

Dean Wobble To Be Feted For Work With Juveniles

Arrests End Long Bloody Trail

Bars Close, State Prepared To Give Great Celebrati'n

Charming, vivacious, talented and well-addressed Mrs. Maggie Wobble Wobble, dean of female juveniles at Tech college, will fly once again to the Sunshine State to be honored for her outstanding work among delinquents here.

This announcement followed an all-women banquet and farewell dinner party at Hotel Hilton in downtown Lubbock. The dean will be gone two days.

President of the college said today that he anticipated no inadequacy on the part of the school in handling the juveniles because Eleanor Roosevelt had kindly consented to substitute for the dean during her absence.

In the sunshine state, the event of Mrs. Wobble's return is expected to be one of excitement and glad tidings. The governor has declared a state-wide holiday with gala celebrations planned all up and down the whole coast line. A special dance will be held in the rotunda of the capital building tomorrow night. No stags will be admitted, the governor said. As usual, all bars and burlesque houses will be closed for the occasion, he stated.

At the dance, the dean will be presented with a marble plaque, the following inscription being inscribed thereon:

"In reward for outstanding and meritorious achievement in stilling uncouth feelings in young women and in protecting American womanhood, especially at notorious Tech. This marble plaque is a symbol of the dead weight Mrs. Maggie Wobble Wobble has lifted from the shoulders of the parents of students in America's colleges and universities."

Mrs. Wobble will then do her famed mummley peg dance. Mrs. Wobble is of course national president of Kappa Slippa Scoupa, national honorary mummley peg sorority.

On her way back to Tech, she will stop by the University of Palokuku in Sydney, Australia, for their one millionth Kappa Slippa chapter initiation service, since the dean was elected president four years ago.

Mrs. Wobble will leave the municipal airport at 3 a.m. this morning. A cheering squad of 14,000 students is expected to see her off, an official in the dean's office has announced. Mrs. Wobble stated that she had personally wired the parents of all the girls in the group, asking for "Out of City Permits." Doubtful parents were assured that the girls would be chaperoned by 200 reliable and courteous State Troops. Mrs. Wobble said, and that girls would be able to cut all morning classes after the farewell ceremony in order to make up for lost sleep.

All girls in the cheering squad will be checked in at their rooms at 3:05 a.m., Mrs. Wobble indicated, and the outside doors to the girls' dorms will be locked promptly at 3:05 a.m.

Student vice president of the bodies, George Haymouth, stated that 700 United Airlines helicopters have been chartered to get the girls in on time.

INCARCERATED—Nabbed in Laredo, where they were attempting to cross the border and flee into Mexico, these former Tech students are being detained in the local jail on a charge of absconding with funds of the Student Council. Tech Coeds Are Found In The Pink Salesman Finds Survey Interesting

Most Tech coeds are in the pink, a salesman for the Formless Bra company of Dirty, Wash, said early this morning.

The salesman, who preferred to remain anonymous, declared in a paid interview, "Most women attending this college are in the pink. In fact, very few of them prefer black lingerie."

Basis for his statement is a three-month survey of the clothing tastes of the college female. The survey, completed last night on a lonely road in a city park, reveals some uninteresting figures about campus figures.

"For instance, the number of girls who lean toward the wearing of girdles has increased 1 per cent over the 1906 total. I am not stretching these statistics," stated the salesman.

REPRIMANDED

Mrs. Cecile Churner, matron of Women's Cell Block No. 4, has been reprimanded by Dr. Primrose of the College disconcertory for diagnosing too many acute stumped toes as "nervous cases resulting from love troubles."

The survey disclosed also that most coeds favor a return to short skirts.

"I guess the reason for this is that people think women are being underhanded if they wear long skirts. But if they put on short dresses, then they are not hiding anything from anybody," said the salesman.

Compilation of the data required a great deal of time, he said.

"Every minute of it was worth every ounce of energy and effort I put into it. Of course, my hands were pretty full of research much of the time," averred the clothing representative.

What he has learned from the survey has given him new respect for American womanhood, and has increased his desire to make further studies in this field, he told a disinterested reporter.

"I find that American women are pushing ahead as usual, and I am not saying this flatly. As a point of fact, they are simply busting with ambition," declared the salesman.

He had one complaint—and only one—concerning his stay on the campus:

"You people ought to do something about those thistles and grass burs in Aggie grove."

