Kiwis, Beer, Broads Fire Heated Debate

by TOM SCHMIDT
and RON CALHOUN

New Zealand may never become the fifty-first state in the Union but it won't be because two of its natives haven't tried.

Trading jibes for jibes and insults for insults, New Zealanders Warrick Dent and Ted Thomas served their country well Wednesday night taking the affirmative of the question: "Resolved: New Zealand should become the fifty-first state in the United States of America."

The debate was a near comedy of slights as subtle bursts of laughter followed the even more subtle wit — especially from the New Zealanders.

Tech debaters Don Zimmerman and Franz Helbig, however, were not to be denied as they retorted with some acidity on the negative side.

The Debate took on an unusual air because a five-minute cross examination period followed each ten-minute argument. Each debater spoke once and then was questioned by a member of the opposition.

Thomas, in his opening argument, was bubbling over with sarcasm. He thanked all those responsible for bringing him to Texas Tech and making his stay so pleasant.

He compared similarity in backgrounds of New Zealanders and Texans. In proving this point, he cited Texas trains as getting steadily "worse and worse" as he traveled deeper into the state.

"In Texas, as in New Zealand, the trains indicate that the pioneer spirit is not yet dead," he said.

"I was under the impression that oil wells are everywhere in Texas, but we've been all over the state and haven't seen an oil well yet."

Commenting on his activities at Texas Tech, Thomas emphasized a Wednesday afternoon interview with a Toreador reporter.

"A Toreador, as you all know, is the name of a man who fights bulls. And, it is a very appropriate name in Texas. Where else, except in Texas, should war be waged on bull."

Moving in to the question of annexation, he pointed out that Texas, in 1845, was annexed to the Union. "Anything Texas can do, we can do bet -," he interrupted himself. "Pardon me, I see it's catching on."

In cross-examination, Zimmerman asked, "Don't you think Great Britain has declined as a world power since World War II?"

Thomas answered, "Since World War II and the rise of Russia, ALL countries have declined as world powers."

Zimmerman persisted, "But England, more than others."

Thomas paused and answered, "No, I think England will grow to the number two spot in world power — second to Russia."

It was apparent at this point that all opportunity for humor was on the visitors' side. Their goal was so fantastic that their subtle wit became the point of argument rather than the stated resolution.

Franz Helbig, opening the negative side of the argument, gave three reasons why New Zealand shall never become a state.

He charged the little island in the South Pacific with a selfish foreign policy, conflicting economic interests and tendencies toward socialism which are incompatible with U.S. views.

Helbig pointed out that New Zealand, on the basis of their exports to England, is no better than "an outlying farm of Great Britain." He added that there are no

De Gaulle Given Emergency Powers

PARIS (AP) — President Charles de Gaulle Wednesday got the decree powers he wants to act decisively against his opponents in France and Algeria.

In response to an appeal by Premier Michel Debre, the Senate quickly approved a bill granting the government emergency powers by a vote of 226-39. The National Assembly already had approved the bill.

IT BECOMES LAW as soon as De Gaulle signs it.

Thus armed, De Gaulle was reported to be planning a drastic shake-up of civilian and military leaders in Algeria.

Even before Parliament acted, the government began moving against right-wing extremists who are believed to have been the real force behind last week's rebellion by French settlers in Algeria.

THE SETTLERS feared De Gaulle's plan for self-determination in France's big North African territory might eventually give the Moslem majority control and force them out.

Some of the right-wing leaders now sought by the police were active in the 1930's when there was support here for fascism.

Debre's speech to the Senate, as in his address to the assembly the day before, viewed the French uprising in Algeria gravely.

"WE ALMOST saw a collapse of the state last week," he said. "The stability of institutions, the continuity of thought and political action are more necessary than ever."

He said the events in Algiers, when the French settlers again tried to bend the government in Paris to their will, showed the "weaknesses of the state apparatus."

Debre refused to accept any amendments to the emergency bill. This means that Cabinet decrees will become law without Parliament having anything to say until later.

THE DECREES must be submitted to the deputies and senators by April 1, 1961. But in the meantime they are the law. After approving the emergency powers, Parliament ended its two-day extraordinary session.

The bill gives the government emergency powers to safeguard the Republic, maintain order, and pacify and administer Algeria.

