West Plains Hospital 'Taking Over' Ambulance

Change Over Set Monday, July 2

In the past, the ambulance in Muleshoe has always been operated by the funeral home. For the past several years, Ellis Funeral Home has operated the ambulance for the county and has been subsidized by the county.

However, about a month and a half ago, Frank Ellis, owner and operator of Ellis Funeral Home notified Bailey County Commissioners that they planned to terminate operation of the ambulance effective on Monday, July 9.

Commissioners immediately started checking with other local emergency services, such as the fire department and sheriff's office in an effort to find someone willing to operate the ambulance service. All declined.

Then, the hospital board of West Plains Medical Center agreed to take over operation if a suitable contract could be worked out with the county.

Friday morning, during a news conference at the Bailey County District courtroom, County Judge Gordon H. Green announced the ambulance will be turned over to the hospital on Monday, July 2, for operation.

Judge Green said the hospital had agreed to take over the ambulance operation on a trial basis, and the hospital will neither profit nor lose any money from the operation.

The judge said the county had been subsidizing the ambulance operation at the funeral home with $1,800 per month and the same amount will be given to the hospital to subsidize the operation.

Persons needing to call the ambulance are asked to call the local emergency number at:

272-4200

Also, they may call the regular hospital number at:

272-4524

However, the hospital number is not to be called until Monday, July 9.

West Plains Medical Center will be joining three other area hospitals who currently operate their local ambulance service.

The hospital will keep up with expenses and submit reports to the county on the operation of the ambulance.

Judge Green praised the Ellis Funeral Home and the owner, Frank Ellis for "the fine job they have done in past years with operation of the ambulance."

He also said the hospital deserved a lot of credit for agreeing to operate the ambulance in the future.

Bob Haralson, the West Plains Medical Center administrator, said "We must have the ambulance service in the community to take care of the health and welfare of our citizens."

"Although we did not want operation of the ambulance, that seemed to be the only solution right now."

"We will house the ambulances at the rear of the hospital and are starting out with two EMT trained volunteers until personnel can be secured to operate on a day to day basis."

"Charges for use of the ambulance will start out at the same level they are at this time, and in fact, any proposed changes in charges must be submitted to the county and approved by commissioners court."

Larry Rasco and Wayne Wauson, both EMT trained will be operating the ambulance as it starts out.

Haralson also reminded that use of the ambulance will be billed separately to a hospital bill, as this will be another medical service under the umbrella of the West Plains Medical Center.

Haralson also praised "A fine job done by Frank Ellis."

Chief Finds Missing Duo After Search

"Our children are missing!" These are dreaded words for any law enforcement agency, and these words were heard by Muleshoe City Police Dispatcher Elaine Estrada around 11 p.m. Wednesday night.

A nine and ten year old girl and boy were reported to be missing, after last having been seen at their home around 1:30 p.m. in the afternoon.

A concerned mother, neighbors, and friends searched for the youths until they reported to the police at 11:02 p.m. that they could not find the youngsters.

Muleshoe City Patrolman Tom Watson was on duty and was joined by Chief of Police Les Irvin and Deputies Jerry Hicks and Hal Bynum. They drove streets and alleys, checked abandoned and junk vehicles, ditches, dumpsters, culverts and fields surrounding Muleshoe, concentrating most of their effort in the south and southeast part of the city.

But what started out as a potential hazardous situation ended suddenly and happily shortly before 2 a.m. Thursday.

Chief Irvin was checking around the high school when he found a door to the school open, called Assistant Principal Bob Graves and Officer Watson to check the school.

Conference Begins Today At Tech

Educational teams from Texas, Mississippi and New Mexico will develop plans for school excellence during a Texas Tech University conference June 24-27 at the Holiday Inn Civic Center.

Dr. John R. Champlin, Texas Tech education professor and conference director, said the conference will deal with school improvement in "perhaps the most comprehensive and pointed manner attempted in our state."

He said Texas school districts face astute challenge posed by House Bill 246, recently passed by the Texas Legislature and mandating improvement in the quality of the state's schools through time, educational process and curriculum.

"Meeting this challenge will take a team effort by everyone involved in the schools," Champlin said.