Terrorists Placed In Laredo Jail After Capture In Border Town

A bloody trail of crime that has flamed across Texas ended today when state police, aided by federal officers, succeeded in apprehending Flint Cornby and Maggie Lark, president and secretary of the Student Council, when they attempted to cross the border into Mexico at Laredo.

The couple has terrorized residents of small Texas towns for the past week with their daring daylight robberies of banks and other monied establishments.

Absconding a week ago today with the new Buick station wagon bought recently by the council, the criminal duo held up the Chez When night club on the outskirts of town and fled south with nearly $5,000 in hard cash and bottled drinks which were not soft either.

Station Wagon Bought

The station wagon was bought against the violent protestations of the student body. Members of the council said they needed it for "purposes of business and pleasure."

Robbery of the night club, a popular hangout for Tech's alcoholic fringe, set the pattern that was followed in all later hold-ups. Entering boldly at the front door, the masked couple drew Winchester pistols and told everyone in no uncertain terms to "bite the dust." As Cornby held the crowd at bay, the gun moll scooped cash out of the register till and stuffed it in her bosom. The owner of the club, a fat Greek who will remain anonymous, drew a knife and attempted to be a hero, but a hail of bullets greeted his efforts, and he is reclining on a slab in the downtown morgue.

Bill Write, business manager of the council, was taken into custody by Lubbock police last Thursday. He was charged with simplicity in the dastardly crimes.

Write talked freely the day of the arrest and told officers and this reporter a spicy tale of embezzlement of council funds. Last December, said Write, and subsequent investigation has corroborated his statements, the trio withdrew funds totaling $7,000 and invested same in a string of small downtown hotels which cater to the demi-monde. This business venture proved unprofitable after recent action by city police, and the triad went berserk.

Write Accepts Blame

"It was all my fault," sobbed the hysterical Write. "If I only hadn't played the horses and spent all the profits in high-living we could have repaid the money, and I wouldn't be suffering this agony of shame now."

"But it was great fun while it lasted," he added as the door to his cell clanged shut.

He is free on $10,000 bail and plans to enter a monastery in Tibet someday to atone for his crimes. He said that only his loyalty to the Agate club kept him from fleeing with his low-life associates.

Other members of the council expressed amazement and horror at the action of their comrades. It is rumored that the rest of the council is making a tidy profit in rumrunning on the Amarillo highway and thus have no need to engage in such malpractices.

Cornby and Miss Lark surrendered to officers after a sharp exchange of bullets and emerged from the battered station wagon with hands in air.

"Don't get the idea," the modern Belle Starr told officers, "that a love affair is involved in this little escapade. I'm a hard-headed business woman, and I can get out of it. I got tired of frittering

Grades Below "B" Class Roll Check Ruled Out By Club

Grades below B will no longer exist at Tech.

This decision was made at the regular meeting of the Fake-ulty club at 1:03 a.m. Wednesday at Toney's Tumblewood Den, stated S. M. Nekkeddy, president of the organization. A decision to discontinue class roll check was also carried out at the meeting.

"I cannot stand it any longer," said Samson Fielest, assistant professor of monkeying and re-creational administration.

"I weep every time I give a C or below to a student," he further stated.

"Students beat their brains out to make good grades, and I can no longer bear to break their hearts in such a horrible manner," sobbed another teacher.

The opinion was unanimous that students work hard for their grades and that any low grade is due to an unfair quiz on the part of the instructor.

Prof. Along L. Shround, English prof, brought before the gathering the policy of checking class roll every day. The members of the Fake-ulty voted almost unanimously to do away with it. The prevailing opinion was that it forced students to come to class against their will, and this was considered to be too binding on the student.

A discussion concerning the legalization of cheating ended with no definite decision. The general opinion among the fake-ulty was that cheating is just another way of gaining knowledge.

"If a student does not know an answer to a question, but his neighbor does, then such friendly and unarmful exchange of knowledge is proper," said Miss Dila B. Maye, assistant professor of tamathetics.

It was stated by someone else that calling a student down for cheating was embarrassing to him and should not be permitted.

One professor was of the opinion that legalizing cheating would take away the pleasure that students obtain from "putting it by" the teacher, and the fake-ulty members all objected to depriving them of this entertainment.

Varsity Show Is Revealed As Strip Tease

Girls To Be Garbed With Soap Bubbles And Pink Garters

Something new in the way of college varsity shows may greet students who attend the 1949 extravaganza, "Millstones and Melody," Monday through Wednesday nights in the Lubbock High School auditorium.