The Assembly wrote in a provision insisting that De Gaulle must approve all decrees, but this was hardly necessary since he presides at Cabinet meetings and the ministers serve at his pleasure.

A Cabinet meeting is scheduled for Friday. The first decrees are expected to be issued then. De Gaulle had planned to go to Algeria Friday, but the announcement of the meeting makes his trip highly unlikely at that time, even though there has been no official postponement.

Group Discusses Longer School Day

Lengthening the school day and teaching a language in elementary grades were discussed Wednesday by the West Texas School Study Council in a meeting in the Tech Union.

A PANEL led the discussion on "A Balanced Curriculum in Grades 1-12."

Panel members were Dr. Jess Hudson, curriculum director of the Tulsa public schools, consultant; Dr. Ralph Schilling, superintendent of the Littlefield public schools; Mr. G. E. Thompson, superintendent of the Kermit public schools; and Virgil Keyes, high school principal at Seminole. Moderator was Dr. Joe Tidrow, curriculum director of the Andrews public schools.

It was suggested that the school day be lengthened only for extra instruction to gifted children instead of for everyone. If the school day were lengthened, teachers could work in shifts.

ONE SCHOOL in the council reported a language program already started in the elementary grades on a three times a week basis. The main objections to this program were lack of teachers and time.

Dr. Jess Hudson said that in the high school program for gifted children, he preferred enrichment courses on high school course material rather than an acceleration to college level courses. He said that this had been requested by several college professors.

Another school reported an experiment being carried on in the form of night classes on how to study. Classes were held for languages, mathematics, social studies and science. Attendance was to be by "enforced invitation."

New Building Opens For Classes Monday

Classes will begin in the new classrooms building Monday morning, D. M. McIlroy, assistant vice president and comptroller, announced Wednesday.

FINISHING TOUCHES are now being completed on the interior, McIlroy said, and all classrooms equipment with the exception of some tables for marketing laboratories will be installed by that time.

He pointed out that 89 per cent of the business classes, many English sections and a few math classes will meet in the building.

"OFFICES for the faculty, however, will not be ready until sometime early in March," McIlroy said. "The office furniture will not be shipped from Jasper, Ind., until Feb. 20."

He explained that because of the type of building this is, it was impossible to get a completion date far enough ahead to order the equipment and have it shipped.

"The company that built the equipment has to build and ship it quickly because they have no storage space. We didn't have the storage space either."

U.S. Rocket Aids British Satellite

LONDON (AP) — Britain's first space satellite — the Internal I — will be taken aloft by American scout rocket from the U.S. East Coast in late 1961.

It's expected to orbit the earth at distances varying between 200 and 600 miles, passing over Britain, Australia, and South Africa.

High Schools Invited Here For Speech Meet

Thirty-two high school debate teams will be hosted by the speech department Saturday, Dr. Paul M. Larson, department head, announced.

Approximately 200 students, with as many as 60 in one event, will participate in junior declamation, senior declamation, poetry reading, original oratory, extemporaneous speaking, one-act play, and debate.

TWO EXPERIMENTAL discussion groups, comprised of one member from each debate team will discuss, "What should be the role of government in regulating organized labor?"

The first event, the one-act plays, will begin at 9 a.m. after confirmation of registration at 8 a.m. Individual events and the experimental groups will begin at 10 a.m. The first round of debate will start at 11 a.m. and the last round will end at 4:40 p.m.

Awards will be presented to the winning debate teams and play entries at 5 p.m.

JERRY ROLLINS POWELL, director of speech activities for the State Interscholastic League in Austin, will speak at the luncheon to be held in the Student Union Ballroom at 12:15 p.m. where the individual events awards will be made.

Interscholastic League rules and provisions will be followed with few exceptions. The regularly scheduled regional Interscholastic League meet will be held at Texas Tech in April.

Visitors Like America

by ANNA LEE McCUE

Toreador Staff Writer
Warwick Dent and Edward Thomas, members of the New Zealand debating team, who debated against the Tech debaters Wednesday night, have some very definite ideas about America.

"It's so big; everything is huge," is the overwhelming impression of America to Warwick Dent. "New Zealand is about as large as the combined area of New York, New Jersey, and Pennsylvania. The population is only two and one-half million people."

