

Groups begin collecting pledges for Tech band

Campus groups today began the task of collecting pledges making up the major part of $30,250 raised over the weekend in a telethon to send Tech's band to the Gator Bowl.

Collections are being made by several groups, including members of the band and Tech Foundation.

Dean Killion, band director, said it will be several days before totals from fund-raising efforts are available.

Donations and pledges ranging from $1 to $1,000 were secured in the Band-A-Thon staged Saturday night and early Sunday morning over television stations KLBK and KSEL.

Goal of the drive and other fund-raising events on campus was to make up a $30,000 deficit in the $50,000 needed to send the band to perform in Jacksonville, Fla., when the Raiders take on the Tennessee Volunteers Dec. 29.

The band was scheduled to receive only $20,000 from Tech's share of Gator Bowl proceeds, leaving a whopping gap to be filled by donations.

Each Gator Bowl team is due to receive a minimum of $250,000, but under Southwest Conference rules, Tech must give half its share to the conference to be divided among the eight SWC schools.

A budget for Tech's remaining $105,000 has not been prepared, according to Office of Development officials. However, a preliminary budget was presented to the Board of Regents at its last meeting, but a copy was unavailable to the University Daily Monday afternoon.

More lines. . .

After standing in line with several hundred other students, Pam Logan finally receives her spring registration packet. Lines for the packets opened Monday and will be open 1-6 p.m. through Friday.

'Exposure' suspect faces 26 charges

Bonds of $100 each on 24 separate traffic violations and one charge of indecent exposure were set for a 23-year-old Lubbock man apprehended Sunday following a high speed pursuit which began on the Tech campus and wound through Lubbock.

Victor Sosa, 3426 E. Cornell St., also was charged with eluding a police officer and bond set at $500 in County Court-at-Law No. 1. The traffic violations and exposure charges were brought by the city in Municipal Court.

Sosa was still in Lubbock County Jail as of Monday afternoon.

The charges stemmed from a wild chase that began about 1:30 p.m. Sunday when three Tech coeds were confronted by a man in a car parked on a sidewalk next to the Tech Creamery on 15th Street. University Police said the women reported that the man was exposing himself.

The women summoned a Tech policeman driving north on nearby Boston Avenue and the officer began pursuing the suspect in his car.

Lubbock police, using as many as 12 vehicles, took up the chase, moving eastward through Lubbock then out toward Lubbock Regional Airport and on dirt roads north of town, finally capturing Sosa in New Deal some 30 minutes later.

At least four police cars were put out of commission during the chase, Lubbock police said.

Teen-age delivery boy becomes rich from tips

NEW YORK (AP) — A teenage delivery boy who got pawn tickets and other items from an aged widow who couldn't afford to tip him in cash has become wealthy because of his acts of kindness to the woman.

So far he has realized almost $50,000 from auctioning the pawned items and there are more thousands to come.

"It was like a fairy tale," said Jackie in an interview. He doesn't want his full name or address made public for fear would-be intruders might learn that the three-room apartment where he lives with his mother and father has become a miniature Ft. Knox.

At one point, even the washing machine had a 17th century silver-gilt tray on it and Jackie's mother complained "stop bringing this junk in the house."

When an expert from Sotheby Parke-Bernet, the world's top auction house, appraised it, Jackie's father telephoned his wife at work and said: "Mama - you know that piece of junk you were going to throw out? It's worth $7,500."

"She cried. She couldn't believe it," said the boy, now 19 and a sophomore at City University's Bernard Baruch College.

How did this odd tale start? "She was a $1 tipper and me and my friend used to fight about who'd get the delivery," Jackie said. "I won."

"It was like a fantasy, that apartment. It was piled with crates and boxes up to the ceiling. There was just a narrow path from the door to her chair, and then to her bed and then to the kitchen. "It was all from the mansion she used to have on Fifth Avenue."

The woman, who died at 81 last Feb. 5 in New York Hospital, was Mrs. Thomas Field who lived in the Fifth Avenue house until she was widowed in the 1930s. Her husband had been an investor.

"I noticed she couldn't get around so much," Jackie said. "She lived mostly on TV dinners so I put them in the freezer."

"Then I noticed she would just take them out and let them thaw and eat them cold. She was afraid to light the oven. So I heated them up for her."

Eventually Field was reduced to a basic $500-a-month income — from a mortgage she held on her former summer estate — $250 of which went for rent for the studio apartment.

It was there that she began tipping with pawn tickets.

"The first one was for $2,000," Jackie said. It turned out to be a diamond ring and Cartier appraised it at $7,500.