First inkling of this fact was revealed yesterday when Bill Barsley, show director slipped on his tongue. As Barsley picked himself (panting) off the floor he said: "Shucks, I didn't want it to get out that far."

Just because of this slip of the tongue, so to speak, this reporter is able to bring you this exclusive story.

Strip-tease, nothing less . . . than strip-tease, is what the students, faculty members and mothers will see next week unless police go in to action.

After considerable pounding by this fine reporter with a club, Barsley revealed what had brought about the change in plans.

"We had expected to keep it as a surprise for everybody," he said. Then Barsley told his story.

"You see," he said, "we all found Miss Rooks story very interesting, but to put it frankly, the dancing girls felt that they'd been raked. Plenty of melody, but these millstones, that was just too much."

"Did you ever try dancing with a millstone tied around your neck?" he asked. "It's similar to kissing your girlfriend good night with the campus nightwatchman poking you in the back."

"Wherever Miss Rook got the idea of millstones for costumes, I don't know," Barsley said. "We just decided to dispense with the whole millstone outfit. The girls will be garbed in garters and soap bubbles."

Economics professor John Hardening has designed something new in costumes which may prove to be both interesting and exciting. Barsley revealed. It was entirely because of a soap bubble machine, advertised before the ec 231 class, each year that the show is possible.

By outstanding research, Hardening, who has long been the manufacturer of a bubble machine capable of making 2,500 soap bubbles per minute has reduced the size of the machines to where they can be worn on a garter. Hence, each dancer can place garters and bubbli machines on her gams and dance delightfully while 2,500 multicolored soap bubbles per minute keep her clothed.

Prof Hardening has revealed that scientist Jank Funell, Campust Grave C. Diggins and Campus Bubble Blowing Champion and College Business Manager Gummy Taston, will observe and report the experiment to the scientific weekly.

Off the record, Hardening revealed that he hoped the dances would be short because fuel supply for the miniature bubble machines must be replenished each two minutes. And this is why the show is in danger of turning into strip tease, Barsley said.

In case of this eventually, Dean Maggie Wibble Wobble will have returned from California in time to pour the tea. Honorary holder of the tea pot will be Prof. Stude Halter.

MOON LANTERNS

Nightwatchmen around girls' dorms have been instructed to put yellow filters on their spotlights in moonless nights to lend a romantic touch. The nightwatchmen from now on will act in the capacity of cupid's little henchmen.

It was also announced that flashlight bulbs will replace the 4-million watt globes around the dorms.

Major Changes Announced In Dormitory Regulations

By JAY INSTEP LAYMUN
Cuspidor Staff Writer

"I don't believe it." That is what I said when Miss Bezelle Praddock, supervisor of the dormitory system, told me yesterday that room and board for April would be free. Yes, that's what she said.

Free. Miss Praddock is sincerely regretful for the way the students have been treated and wishes to make amends. She said she has seen what a mistake it has been charging such an outrageous figure for room and board. As of today she is remedying this by a new set of rules and regulations for governing the dormitories.

The first major change will be in the dining rooms. Lunch will be served from 11:30 a.m. until 2:30 p.m. and dinner from 5:00 p.m. until 8:00 p.m., with the dining hall remaining open until midnight. In order that students might be able to go in for a light snack when returning from a late movie or dance.

Breakfast is to be served from 7:00 a.m. until 9:15 a.m. On Sunday morning students not desiring to come down for breakfast may be served in bed if they notify the kitchen by 9:00 a.m.

Once a month when its convenient for all dormitory residents, a banquet will be held. Miss Praddock will stand at the door and smile at all the students as they enter. Also in connection with the meal service, three meals will be scheduled on Sunday instead of the regular two.

Another major change concerns women in the dormitories. They will have no restriction as to when they must be in; however, there is one stipulation. They are asked to continue to sign out. This rule may be dispensed with later, Miss Praddock stated.

Plans are being completed for re-decorating all the dormitories except the four new ones. Students are asked to report to Miss Praddock's office at their earliest convenience and talk with her about the type of furniture desired. The will need to discuss the individual color scheme as to carpets, drapes, etc. Miss Praddock is a staunch believer in having the individual colors for each room. According to a recent survey, students making the best grades lived in rooms in which their favorite colors predominated.

Miss Praddock said that instead of taking the coke machines out of the dorms, she would put in twelve more. She said that it had been discouraging the way the students in two of the dormitories had destroyed the bottles; however, her faith has been renewed in the Tech student and she believes improvement will be made along these lines.

She expressed a desire for all the students to come personally and talk about any phase of the dormitory system that doesn't please them.