"AMERICANS ARE so hospitable. An example of this is the tickets we were given, when we were in San Francisco, to the one hundred dollar a plate Republican dinner at which Eisenhower spoke," stated Edward.

"New Zealand has only one university with divisions in several cities," according to Dent. "In American colleges there are department divisions such as speech, physical education, drama, and journalism. In our schools there are no similar departments. All of these activities are sponsored by the Student Union."

ANOTHER difference noted by the team was the attitude of the professors. In their universities the professors have a "take it or leave it" attitude. Here they believe the instructors do more definite assigning of reading as well as written work.

"One of the grounds for similarity of home and the United States is that of religion," Thomas stated. "Both places are predominantly protestant."

The team is sponsored by the Institute of International Education which has as one of its objectives the sending and receiving of debate teams.

STARTING the first of January, the team will make a counter-clock wise circle of the western states, beginning and ending in California.

At 10 a.m. Thursday the team will leave for North Texas State College in Denton. On all of their trips they will travel by bus, train, or plane. The longest stay in any one place has been two days. They average four debates a week.

Colleges scheduling debates may choose the title of the debate from a list of ten topics submitted by the team.

The Channing Club, a liberal thought religious group, plans a discussion on the causes of the rise of the "beat generation," and why the "sick comedians" have gained popularity.

Shelley Burman, Stan Freberg, Tom Laird, Lenny Bruce, Ken Nordeen, and the team of Nicolas and May are some of the "sick comedians" that will be played on a tape.

The meeting will be at the home of Dr. Lowell Blaisdell, 2515-24th St. at 7:30 p.m. Sunday.

All interested students may attend.

A majority of the Texas Tech student body and faculty will remember the incident last month when three Tech boys and a non-student were arrested for breaking into a liquor store at Nazareth, a break-in which netted the quartet exactly nothing, and resulted in one boy being shot and all four being arrested later.

Administrators in charge of discipline at Tech took little time in dismissing the trio from the rolls of the college for the fall semester. As there is no such thing as permanent suspension from Tech, the three may enroll here at a later date, possibly next year.

The dismissal was unfortunate for all three, but especially in the case of one boy, a senior with high academic record who was to have graduated less than a week after the break-in.

Our reaction upon hearing the dismissal was instant anger over the fact that Tech had tried and found the boys guilty before a jury of 12 peers had done so. We were going to call it the Texas Tech Tribunal and compare their dismissal with some of the antics of Fidel Castro in strife-torn Cuba. Again we say, this was our first reaction.

However, on considering the situation and after conversing with both Dean Jones and Dean Hilliard — one-two men on the dean of men's office — the other side of the picture came to the fore.

The four boys, despite all the excuses that can be offered by their friends and parents, committed a criminal act. This act, plus the subsequent shooting by a nightwatchman evidently of the shoot-first-and-ask-questions-later category, put the name of Texas Tech in a bad light. And the Code of Student Affairs plainly states that the college has the right to dismiss any student who, through his actions on or off campus, brings disfavor upon the name of the school.

It is regrettable that the aforementioned students committed this act. Were they asked today why they did it, they in unison could probably not come up with an adequate answer. Can anyone explain an action that is done on the spur of the moment? None of the four had been in any serious trouble before and, with this hard-learned lesson, will probably never again be involved with the law.

While the incident points to the time-honored phrase that "Crime does not pay," it also brings to light the aspect of the students' responsibility to the college.

We, in this corner, have shouted long and loud about the students being given a chance to choose for themselves. However, with this freedom must come responsibility, both to the individual himself and the college. Adults, and we consider most Tech students to be thus, know that they are free to do just about what they please in their personal lives but must suffer the consequences of wrong actions. It's the law of the Jungle.

We will now dismount from our soap box for the semester with the hope that responsible students will think twice before acting. That advice comes free and applies to us also.

News Sources Cause Problems

The Toreador, like all other newspapers, has the problem of getting news (or a semblance thereof), writing the news and getting the paper out on time as a responsibility to its readers.

Writing the news is not so hard. Even though the writing quality of news varies on all papers, this is the least of the editor's worries.

THIS SEMESTER the Toreador is blessed with an abundance of new freshman and sophomore reporters. A few of them have had writing experience but many more have not. For the most part these reporters will have a difficult time in acquainting themselves with the campus and learning new styles of writing.

