPENTER

The tables were turned on Adrian Vaughan this week. Vaughan, director of Texas Tech's Public Information Department is usually on the asking end of questions. However, this time he answered.

I CORNERED Vaughan in his office, located in the southeast corner, first floor of the Journalism Building. I then proceeded to find out a few facts about the tall, friendly PIO director and the office he runs so smoothly. Vaughan, who is starting his fourth year at Tech, has had some 13 years in news and college administration work. He was employed as news editor of the Big Spring Herald two years. He secured his BA from Baylor University and MJ from The University of Texas.

"What is the main objective of Tech's Public Information office?" I asked.

VAUGHAN LEANED forward in his chair and replied, "Our main goal here is to give people a more thorough understanding of what college is like and how it is operated. We feel that people need to know a great deal more about the happenings on our campus."

He explained that his office last year sent out 16,000 envelopes containing stories about Tech. Ten thousand of these stories were sent to the students' home town newspapers. The remainder contained general activities of the college and faculty members. Stories are sent to wire services and daily newspapers all over Texas and Eastern New Mexico.

"This year we have sent stories as far away as Thailand," Vaughan remarked.

IF NEWS MEDIA of this area are unable to send someone to cover an important event occurring on campus, Vaughan and his staff see to it that they receive thorough coverage.

"What kind of background should a person have to enter this field?" I asked.

"A person should have some advertising experience, ability to write, a working knowledge of editorial matter and above all, the ability to get along with people," Vaughan answered.

"As the colleges of our nation expand, there is a growing need for new people to enter this field."

"I GET A great deal of satisfaction out of seeing students develop their abilities. I am especially proud of the student assistant program we are conducting in the Public Information Department. Each of these assistantships are the financial equivalent of about a $500 scholarship for a student. In addition, the students learn a great deal by providing stories and photos for professional news media."

The Public Information Department has three full-time employees plus three student assistants. W. R. (Dick) Tatum is assistant director of Public Information.

"WHAT DO YOU do in your spare time?" I queried.

"Well, with two boys around the house, a person really doesn't have much 'spare' time," he said.

"However, I do enjoy tennis, watching the Red Raiders play football and working during the summer as a Little League umpire."

The phone jangled on the hook, and Vaughan after a brief conversation with the caller, grabbed his camera and note pad, and hurried off to ask the questions.

students the opportunity to participate in "school sponsored" activity, especially when these students offer to stay late one afternoon, come early another day, or even pledge their allegiance to the professor for the rest of their college life if the work can be made up.

It must be nice to have a professor so interested and so concerned in his student's welfare that he simply cannot bear the thought of not seeing his students in class; but then let's not carry a good thing too far.

Famed Chemistry Professor Lectures Here for Two Days

Dr. Clark E. Bricker, associate professor of analytical chemistry at Princeton University, will visit Texas Tech Oct. 13-14 in connection with the American Chemical Society Visiting Scientist Program.

DR. BRICKER will be one of the highlights of our year here at Tech," Dr. Joe Dennis, chemistry and chemical engineering head announced.

The visitation program which Bricker is associated annually brings some 10 to 15 top scientists to 20 outstanding schools in America.

DR. DENNIS also pointed out that since Tech is not strategically located, few such opportunities of this sort have occurred in the past.

During his stay in Lubbock, Dr.

Bricker will give numerous lectures. Monday he will lecture to freshmen at 10 a.m. in Chemistry Bldg. 101. He will be honored at a reception from 4 to 5 p.m. in C 302. Later he will speak to the graduate seminar on "Photometric Titrations."

TUESDAY DR. BRICKER will give a lecture on "The World's Energy Needs" at 7:30 p.m. in C 302. Lecture is open to the public.

Dr. Dennis pointed out that world energy needs have increased tremendously during the past few years, and some suitable method must be found to provide for them. Dr. Bricker's speech will include these problems.

DR. BRICKER who has been at Princeton since 1948, has written over 25 technical articles for professional publications such as the "Journal of Organic Chemistry."

Dr. Bricker has been engaged in chemical research with the Heyden Chemical Corporation, taught at Johns Hopkins University, and served as president of the Princeton Section of the American Chemical Society.

Runny-Noses Responsible For Crowded Infirmary

Relax, you runny-nose, bed-ridden specimens of mankind, you ain't alone.

What you have, most likely isn't anything exotic like the asiatic flu, but the result of a change in the weather, plus fatigue and getting too cold, the infirmary says.

Dr. E. R. Rose, director of student health service, states that this year's total clinic patients per day has increased over previous year, but is considerably less than the number of cases at this time last year.

Monday, the 18-bed infirmary was overflowing, and an above-average 210 patients were seen in the clinic, but Tuesday the total went back to 130.

"The virus infection that has been common among Tech students is not restricted to Tech, but is spread widely in Lubbock and in this area," commented Mrs. Iris Normal, superintendent of the infirmary.

TCU Coach Thinks Team Looks Better

TCU Coach Abe Martin noted his Horned Frogs were making progress with every outing after watching films of his team's 12-7 victory over Arkansas last week.

"THE FILMS SHOWED our general play was quite improved over the Iowa game," the Frog coach said. "Our defense is still ahead of the offense, but I feel the latter will be better as we go along."

With Quarterback Hunter Enis firing overhead, Marvin Lasater, a tough-running 185-pound junior is expected to plow into the Tech line from his halfback slot. At right half will be Marshall Harris, big 190 pound junior. Fullback, strong four deep, will be manned by 200-pound Jack Spikes, who, with another fullback Merlin Priddy, rushed for 179 of the 233 yards on the ground against the Razorbacks.