He said the Texas Tech conference should be the first of several because "the Texas Tech College of Education has the resources and energies to create a strong, continuing relationship with districts throughout Texas which are totally committed to substantial school improvement."

The 160 conference participants will represent both small and large school districts. Each team will include a school board member, superintendent, central office staff member, principal and teacher.

Conference speakers will include Dr. Yvonne Katz, associate commissioner with the Texas Education Agency; Dr. William Spady, executive director of the Far West Educational Laboratory, San Francisco, Calif.; and Champlin, a longtime New York educator who gained national attention in the 1970s for his innovative school program in Johnson City, N.Y.

Katz will discuss Texas' long-term plans for stimulating effective school improvement. She will speak at 6:30 p.m. Sunday in the Holiday Inn Civic Center and at 8:30 a.m. Monday on "Confronting the Critical Issues."

Spady will speak on "Mastery Learning/Outcome Base Programming-A Comprehensive Approach to Overall School Excellence" at 8:30 a.m. Tuesday. Spady is former director of the Center for Instruction, American Association of School Administrators in Washington, D.C.

Champlin will lead a Monday morning session on "Striving for Excellence--A Total Organizational Challenge." His other sessions will be "A Four-Phase Program" and "Focusing on Issues and Problems."

Pre-conference sessions Sunday will deal with the Johnson City Mastery Learning Program from the teacher's and principals perspective, and the challenge for program excellence as viewed by three school districts.

Champlin said individual team members will work in groups to examine their individual functions in school improvement. District team will then develop plans for study and initiation in their home districts.

Champlin is doing intensive consulting with the school systems of McAllen, Texas, and Biloxi, Miss., both of which will participate in the conference. Other schools represented will include Clovis, N.M., and from Texas, Big Spring, Brookshire, Columbia-Brazoria, Copperas Cove, Cros-

A&M researcher working on system to assess injury

COLLEGE STATION — A Texas A&M University researcher is laying groundwork to create a detection system to determine an unconscious soldier's condition during a chemical attack without removing his protective garments.

Dr. Charles Lessard, an associate professor of bioengineering and retired Air Force lieutenant colonel, says "state-of-the-art" instruments might be adapted to help assess a soldier's condition in a battlefield situation. Lessard now hopes to develop such a detection system for the Air Force.

The research indicates that there is an area at the neck of the suits under which a small medical instrument could be placed on skin at the throat area.

"Now we're trying to determine what information we can get at the throat area," Lessard said.

Social Security News And Views

People in the West Texas area who expect to need a Social Security number should remember to apply for it before they must have the number.

People should apply for a number at least 3 weeks before the number is needed. This length of time is down from the 4 to 6 weeks it used to take. The reduction in time has taken place because Social Security is in the process of modernizing its computer systems. This is one of the first results of this effort.

When applying, a person must have evidence of age, identity, and citizenship or legal alien status. In addition, a person 18 or older who is applying for the number the first time must appear in person.

The best evidence of age and citizenship is a public or religious record of birth or baptism established before age 5. Only if these records do not exist should other evidence be submitted. The original document or a certified copy, should be submitted. A photocopy not certified by the custodian of the record, will not be accepted.

Evidence of identity can be any document showing identifying data such as physical description, photograph, or signature. Examples include driver's license, voter's registration, school record, report card, identification card, marriage record, divorce decree, draft card, military ID, building pass, baby's hospital wrist band, adoption record, or organization membership.

People applying for a duplicate card to replace one lost must provide evidence of identity. Also, a person who wants to change her or his name in Social Security records must provide evidence of identity under both old and new names. A person born outside the U.S. must submit evidence of current U.S. citizenship or legal alien status.

As previously stated, only original documents or copies certified by the issuing agency are acceptable.

Generally speaking, a person may write the County Clerk in the County where they were born to obtain a certified copy of the birth certificate. If it is not located in the County, then they should check with the Bureau of Vital Statistics in the State Capital where they were born.

Marriage records are generally in the County seat where the marriage license was obtained. The County Clerk generally has custody of these records. A person should be careful and write the County Clerk of the

Summer Programs Put Youth To Work

By Governor Mark White

AUSTIN—With high unemployment still plaguing Texas border cities and other parts of the state, young people face stiff competition for even the lowest paying temporary summer jobs.