This brings forth one of the main reasons for the existence of the Toreador. Besides having a responsibility to its readers (the students who pay for it) it has the responsibility of training future journalists.

AND SO, the editor, having many writers, or future writers, faces the overwhelming problem of gathering the news. He must have news sources who will cooperate by seeing that the reporters get the news.

Much of the Toreador news come from campus clubs, organizations, individuals and what-not. These people will either call the Toreador or come to the news offices in person.

OTHERS COOPERATE wholeheartedly by setting aside a part of their time to see Toreador reporters.

There are a few personages, however, that have fallen out with the Toreador for one reason or another and either refuse to see a reporter or give him (or her) a rough time in getting the story.

THE TOREADOR staff feels that the latter should take into consideration the second of the twofold purposes of the paper — namely that it is a training ground. Also consideration should be given to the fact that staff members and reporters alike not only have to put out a paper, they have to go to classes, study and take quizzes just like everyone else.

We of the Toreador ask those who have grievances against us to keep your grievances but let us have the information so that we may fulfill our responsibilities to the students, the faculty and to ourselves.

Dorm Curfews Are Too Strict

The girls on this campus are to be pitied, not for anything they have done but for the endless rules and regulations hampering them in everyday school activities.

In particular, we are talking about the inelasticity of curfew hours in the women's dormitories (or residence halls, if you prefer).

The deadlines for sophomores and juniors to be in their dorms are 10 p.m. on week nights, 11 p.m. Sundays, midnight Fridays and an astounding 1 a.m. Saturday nights, or actually Sunday mornings.

The seniors and freshmen are not to be discussed since the prevailing philosophy is that freshmen coeds are too young and naive to be going out at all and the seniors are so old and prudish that they can be trusted with an extra hour every now and then. Actually, this is as fallacious as the rest of the system.

But what's odd is that women have to sign their lives away to be able to take in a noteworthy night attraction at Texas Tech and then half the time they still can't do so.

It seems odd that the college coeds of today are restricted to the point that girls in high school have much more freedom and the whole situation seems quite illogical.

We have never seen or heard any sound reasoning why coeds are required to be in their dorms by 10 p.m. during the week. This school, which boasts the opportunity for its students to make their own decisions, is not fulfilling its cry.

We have never witnessed anything immoral, illegal or unethical that could not be just as easily committed before 10 a.m. Yet we've seen girls flying out of Lubbock Little Theater, movies and other such events in a mad rush to beat the early curfew.

College is supposed to stimulate some sort of process of self-maturity. But when adult women (they actually are, you know) are constantly coddled in motherly fashion, then they have no chance to mature.

Mature college students can handle themselves and should be able to handle more freedom. And who can handle the immature?

School Spirit Again Is Obnoxious

The following is a guest editorial turned in to The Toreador office by Freshman Cheerleader Jan Payne following the Tech Picador—Lubbock Christian College basketball game Tuesday night.

School spirit must come from bottles, since it does not come from within. The seats in the coliseum must be awfully hard since all the students sit on their hands. Such has been the performance at every Picador freshman basketball game.

THIS HAS BEEN tolerable until its climax was reached when a small college of 500 earnest students completely monopolized the spirit at the Picador—Lubbock Christian College game Tuesday night.

The LCC cheerleaders, to whom I take my hat off, drew a roaring ovation from their loyal supporters, while the freshman cheerleaders were humiliated off the floor. There comes a time in the heart of every cheerleader when the spirit can take no more beatings.

AS A FRESHMAN cheerleader, I, along with my colleagues, have been put into a sheer state of frenzy trying to lead yells and give our Pic team some of the glory they so readily deserve.

However, the only responses we have ever derived from the student body (that is, the few who make it to the games) are sneers, chuckles and disinterested stares. "No man stands alone," surely we cannot. We need a warm responsive group, not one that laughs at us.

O.K. SO WHAT? Every year the frosh cheerleaders have the same problem; all jeers, no cheers. Well, in my estimation, it is about time this problem was solved.

We are trying to steam up some Big Noise because spirit is not spirit without everyone yelling their heads and hearts out. Surely spirit is not such when less than five per cent of the 8,000 total enrollment support these events.