"In the meantime, she kept giving me things like the tray."

A $3,000 ticket turned out to be a whisky crate crammed with silver.

"It was scary — all that money and us not knowing what the stuff was worth."

An auction sale brought $36,000 which Jackie put into a trust account. Another sale brought $3,000 "which I blew it. I went to Florida and bought a lot of clothes."

In the meantime, Field died. Her will makes Jackie sole heir to the contents of the apartment and to the $500 a month.

Texas gasoline pumps may resemble 'one-armed bandits' with dollar signs

FORT WORTH (AP) — In the not too distant future, Texas gasoline pumps may come to look as much like a one-armed bandit as a slot machine.

But don't look for cherries or grapefruit to line up in the little price meter window. Look for dollar signs. Lots of them.

"Even when they turn the faucet back on, their prices are going to be fantastic," predicts a large Texas independent marketer. He asked that his name not be used.

AND IF GASOLINE nozzles ever are turned on full blast again, you may recoil at the name on the pump.

It may not be the name of the little independent dealer with whom you've been doing business. It may be a pump branded with the name of a big, powerful oil company.

Independent gasoline dealers have been frightened for some time that the big oil companies, with billions of dollars at their disposal, will chase them off the block and set up their own stands.

The Texas marketer says the majors have gone too far and "That's why they're having trouble with the Federal Trade Commission (FTC) and the Congress." He said the big companies have aggressively "used the situation fuel crisis to further their own goals" which he said are to get what they want from Congress and "straighten out" the independent companies.

THE 18 LARGEST oil companies in this country produce close to 70 per cent of the domestic crude oil, operate approximately 80 per cent of the refining capacity, and market around 72 per cent of the gasoline sold. Texas and Louisiana provide two-thirds of the crude oil produced in this country.

According to a 1967 FTC report, the independent refiners and marketers play an important competitive role disproportionate to their size in the petroleum industry. The independents have historically been the primary source of price competition and low cost innovative methods of marketing.

On the other hand, the major companies are noted for their branded and non-price oriented methods of selling gasoline and oil.

In February 1970 the Texas Independent Producers and Royalty Owners Association (TIPRO) said the nation had no more surplus producing capacity and urged the industry to admit the surplus capacity had been exhausted. TIPRO said the reserve capacity of Louisiana oil fields had been rated too high and warned that in Texas industry had "seriously overestimated the practical potential of the few large oil fields currently producing below maximum efficient rate."

LAST SUMMER, the Oil and Gas Journal said the bright picture for independents might begin to fade this year "...because of the...reluctance of major refiners to sell to independent marketers at a time when their own outlets may run short."

The Florida attorney general's office filed suit against 15 major oil companies, charging them with conspiring to create a gasoline shortage.

Among other things, the suit claimed the companies had "either refused to sell to the independent dealers, allocated limited amounts for sale to independents or sold to them at prices above the prices the major companies sell to their own distributors."

"THERE'S A LOT of good things about the big companies, but being fair is not one of them," says the Texas marketer.

He says one of the good things to come from the Watergate investigation is that the public may discover just how much the companies have been pouring into political war chests to buy government favors.

Recently, Phillips Petroleum Co. at Bartlesville, Okla., was fined $5,000 after its former chief executive officer pleaded guilty to making an illegal $100,000 contribution in the name of the company to the reelection committee of President Nixon's campaign.

Kissinger warns Europeans

BRUSSELS — Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger warned the European allies Monday they and the United States face the choice of closing ranks or flying apart into two competing groups during a period of mounting Soviet military strength.

He defended U.S. support of Israel during the Middle East war, telling the North Atlantic Treaty Organization council that U.S. actions were as much in Western Europe's interest as the United States.

Texas experts receive documents

WASHINGTON — Congressional tax experts received Monday the first documents they will examine in their review of President Nixon's tax returns and deductions.

The material Nixon released in disclosing his tax affairs confirmed that he has paid about $80,000 in federal income taxes over the past four years and no state income taxes. He asked the Joint Committee on Internal Revenue Taxation to review the returns.

Suits against pipeline considered

WASHINGTON — The government and an environmental group are considering separate suits asserting the Alaska pipeline will give oil giants an unfair monopoly.

At least one suit could seek to halt pipeline construction, scheduled to begin within weeks. Completion of the line, which will tap the rich oil fields of Alaska's North Slope, is expected in 1977.

More tapes given to prosecutor

WASHINGTON — President Nixon's Operation Candor continued Monday with the disclosure that "a significant number" of White House tapes were turned over to special Watergate prosecutor Leon Jaworski during the weekend.