Texas has received approximately $34 million under the Job Training Partnership Act to help put economically disadvantaged youth, ages 14-21, to work under the 1984 Summer Youth Employment and Training Program.

Putting young people to work should amount to more than putting a few dollars in their pockets. With a higher goal in mind, the Governor's Office has designed two exciting new model programs—the Texas Conservation Corps (TCC) and Youth Opportunities Unlimited (YOU)—that combine paying summer jobs and academic study.

The Texas Conservation Corps is a "total immersion" work and education program modeled after the successful Depression-era Civilian Conservation Corps. The TCC will put 100 young people, between the ages of 18-21, to work restoring Matagorda Island to its natural state, restoring the BattleShip Texas, repairing roads and planting trees at Eisenhower State Park, and building a dam at the South Llano Recreation Area.

This program will not only teach participating young people the sense of achievement that comes from hard work, but will help prepare them to hold private sector jobs and provide an invaluable public service in preserving the state's natural resources and parklands.

Conservation Corps participants will be selected by local governments in 34 different service areas making up the State of Texas. Central Texas College in Killeen will administer the program under the direction of the Governor's Office.

Starting June 23, Corps recruits will attend a seven-day training academy conducted by the Texas National Guard in Denison. They will learn to use different kinds of tools and perform emergency medical procedures. Corps members will then be assigned to one of the restoration or park projects for eight weeks. They will live at the work site and, in addition to their job responsibilities, will attend required English and writing classes.

Several major Texas companies, conservation groups, and state agencies helped shape and refine the Texas Conservation Corps program. The TCC is funded by a combination of $300,000 in governor's discretionary federal employment service funds, about $200,000 in local job training program money, and contributions from business and industry. A&M vet students trade Mr. & Mrs. for Dr. & Dr.

COLLEGE STATION — Six couples attending Texas A&M University's College of Veterinary Medicine traded Mr. and Mrs. for Dr. and Dr. during spring commencement ceremonies.

Officials believe that six married couples — all of whom met and married while training to be veterinarians — set a record for the number of marriages in a single class.

The married couples expressed mixed feelings on whether it is harder or easier to be married to a fellow student.

Scot Myers, who met wife Suzy Butcher during their first year at Texas A&M, says he thinks being married to a fellow future veterinarian is easier than to an outsider.

"We understand what each other is going through," he said. "We don't study together but we study at the same time. I think we get a broader education because we share what we see during the day."

money will pay for a minimum wage, room and board for Corps members, and cover administrative costs.

Another 300 young Texans will participate in the eight-week Youth Opportunities Unlimited Program, dividing their time between classes in English, English as a Second Language, math, and computer literacy and part-time jobs at minimum wage offered at Pan American University, Prairie View A&M University, and Southwest Texas State University. Participants who successfully complete their academic courses can earn credit toward high school graduation.

Of the 1.6 million Texans between the ages of 16-21, approximately 17 percent live below the poverty level and 16.8 percent are unemployed.

Both of these model summer programs are designed to help break the poverty cycle and, if successful, could be expanded in future years to offer more of our young people a chance to earn and learn in a creative new setting.

A&M geophysicist suggests sea trenches for waste disposal

COLLEGE STATION — Deep-sea trenches created by converging plates in the Earth's crust may be used to dispose of waste materials, including junked nuclear submarines, says a Texas A&M University geophysicist.

Dr. Thomas Hilde, a professor of geophysics and director of the Geodynamic Research Program at Texas A&M, has found that giant depressions, known as grabens, are formed in the "downgoing" plates of the Earth's crust as the plates bend downward into the trenches. Hilde suggests the grabens might be used to carry waste deep into the Earth's interior as they descend beneath the overriding land mass plates.

He explains that faulting occurs in the descending plate due to stresses as it bends downward, forming grabens. These grabens exist in more than 50 percent of the Pacific area trench systems, he said.

By placing waste in the grabens "it may be carried deep enough so that it would only return to the Earth's surface through volcanic action and only after one to five million years, Hilde said. No nuclear waste would be dangerous after that time, he said.

For the short term, nuclear waste would have to be encapsulated to prevent pollution or contamination, Hilde said, but this might be accomplished by man-induced "slumps" of sediments from the overriding plates that would cover and seal the waste materials after they are placed in a trench.