As a crowning statement Miss Bezelle Praddock gave this quite sentimental expression. "A Tech student is just a lonely child who needs a mother while he is away from home. Sometimes I feel so sorry for him to have to be so far away from home. At times I think I would like to take all of them in my lap and rock them to sleep just like a baby. That is what the Tech student needs. Someone to care for him."

King Arthur: "I hear that you're misbehaving."
Knight: "In what manor, sir?"

"I'll see you," said our hero as he laid down four aces in a game of strip poker.

"Of course you're the first girl I ever kissed," said the senior ME as he shifted gears with his foot.

There's a student on this campus who never takes a drink. You've got to hand it to him.

Beholden Leads Student Diggings In Search For Ruins Of Disputin

Dean Loan Beholden, museum curate, his story exponent and digger of holes, reported recently that he was on the trail of an ancient civilization dating back to the days before the coming of the Indians. He states that our civilization is only one error of many in the vast reaches of time.

Professor Beholden (not to be confused with his cousin, the man no independent Democrat wants to be) is fairly certain that this city existed during the dynasty of the famed Rasputin Disputin the XIVth, but that is neither here nor there, he has no proof.

Acting on a tip that there was a lot of old stuff in the city dump heap east of town, Beholden and his stoain shrldu blunderstuds began last Thursday to dig into the accumulations of past ages in an all-out effort to find relics of the ancient city.

The group's activities were halted during the afternoon by a catastrophic landslide. Archaeologists emerged from the debris, undazed but injured, buried their dead and resumed operations early the following day.

Unearth Ketchup Working in especially reinforced ashcans, the scientists descended to the depth of 12 fathoms, discovered an old parched board and knocked off for the day.

At a depth of 300 cubits, the smell of spoiled ketchup became overpowering, and the diggers were forced to return to the surface for their gasmasks.

Digging by the dim radiation of glow worms, the party descended into the sub-strata of the pre-automotive period. A carriage with one by one wheel missing, three horse shoes and a horse were uncovered. Hastily recovering the horse, the men resumed their work.

Just before reaching bedrock at a depth of 349 kilometers, the men discovered a few old bones several yards long, the fossilized remains of some Alley Oopish creature and an old stone monument bearing an inscription in Chinese. Professor Beholden is unable to explain presence of these objects in the junk heap, but presumes that they were put there by the early residents of Lubbock or that they are the result of a practical joker or the initiation stunt of some fraternity.

Explorer Killed He says that the excavation was a failure from the ancient city standpoint but that he did require an early copy of Esquire he had planned to read, a pair of suspenders, a cufflink, 11 assorted shoes and boots, a bucket of red paint, an old automobile tire he plans to put on his car, and a bottle of Old Cologne, vintage of 1891.

Other members of the party also picked up a number of useful objects. One man found an old Stanley Steamer, tried to fire it up, and was killed in the resulting explosion.

In his capacity as spokesman for the group, Dean Beholden says that he would appreciate it if people who have junk heaps of considerable antiquity would contact him. He has a fine dueling pistol that he would like to match.

Librarians Decide To Close Library

At a surprise meeting last night, highlighted by the toasting of marshmallows, the assembled librarians of Texas Tech decided to take better care of the books.

Mrs. Loosely G. Bonnet, the leader of the discussion, began the session by asking, "Who is responsible for the destruction of books?"

"The students," was the chorus reply.
"Good," she said. In order to protect the books from the students we must devise some way to keep them away from the students. What better way to do that than to lock the doors of the library?"

At that, the meeting went wild. Crues of, "You betcha," and "Yipee," rent the air (rent on air is very low).

The librarians promptly drew up a petition and signed it. Today Mrs. Bonnet is taking the paper to Pres-G. C. Diggins for his approval. Mrs. Bonnet said that this is a mere formality and that she was confident the measure would receive the president's "okay."
"Why, it's a lead pipe cinch," she declared.

A Telephone Booth Farewell Party Held For Booted Language Majors

A farewell party for foreign language majors going abroad was staged last night in the telephone booth on the first floor of the administration building. Approximately 200 students and 42 faculty members attended the affair. Principal speaker of the evening was Dr. Diggins, college president, who was dressed in a fashionable Tech T shirt and a pair of basketball shorts. He emphasized the duty of the students as goodwill ambassadors for Tech, saying, "Contact all those prospective bookworms and tell them what a wonderful school Tech is."

