

Irish P.M. threatens resignation over crisis

BELFAST (AP)—The governments of Northern Ireland and Britain split Thursday night over how to bring peace to Ulster, and Prime Minister Brian Faulkner was reported ready to resign Friday.

The deadlock threatened a constitutional crisis and brought closer the danger of full-scale civil war between the Roman Catholics and Protestants.

Diplomatic sources said they expected Faulkner to present his resignation and that of his entire Cabinet. That could bring on direct rule of Northern Ireland from London.

A second round of emergency talks between Faulkner and Britain's Prime Minister Edward Heath in London ended after 2½ hours with no agreement in sight.

Faulkner then flew back to Belfast, determined not to preside over an dilution of Protestant rule in the North and to fight British plans to give minority Roman Catholics a greater share of government, sources said.

They said they expected Faulkner to present his government's resignation to the governor of Northern Ireland and then hold a final meeting with his Cabinet, minutes before Heath is due to address the British House of Commons.

It was feared that if Faulkner did quit, there might be a severe Protestant backlash in Northern Ireland, triggering all-out civil war with Catholic extremists led by the Irish Republican Army—IRA.

In the streets of Northern Ireland, a huge bomb exploded in the town of Carrickfergus northeast of Belfast, injuring 12 persons. In Londonderry British troops claimed to have hit three gunmen in two shooting incidents.

Heath said in London he will make a special statement on the crisis to the House of Commons Friday.

Resignation by Faulkner would leave Heath's government with virtually no realistic alternative but to suspend Northern Ireland's parliament and to rule the province directly from London.

The two leaders arranged no further meetings, British officials said.

For UC-Music expansion

Architect presents plans

By LAUREL PHIPPS
Staff Writer

Atmar Atkinson, spokesman for Architects III an architectural firm planning Tech's University Center-Music Building expansion presented plans Thursday for that expansion to representatives of the UC, music department and Tech administration.

Atkinson said that the plans, currently in the schematic or "first draft" phase, will be submitted to the Board of Regents on April 7 for approval.

If the Board approves the proposal, the expansion plans will enter the "Design Development" phase. At this time careful study will be given to exact details of the expansion program before actual construction begins during the third phase, Atkinson said.

At the meeting Atkinson cited the decision not to use the present UC ballroom as a dining facility as the only new proposal since the last meeting.

"At that time it appeared feasible to use the ballroom for additional dining room space," Atkinson said. However, since then a national study by the UC board revealed a decline in student demand for full meals in colleges and universities, he said.

Atkinson utilized floor plans, interior sketches of the proposed expansion and a scale-model of both proposed and existing UC-music facilities to explain the expansion plans.

He said that potential expansion was "more flexible with a fresh start on the ground" (between existing UC-music structures) than constructing additional stories atop present buildings.

Because of Tech's rapid rate of growth, Atkinson anticipates

Policy on posters changed by Caskey

A new policy concerning campaign materials supporting candidates for local, state and national political office on the Tech campus was established Thursday.

The policy, as stated by Dr. Owen Caskey associate vice president for academic affairs, is, "Posters, announcements, banners, cards and other campaign material for any individuals seeking public office may not be posted or displayed on or in any academic or administrative buildings, campus grounds or parking lots. Such campaign material may be posted only (1) in an individual's assigned residence hall room or (2) in the University Center in accordance with the University Center's policies relating to signs and posters."

The policy applies to student and non-student candidates for any public office. Candidates may distribute handbills on campus if they are sponsored by a recognized student organization.

Bill Scott Student Association president, said, "The Student Association will sponsor all candidates and give them all equal space on the SA office announcement board."

Candidates seeking student support may not solicit funds on campus at any time.

The policy was decided upon in a meeting of Scott and Caskey Thursday.

that another story may be added to the UC dining room, kitchen and faculty club in the future.

"The ballroom was not planned for an additional story, but the roof could be lifted and another story built," he said.

Other proposals for UC-music expansion include:

—construction of a 75' X 150' enclosed courtyard with natural skylights, electric lights and air conditioning.

—construction of a 600-seat recital hall and a 1000-seat theater.

—renovation of present UC administrative offices to accommodate a lost and found, newsstand and ticket and information offices.

—construction of new student and UC administrative offices opening onto a balcony over looking the courtyard.

—construction of a meeting and music room for use by the Tech Student Senate.

—expansion of present snack bar facilities.

—construction of a game room under the new snack bar.

Norman Igo, director of new construction at Tech, said that he was ready to give a complete presentation of the plans so the public will be knowledgeable of the proposal.

Dr. Gene Hemmle, chairman of the music department, said the present plans are "a vast improvement over the original designs."

Dr. Owen L. Caskey, associate vice president for academic affairs, said he would reserve his opinion for later.

Dorms due to ratify amended constitution

At a joint meeting of the Men's Residence Council MRC and Women's Residence Council WRC Wednesday night both organizations unanimously ratified a new constitution. The amended constitution was passed after discussion lasting about 2½ hours.

The constitution now goes to individual dorms for approval. Legal action involving an alleged $120 that Coleman Hall owes the WRC from the time Coleman was a women's dorm is pending. The case is to be taken to the Tech Supreme Court.

Jim Loyd, Chairman of the MRC Rules Committee, reported on the investigation of Coleman Hall and moved that the Coleman Hall council and its functions be suspended until the investigation is completed. The measure passed.

Bob Jones, Chairman of the MRC visitation program, proposed the following hours for visitation in men's dorms to the Board of Regents:

M-Th. 7 p.m. - 11 p.m.

Fri. 7 p.m. - 12:30 a.m.

Sat. noon - 12:30 a.m.

Sun. noon - 12:30 a.m.

The council accepted the proposal.

Doug Krohon reported on a program that suggests a strong possibility for an upperclassman coed dorm in the near future.

This is the last issue of the University Daily until after spring break. The UD will resume publication on Tuesday, April 4. The staff would like to wish everyone a very happy Easter.

Dr. Robinson Robinson speaks on population

By ROBERT MONTEMAYOR
Special Reporter

Dr. Harold Frank Robinson told a crowd of 100 Thursday night he was very skeptical concerning the time and capabilities of producing food in correspondence to the population explosion.

Dr. Robinson, internationally known for his pioneering efforts to solve such problems as the population explosion and starvation, said, "Unless we make use of technology and make vast improvements in agriculture, we may be on the brink of a major crisis, economically and internationally."

He said producing food would only be a small part of the problem. "Distribution will be of greater concern. The problem of feeding all the people of the world is critical and is increasingly becoming more so."

Concerning foreign aid policies, Robinson said shipping food abroad was no answer to feeding the masses. "The United States cannot continue feeding all the people of the world and stand in good condition. I feel we should ship food overseas only in times of great disasters and catastrophes."