JUST REMEMBER that this year's Picadors are next year's Raiders. Any sport bearing the proud Double T is worthy of excellent support, be it freshman or varsity.

Is this great college to shrink to small-school status simply because of a large group of unconcerned students? If this is so, then let's go back to the Border Conference where we belong.

tariffs and no basis for competition.

He emphasized that New Zealand's major exports are commodities which are already over-abundant in America. "We have a great farm surplus and therefore do not need New Zealand's products."

Thomas, at possibly the high point of the evening, retaliated in cross examination.

"Do you take girls out Franz?" he asked.

"Yes," Helbig answered. "Are they American girls?" "Yes."

"Where do you take them in Lubbock?" Thomas asked sarcastically.

Helbig reddened slightly and tugged nervously at his tie. He said, "Uh, to the Lindsey Theater, or uh, to uh, the Tech Union and then sometimes to Carmello's."

"Isn't it true that sometimes American girls pay for the dates?"

Helbig agreed hesitatingly. "But Franz, New Zealand men always pay their date's way. So how can you say that we are selfish."

Helbig replied that he was not thinking of individuals but of the island as a whole internationally.

"Did you know, Franz," Thomas asked, "that in New Zealand we drink 229 gallons of beer per capita each year?"

"No," Helbig answered. "Don't you think that's a quality to be admired?" Thomas proudly asked.

Helbig muttered, "I can only take your word for that."

The cross-examination ended. Dent then approached the podium, saying that he was hurt by the attitude of his opponents.

"Here we are, offering ourselves to you; we want to become a state.

And the negative side acts as if it doesn't want us. We never suspected such an attitude.

"We hoped the United States AND Texas would take our small, defenseless but independent island under its wing."

Dent also emphasized the common background of America and New Zealand. He illustrated this with one of his adventures in Lubbock.

"I was walking down 19th St. today, following two Lubbock matrons. From this vantage point, I could see common background is even more similar than I expected."

Pointing out some of the advantages of statehood Dent said, "We could have our television quiz shows, and maybe a visit from Charles Van Doren, your green stamps, credit cards and also, New Zealand would be another place to send your tourists." It was Helbig's turn to cross-examine.

He said that New Zealand's remoteness from the United States would not be feasible from an administrative viewpoint. "If you and mandates, they would be on plotted New Zealand's interests the same scale as the distance from Fairbanks, Alaska to Mexico City."

Dent retorted with a cutting remark referring to around-the-world influences and interests of the United States.

Don Zimmerman for the affirmative emphasized the middle-of-nowhere location of New Zealand. "Why, they're so far away, they are standing on their heads down there."

"The national symbol is the Kiwi, a bird that can't fly. It catches its worms by seductively stomping about the hole like rain falling."

(Editors note: It is the nature of worms to come to the ground surface when it rains for fear of drowning.)

Zimmerman charged that New Zealand in their desire to desert Great Britain in favor of the United States emulated "rats leaving a sinking ship." He then concluded, "Anywhere is closer to anywhere else than New Zealand is."

Dent, in his cross-examination of Zimmerman, was apparently distressed.

"Is the word 'rat' nice, Don?" he asked.

Zimmerman, somewhat surprised, answered that it at least could be used in mixed company. "Don, is it clean?"

"I've never known a clean rat." "Is it something you would give a girl... friend."

"No," Zimmerman answered. "Did you know that a New Zealander can collect damages for being called a rat?"

Zimmerman replied that it was not a practice in the United States and that it was another difference in the two countries.

The debate concluded; the parties grinned wryly and shook hands.

(Editor's note: It is highly improbable that the United States and Great Britain will ever come to any great diplomatic crisis as a result of this debate.)

Tech Cagers Happy After Victory

by RALPH W. CARPENTER
Toreador Sports Editor

The Texas Tech dressing room was a scene of mass confusion Tuesday night after the Raiders' 82-79 upset win over the Razorbacks of Arkansas.

NO ONE was more happy than the Raiders themselves. They yelled and joked happily through a long series of autograph signings . . . smiled at photographers and praised the other team . . . a few hurried to the showers, others just sat and stared at the wild group of fans that poured over them like an avalanche.

Gene Arrington, big senior performer, signed autographs with one hand and dried himself with a towel with the other.

"HECK, WE WERE ready out there tonight. It looks as if we will be awful tough to handle from now on. Mounts helped us a lot tonight, man, was he ripping that basket.