In addition, the special prosecutor received on Monday tapes of two subpoenaed Watergate conversations from U.S. District Judge John J. Sirica.

The two deliveries marked the first time presidential tapes have been turned over to the prosecutor's office.

'Watergate costs country'

HOUSTON — The chairman of the Senate Watergate Committee said Monday it is impossible to measure what Watergate has cost the country in loss of confidence in government.

"There is not a single redeeming feature in the Watergate affair," said U.S. Sen. Sam J. Ervin Jr., D-N.C.

Ervin appeared at a news conference prior to a speech at the 78th annual meeting of the Southern Association of Colleges and Schools.

Dayan demands prisoner list

Israeli Defense Minister Moshe Dayan announced Monday that Israel will not talk peace with Syria until Damascus turns over a list of Israeli war prisoners held in Syria.

Dayan told the Israeli parliament that the refusal to deal with Syria at the Dec. 18 Geneva peace negotiations was a government decision.

Oil for Saigon

by Jack Anderson

WASHINGTON — Despite the critical oil shortage at home, the United States is able to spare more than 20,000 barrels a day for South Vietnam. Each barrel contains 42 gallons.

The fuel shipments to Vietnam have dropped only moderately since U.S. forces pulled out. At the height of our B-52 raids last January, for example, the Pentagon shipped 995,000 barrels of oil to Saigon. This dropped to 681,000 barrels in August and nearly 600,000 barrels in September.

But these figures, the latest available, don't reveal the full extent of the drainage. For the U.S. supplies much of South Vietnam's civilian oil needs, too. These figures, apparently, are known only to the oil companies.

We have determined, however, that the Agency for International Development shells out $80 million a year to purchase petroleum products for South Vietnam's civilians.

Of course, the bulk of U.S. oil shipments to Vietnam are used to fuel South Vietnam's war machine. At the height of our involvement in the Vietnam War, in 1969, we shipped nearly 44 million barrels to the Saigon regime. This figure dropped to 20 million barrels by 1973. During the 1973 fiscal year, 12 million barrels were delivered for military use.

The U.S. government is still handling fuel procurement for South Vietnam's armed forces, letting contracts to U.S. companies. A Pentagon official told us that the amount of oil going to Vietnam hereafter will be determined by the scale of the fighting.

South Vietnam is bracing for a renewed offensive from the North. More than likely, it will take bigger oil shipments, literally siphoned from the gas tanks of American civilians, to keep the South Vietnamese tanks, trucks, ships and planes going.

FOOTNOTE: The civilian oil situation in Vietnam has become critical. Fuel was already rationed when a rocket attack wiped out 50 per cent of South Vietnam's civilian oil supply.

Secret tapes

Another set of secret tapes has turned up in the Watergate investigation. The prosecutors, however, don't know whether to believe what they have heard.

The tapes contain the monitored conversations of a banker, who boasted he handled a secret portfolio for President Nixon at Bebe Rebozo's Key Biscayne Bank.

The boast was made by Franklin DeBoer, who worked for awhile as vice president in charge of the trust department at Rebozo's bank. A White House spokesman and a source close to Rebozo joined in denouncing the statement as completely false.

DeBoer didn't know his words were being recorded as he talked freely on the phone and elsewhere about his banking business. We have now had access to the tapes.

"I HAPPEN TO WORK for Mr. Rebozo, Mr. Abplanalp and Mr. Nixon," said DeBoer. (Robert Abplanalp is another of the President's rich friends.)

"You work for Mr. Nixon?" asked a friend. "Yes . . ." said DeBoer. "I happen to draw a substantial salary outside the bank from them, which is obviously what all these —s are trying to prove, too."

The tape is slightly garbled at this point. DeBoer said either "he" or "we" run "the private portfolios for these people in the bank . . ."

"You know," he continued, "I have a salary that is substantially greater than the bank pays me from these people. I don't go out and (spit) in their faces."

"But you said in your testimony that you had no other income," remarked a friend.

"No other income that they could find, okay?" said DeBoer. "Let me worry about my income, huh?"

At another point, he stressed again that he was sworn to secrecy. "When two people I'm directly involved with say this is the policy I wish to have adhered to," DeBoer asked, "what would you do? Go out there and say, 'F— thee, Nixon?'"