He added that as food prices increased the emphasis of agricultural production would have to be increased conjunctively with the standard of living.

"Farmers will in the near future find themselves seated in a more important role in society. Economically, they will be in a critical role to supplement the imposing situation of producing enough food to meet the needs of the population," said Robinson.

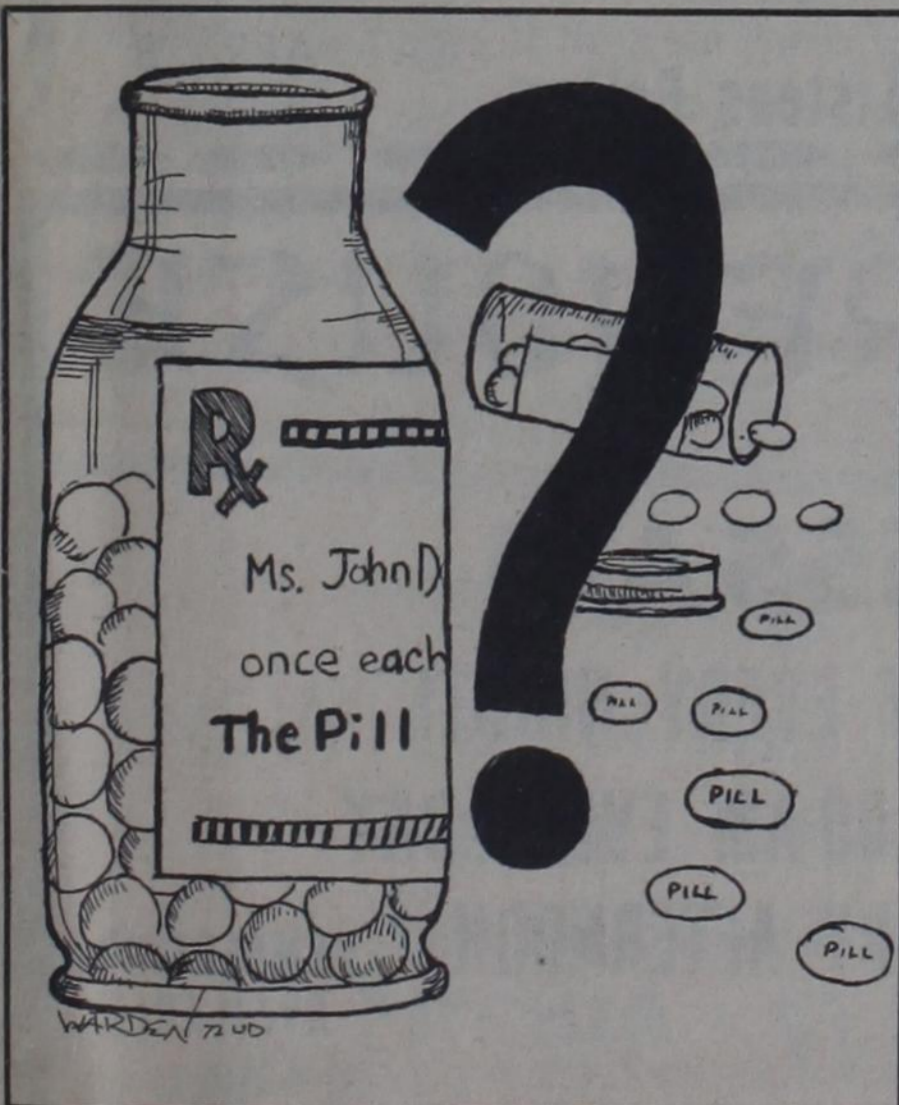

Regarding contraceptives usage to control population expansion, Robinson said it was likely that people's attitudes could be drastically affected enough to turn to the use of abortions and contraceptives as solutions.

He said the programs of Japan and Sweden had made the greatest advances in contraceptive use for population control.

Robinson said, "The control of the population problem calls for the intervention of all nations in a unified fight to find solutions. Our only hope is high productivity as methods to decrease population growth are found."

"The 70s will lead to solutions and improvements in agriculture practices. Presently, the attitudes of political groups are enough to crack the patience of those trying to meet the needs of the less fortunate of the world."

Robinson, who served as executive director of President Lyndon Johnson's Science Advisory Committee Panel on the World Food Supply in 1966, was the last speaker this year in the University Speakers Series.

Birth control advice varies on campuses

(Editor's note: The following information was compiled from letters and news articles from other state-supported universities.)

By LINDA GARRETT
Staff Writer

Policy on the dissemination of information on birth control and birth control pills varies widely at state supported universities in Texas. At the Tech Health Center, a coed can receive only advice on birth control. However, a coed at The University of Texas at Austin (UT) can have an examination, get a prescription for birth control pills and have it filled—all in the campus health center.

Physicians at the University Health Center at Tech neither give an initial prescription for birth control pills nor a refill prescription, said Dr. J. Ted Hartman, director of the Health Center. Birth control pills are not stocked at the pharmacy in the Health Center, said Hartman. The individual doctor may only advise the student on birth control on a strictly doctor-to-patient basis, he said.

Students requesting prescriptions for birth control pills are referred to Planned Parenthood or a private gynecologist in the city, Hartman said.

A spokesman for the Health Center will make a proposal to the Board of Regents at its April 7 meeting concerning the Health Center's policy on birth control, Hartman said. He would not, however, comment on the contents of the proposal.

According to an article from The Daily Texan, Nov. 3, 1971, birth control information is available at the UT Health Center and through informal talks given by health center doctors at dorms and sorority houses. Dr. Paul Trickett, Health Center director and gynecologist, said in the article that dispensing birth control information and contraceptives is up to the individual doctor. He said that the center stocks 21 kinds of birth control pills, available only by prescription. Trickett said their Problem Pregnancy Counseling Service, which began in October, 1970, was the first of its kind on any college campus in America to be located in a health center. Another article from The Daily Texan, Nov. 2, 1971, said the majority of pregnant coeds do go to the health center knowing that the facilities are available and their parents will not be told.

The policy on birth control at North Texas State University (NTSU) is directly opposite to that of UT. In an article from The North Texas Daily, Feb. 23, 1972, Dr. E. K. Mills, director of University Hospital, said that coeds cannot get an initial prescription for birth control pills at the hospital because they (the hospital) do not have the personnel. He said that the hospital does not have the laboratory personnel or equipment to perform the examination and tests required prior to dispensing the pill. Refills for birth control pills are usually given by the physicians, provided the patient's record indicates a recent, thorough exam, said Mills. Mills summarized the hospital's policy by saying that it would be "a very real disservice to just write prescriptions." Dr. Rollin Slinger, vice president for student affairs at NTSU, said that he did not think the hospital needed to be involved in dispensing birth control pills unless it does relate to a medical problem.