BRENDA FLOWERS

Brenda Flowers Third Runner-Up In Pageant

Brenda Flowers, daughter of Tom and Joella Flowers, placed as third runner-up in the Miss Teen of Texas Pageant, held in Austin on June 15-17.

Registration was held on Friday at the Hyatt Regency. Following registration all girls met with Heidi Stenness, director of the pageant, for a general session in which all the small details of the next few days were discussed.

A general awareness test was given to the girls after the general assembly. The score on this test composed 15 percent of their total score. The questions ranged from how many teaspoons in three tablespoons to the location of Grenada.

The rest of the evening was filled with rehearsals for the production number. Saturday began early and ended late. All morning was dedicated to rehearsals. After lunch was the formal wear competition and the interview with the judges.

Saturday night was dedicated to rehearsals. At brunch on Sunday the high point winners in each judging category were recognized as well as the individuals who raised the largest amount of money for the American Heart Association.

When the twelve semifinalists were named, a short question and answer session was held with the Mistress of Ceremonies and once again they modeled their formal wear for the judges.

Brenda said "The big moment came after the five finalists were named. We then were whisked away to a "sound proof" room to await the final question and each finalist was given a final tribute before the judges decisions were announced."

There were 304 girls from across the state who competed in the pageant. Brenda was sponsored by the Kiwanis Club of Muleshoe.

Educating Teen-Agers

Can Prevent Smoking

With an estimated 300,000 deaths per year linked to cigarette smoking in the United States, this habit continues to be a major public health problem.

The Texas Medical Association says one of the best ways to battle the problem is to educate teen-agers on the harmful effects of smoking. Scientific studies have tied smoking to deaths from lung cancer, emphysema, chronic bronchitis, and heart disease.

Smoking among teen-agers is of particular concern because the earlier one starts to smoke, the more difficult it is to quit. And those who begin at a young age have a longer total smoking time, so they face a higher risk of disease.

Unfortunately, teen-agers may not consider the health consequences of their habit. The possibility of developing cancer or any other fatal health problem may seem remote and less important than trying to impress peers.

Many people believe that smoking just a few cigarettes will not hurt because they can stop whenever they want. Few people starting to smoke realize just how addictive the nicotine in cigarettes is. The habit is also expensive.

Parents and teachers can play an influential part in encouraging teens not to smoke by setting an example of not smoking and by:

--Helping teens recognize how easy it is to get hooked on cigarettes.

--Teaching teen-agers how cigarette advertising uses misleading images to manipulate them into making decisions dangerous to their health. An ad may imply that the attractive, slender woman shown is happy and successful because she smokes, but there is, of course, no relationship.

Melonmania With Springfresh Mellows

A new phenomenon has taken place throughout the country -- melonmania. More and more people are enjoying the sweet mellow flavors of spring melons, cantaloupe and honeydew. These globes of sweetness are taking their place among produce favorites and are very possibly becoming one of the best selling items during their availability.

Texas melons are contributing to the country's melonmania. Beginning in May, melons are harvested in the South Texas area. Growers in the Rio Grande Valley and north to the Laredo area ship millions of cantaloupe and honeydew to markets. Through years of research, various Texas melon varieties have been perfected to the point that consistently good quality melons arrive in the market place. For example, a new cantaloupe variety out of South Texas offers more density. In other words, more flesh inside with a smaller cavity. Sweetness is consistently high and the shelf life has been improved so that it will last longer. This new magnum melon means a magnum of enjoyment for us and along with perlit cantaloupes are the major supply from the South Texas area. Honeydews known as green-flesh or tamdu are capturing the hearts of melon lovers because of their subtle but distinctive flavors. Honeydew tend to be larger than their cantaloupe counterparts with slightly larger cavities.

Having a ball with these springfresh melons is knowing the proper way to select them. A ripe cantaloupe or honeydew means full-flavor and it's not difficult to spot them if you know what to look for.

In selecting ripe South Texas cantaloupe, look for good deep netting on the outside that tends to be golden in color. The melon will give off a sweet musky aroma and will slightly yield to gentle pressure on the blossom end of the fruit (opposite from the stem end).