"Rhoden? You bet he's good. He hits from all angles on that floor. The Razorbacks have a good team, don't ever doubt it."

DEL RAY MOUNTS stood by a bench in the dressing room signing his name to countless programs thrust at him by happy youngsters. He managed to get them satisfied, only to be confronted by several press reporters who fired salvo after salvo of questions.

"Give the other guys the credit. They played like champions out there tonight. They are a grand bunch of guys. I think we are going to settle down and play our best the rest of the way.

"ARKANSAS? THEY have a fine team just like we imagined. That Rhoden is hard to do anything with. We had our work cut out for us and we went out there and did it the second half."

Big Don Perkins sat down on a bench and breathed a sigh of relief.

"Man, I'm glad it's over. I don't think I have ever been this happy before. Those Arkansas boys could play football on just about any team in this conference. Don you think? Some of those guys towered above me, and I'm 10 so short."

STEVE LEE, sophomore forward, stripped off his jersey and headed for a refreshing shower—he never made it—well-wishes crowded him back against the wall and gave out with the question. He answered them all.

"We wanted this one real bad. We knew that they would be fouled—and they were. Garner (Rhodie), Rhoden (Clyde) and Carl (Jerry) gave us a lot of trouble. They are all good.

"Tired? YES, I guess I am, but I'm happy. I thought all the guys did a great job out there tonight. I hope we do as well against the Aggies."

Mac Percival, sophomore from Vernon, slipped out of his number 31 . . . headed for the shower, hoping for peace and quiet . . . he never found it. There was yelling in the shower room there anywhere else.

BILL SPITZER, the tallest member of the Raider squad, tugged at his uniform top and grinned.

"They guys did a great job of that tonight. I am proud to be a member of this team. It's always great when you win. I hope we can take the Aggies."

ROGER HENNIG, the boy who came through when the chips were down—was taking the whole thing about as usual—calm.

"I am always happy when I win. That Mounts sure was a tonight."

The boy who scored two high points for the Raiders—Jame Wiley—met well-wishers with a big smile. Wiley dunked in the two points that gave Tech to lead they never lost.

POLK ROBISON was sitting in his office munching an orange and shaking hands right and left. I was a tired, but happy man.

"It was a team victory. The boys were willing to make that extra effort it takes to win the tough games. I am proud of each of them.

"Not only am I proud of the boys who performed on the floor tonight, I am proud of each man on this squad. They have worked hard for us this season. I only wish could play them all, every game."

(see below)

Dear Dr. Frood: The other day I stopped at my boy friend's house unexpectedly and I found Lucky Strike butts with lipstick on them in the ash tray. What should I do?
Observant

Dear Observant: Go ahead and smoke them. A little lipstick won't hurt you.

Dear Dr. Frood: I am a 267-pound tackle on the football team, cleanup hitter on the baseball team, champion shot-putter and captain of the basketball team. Where can I find a job when I graduate?
Athletically Inclined

Dear Athletically Inclined: Look in the Want Ads under "Boy—strong."

Dear Dr. Frood: Recently, while collecting ants, I happened upon this strange creature in the woods. I enclose a sketch. What is it?
Nature Lover

Dear Nature Lover: It is socia ignota (blind date). Do not go near. Poisonous.

Dear Dr. Frood: I am a math professor. Over half my students are flunking their tests. What can I do about this?
Discouraged

Dear Discouraged: Use Frood's Formula: Divide distance between students' chairs by 2. Since chairs will now be closer together, result should be a 50% improvement in exam grades.

Dear Dr. Frood: Last Saturday my girl told me she couldn't go out with me because she had a cold. Next day I found out she was out with my roommate. Think I should stay away from her?
Disillusioned

Dear Disillusioned: Better stay away from your roommate. He's probably caught the cold now.

Dear Dr. Frood: I understand that your hobby is cooking. Mine is, too. But my girl friend says any guy who cooks is a sissy. How can I make her stop laughing at me?
Cooky

Dear Cooky: Place a large cauldron of oil over a high flame. When it comes to a boil, add your girl friend.

Dear Dr. Frood: Should a man marry a girl who makes more money than he does?
Old-Fashioned

Dear Old-Fashioned: If it's at all possible.