Dr. Curtis H. Lyman, director of the Health Service at The University of Texas at El Paso, (UTEP), said that birth control information is available at the Health Service. Prescription of birth control pills is permitted according to the individual doctor's judgement, Lyman said. He explained that women are frequently referred to Planned Parenthood due to the service's limitation of funds and professional services.

Dr. Warren P. Jurgensen, director of Student Health Services at The University of Texas at Arlington (UTA), said birth control is taught in formal courses at UTA. He also said that he and his staff counsel on birth control at the Health Center. Birth control pills are prescribed according to the individual doctor's discretion, Jurgensen said.

Louise Mitchell, R.M. at the Health Center at West Texas State University (WTSU), said birth control information and birth control pills are dispensed by Health Center physicians only. She explained that the prescriptions are given only after an examination and a Pap test is made. Like UTA and UTEP, students given a prescription for birth control pills at WTSU take it to the pharmacy of their choice to have it filled.

Intramural facility survey soon to come

In other words...

By DON RICHARDS
Editor

SOON AFTER students return from the spring vacation, a drive will begin to survey students about Tech's intramural facilities. The survey will include students, faculty and staff to determine to what extent and in what areas intramural facilities need to be improved.

The Saddle Tramps are in charge of the project and will be attempting to fill petitions with names of people wanting the improvements.

INTRAMURAL FACILITIES at Tech are in dire need of expansion and improvement. Tech has an extremely high percentage of participation in intramural activities, yet does not have near the facilities to match that demand.

If the proper financial status can be arranged for the project, President Murray has assured the Saddle Tramps that intramural facilities can be placed high on the new buildings priority list.

Watch for the petitions and sign them if you get a chance.

THE SEAL FOR the entrance fountain should be up within the next few months. The actual 12 foot seal has been completed and is ready to be erected, but a base must be built first.

Construction is expected to begin soon on the base as the bid was let recently to a local construction company. Completion is expected within 90 days and should definitely be up before next fall.

THE STATE political scene is now really beginning to get hot. There should be plenty of action in the next month prior to the May 8 primary.

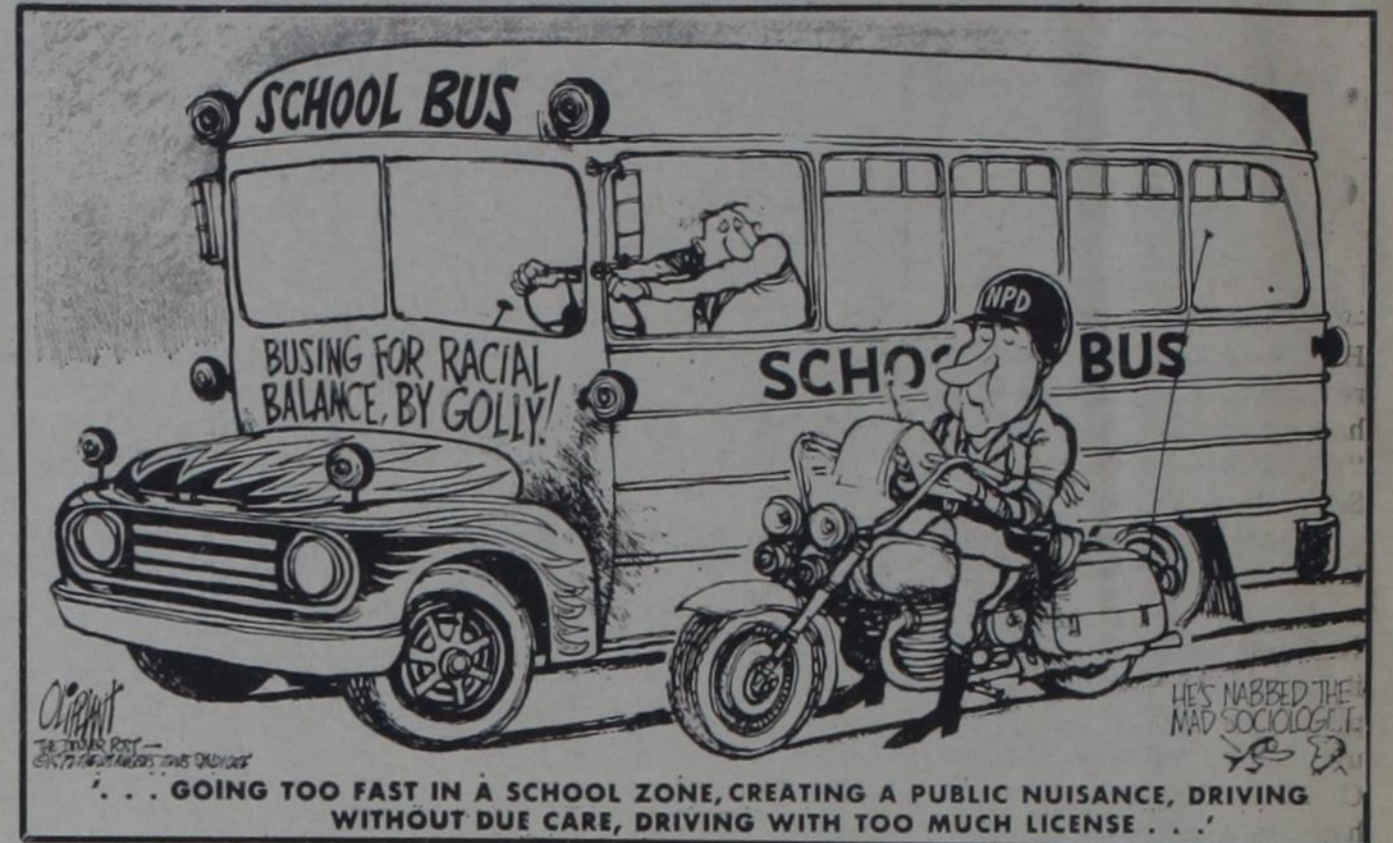

Gov. Preston Smith will call a special session and that in itself should be plenty exciting. Both Ben Barnes and Frances Farenthold will come back to attend and there should be lots of verbal comment for the press to take notes.

Mrs. Farenthold gained quite a lot of support after the Mutscher trial in Abilene. She will be really pushing Barnes and Smith on their dirty stock dealings. Recently she said she would meet the challenge of a TV debate with Barnes if Barnes would foot the bill.

IN ANOTHER area, it is not many times you will see a person get convicted of a felony and never spend a day in jail.