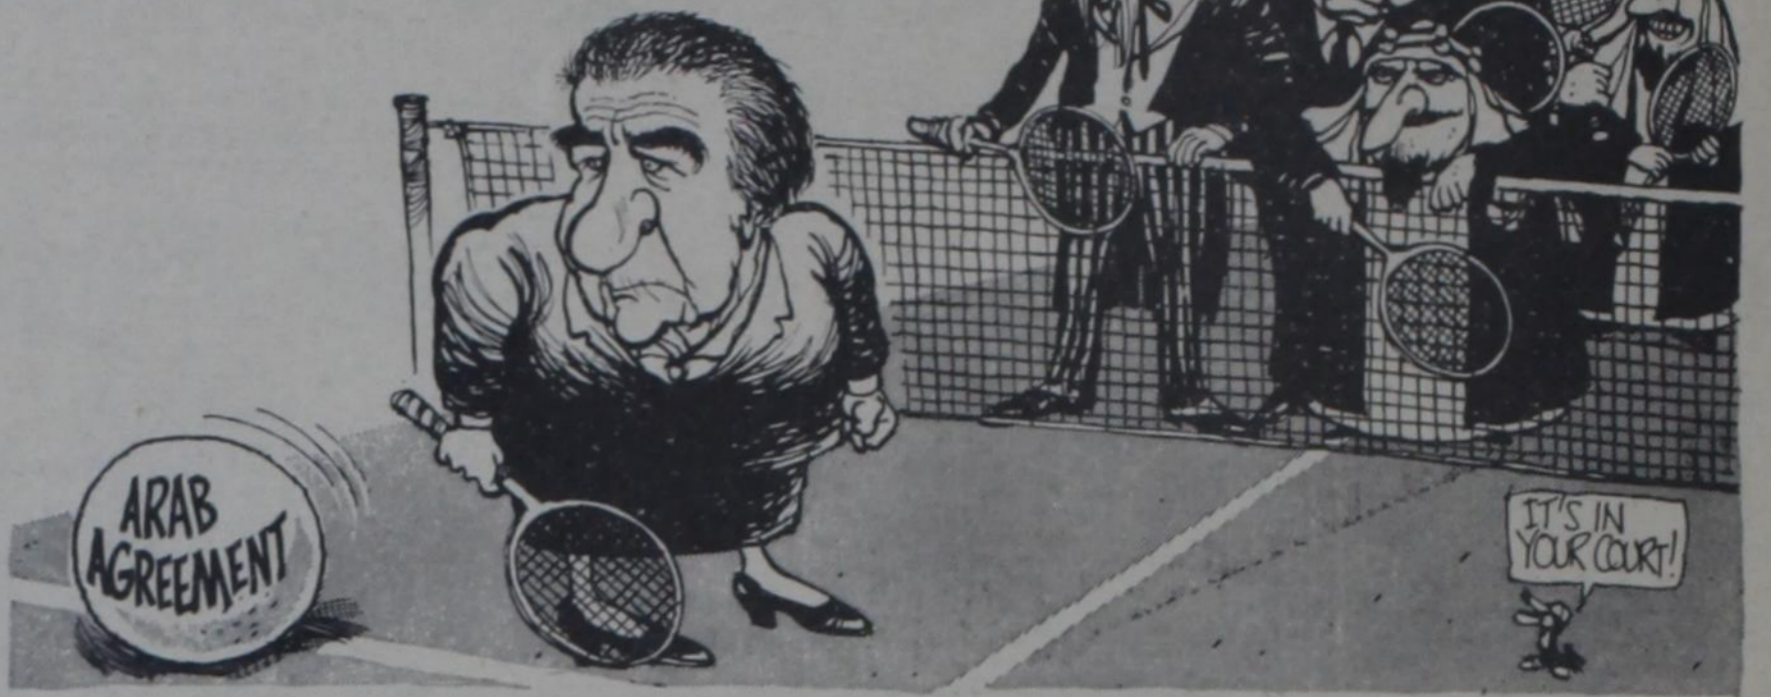

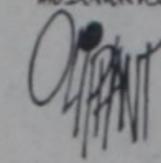

THE WATERGATE PROSECUTORS have no evidence which would verify DeBoer's remarks. A White House spokesman said that the President's detailed financial statement completely refutes the talk of a secret portfolio. A source close to Rebozo declared firmly that "DeBoer never handled any portfolio for any of the three individuals outside or inside the bank."

State's attorney Richard Gerstein, meanwhile, has subpoenaed the records of the Key Biscayne Bank. He is known to be searching them for evidence of DeBoer's dealings.

FOOTNOTE: DeBoer was hired by the Key Biscayne Bank only a few months after the Securities and Exchange Commission had accused him of appropriating money of a public company for his own use and falsifying records. He has now been dismissed.