A change from solid green to more of a creamy or white color is a good visual indicator of a ripe South Texas honeydew melon. The smooth waxy surface and slight softening of the blossom end may also indicate ripeness.

These melons are vine-ripened and are shipped with care to market before they reach total maturity and become too soft. If fully mature, store South Texas melons in the refrigerator -- if too firm, keep at room temperature until it reaches the desired softness. An important note to remember, melons will not ripen after picked, but will soften if not refrigerated.

Mother Nature provided an ideal bowl of sweetness and juiciness in each South Texas cantaloupe and honeydew. Every sweet, succulent bite is light in calories and full of nutrition including important vitamins like C and A.

As an appetizer, salad, or dessert, cantaloupe and honeydew are the perfect low calorie food for a healthful diet.

South Texas melons are usually in season from mid-May through mid-July. This season, however, with extremely hot temperatures throughout the Rio Grande Valley, the melons have reached their peak earlier in June. Look for these melons in your supermarkets now and enjoy their special flavors. You may just become a melonmaniac yourself.

Frizzell, West To Close Jubilee 75 Edition Of S P Fair

David Frizzell and Shelly West, who have had a string of country music hits as a duet, will help close the Jubilee 75 edition of the Panhandle-South Plains Fair in Lubbock this fall.

The popular pair will be featured in 4 p.m. and 7 p.m. shows on Sept. 29, last day of the eight-day exposition, now celebrating its 67th year.

Frizzell and Miss West have won numerous awards together, including the Country Music Association's vocal duo of the year in 1981 and 1982, the Academy of Country Music Duo of the Year (1981) and the academy's song of the year for "You're the Reason God Made Oklahoma" in 1981. In addition, they were named top duet of the year in both 1981 and 1982 by the music industry's major-trade publications, Billboard, Cashbox and Record World.

Miss West is married to Allen Frizzell, young brother to her duet partner and the late Lefty Frizzell. Prior to her singing partnership with Frizzell, she was named the most promising female vocalist by the Music City news in 1981, which launched her career.

A demo session which produced "Lovin' on Borrowed Time" was their first song together. It turned out so well that it attracted the attention of producer Snuff Garrett. He was intrigued by the idea of a Frizzell-West project that he recorded the "Oklahoma" song, which led to a Warner/Viva Records contract.

Miss West is the daughter of Country star Dottie West. Other top tunes recorded by the pair include "Texas State of Mind," "Husbands and Wives," "Another Honky Tonk Night on Broadway," "I Just Came Here to Dance" and "Please Surrender," which was featured in a Clint Eastwood film, "Honky Tonk Man."

The pair joins some old and new faces in the 1984 awarded to the winners. The parade will be the main feature beginning at 2:30 and will contain floats, bands, riding clubs, antique cars, bicycle riders, fire trucks and other special participants. Anyone wishing to enter the parade should be at the school parking lot at 1:30 p.m. Cash prizes totaling $265 will be awarded to the top four floats. Theme for decorations should be "Cotton pickin' Days". Riding clubs will receive trophies and trophies will be awarded to the top three bicycles in the "best decorated" category. All bicyclists will receive ribbons. Adult bike winners will receive rosette ribbons.

Winners of the various events will be held following the parade.

Bingo will begin at 3:30 in the Community Center while Water Polo will be held just south of City Hall on Commerce Street.

Recognition of special pioneers is slated for 4:30 to be followed by the winners of the raffles. Several organizations will be selling tickets for prizes including a portable TV-Radio, quilt, ceiling fan, 1/2 beef, AM/FM radio & cassette player, a pair of boots and a telephone. Purchases of a ticket will also make you eligible for the many prizes donated by local merchants which will be given away throughout the day. You must be present to win. Winners will be allowed five minutes after name is called to claim their prize before it will be deemed "unclaimed" and drawn again.

At 5 p.m. live entertainment by several musical groups including the Anchor Brothers and the Comancheros will begin and continue while the Lions Club serves their barbecue supper. Tickets for the supper are available from any Lions Club member or may be purchased at the meal for $4.50 for adults and $3.50 for children under 12 years of age. The serving tables will be located on the north side of the community center.

Following the barbecue a street dance with Mary Beth and the West Texas Travelers providing the music, will conclude the days activities. There will be no admission charge for the dance.