Gus Mutscher and friends got five-year "slap-on-the-wrist" probated sentences after they were convicted. However, what stands out even more is that not many times do you see someone get convicted of a felony, then get a probated sentence and then — appeal the ruling. Most people are happy to get off with the probation.

HOWEVER, WHEN that person is a politician, it's a completely different ballgame.

Maintains stand — remove posters

I certainly endorse any effort to increase political awareness on this campus. I only insist that no single candidate be afforded an unfair advantage by someone in a position of authority who misuses his power and influence.

Mr. Scott, I am aware of the fact that there are other campaign materials displayed in the SA office, and I never suggested you were a worker for all of these candidates. But I do reiterate two points made earlier, neither of which you answered in Wednesday's UD!

1) You are a campus worker for one candidate, Ralph Yarborough. This is very commendable. 2) You are using SA facilities to give this candidate an undue advantage.

I am pleased to note that the large 18x36 inch Yarborough campaign poster has been removed from the SA office door. There remains, however, a similar poster on an inner office door—the one assigned to the president. This poster alone occupies more space than all the combined campaign materials of all the other candidates displayed in the office. In addition, there are two smaller Yarborough posters displayed on other walls.

The executive order concerning political candidates that you cited reads, in part: "In consideration of the philosophy of equal time...the Student Association of Texas Tech University will afford...facilities for their (candidates') use." Mr. Scott, do you seriously suggest you are complying with the spirit of equality expressed in this executive order?

I do not suggest this misuse of space is a SA endorsement of Mr. Yarborough. I do repeat my suggestion that you, Mr. Scott, are misusing both your position, as SA president, as well as SA office facilities, to give an advantage to one candidate. I appeal to your responsibility as SA President, and to your sense of fair play, and urge you once more to remove your campaign activities to a more suitable location.

Writer disagrees with Scott's reply

After reading Mr. Brock's letter and Mr. Scott's reply, I can not help but believe that President Scott mislead the UD readers by trying to imply that all candidates have been given equal representation by the posters at the SA office.

I ask Mr. Scott to deny that a Ralph Yarborough poster was or is displayed on the front door of the Student Association office. I ask Mr. Scott to deny that his own affiliation with the Yarborough campaign is the cause for the multitude of publicity for Sen. Yarborough's visit to Lubbock and the comparatively little or no publicity of Mr. Sander's visit. Mr. Scott says that the Student Association office is rent free and no student service fees are used. Are you saying, Mr. Scott, that the SA office is not a representative office of all the students? Or, are you saying that you personally are supporting Mr. Yarborough and that you will use your power as president to use all school facilities for the promotion of his cause?

If you, Mr. Scott, can come down from your ivory office and stoop to pettiness just once more to answer these charges, then the students that you were elected to represent can decide for themselves who is petty.

Judge issues restraint order on Padre Island rock festival

BROWNSVILLE, Tex. (AP) — District Court Judge Darrell Hester signed a temporary restraining order Thursday to halt plans for the proposed "Easter Rock Fiesta" April 1 at South Padre Island.

A restraining order and temporary injunction was sought by South Padre Investment Corp., which claimed it owns substantially all the property available for private use on the island in Willacy County where the promoters had planned the rock music show.

Wendy Maloy of Harlingen had announced plans earlier this week to hold the fiesta, saying he had contracted with a rock music group, and planned to sell 5,000 tickets at $6 each for the four-hour show.

James R. Stanley of Houston, an executive with the investment corporation, requested the temporary restraining order, claiming the festival would cause irreparable damage to his property and that law enforcement officers would be unable to prevent persons attending the concert from damaging his property. He also said his firm might be held liable for injuries to persons attending the event.

Judge Hester set a hearing for 1:30 p.m. Wednesday on the request for a temporary injunction. Maloy and James Williams of Edinburg, Cecil McDonald of Pharr, and Ocean Productions were named as defendants in the restraining order requested.

Stanley says his corporation owns 30,000 acres of land on South Padre Island in Cameron and Willacy counties.

Maloy had said the concert would be held on the beach, which he claimed is accessible to the public. Stanley contended that those attending such a concert would have to cross and trespass his property in order to reach the concert site. He also claimed that such a large gathering would force some of those attending to remain on his property.

Judge Hester ordered Maloy and the others to stop selling tickets and stop inviting persons to attend the concert. The order also instructed them to notify all persons that have bought tickets about the restraining order and to advise them not to trespass on Stanley's property.

Maloy and the other defendants were not present when the judge signed the orders in his chambers, and they were not immediately available for comment.

McDonald had tried last year to obtain permission to hold a rock festival on the island for Easter weekend, but the request was turned down by Cameron County Judge Ray Ramon. Ramon's action came after many protests from residents of the Lower Rio Grande Valley, who claimed there would be widespread drunkenness at such an event.

McDonald gave up on that idea but he has been reportedly associated with Maloy and others in the planning of the latest event. It was presumably for this reason that his name was included as a defendant.

New Food Venture

Buffet style dorm meals started

A new program initiated by Texas Tech University's Office of Housing and Food Service has students living in campus residence halls asking not who but rather what's coming to dinner.

Robert C. (Bob) Bailey, assistant director, described the program as "a new venture in food service" at Tech.

This new venture consists essentially of providing Tech's dorm residents with a periodic change of pace from the usual dining room fare as well as from the "chow line to mess hall" type of dining atmosphere.

Still in its beginning stages, the program has been launched with a formal buffet format featuring carved-to-order beef and all the trimmings served not through the regular cafeteria line but instead from chafing dishes and serving pans along a linen-covered buffet table.

There are neatly dressed servers and uniformed busboys, and the roast beef is served up by a carver sporting the traditional chef's garb complete with neckerchief and distinctive high peaked cap. In addition, there are linen table cloths and softer lighting for finishing touches.

The buffet itself offers students hot breads, relishes, a cheese bread, fruit salad bowl, tossed salad, green beans, baked potatoes, the roast au jus if desired, and a choice of two desserts as well as the usual condiments and beverages. For the most part, students serve themselves and those with big appetites may come back for seconds.

"At this stage of getting the program set up," said Bailey, "we are able to offer this kind of dining experience to students in the various residence halls about once a month."

No advance notice has been given the students as to when the special meal would be served in their respective dining halls, thereby enhancing its value as a change of pace by adding what Bailey hopes students consider "an element of pleasant surprise."

He explained that because of special serving equipment, extra preparations necessary, and training and supervision of food service personnel involved, essentially the same crew has been coordinating this first phase of the new program as it has moved from one residence hall on campus to another.

Eventually, the regular food service staff in each dining hall will be trained and equipped to handle on its own this kind of special dinner on a regular schedule—hopefully about two or three times a month.