Game officiating less than effective

To the Editor:

The officiating during a recent interdorm football game was less than effective. I realize that it is not possible for two referees to be as efficient as four or five. But when players are punched, held, and tripped in front of the referees, the officiating should be questioned. The rules of football were made to protect the players, and it is the duty of the officials to see that the rules are not broken. When the referees fail to perform effectively, serious injury can result. To correct this situation a small fee should be charged each team. This fee could then be used to pay for more and better qualified referees.

Refusal a disgrace

To the Editor:

It is my understanding the administration of Texas Tech has refused to defray the expense of the Tech Band attending the Gator Bowl. This is a disgrace, not only for Tech, Lubbock and the entire Southwest Conference. I feel sure that the Gator Bowl officials would not have invited Tech if they had known the Red Raider Band would not attend.

The Gator Bowl is one of the major Bowls and will be on national television. Tech will receive nationwide publicity and it will certainly reflect on the school if the band does not perform. Not only is the Tech band the outstanding band in the Southwest but one of the best bands in the United States.

Money should be no problem as the athletic department received their share of last year's Cotton and Sun Bowl games, two times on regional television this year, their share of television coverage of other Southwest Conference games this year, the proceeds of the upcoming Gator Bowl and Cotton Bowl.

How the administration can justify not sending the "Going Band from Raider Land" would be hard for anyone to understand. If Tech is going to be a "big time" institution it is certainly in order for the administration to reconsider their decision.

The Red Raider Band has never been defeated in competition so how about giving the rest of the United States a chance to see them perform and represent this great Southwest Area. I feel sure that the football team and coaching staff would appreciate the support of the band at the Gator Bowl on Dec. 29th.

O.M. Cosby, Jr.
Memphis, Texas

(The Goin' Band is goin, but by their own fund-raising efforts, with the help of the development office and Lubbock citizens. No explanation from the Athletic Department or the administration has been received as to WHY the entire budget for the trip cannot be footed. But, the band is going, with the help of friends — to the tune of $30,000 — The Editor)

Sufficient transportation necessary for campus

To the Editor:

I disagree with Dan Irons' letter "Cars Off Campus" adamantly. Had this institution been designed with an outer campus for vehicle travel (perhaps where back doors could be used for employees, deliveries, etc.), and an inner campus for pedestrian use only, I would say "Move ahead to better and brighter things!" However, this is not the case at Tech. Without sufficient vehicle transportation, how would campus food distributors deliver food? ... how would supplies be delivered to offices? ... how would the mail carriers deliver mail?

Numerous impositions would be imposed on our Building Maintenance Department to name one. To replace lights in the Women's Gym a gargantuan ladder is needed. Due to the height and weight of this ladder it takes three or four men to get it in the gym. How does Mr. Irons expect them to get the ladder from the physical plant to various locations on campus without the use of a truck? Despite the energy crisis, a great number of lights is needed for physical activity.

Another objection to the letter pertains to faculty and staff. How can they function efficiently and smoothly if they must leave their offices-classrooms every two hours to move their cars from a two-hour parking zone?

In some ways the eviction of cars from the campus would inconvenience students. Without the use of cars, each student would have to carry his golf equipment to and from the gyms and Treasure Island. As is the procedure now, the instructor transports all clubs.

How would professors from any department take projects, papers, and other materials to class if he must park off campus? What about those who supervise student teachers? They have a certain amount of time to get off campus and to the schools. This does not indicate laziness on the part of the teacher but that they have a job which must be done. Which brings me to the next point: what about teachers who teach in one building one hour and the next in a building clear across campus. How does an instructor impress dependability and reliability on his students if he himself does not possess these qualities?

I do want to express my appreciation for Mr. Irons' letter. It caused me to do some serious thinking on whether or not his points were feasible. However, I strongly feel the abolishment of cars from this campus would not save time, fuel, and confusion — it would slow down and even prevent the processes of this institution irreparably and unnecessarily.

Nixon to let committee settle tax questions

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon, after an unprecedented weekend disclosure of his finances, awaits the verdict of a congressional committee on whether he owes up to $300,000 in federal income taxes and interest.

Baring his federal tax returns for his first four years in the White House — and more than 50 other documents — Nixon acknowledged that accountants and lawyers disagree on the propriety of his 1969-1972 federal tax payments. They totaled less than $80,000, on an income of more than $1 million.

Nixon's Saturday disclosures were the first in a promised series he hopes will clear him of any taint of wrongdoing in the Watergate scandal and other controversial areas. His first installment went farther than any president before him in revealing intimate details of personal finances.

Nixon said he has enlisted the Senate-House Committee on Internal Revenue Taxation to decide two tax questions that could cost him heavily if it rules against him:

—Did he act legally in claiming almost $500,000 in deductions for donation of his vice presidential papers to the National Archives? Some argue he acted too late to take advantage of a donations law Congress voided in mid-1969.