Dairy Gives Free Ice Cream, Cookie

Ice cream and cookies will be given away in the dairy manufacturing office in the Aggie building today, stated Dr. Z.Z. Unwillingham, head.

The ice cream is a joint product of the Tech dairy herd and the Tech dairy machines. The cookies were baked by seniors in home economics.

Refreshments are to be given to couples only, Unwillingham said. This is to encourage more male students to start dating, he explained.

All couples who come by the DM office are to receive a generous serving of 27 quarts of ice cream and six gross of selected cookies.

This is the first time that the dairy has given free samples of its products to students, Unwillingham said.

"The move is made possible by the current prosperous conditions, in that the dairy is expected to pull down its greatest profits ever this year," said Unwillingham.

Refreshments were served on the telephone booth patio which was decorated with varied colored pearls of limburger cheese. Following, rylon combs and wash-sour kraut, floating chocolate ice cream in Jamaica Rum and spaghetti, Toddy Krager and his Crackpot Combo furnished dance music.

This 25 piece orchestra composed of French harps, glockenspiels, zithers, rylon combs and washboards sent the students as well as other guests on their way. All Techsians are expected to see the language students as they board a special jet propelled plane for France, Germany, Spain and Portugal, said Diggins said. The students will parachute from the plane at their respective countries in order that it will be able to make a non-stop flight. Expenses of the life time jobs of the goodwill ambassadors will be paid by the college, Diggins stated.

Grand Opening Set For Tech Night Club

Grand opening of the most picturesque and modern night club on Tech campus, the Poluted Palace (formerly the Rec-ed hall) will be at 11:59 p.m. tonight, the foreman and proprietors announced. Reservations are available for $1,000 per person, to cover incidental expenses such as the repair of the high pressure system of the portable fold-away bar, after a night's operation.

Explanatory note: in order to keep the reverences from discovering the "refreshments", the bar automatically folds into the wall each time the front door opens, and reappears when the enemy has fled. The wear and tear caused by this constant motion necessitates that patrons contribute to the upkeep of the system; hence, the exorbitant cover charge. No reservations will be accepted after 11:58 p.m.

The Palace will feature top orchestras and dance bands every night. Scheduled for the premier performance is Pike Sones, not to be confused with Kane Wing, the king of pin tan alley. Sones is the current favorite for danceable, dreamable music. His most popular section is Giggle, a riddle, Gobble, Git, his own special version of "Cocktails for Two."

In addition to the regular hall-room, the Poluted Palace (name copyrighted with the Bored of Misdirectors) is also equipped with a specially designed terrace. An artificial moon is available, for a slight fee, on night when Hell's 40 Acres migrate back to Tech. This moon is guaranteed to be brighter than the original.

Awlen Is Dean Of Boys By Class Of Kids

Jay Gee Awlen was unanimously elected dean of men today by the child development class.

This is the first time in the history of this university that the children have had a voice in our self-government program.

To be eligible to vote, the children must be at least 21 months old, have at least 9,700 activity points, a 4.65 grade point average and have a petition signed by at least 9,000 fellow students and administrators certifying they have been born.

Jimmy, as the children affectionately call him, won such a decided victory over his opponents because of his strong platform. (The Tech massacre band played his theme song, "Oh, How Sturdy My Foundation") at all his campaigns. He promised to have all the campus swimming pools drained and thoroughly cleaned twice daily, excluding Sunday, before breakfast; to equip fully the economic transportation classes with planes and ships; issue spurs to the bare-back riding class; have the grassy lawns mowed each morning and lower the temperature in the bathhouses so that campus-grown orchids will not wither.

He is in favor of raising the dormitory rent from its present preposterous low ebb to $800 per week as was requested by the entire student body. He also promised to cut down on the filling dorm meals of steak, etc. because Tech's students are getting too obese.

Rumor has it that his opponents came near to victory merely because one splinter in their platform indicated they favored deferred rushing (which means all persons desiring to pledge social organizations must have a BA, BS, BVD or equivalent degree before they can be accepted.)

built rope slung casually over the terrace edge to be used as an entrance and exit. Anyone unable to make the descent after four hours of activities may try the front door. A word of warning is offered, however, in that the person doing so proceeds at his own risk. "We refuse to be responsible," the proprietors said, "for any accidents that occur without that forbidding portal."

A large crowd of first-nighters is expected, so reservations should be called for as soon as possible. As an added incentive, free refreshments will be served from 4 a.m. to closing time at 4:01 a.m., the management said.