Everyone is invited to come and share in the fun.

Drought Tolerant Native Texas Plants Could Help Ease Future Water Problems

By Robert L. Haney
TAES Science Writer

The water problems Texas has now could get worse as industrial and population growth in the decades ahead, warns one of the State's leading water authorities.

However, since half the water that many cities use during the growing season is used to water landscape plants, we can greatly reduce demands on water resources by using drought tolerant plants in landscaping, according to Dr. Wayne Jordan, Director of the Water Resources Institute.

"In 1980, water use for residential and commercial purposes accounted for about 15 percent of the water use in Texas," Jordan says. "With continued, rapid population growth, these annual needs will increase from the present 5.0 million acre-feet (one acre foot of water equals 325,851 gallons) to between 6.9 and 8.8 million acre-feet by the year 2000, according to estimates by the Texas Department of Water Resources."

"That's a projected increase of demand between 38% and 76% in a water-short state, with spot shortages already developing in some places from time to time, such an increase in demand is sure to cause widespread disruptions unless we plan wisely in the years to come."

"The Water Resources Institute, as a unit of the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station, has the strong backing of the Legislature and other funding sources to discover ways through research that will conserve water and increase utilization of available supplies."

"Since the potential for development of additional water resources appears limited in much of the western United States, conservation and reuse are important strategies to combat projected water shortages."

"In addition to the obvious benefit to consumers in terms of lower utility bills, water conservation and reuse would enhance stability of current water supplies, alleviate some of the need for enlarged water treatment and distribution facilities, and lower costs of sewage disposal."

"Since half the water used in many urban areas is for watering grass, flowers, shrubs and trees, a number of researchers in different areas of the state, are comparing water requirements of a wide variety of grasses."

"Results are preliminary but thus far it looks as though we should be doing more to utilize buffalograss and bermudagrass rather than some of the more exotic grasses with far higher water requirements. "Other researchers are studying hardy native or long-naturalized species of trees, vines, shrubs and flowers that can be selected and multiplied for landscape use."

"Such 'native Texans' are adapted to the rigors of our climate, and generally, have an acquired resistance to insects and diseases with a lower demand for water and fertilizer."

"Some of these plants have already been selected by station scientists, tested for growing requirements, the best reproductive process determined, and released to commercial sources for multiplication and distribu-

"This research is developing new landscape plants that are beautiful, hardy, and easy to care for, with minimal demands for water, fertilizer, insecticides, etc. They are named the TAM-REP series for Texas A&M Resource Efficient Plants."

"Included in these early releases are 'White Cloud'™ Centozo, 'Silver Cloud'™ Centozo, and 'Mount Emory'™ Centozo, and 'Mount Emory'™ Mountain Sage, that you can probably soon find at your nursery supplier."

"Other researchers studying water conservation devices within the home that are directed toward reducing uses for sanitary disposal and showering and bathing, say these practices use over 70% of household water."

"In general, these conservation devices were able to save totals of water from 3 to 18%."

There, Chief Irwin found the youngsters curled up in the press box sound asleep. They were apparently unharmed, and told the chief they had been at the bleachers looking for "cans."

Events To Mark Experiment Station Anniversary

In observance of its 75th anniversary in Lubbock, the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station has planned a series of events which will climax in September with the station's annual field day. Theme for the anniversary observance is "Roots of Progress."

The Lubbock center was established in 1909 as one of the five original research stations created across the state by Texas A&M University, under provisions of the federal Hatch Act. Originally located east of Lubbock, it now is just north of Lubbock International Airport.

Two seminars have been planned and designated as the Don L. Jones Memorial Lectures, said Dr. Darrell T. Rosenow, professor of grain sorghum with TAES and chairman of the 75th Anniversary Committee. Jones was superintendent of the Lubbock research center from 1925-1957.

"Seventy-five Years of Agricultural Progress" will be the title for the first lecture. It will be held at 1:15 p.m. on July 26, in the auditorium at the center. The lecture will give a historical look at the major agricultural developments of the area with which the experiment station has been involved, Rosenow said.

Graddy Tunnell, special counsel to the High Plains Research Foundation, will serve as moderator while Dr. Neville P. Clarke, director of the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station,

New Insurance Designed To Protect Farmers

An Amarillo based company today announced the availability of a new insurance policy designed to protect farmers against financial loss caused by grain warehouse bankruptcy.