—Did he make a taxable capital gain of $117,000 on the 1970 sale of part of his San Clemente, Calif., estate? Nixon's tax accountant claimed at the time had no gain, but a national auditing firm concluded recently that he had made a taxable profit.

The Senate-House Committee, chaired by Rep. Wilbur D. Mills, D-Ark., seemed uncertain as to how it would proceed in fact-finding and ruling on the questions. Mills could not be reached for comment on how the committee would proceed.

Nixon's massive release of financial statements and documents also disclosed he has paid no state income taxes in California, or anywhere else, since becoming President, although he claimed San Clemente as his principal residence in order to avoid payment of federal taxes on the profit from his 1969 sale of a New York City apartment.

White House officials acknowledged Nixon would be liable for sizeable payments to California should state officials decide he should have filed tax returns there.

The papers released by Nixon showed that his net worth increased from $307,000 on Jan. 1, 1969, to $988,000 last May 31.

The various accountings made public indicated that Nixon increased his wealth largely through real estate transactions, the sale of securities bought before he was President, savings from his $200,000 annual salary and the pocketing of a taxable $89,000 from his yearly expense allowance of $50,000.

Other major disclosures made by the President included: —The President and Mrs. Nixon, despite their sizeable income, were able through deductions for the vice presidential papers, business expenses, interest and property taxes, to reduce federal tax payments to $72,682 for 1969, $793 for 1970, $878 for 1971 and $4,298 for 1972.

—The Nixons would have owed no taxes at all in 1970 save for a new "minimum tax" provision enacted as part of the 1969 tax reform law.

—The President claimed tax deductions for all operating expenses of one of his two homes at Key Biscayne, Fla., and for 25 per cent of the San Clemente upkeep, on grounds of use for official business.

Senate Republican leader

Hugh Scott of Pennsylvania said the disclosures "should end the speculation that the President was involved in any illegal financial transaction or used campaign monies for personal gain."

Nixon, in his own statement, took note of public reaction to federal spending in San Clemente, most of it attributed to security and communications needs. He announced that he and his wife have decided to give the California estate, valued at more than $500,000 to the government upon their deaths.

Lawyers said Nixon could qualify for a tax deduction of $120,000 on the transfer if he signed over the deed soon, even if he and Mrs. Nixon retain the right to live out their lives there. However, presidential aides said it was unlikely that Nixon would claim any such deduction.

Vice President Gerald R. Ford said Sunday on ABC's "Issues and Answers" program that the intended gift should "wipe out any alleged ... impropriety" in Nixon's tax payments.

The Nixon disclosures also revealed that, while he was vice president in the Eisenhower administration, a trust of at least $25,000, was set up for his daughter Tricia by Elmer Bobst, then chairman of the Warner-Lambert Pharmaceutical Co. The trust was created at a time when tighter federal regulation of the drug industry was being proposed.

The President also revealed that Tricia Nixon cashed in trust fund stocks in 1967 and loaned him $20,000 to invest in two vacant Key Biscayne lots, with an "oral agreement" she would be guaranteed against loss and would collect a percentage of any profits. The lots, costing $38,000 were sold last year for $150,000. The tax documents showed that father and daughter reported their respective capital gains for federal tax purposes.

Officials say gas rationing will cost states billions

WASHINGTON (AP) — Federal efforts to cut gasoline consumption by rationing or taxation could cost the states $2 billion a year in lost revenues.

Such a loss could force states to cut back services and abandon construction of hospitals, schools and highways, state officials have told the Senate Government Operations Committee.

The Nixon administration aims to cut gasoline consumption by 30 per cent, either by rationing or by raising the federal tax, perhaps by as much as 30 or 40 cents a gallon.

A decision on what route to follow will be made this month, federal officials say. But since every state has its own gasoline tax, as high as 8.5 cents per gallon, a 30 per cent cut in consumption would result in a similar reduction in state tax revenues.

In 1970 the 50 states took in $6.3 billion in motor-fuel taxes, a figure that has risen in the last three years because of increased driving and higher taxes in some states.

In many states these tax collections are funneled into the general fund, which finances education, welfare, health and other programs. Some states share the gasoline tax with cities and counties.

In every state, the gasoline tax is a major revenue source. In California, for example, the motor fuel tax brought in $672.4 million in 1970; New York took in $374.8 million. At the bottom of the list, Alaska collected $10.4

million. A 30 per cent cut in gasoline consumption would cost Tennessee, for instance, $39 million a year; Florida $67.6 million; Massachusetts $40.7 million; Oregon $19.4 million; Illinois $93.9 million; Wisconsin $39.2

million, and the District of Columbia $4.9 million.