Bailey said much help in this initial organizational and training effort is coming from Joseph Sowma, an international student at Tech from Lebanon. Sowma, a junior electrical engineering major, was "discovered" by Bailey working as a server in a dorm cafeteria despite experience as a waiter and chef in two of San Francisco's major restaurants.

Chicano seminar Saturday

Los Tertulianos will sponsor their fourth annual Educational Seminar for Mexican-American high school students at the University Center Saturday.

The seminar is held for the purpose of encouraging Mexican-American high school students in the West Texas region to continue their education after graduation from their respective schools.

Keynote speaker for the day will be Dr. George Rivera, Jr., who teaches Sociology at the University of Colorado.

Rivera, a prominent Mexican-American in the field of education, will center his talk around the emphasis of continuing education through the attendance of college.

The seminar will be kicked off with 8:30 registration, followed by Rivera's address at 10:30.

The afternoon session will be taken up by workshops conducted by members of Los Tertulianos. Information on financial aids, all aspects of college life, and discussion of different majors and courses required in a particular major will be forwarded to those attending.

The seminar is open to all high school juniors and seniors in West Texas. Counselors, school officials, and representatives of Mexican-American organizations from other colleges and Lubbock will also be present.

The all day affair will be topped off by a 7:30 dance in the University Ballroom.

Los Tertulianos expect in the excess of 500 students to attend.

The organization was funded $600 dollars by the Tech Senate to run the seminar.

Lubbockites see Thunderbirds

Thousands of Lubbock area residents flocked to Reese AFB, yesterday, to an open house performance by the Thunderbirds, the USAF aerial demonstration team.

Traffic flooded the road to Reese for the 3 p.m. Thunderbird flying show. A carnival-like atmosphere prevailed as the masses of people were all looking skyward. Some shaded their eyes, and some held their ears, as the sun was bright, and the noise was loud.

The aerial spectacle was only one event in the day of activities marking the beginning of a year-long base observance of the Air Force's 25th year as a separate branch of the armed forces. 1st Lt. William Roger Carter, a former Lubbock disc jockey and Tech graduate, received the Silver Star Medal, and Air Medal with 12 Oak Leaf clusters.

There was a luncheon-tour for 40 area high school educators. The next silver anniversary event at Reese will be Career Day on May 6.

Absentee vote steps given

Tech students leaving Lubbock over the Easter holidays must vote absentee if they wish to vote in the Lubbock School Board elections.

To vote absentee, students must be registered voters. Voters must bring voter permits to the Administration Building at 1628 19th Street.

Absentee votes will be taken by Marguerite Key or any of her deputies in charge of absentee voting.

The last day for absentee voting in the school board election is Tuesday.

Tower to give speech today

United States Sen. John Tower will address the 61st annual convention of the Texas Cotton Association today, at 10:30 a.m. at the Koko Palace.

Minority problems aired

"What are your feelings of minorities here at Tech...do you feel that you have enough...do you want to get rid of those you have?" Dr. M.A.K. Lodhi, associate professor of physics asked at Wednesday's meeting of the Tech administration Faculty Counsel Ad Hoc Committee.

The Ad Hoc Committee will meet for further discussion of ideas and problems every Wednesday until the end of the semester. "We maintain a policy that as long as there is standing room available everyone is welcome to sit in," said Taylor.

House passes disease bill

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House passed a sickle cell anemia prevention bill Wednesday after rejecting an amendment that would have brought Cooley's anemia under the legislation to battle blood disease.

Sickle cell anemia is a chief killer of blacks. Cooley's anemia affects those of Italian, Greek and Spanish backgrounds.

The House bill authorizes $105 million for a national program of diagnosis, prevention and treatment, screening and informational projects.

Bus, parking changes

There will be a reduction from two buses to one bus on the Off-Campus East, Red Route. The reduction, effective April 1, is due to lack of student participation.

The remaining bus will run on a 20-minute cycle from 7:10 a.m. (Main & Ave. X) to 4:05 p.m. (Campus).

Temporary parking zones along the east side of the Administration building and the east side of the University Center now have time limits posted.

Five-day work week to decline says Tech prof; Hub disagrees

By MARSHA NASH
Special Reporter

The shorter work week may be "The Thing" in the United States, but it's not "The Thing" in Lubbock.

Dr. John Wittman, Tech associate professor of economics, is convinced that the five-day work week is definitely on its way out, and confusion is on its way during the transition.

However, numerous telephone conversations with various industrial managers in Lubbock fail to confirm Dr. Wittman's opinion.

Of the person's interviewed, Garland Cook, employment supervisor for Astro-Mobile Homes Manufacturing, is the only manager who believed a possibility existed that his company could change over to the four-day work-week. However, Cook said this would not be possible before 1974 because of present contract negotiations.

"Should we go to the four-day work-week," he said, "there would be a lot of factors to consider, such as overtime pay, safety of the workers, vacation eligibility and so forth."

Maurice Carlton, manager for DEVOCO (Development Corporation and Distributing Company of America), said the shorter work week did not pertain to his company because they do product marketing and negotiating with manufacturers.

Carlton was formerly employed by Avis Rent-a-Car who did some research in this area. "We found the shorter work week to be a very acceptable situation, but the type of work dictates whether a 10-hour work day is feasible for a particular company. In our case, the work was very detailed and the workers had to stand for long periods of time. As a result, we believed the workers would not be able to produce the quality of work desired through-out the 10-hour day."

"The shorter work week is an attraction to the employee, but not necessarily a savings to the employer," Carlton said.

Ron Hill, manager for Texas Meat Packers Incorporated, said, "Because of the market situation, we have used the four-day work week in the past, but it just doesn't work. At the end of the work day the workers are dragging and production slows down. Also there is the problem of having to pay time-and-a-half for more than eight hours work."

Dr. Wittman said, "There is no reason to expect that any of the schemes initiated so far represent the ultimate end. Labor has already indicated its interest in the 32-hour week, and others suggest that the concept of a "work week" is irrelevant.

"Perhaps the ultimate objective for some would be a provision for an employee to contract on an annual or semi-annual basis for a given number of hours of work and then have wide flexibility in determining work times," he said.

The motivation for the shorter work week on the part of both employers and employees is important. The effect on short-run and long-run production of the four day-40 hour week really is not known, with Wittman said, although the short-run production looks promising at this time.

"We don't know," he said, "if this could help the economy or be inflationary, or how it will affect unemployment rates." Moonlighting could occur with people taking second jobs and, in the end, having less leisure time than they do on a five-day week.

Little is known about safety factors for people working 9, 10 or 12 hours a day, or what would happen to safety or accuracy if a great number of workers were holding two jobs. Little is known also of the effects of such a system on home life, on family relationships and life styles.