Joel Goucher, President of the Amarillo based company, Agri*Risk, announced the availability of Farmers' Grain Insurance Coverage, a policy designed to specifically cover the possible financial loss of grain producers due to a grain warehouse bankruptcy.

The program, similar to programs under evaluation by the United States Congress and the USDA, guarantees that warehouse receipts and open storage tickets which are held by depositors are, in most instances, 100% insured against devaluation caused by the bankruptcy of the warehouse where their grain is stored. The deposits in the F.G.I.C. insured facilities are protected in much the same way as deposits in banks are protected by the F.D.I.C.

Under current regulations, grain warehouses are required by the USDA and State agencies to be bonded.

However, bonding does not always provide total protection for farmers and depositors of grain in the warehouse if the grain warehouse goes bankrupt. After the legal entanglements that will give the introduction.

The evolution of Southern Plains agriculture will be seen and heard as various agricultural topics are covered. An overview of the area resources will be given by Duncan Ellison, executive director of Water Incorporated. Roy Quinby, professor emeritus of plant breeding, will speak on grain sorghum development, and Dr. Delbert Hess, manager of cotton research for Cargill, Inc., will comment on cotton development.

Mechanization will be covered by Elmer Hudspeth, retired director of the USDA Southern Plains Cotton Research Laboratory; Kenneth Gray, president of the High Plains Vegetable Growers and Shippers Council, will talk about vegetables; and the president of the High Plains Under-ground Water Conservation District, James Mitchell, will discuss irrigation.

Dr. Perry Adkisson, deputy chancellor of Texas A&M University, will speak on insect control. The topic of weeds will be covered by Dr. John R. Abernathy, associate professor of weed research with the Experiment Station.

Clarke will conclude the program discussing the transition and perspectives of agriculture in the area.

The second lecture has been tentatively scheduled for late August or early September, prior to field day. "The Future of Southern Plains Agriculture" will be the title and it will include a "look toward the future of agriculture for the experiment station and the area," Rosenow said. Future strategies to be presented will include irrigated and dry land crop production, agronomic and horticulture crops, livestock and wildlife, minimum tillage and genetic engineering of plants.

The 75th annual field day of the center will bring the anniversary celebration to a climax on Sept. 11. Activities will include the usual motorized tours of the research plots and facilities. Also, the historical development of the station will be displayed along with some of the major crops and old equipment. "There will also be a special planting of old crop varieties will be shown during the field day tours," Rosenow said.

Sudan Girls Little Dribblers In Fourth Place

BY EVELYN RITCHIE

A group of 5th and 6th grade girls traveled to Dalhart to participate in the National Little Dribblers Girl's Basketball tournament. The local All-Stars returned home with a fourth place finish.

In the first game, the Sudan girls faced a team from Southwest, La. and were defeated 49-9 (This Louisiana team chosen from four towns was the eventual champion of the tournament. The closest anyone came to them was 29 points.

The score by quarters were 2-15, 3-27, 6-39, 9-49. Leading scorers for Sudan were Hyla Ford and Kristi Hargrove with 3 each; Moneake Payne added 2 and Kendra Fisher one.

After the first loss, the girls had to start working their way up the losers bracket. This game was played against Plains, Texas with Sudan being victorious 29-15. The first quarter was very close with the score being 2-3 in favor of Plains. However, Sudan opened up the scoring in the 2nd and 3rd quarters to give them the victory.

Other scores by quarter were 14-5 at half, then 23-8 with the final scoring being the 29-15. Leading scorers for Sudan were once again

Ford and Hargrove with 9 each; Payne added 4; Amie Baker, Nichole Maxfield and Suzanne Ried added 2 each and Tanya Fisher added one.

The next game, again in the loser's bracket and Sudan's last, was against a team from North Zulch, Texas. The final score was 20-56. This team advanced to the finals they eventually lost to the Louisiana team. In this particular game, Sudan played real close the first two quarters, but the heat and the early morning game soon proved to be downfall. Scores by quarters were 8-9; 17-26; 20-39; 20-56. Leading scorers were Hargrove with 7; T. Fisher with 6; Payne made 4; K. Fisher added 2 and Maxfield made a free one.