In addition, say aides to the Senate committee, there is the inestimable tax loss that states would suffer should tough energy-conservation programs bring on a recession, as some economists predict.

The anticipated loss in tax revenues because of higher federal gasoline levies could be offset by turning over part of the tax to the states or by raising state taxes. But no one in the Nixon administration has mentioned publicly any method under which states could be reimbursed because of tax losses arising out of rationing.

'Light of Hope' to be Carol of Lights theme

The Carol of Lights, sponsored by the Residence Hall Association (RHA), will once again highlight the 1973 Christmas season on the Tech Campus beginning at 7:15 p.m. Friday.

According to Audie Wright, chairman of the Carol of Lights, the theme this year will be "The Light of Hope." A prelude to the program will begin at 7:05 with Tech's Brass Band playing. At 7:15 the invocation will be given by Janice Baldwin, interim president of RHA. Wright will then give the welcome. The Tech Choir will also perform at the ceremony.

Wright said more than 28,000 lights will be turned on during the program, outlining 10 campus buildings.

According to Wright, several changes have been made in the ceremony this year. There will be a complete blackout of the campus this year as in the past. The date has also been changed from the first Tuesday of December due to late approval of a new Tech Grounds Policy.

Lights will also be turned on only three nights this year. They will be left on Friday until 11 p.m. The following Tuesday, Dec. 18, lights will burn from dusk until 10:30 p.m. and Christmas Eve from dusk until 10:30 p.m. According to Wright, decision on the time changes was made by Tech President Grover Murray.

Registration packets ready

Registration packets for the spring semester may be picked up from 1 to 6 p.m. today through Friday in the second floor conference room of West Hall, according to Registrar D. N. Peterson.

Packets will be distributed by social security order. Students unable to pick up their packets during the registration period may pick them up after Friday between 8-12 a.m. and 1 to 5 p.m. in West Hall.

Spring semester class schedules are also available.

Correction

Arts and Sciences Senator Shannon McWilliams opposed a Senate resolution to limit or abolish the Carol of Lights. He did not approve the resolution, as was incorrectly reported in Monday's University Daily. The error appeared in the story about the Residence Halls Association's presidential candidates.

why does a man join Maryknoll?

There are probably as many answers as there are individual Maryknoll priests and Brothers. Some men are deeply moved when they hear of babies dying in their mother's arms because of hunger or disease. Others are distressed by the growing antagonism and separation between the rich and the poor nations. More are concerned about the great injustices that have been inflicted upon the poor by those who possess wealth and power to an excessive degree. Others look to learn from peoples who have grown up with a different mentality than that which is theirs. All feel that the only solution to the crises that threaten to split men asunder is the love of God as shown in the life of His Son, Jesus Christ. This love of God urges men to go forward and be missionaries so men can love one another. What could be your reason for joining Maryknoll?

If you keep saying you want to do something with your life - here's your chance to prove it

Mandatory death penalty faces appeal by convicted defendants

TARBORO, N.C. (AP) — Three young black men have been sentenced to die in North Carolina's gas chamber after being found guilty on charges of raping a white woman last summer.

An Edgecombe County Superior Court jury, meeting in an unusual Sunday session, returned the guilty verdicts against Vernon Leroy Brown, 22, of Tarboro, Bobby Hines, 23, of Princeville, and Jesse Lee Walston, 23, of Washington, D.C.

The three showed no emotion as Judge John Webb pronounced the mandatory death sentence, but relatives in the courtroom wept.

Webb ordered the defendants taken to state prison in Raleigh and held there until Jan. 10, the day they are scheduled to die.

Defense attorney G.P. "Jack" Hopkins of Tarboro immediately gave notice of appeal.

No one has been executed in North Carolina in more than a decade.

Raiders turn back Houston rally for 75-73 victory in cliffhanger

By BROOKS TINSLEY
Sports Editor

HOUSTON — It was beautiful. It was beautiful. The Tech Red Raiders, up by as much as 14 points with six minutes left in the game, overcame a furious Houston rally in the closing seconds to post a thrilling 75-73 win over the Cougars here Monday night before 7,136 screaming fans.

William Johnson hit a jumper with 25 seconds remaining to put the Raiders up by two. The Cougars took the ball down the court, worked it around, and center Maurice Presley finally tried a hook shot with seven seconds left.