"Do husbands and wives really want to be together three days a week at home?" Wittman asked. "Is the impact the same for both men and women? Would men working a three-day week want to live in dormitories close to their jobs for two nights and commute a longer distance just once a week?"

One thing is certain, Wittman said. With more leisure, people will spend more. Repeated studies have shown, he said, that people do spend more when they are not at work.

This in addition to new recreational needs might open new jobs and develop industries.

The most pressing problem now, he said, is for additional study of policies relating to the shorter work week.

The Fair Labor Standards Act provides that overtime be paid for hours worked over 40 per week. It does not provide overtime for hours over eight per day. The Public Contracts, or Walsh-Healey, Act, provides overtime for either—more than 40 hours per week or eight hours per day.

"Many of the firms that have moved to the shorter work week," Wittman said, "fall under the Walsh-Healey and are required to pay overtime for hours worked in excess of eight each day, even though they do not exceed 40 per week. This requires some companies to pay overtime when they go to the 4-40. Some also have cut back the number of hours per week.

Brick bust winners

Mike Peden holds the awards given to Phi Kappa Psi at Saturday's Brick Bust. The Phi Psi's won the fraternity and overall division awards. Standing beside him is Charlotte Myers, Brick Bust Queen.

Controversial film to run here

"Prince of Peace" a controversial film on the life of Christ, is coming to Lubbock.

According to Tim Eckerman of Magus films, a young film distribution and production company, "it's the most realistic film on Christ." He said it is unlike any other film because it portrays Christ as a "strong-willed, determined young man."

The controversy over the film resulted because "Prince of Peace" director Pier Pasolini is a member of the Italian Communist Party and an atheist.

Tech guerillas victorious

The Counter guerrilla Unit of Texas Tech beat the Cameron State Rangers of Lawton, Oklahoma in a field problem last weekend at Lawton. The Counter guerrillas were under the leadership of Cadet Captain Mike McGee. The training exercise started at seven Friday night and lasted until about ten o'clock Saturday morning.

PFC Robert Frusha, of the Counter guerrilla Unit, said, "We have war games, small unit tactics to better ourselves in close-combat situations." He said the purpose of the contest was to gain experience for both sides, and to see which team is the best.

The Counter guerrillas are associated with Army ROTC at Tech. Frusha said the Counter guerrilla Unit is an extracurricular activity of the ROTC program, like football is for Tech.

"We do something along this line nearly every weekend. If not against someone else—among ourselves," he said.

what's going to happen" when it's shown in a smaller town, said Eckerman.

"Prince of Peace" will run seven days in Lubbock, opening April 5.

Eckerman said that because of the impact of the story in the beginning of the film no one will be seated after the first 10 minutes of "Prince of Peace."

Bringing "Prince of Peace" to Lubbock is an experiment for Magus Films. After showing in New York and Los Angeles, they are "trying to get a feel of

Plans underway for intercollegiate rodeo

By JUDY SORRELLS
Staff Writer

Preparation has begun on the world's largest intercollegiate indoor rodeo set for April 20-22 in the Lubbock Municipal Coliseum, according to Jesse Swagerty, Tech Rodeo Association president.

Television personality Ken Curtis, "Festus" of Gunsmoke, will be the star of this year's rodeo. The Rodeo Association will be sponsoring dances featuring Terri Sue and the Branded Four, Friday night and Kenny and Donna, Saturday night at the National Guard Armory.

Applications for rodeo queen are now being accepted and may be obtained from Robyn Swagerty or Ab Hendley. The application deadline is April 7 at 8:00 p.m. This year the queen will be selected by two panels of judges not by penny-vote as in past years. Swagerty said, "The candidates will be judged April 13 at the Dub Parks Arena according to horsemanship and general appearance on horseback. Second round of the contest will be Saturday, April 15 when the candidates will be judged on personality, general appearance and dress. Highlighting the activities will be the Queen's Coronation Ball to be held that night in the University Center Ballroom." Horses and sponsoring organizations will be available to all queen contestants.

An alumni reception will be held each evening of the rodeo beginning at 6:00 p.m. at the Villa Inn. All past rodeo club members are urged to attend.

The advertising campaign for the rodeo is in full swing with some 1,000 bumper stickers and 80,000 placemats being distributed throughout this area. Also playing a large part in the promotion of the rodeo is the Ag Eco Club. This club will be selling rodeo banners to local businesses. Other organizations working in the rodeo will be the Hub Lions Club, ticket sales; Chi Rho (service fraternity), program sales and Alpha Chi Omega, ushers.

There will be no Saturday matinee performance of the rodeo, but the Block and Bridle Club will sponsor an American Quarter Horse Association sanctioned horse show at that time.

Three game series set

Red Raiders to tangle with Purple Gang

Powerful bunter

Centerfielder Cecil Norris lays down a bunt against Hardin Simmons. Earlier in the afternoon the southpaw had homered and tripled. Tech opens SWC play today against TCU in Ft. Worth.

By LES MOORHEAD
Ass't Sports Editor

Tech's Red Raiders invade Froggieland today in search of its first Southwest Conference victory in a doubleheader beginning at 1 p.m. on the TCU diamond, south of the Daniel-Meyer Coliseum.

The series will go into Saturday with a single contest at 2 p.m. TCU is 15-4 on the season and owns two SWC wins and one setback. Tech is 15-7 in pre-conference, just beginning league affairs today in Fort Worth.

The Horned Frogs defeated Texas A&M 2 of 3 last weekend in College Station, whipping the Aggies 6-3 and 10-4 in the first two, then losing 5-3.

The Frogs have played at home 17 times this season, one reason for having the second-best record in the league behind Texas.

Raider coach Kal Segrist will send Ruben Garcia (4-1) to the mound in the opener today against Frog ace righthander Frank Johnstone (5-1, 1-0). Johnstone, a sophomore, has worked 40 innings so far, has 43 strikeouts for a .675 earned-run-average.

In the second game, Jess Cole (4-2, 1-0), a righty, will challenge Tech's Jack Pierce (4-1).

Saturday, Segrist plans to start Larry Knight (2-1) against the Froggies' Tom Ladasau (3-0).

Coach Segrist was relaxed Thursday in talking about TCU and said, "They're one of four teams you are gonna have to beat. If you don't play well, you can't beat them. We're gonna have to get good pitching to win."

"I liked the last four games we played here against New Mexico Highlands and Hardin-Simmons. We showed consistency in the areas we have been working on."

Segrist said the Raiders were physically ready for TCU and said the effort and enthusiasm has pleased him. Through this, we have made some mistakes like getting picked off base a few times, but we talked about this recently."

TCU coach Frank Windegger said, "We'll probably face the premier pitcher in the league in Ruben Garcia. We need to win this series just as much as Tech, probably more. We'll have to play the best we have this year to win."