Other members of the team were Mandy Carr, Ambyr Donnell and Kay Lynn Gordon. The team was coached by Missy Fisher, Sharla Harrison and Mike Fisher.

Sudan has the right to be very proud of these girls. They represented the community with dignity and good sportsmanship.

The girls would like to thank Sudan for their support. The All-Stars realize the trip and experience would not have been possible without it.

One of the keys to old age is in knowing how to relax and break the tension which builds up while making a living.

The man who admits a foolish act now and then is to be trusted. The "wise guy" who is never wrong should be left alone.

Bill May Improve Vocational Training

Legislation directed at improving vocational training in Texas Public Schools has been filed in the House and Senate for action during the current Special Session.

State Senator Bill Sarpalius of Amarillo filed Senate Bill 10, Thursday, June 7. State Rep. Jerry Clark of Buna and State Rep. Bill Carter of Fort Worth are co-sponsoring companion legislation, House Bill 54, also filed Thursday.

Sarpalius said the legislation is aimed at improving the quality of vocational education now, looking to the future of the programs, and maintaining funding at an acceptable level.

The Advisory Council for Technical-Vocational Education and a large majority of the groups involved in vocational training activities are supporting the legislation.

The Governor and House and Senate leadership have expressed interest in seeing that programs provided by vocational training do not become forgotten subjects during the educational reform session currently underway.

"This legislation answers all the questions that have been raised concerning the efficiency and effectiveness of vocational education. Many of the activities are being carried out presently as a matter of course, but this legislation spells out exactly what is to be expected from vocational training classes," Sarpalius said.

He added, "the idea behind the legislation is to see that every legitimate criticism of vocational education is addressed and a solution written into law."

"What this bill does is find solutions to problems rather than take the Select Committee on Education's approach and provide an answer by chopping the programs' funding."

Specific regulations are designed to maintain the quality of existing programs and set forth criteria and procedures prior to approval of any new programs. All programs must be approved by the State Board prior to their implementation. Priority is given to programs identified by the State Board as priority occupations. Prior to a request for a new vocational program, the district must undertake a cost study to determine if it is more cost effective to run their own program rather than contracting with another institution.

The bill includes recommendations of the Research Triangle Institute's study on vocational education designed to increase the quality and effectiveness of programs. The bill authorizes the State Board to set minimum enrollment levels for each type of program, as well as authorizing school districts to assign vocational teachers to teach other subject areas in which they are certified.

The State Board of Education is directed to prepare and annually update a master plan for vocational education. This plan would set forth objectives including assurances that future vocational programs are designed to meet the needs of new and emerging occupations and the needs of groups such as the handicapped, disadvantaged and adults.

A master plan would assure that all secondary and postsecondary students in Texas have the opportunity to participate in vocational education programs.

Sufficient funding is restored for appropriation to vocational education. For the 1984-85 school year the amount of funding is derived by multiplying the total number of students enrolled in vocational education by a weight factor of .47, with the result multiplied by $1,145. The amount is increased for both the 1985-86 and 1986-87 school years. Funds appropriated shall be allocated to school districts for use in funding vocational education in accordance with a formula adopted by the State board.

The sponsors said they were anxious to have hearings on the legislation and would press efforts to have every provision in the bill contained in education legislation passed by the Legislature and sent to the Governor

"Burst made a believer out of me!"

—Dennis Cowen
Amherst, TX

High Plains cotton growers are discovering that Burst[®] Yield Booster[™] greatly increases cotton yields! First tests of Burst in this area, conducted in 1983, were impressive — just ask Dennis Cowen!

"On one field, Burst increased my lint production by 135 pounds per acre and seed production by 327 pounds per acre. That amounted to an overall increase in money of $100 per acre where I treated with Burst! The cotton I treated was planted June 12th, and I wasn't really expecting to make half a bale out of it. But it ended up making a bale where I treated it with Burst. I plan on putting Burst on all of my crops this year."

An exciting product of biotechnology, Burst helps crops achieve more of their genetic yield potential. Cotton responds to Burst with increased root growth, improved vigor, more fruiting branch development, earlier and greater boll set and increased stress tolerance.