FOR FEBRUARY 13th

Baseball Drills Set

Texas Tech baseball players get to work in earnest on Feb. 13 when first organized baseball workouts open under the supervision of Coach Beattie Feathers.

FROM ALL indication the Raider club appears to be sitting pat for the coming season — 10 lettermen return for varsity action and four top baseball nines, all of them tabbed top calibre teams by Feathers, have been scheduled.

The Raiders open against TCU in Fort Worth on March 8. They follow up with Texas A&M at College Station on March 24 and catch Rice in Houston on the 25th. After a brief lapse, Feathers' contingent journeys to Alpine April 14 for a bout with Sul Ross that day and two games on the 15th.

FEATHERS HAS concentrated on getting the Southwest Conference teams on the schedule first and will try to fill out the season's program with West Texas, Midwestern and perhaps Abilene Christian College.

Feathers gathered his prospective players at a meeting Monday night in West Hall for an early look-see. There were about 50 on hand, including varsity, freshman and newcomers.

OTHER BOYS interested in vying for squad positions may come Feb. 13 for the opening workout, said Feathers. Time is 1 p.m.

At the meeting the Tech coach urged his pitchers and catchers to begin workouts "on their own," if possible, before Feb. 13.

BACK IN THE fold for action this season will be a returning letterman who was the leading hitter last spring, Joe Reeves. Reeves held down second base for the Raiders in 1959. Then, too, there is the top hurler, Zan Miles, another top-duty lad who returns.

Other returning lettermen: Elton Howard, catcher; Broce (cq) Boyd, and Butch Adams, first basemen; Tommy Prichard, shortstop; Ken Warren and Bill Dean, outfielders; and Charlie Flanagin (cq) and Woodrow Johnson, pitchers.

THE FIERY basketball player, Del Ray Mounts, comes up from the freshman baseball team and may step into a starting position before the season is over. He was the top frosh tosser in 1959.

Other freshmen Feathers is counting on to see activity are second baseman Lawrence Savage who will probably shift to third; outfielder Nick Moore; and another young pitcher, Roger McEvans.

RALPH ATKINSON, a senior who helps Feathers, will be the freshman coach.

Presently the freshmen have lined up games with Odessa Junior College, there, March 22; San Angelo College here on the 24th; Odessa here on the 29th; and San Angelo there April 20.

FEATHERS HOPES the frosh can get other games with Amarillo Junior College and South Pains Junior College, Levelland.

The Raiders are not competing members of the Southwest Conference's baseball division. It may not be many years, however, before they do battle for a SWC crown since the baseball program here has been on the uprise since its resumption in 1954. Baseball had been dropped since 1929.

ONE OF THE biggest difficulties — for Tech — in competing in the Southwest Conference baseball race is that of tremendous distances which would need to be traveled. The way it is now, SMU, TCU, Rice, A&M and Texas have little trouble competing together because they are in the same general area.

But for Tech to take a day going and a day returning to play one of those teams would mean the loss of too much school time.

Bryant Will Vote For Houston Cause

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP) — The Houston Post Wednesday said Paul (Bear) Bryant, athletic director and head football coach at Alabama, is supporting the University of Houston for Membership in the Southeastern Conference.

"I can't speak for the conference but I know I personally and the University of Alabama certainly support the University of Houston," Bryant said.

Clark Neelson, Post sports editor, talked with Bryant by telephone from Miami Beach, Fla., where the Alabama coach is vacationing.

Drills Start In Tennis

The Red Raider basketball team is not the only team doing their stuff on the courts at Tech these days.

Tech's varsity tennis team has begun training under the watchful eye of Coach George Philbrick in preparation for their season opener March 17 against Lamar Tech.

"WITH JUST four experienced players on the team," the coach said, "we are considerably weaker than teams of the past. However, we still plan to make it a battle all the way."

Philbrick's choice for the conference favorite is Rice, with Texas expected to have a strong team. Rice had won the conference championship the past two years and has many of the same netmen returning this year.

TECH, although weakened by grades, has four returning starters: Bob Macy, Johnny Kniffen, Benny Scales, and Daryl Breneman. Macy, who was hampered last season with a broken hand, is expected to be at full strength this season.