Segrist will go with the same lineup he has been using in the previous games, the only exception being in right field where Gary Barrick will start today.

Along with Barrick in the outfield is Cecil Norris in center and Bobby Lewis in left.

The infield is unchanged, Doug Ault at first base, Bobby Martindale, second; Barry Hoffpauir, shortstop; and Robin Kilmer at third. Dave Hazard will be catching.

Nursing a case of bronchitis, Kilmer has been platooning with Bobby Wiebe lately but he is slated to start.

The Froggies are hitting a hefty .276 as a team, but TCU lacks power. Its leading hitter, Mike Turner (.393) has only nine runs-batted-in, two homers and two doubles. Centerfielder Jim Torres (.357) has six doubles, five triples and 15 RBIs.

Segrist said of Johnstone, who was freshman of the year last year in the SWC, "He's got a good sinker ball. If he can stay down he's real effective with it." Segrist compared Johnstone's style to former Tech hurler Gary Washington.

Righthanders Steve Brock, Randy Prince and Bick Bickley will see action in relief, if needed, for the Raiders.

Tech left for Fort Worth Thursday in two vans and arrived there at 9 p.m. They are staying at the Roweway Inn off the West freeway by the Masonic Temple past the southwest stockshow.

In other SWC action this weekend, Baylor entertains Rice, Texas A&M is at SMU and Texas plays St. Mary's University Saturday.

Tech returns to host Texas, Friday, March 31 and Saturday, in a 3-game series which could very well decide the outcome of the league.

Les Moorhead

Sideline Stroller

Boy, if the Raider baseball team plays ball with the finesse it showed Thursday afternoon in practice and match that with the skyed enthusiasm it had when it left good ole Lubbock, the Raiders are unbeatable.

Tech journeyed to Fort Worth Thursday afternoon but before heading out it put in one polished workout and then enjoyed a shower. If it wasn't for the fact they were leaving Lubbock, then it must have been because of the light rain the campus absorbed. But, it was probably due to the former.

ASSISTANT COACH JOHNNY OWENS, a former Tech hot-corner man who just recently filled in his J.H. on the dotted line as a free agent for the San Francisco Giants, put the Raiders through a short, spicy practice Thursday. Tech was polished defensively and got in some batting practice in prepping for TCU's Frank Johnstone, an ace righty.

Tech wiped out TCU here last year three in a row, one time over Johnstone, of 4-1, 3-1 and 6-1. But past performances are just that, and this time it's at Fort Worth and catcher Dave Hazard said, "If they have those same umpires down there this time, look out."

Pitcher Jack Pierce says he is much stronger this year. After going through pre-season training with weights and running drills, Pierce gained almost 20 pounds and says he is faster than he was last season.

Pierce is slated to start the second game of the doubleheader today against the Frogs. He is 4-1 on the year, his latest win coming over Hardin-Simmons, 5-0, Tuesday.

As a team, the Raiders are evidently stronger and more experienced than last year's 11-7 squad that finished third in the SWC. Tech finished 15-7 in pre-conference and has a batting average (the first 10 men) of .334.

Doug Ault, who has clubbed seven home runs so far, just one short of the all-time Tech record, is hitting .486 while Cecil Norris has .473 average.

Norris hit for the cycle in the second affair against H-SU, homering, then he tripled, singled and finally doubled. Norris had seven RBIs, going 4-for-4 at the plate, including a sacrifice fly.

Shortstop Barry Hoffpauir is hitting .397. The other members of the Tech lineup are Bobby Martindale (.319), Bobby Lewis (.305), Hazard (.293), Steve Morris, (.288), Robin Kilmer, (.240) and Gary Barrick, (.200).

A LOT OF PEOPLE have been wondering why the Raiders are wearing its helmets in the field, too. Well, it's a conference rule that players must wear a helmet to bat and on base. So, to cut out the hassle of transferring helmets back and forth to the dugout, the Raiders are wearing them everywhere they go. Now, they don't have to worry about rocks, rain and ruin getting to their nice little shaved heads.

Well, while everyone is taking in the sun over the spring break, the Raiders will be prepping for the Texas Longhorns. Perennial champs, and again favored to take the crown, the Horns will come to Lubbock Friday, March 31 for a 3-game series.

THE TEXAS SERIES could have a bearing on the outcome of the race. It's odd that the match was scheduled over break, but it cannot be helped now. So, if you get tired of sitting at home and playing with your sister, come on up to 'Big L' and look at the Raiders.

Texas is playing St. Mary's University Saturday. The Horns got off to a good start, taking three from Baylor last week.

Tech has a lot going for them this year and if the Raiders could sweep TCU and sweep Texas, we would be flying. But, it's going to take some student effort to bring the colors back to "Tractor Tech".

So long for now, and Merry Christmas.

Finals in softball

Intramurals near play-off schedule

By BROOKS TINSLEY
Sports Writer

Intramural softball competition has reached the halfway point and all the league titles are still up for grabs. Play-offs begin Tuesday, April 18 with the championship game to be played later that month.

In-fast pitch competition, the Frat I league lead is held by the SAE's, with a 3-0 record, and the Phi Deltas, with a 2-0 mark. The SAE's defeated the ATO's 12-4 this week while the Phi Deltas were idle.

Four teams hold the Frat II lead. The Deltas, Sig Eps, Sigma Chi and KA's all have 2-1 marks. The Sig Eps play the KA's after spring break as at least one team will be knocked out of the lead.

The SAE "B" team holds the Frat III lead with a 2-0 record. They were idle this week as they remained alone atop the league chase.

Gordon Hall is still in first place in the Residence Hall league with a perfect 3-0 mark. They defeated Bledsoe 15-8 this week to keep a game ahead of Murdough "B".

The Hombres are alone on top of the Open league following their win over previously unbeaten AF ROTC this week. The score was 11-4. AF ROTC is in second place behind the Hombres' 2-0 mark.

In slow pitch action, the Frat I lead is held by the Sig Ep "A" team with a 2-0 record. They defeated previously undefeated Kappa Sigma by a 10-6 score.

Kappa Sigma is now 2-1. The Frat II lead belongs to the Betas with a 3-0 record. They upended the Fijis 9-2 to keep their record clean. The KA's and Phi Deltas are in second place.

The Pike "B" team has a big lead in the Frat III league with a 3-0 record, following their win over the Sig Ep "B" team 10-6. The Sig Eps and Betas "B" follow the Pikes with 1-1 marks.

Weymouth holds down the Residence Hall lead with a 3-0 record. They defeated the Thompson squad 6-4 this week. Carpenter and Wells follow with 2-1 records.

The BSU holds the lead in the Club I league. Their record is 3-0 following their 11-1 win over the Delta Sigs. KKY follows with a 2-0 record.