ENIS WILL BE tossing at fine receivers in the top ends — Jimmy Gilmore on the left side and Bubba Meyer to the right. Both are junior lettermen and Gilmore will probably handle the punting chores.

Robert Lilly, a 235-pounder or Joe Robb, 215-pounder, will man right tackle against the Raiders. Donald Floyd, 210-pound junior will probably get the call at left tackle. At guards, two more juniors — Sherrill Headrick at left and Ramon Armstrong at right will be ready to go. Headrick is a fine linebacker and Armstrong will probably man the middle defensive guard slot.

DALE WALKER, 205-pound defensive warrior, will be at center and is backed by sophomore, Arvie Martin, a 215-pounder.

Fine Combination?

A couple of former Fort Worth Poly graders could make a fine passing combination in the TCU-Tech game Saturday night, but the idea doesn't appeal to TCU coach Abe Martin.

Martin doesn't mind his quarterback, Hunter Enis completing passes all night as long as they aren't to Enis' former teammate, Gerald Seeman, starting at left end for the Raiders.

RALPH'S RAMBLINGS

by Ralph W. Carpenter

Experience is the best teacher. That's an old proverb, but it sums up nicely the condition of the Raiders.

I imagine they learned a great deal in that 12-7 loss to Texas Saturday night. No, they didn't win, but they sure left behind a lot of impressed Austin people. The Raiders turned in their best defensive contest of the season. The big Longhorns, in spite of their great depth, couldn't romp over the Raiders as they expected.

GIVE THE RAIDERS a little more time to develop and then watch the team move the pigskin. This is fine bunch of footballers. They never quit.

They will have their hands full Saturday night against TCU. The Froggies are tough. However, if See RAMBLINGS, Page 8

Picadors Open Play

Texas Tech's Picadors launch their 1958 schedule against the strong North Texas State freshman team at Denton Friday night.

Coach Tom Hamm's choice to quarterback the Picadors will be either John (Soapy) Sudbury, all-District 3-4A performer from Amarillo, or Billy Ryan, Conference 2A all-stater from Seymour.

Other starters will be Jim Perry of Abilene and Archie English of Seminole or Charles Rice of Amarillo, ends; Pat Holmes of Del Rio and Larry Mullins of Snyder, tackles; Eugene Guffey of Wichita Falls and Kelly Mitchell of Hobart, Okla., or Jerry Mason of Greenville, Miss., guards; Ken Milliken of San Angelo, center; Dickie Polson of Amarillo and Jim Tatum of Tulsa, halves; and George Fraser of Ilano or Don Jester of Amarillo, fullback.

Skowron's single off relief man Don McMahon.

RYNE DUREN, Casey Stengel's flame-thrower who followed Whitney Ford and Art Diltmar to the mound, fired his blinding fast ball past the Braves from the sixth to the 10th when he suddenly lost his stuff. The big fellow with the thick glasses struck out the side in the sixth and ninth, fanning eight in 4 2-3 innings before he faltered with two out in the 10th.

Johnny Logan, who had walked and taken second unmolested while Duren wound up making Eddie Mathews his eighth strike-out victim, scored when Hank Aaron singled.

OUT CAME grizzled old Casey Stengel to talk with his pitcher, as Joe Adcock grabbed a war club. Casey decided to stay with Duren but when Adcock pumped a single to center, moving the potential tying run to third base, Stengel summoned Bob Turley from the Yankee bull pen. Turley, who brought the series back to Milwaukee with Monday's shut-out, had to face Frank Torre, a left-handed batter hitting for Del Crandall.

Torre connected with Bob's third pitch and the ball sailed toward short right field with second baseman McDougald in full pursuit. For a split second it seemed it would fall safely for a hit. McDougald had it all the way, as it turned out, gloving the ball for the game-ending out.

THUS ENDED the last-gasp effort of the Braves to save Spahn who deserved a better fate. All through the dreary afternoon he had fought off the Yankees although he hadn't worked with such a short rest since 1956. Four Milwaukee errors kept him walking a tight-rope all day long.

With the score tied at 2-2, McDougald led off the Yankee 10th. He had one of the six hits off Spahn up to that time. Spahn got one called strike on him. But the next pitch did it.

McDOUGALD RODE his second pitch deep into the left field bleachers — a 375-foot blow, and a deep sigh rent the soggy air. Spahnie settled down to retire the next two batters. But when Howard and Berra singled, Manager Fred Haney decided his ace had taken enough.

AS HANEY trudged from the gloom of the Braves' dugout, the crowd of 46,367 gave Spahn a deserved roaring ovation.

The scene was packed with drama for the crowd realized that Spahn had hoped to match the 1957 feat of his roomie—Lew Burdette—who humbled the Yankees three times last October.

YOU CAN BET when Texas Christian has an outstanding team, there's a good chance Texas Tech will be on the schedule.

Four of TCU's six previous Southwest Conference championship teams have played Texas Tech teams—in 1929, 1944, 1951, and 1955. The Raiders also met the runner-up teams of 1936, and 1956.

So it was no surprise to the Raiders that the pre-season SWC poll should pick TCU.

Just as Texas Tech fans did for the Matadors in their first game against a Southwest Conference foe 32 years ago, Tech students will take a special train to Fort Worth for Saturday night's game with TCU.

THAT 1926 GAME wound up, as have six of Tech's seven trips to Fort Worth, in TCU's favor. Might be a little different this time.