Raider Don Moore got the rebound and was fouled. He missed the free throw, and Houston rebounded. The ball went to Louis Dunbar who tried a desperation 25-footer at the buzzer which fell awry.

The loss for the Cougars was only the second ever for a Houston squad on their home court, Hofheinz Pavilion. They have won 62 here. The other loss went to Arizona State in 1973.

The Red Raiders quickly jumped to a first half lead they were not to relinquish until late in the half. The game was tied twice in the early going before the Raiders opened up.

Two jumpers by Johnson, two Rick Bullock layups and a Moore jumper, sandwiched around a Houston bucket, gave Tech a 16-9 lead with 12 minutes left.

Two minutes later Johnson hit six straight points to put Tech up 22-13, the Raiders' biggest lead of the half.

But, then the Cougars found their shooting eyes, something they had been lacking earlier. Dunbar, the 6-9 center and leading Houston scorer for the year, took charge, hitting 10 points over the final eight minutes of the half.

Houston took the lead for the first time with a little over a minute and a half, courtesy of a layup by Presley. Tech's Bullock hit a basket with 41 seconds left to give the Raiders a 36-35 halftime advantage.

Tech hit for 53.1 per cent of its shots in the first period, while Houston was scoring on 43.8 per cent of its attempts.

The Raiders kept up their torrid shooting in the second half, ending the night with a 56.7 per cent shooting output.

Bullock put in jumper after jumper, and Rich Little was credited with several assists.

Bullock ended the night as Tech's leading scorer with 25 points, including 12 of 16 from the field. Johnson followed with 18 and Grady Newton added 12.

Houston was led by Dunbar with 28 and Presley with 18.

Raider Coach Gerald Myers was elated following the win. "It was a great win for our guys," Myers said. "They really hustled, especially on the offensive and defensive boards. We didn't out-rebound them (31-26) but we stayed close."

Myers added that the big difference in the game was the play of Tech's defense. The Cougars, coming into the game, were averaging about 90 points per contest.

"William Johnson played fantastic defense tonight," Myers said. "He was guarding one of the best forwards in the country in Louis Dunbar and, except for the final five minutes of the game, held him in check."

For the Raiders, the plane ride back to Lubbock won't be so long after all. Probably shorter than Houston's walk to the dressing room after the game.

Tech concerned over Vols' big play artists

By JEFF KLOTZMAN
Sports Writer

Jim Carlen's Crusaders face an enormous task Dec. 29 when they try to overpower one of the premier offensive attacks in the nation — the Tennessee "Multiple T."

The key to the Vol's attack is the quarterback spot, manned superbly by Condredge Holloway. Tech scouting coach Ted Unbehagen, who scouted the Vols in their last two games of the season, feels that Holloway is the best signal caller Tech will face this year because of his extraordinary athletic abilities.

"Holloway is the big gun for the Tennessee offensive," Unbehagen reported. "He has a great arm plus the overall quickness of a great runner. Like (Joe) Barnes, he is able to turn the big play."

Unbehagen is also impressed with Holloway's backfield running mates — Haskel Stanback and Steve Chancey. "Both of these players are excellent athletes," Unbehagen said.

Chancey is a tremendous blocker and also has great inside power. Stanback is their all-purpose back that has the power to go up the middle or outside. He doesn't have burning speed but is durable and quick enough to really hurt you."

Perhaps the Vols' best asset is the inability to complement the run with the pass. Last season, Tennessee kept the ball mainly on the ground, but Holloway has opened up a bit this year.

"Holloway has several good receivers to throw to," Unbehagen said. "Their flanker and split ends have good speed and sure hands plus they have a freshman, Stanley Morgan, who is a 9.3 sprinter and is very dangerous. They used him in spots at the first of the season but he has really come around in recent weeks."

Defensively, Tennessee's main strength is in their linebacking and secondary play. The pass coverage is tenacious and middle linebacker art Reynolds can cover either way. The strength of their line lies with the ends where they have two very capable performers.

Unbehagen feels that the difference of the game depends on who has the best mental attitude.

"We will have to be mentally sharp to contain Holloway." We have to beat him to the corners and cover his receivers so the line can get to him.

Murdough takes bowling title

Murdough "A" won the All-University bowling championship as they rolled up a 2,803 series to out distance second place ASCE. ASCE finished with a 2,679 while Sigma Chi was third with 2,615.

David Roehrig, Tracey Poe and Rick Goulding comprised the Murdough's All-University champions.

In other intramurals, the first round of the Alpha Tau Omega basketball was played Monday night. However, scores will not be available until Wednesday as some of the games ran past deadline.

The Sigma Nu basketball tourney will begin tonight and continue throughout the week.