Jim Parmer Joins Tech

Jim Parmer, former professional football player with the Philadelphia Eagles, has been hired as an assistant football coach at Texas Tech.

PARMER, well-acquainted with the Red Raiders having helped coach both the freshman and the varsity backs for the past three seasons, helped install the multiple offense that led to the breaking of nearly a dozen Tech passing and receiving records last fall.

This new attack, adapted from the Philadelphia Eagles' and University of Tennessee's offenses, involves numerous formations including the multiple wing, slot, spread single wing, double wing and "L," and replaced Tech's basic offense, the split-T.

'Mural Play Will Begin

by CHARLES RICHARDS
Toreador Sports Writer

A sport requiring possibly more team work than any other activity is also proving to be one of the most popular in the Texas Tech Intramural Athletic Dept.

Basketball, as offered by the intramural department, is presently played by five leagues representing 35 campus teams, and an estimated 600 students.

AFTER SEVERAL weeks off due to Christmas and final exams, action is resuming this week with all leagues having contests.

In the fraternity league, comprised of ten teams, three groups are undefeated going into this week: Kappa Sigma, Phi Gamma Delta and Pi Kappa Epsilon all have 3-0 records.

THE CHINESE Bandits are leading the Independent League No. 1 with a 2-0 record. The Worthless Wonders are only a half game behind with a 1-0 mark. All eight teams resume play tonight in the Men's Gym.

Men's No. 7 is on top of the "A" Dormitory League. Although having only a 1-0 record, Dorm 7 enjoyed a bye while the other teams were knocking each other off.

Two leagues — "B" Dormitory League and Independent League No. 2 — initiated their races with games Monday night. Dorm 8 defeated the team from Dorm 7 and Dorm 5 recorded a win over Gordon Hall by the forfeit route to share the lead after the first week. The Pastourizers team to grab the lead in the Independent No. 2 League. The Sports Club was victorious over the Church of Christ team to claim a tie for the top spot.

RALPH'S RAMBLINGS

by
Ralph W.
Carpenter

Words cannot express true feelings, it seems.

This corner couldn't write enough words in forty years to express the pride we feel for the Texas Tech basketball team. That $20 victory over Arkansas Tuesday night will go down in Tech athletic history as one of the greatest games ever played by a Tech basketball squad.

To Gene Arrington, Roger Hennig, James Wiley, Steve Lee, Don Perkins, Mac Percival, Carlyle Smith, Dale McKeenan, Robert Echols and Bill Spitzer go our thanks for a great night of basketball. We won't soon forget this one, fellows. Keep up the good work.

A special round of thanks to little Del Ray Mounts who scored 35 big points Tuesday night. The lad from Perryton is proving to any doubters that the little man still has a place in basketball.

—RWC—

We might explain here about the technical foul that was called on Arrington during the Arkansas game. Gene, as anyone who sits close to the Raider bench knows, has a habit of sometimes throwing his warmup jacket to the floor when he is disgusted with himself. This was the case Tuesday night. Arrington had only three points when he left the game and he was simply disgusted with his performance — he was not mad at anyone but himself.

When he tossed the warmup over his head, the small snap flap on the jacket flew out on the floor a few feet. The official saw the flap and called the technical. Arrington did not toss the flap as an intentional action — regardless of what the officials thought or did.

—RWC—

We were sitting around the sports department the other day when a thought struck us. (It happens occasionally, even to sports writers).

It seems to me that many of our "egg-head" educators of today are blaming the missile gap between the United States and Russia in college sports. Sports have become the "whipping boy" for this gap of mis-guided souls.

Maybe the writers and sportscasters of our country are not doing a good job of telling the country what athletic competition does for the guys who play. It could be that not enough papers are using the stories on the boys who make good citizens as well as good athletes. If for instance, the local paper uses a story on a Tech player who turned out to be a fine leader in the community, they are in a sense helping TCU, Arkansas, Southern Methodist, Rice, Baylor, Texas and all the rest of the schools of our state.

In my opinion, an athletic scholarship is just as important as deserving as a scholarship for a band. Those who criticize the athletic scholarship simply don't understand the situation. They have to get about something and athletics certainly catches its share of the wind punches.

It's certainly time for the educators of today to get the knife out of athletics and start concentrating on what they can do to better educate the students of today. Athletic competition is here to stay — I wonder about some of the educators?