The Club II lead belongs to Army ROTC with a 3-0 mark. AICHE is 2-1. ROTC defeated PEK 11-6 this week.

Thompson "B" and Gaston "B" hold the Open I lead with 2-0 records. Thompson defeated the Betas "C" while Gaston upended Carpenter "B".

The Scabs and Ballbusters continue to lead the Open II league. The Scabs defeated the Nads 11-9 while the Ballbusters beat Coleman "B" 20-8. Both teams have 2-0 records.

Sigma Chi-Alpha Chi Omega lead the Frat I division of coed softball. Their record stands at 3-0 following their 2-1 win over the Fiji-Alpha Phi "A" team.

The Phi Delt-Kappa Alpha Theta team hve the Frat II lead with a 2-0 record. They defeated the Delt-A Chi O squad 7-4 to hold the lead.

The Frat III lead is held by the KA-Pk Beta Phi "B" team with a 2-0 record. They defeated the Sigma Chi-Gammas "B" team 8-7 to stay in the lead.

Gaston-Knapp "A" continue to hold the Open I lead with a 2-0 record. Gaston-Doak "A" follow with a 1-0 mark.

Stangel-Good Squad hold the Open II lead with a 1-0 mark. They defeated Chi Rho-CSC 7-6 for the lead. Three teams are tied for second with 1-1 records.

Two teams are in first in the Open III league. PEK-Roadrunners defeated APO-Wso 19-3 and KA-Pi Beta Phi "C" defeated the Fijis-Alpha Phi "C" team 7-6 to share the lead.

Raider scrimmage both bright, inconsistent

By MILLER BONNER
Sports Editor

scrimmage of spring drills but an old foe crept into Jones Stadium—inconsistency. "We had a lot of good licks passed today, said Coach Jim Carlen after the two-and-a-half

Tech footballers displayed plenty of hustle and spurts of brilliance Thursday in the first hour session. We had some good hustle but our quarterbacks especially need to get more consistent."

Proof of the Raiders' lack of steady offense or defense lie in the fact that the offensive platoons, behind the leadership of either Joe Barnes, Jimmy Carmichael or Jerry Reynolds, produced nine touchdowns but the defenders claimed seven interceptions and numerous fumble recoveries.

YET TWO INDIVIDUALS left fond memories in Carlen's mind at the day's end.

"Two kids that come to mind, said Carlen, are (Cliff Hoskins and (Ricky) Bates. Bates came to play, he's a competitor. Hoskins relaxed and ran real well today."

Hoskins and Bates both are freshmen. Hoskins is a running back and carried the ball 19 times for 104 yards to lead all Raider backs in Thursday's fray.

Bates ran for one six-pointer and latched onto four passes for 60 yards and another td from his slot back post.

On the defensive side of the ledger, secondary coach Dale Evans saw plenty of talent to replace the graduated foursome that led the nation in pass defense last season.

Danny Willis, Randy Olson and Greg Waters intercepted two passes each to lead the secondary while frosh David Knaus also picked off an aerial.

The Raider offense scored four times via the airways and five times on the overland routes.

In the quarterbacking battles,

Barnes completed six of 15 for 80 yards and two tds plus running for 100 yards in ten ties. Carmichael massed 137 yards with ten completions of 27 attempts but was held to minus 23 steps on six carries. Reynolds was three of 11 for 39 yards. Carmichael was intercepted four times, Barnes twice and Reynolds once. Tech resumes drill April 3.

Bits 'n Pieces

A few bits 'n pieces of information most of which is stolen, some borrowed and very little original . . .

The situation concerning Tech spring sports is hardly one to brag about. It doesn't take a MIT graduate to notice that the Tech track, baseball and tennis programs aren't on the same level of competition as, say, football and basketball.

In fact, how many scholarship athletes do you think are participating in any of these three spring sports that are freshman?

Slim and none. That could mean that the baseball, track and tennis people didn't get much new scholarship funds this year doesn't it?

The baseball team, especially, this season is in an excellent position to possibly win the SWC crown but what will happen when Ruben Garcia, Jack Pierce, Barry Hoffpauir, David Hazzard, Doug Ault and Cecil Norris leave?

While on the subject of spring sports—consider this year's "timely" Easter break.

While the student body is away Texas will play Tech in baseball in Lubbock plus the track team hosts a meet Saturday in which Olympic performer Randy Matson will toss the shot put and two superb polevaulter will probably go over 17 feet.

But the students traveling to Waco and Fort Worth are in luck—the tennis and baseball squads open conference play this weekend in those fair cities, respectively.

It looks like the Intramural facilities on campus might have been given a decent chance.

The Saddle Tramps will spearhead a drive for a petition that students will be asked to sign after the Easter break. In fact, April 3 (Wednesday) is the date the project will get underway.

Following the petition, which will show the administration and Board of Regents that the student body is behind new facilities, a survey will be conducted to determine exactly what type of facilities are wanted most.

Give the Tech administration—and especially Dr. Murray—a tip of the 'ole hat for voicing strong approval of the project during a meeting with the Tramps.

Other organizations throughout the campus will be aiding the Tramps in obtaining signatures on the petition. Should the petition come your way, feel free to sign—knowing that something will be done for the IM department.

While we're on the subject of the administration—give the boys in the East Wing another pat on the back for allowing the Little 500 bike race on campus for another year at least. Such consideration and explanation of circumstances as was shown by Tech's elite is promising.

During a recent meeting with the press and Donny Anderson plus the Lubbock Jaycees and other prominent businessmen, Mayor Jim Granberry came through with perhaps the statement of the night.

"Since the Jaycees call all of their ex members old roosters, said the Mayor, and since I'm a lame duck mayor and Donny (Anderson) is a new Cardinal, Maybe this meeting is for the birds."

Really, if you had been there it was funny.

You think the officials during basketball season were bad! At Sunday's mere scrimmage between the Murdough "B" and Nads fast pitch softball teams a new riot occurred over the decisions of the umpires both behind the plate and on the base lines.

Seems like the Nads supplied the umpire and the Murdough boys provided an ump for the bases. Every time the man behind the plate called a controversial strike, the base ump would call the man out or safe depending upon which team was at bat.

The favorite saying of the day was "I call 'em like I see 'em." It was a nice, relaxing afternoon on the friendly field of athletic endeavor.

On the subject of softball—consider the situation of one Eddie Douglass, third baseman and leading hitter for the Hombres.

The Hombres are leading their league in softball by a large margin. Douglass is batting .750 and (we quote) "fielding flawlessly" (end of quote). Should you be looking for a can of your favorite beverage, say hello to Eddie at Bob's.

And believe me, the above was a PAID political announcement.