FBI Fraternity Announces There Will Be A Runoff

F'sum Brawl Toonit, happy, if not honorary, fraternity for students with less than a D average who have never participated in any legitimate undertaking, announced last yesterday that there will be a runoff between Joe Inebriate and Bob Staggerhome, leading contenders for the year's supply of Milwaukee's Finest, offered by Ardiadne Sourbelly.

Miss Sourbelly won the year's supply of Milwaukee's Finest by completing the sentence, "I drink Milwaukee's Finest because..." As all sentences submitted became the property of the company, this writer could not discover whether Miss Sourbelly used 25 words or less.

The happy winner collected her prize, began to celebrate, and became deathly ill. Medical examination revealed gastric ulcers, peculiar ulcers that were irritated only by Milwaukee's Finest. The heart-broken Miss Sourbelly consulted an eminent psychiatrist, who decided that worry, anticipation, and sampling had caused the ulcers, and that the only cure for them would be for the disconsolate female to give away her prize.

Miss Sourbelly hit upon the plan that is history at this institution. With the able assistance of F'sum Brawl Toonit, she publicized her intention to award her prize to the winner of a contest. Contestants were to write 200 words on the subject, "What Worthy Use I Would Make of a Year's Supply of Milwaukee's Finest."

Inebriate and Staggerhome were selected from a field of an estimated 3,000 entrants. The former proposed to send the prize to Russia to melt the iron curtain. The latter preferred to keep Milwaukee's Finest on the campus, and suggested using it as a dressing

FDF Social Club Holds Semi-Annual Barn Dance, Party

FDF, women's social club, held its semi-annual barn dance for faculty and school board members from 11 p.m. to 3 a.m. last night at the Wool club. Decorations were pledges hanging from the ceiling.

Guest of honor for the occasion was Pres. G. C. Diggins. Dean W. Stankle gave a speech on Brazilian caterpillars and the effects which they have on cotton.

The group went to the dance in a chartered bus so that the students and faculty members might have a closer association and get to know each other better. Due to weather conditions, sponsors were unable to attend.

Favors of engraved ankle bracelets were presented to all faculty and school board members. To show their appreciation for the gifts, faculty members presented a program which consisted of a can-can number and several popular songs. Dean M. W. Wobble sang "Put the Blame on Mame." Small stacks of barbeque, snake, cotton candy, and kikkapoo joy juice were served during the dance. Blitz of the Ritz and his Blitzkrieg orchestra furnished music for the dance. Bing Crushing sang.

Members who had dates were: Miss Representative, Ann Nonomoyous, Fraud Ulent, and Hex Ameter. Others attending were: Harri Cary, Logan Berry, My Self, Him Self, Eri Sponisible, Pedit Greed, Sexa Pearl, Price Less, Con Fusion, Prude Ence, Star Vation, Sense Less, Inspi Jargon, Sy Chology, Sor Gum, Murga Troid, Ty Phoid, Uni Corn, Waste Full, Pusil Anomous, Perry Gorich, Gad About, Ginger Ale, Cam El, Gladis Stone, and Phil Co.

A good time was had by all and all the faculty and school board members left with a warmer feeling toward the students they had met. Several of them stated that they only wished the affair took place six times yearly instead of only twice.

Son: "Pop, what is the person called who brings you into contact with the spiritual world?" Pop: "Bartender, son." These jokes can't be so terrible when I throw a sheaf of them into the furnace, the fire roared.

The judges, members of F'sum Brawl Toonit, decided the students must make the decision as to the fate of Milwaukee's Finest; to Russia or not to Russia.

Ballots will be cast at 7 p.m. tonight in the Tech gym. All student are urged to show their concern with world and campus affairs and go out and vote!

Women's Social Clubs Combine; No Good Result May Be Expected

The five women's social clubs on Tech campus have combined this week after 22 years of feuding over dates on the social calendar, baseball games, elections, and pledges. Presidents of the clubs met yesterday and decided to call their new organization the D-Vi-Ko-Sans-Chaps.

The presiding officer of the meeting was Brayne Tonsil, president of Women's Intervoted Collection of Clubs.

The first disagreement of the meeting came when Kitchen Bluff, president of Ko Sorry, insisted that all pledges must study a minimum of 68 hours a week.

At this point, Barrel Shreaded, president of Las Vivoritichus, is reputed to have said "But we'd never have any pledges. We'd have to blackmail them cause they wouldn't do it."

Clue Lostsome, president of Las Chaporetatus, went on record as having said that unless all the plumes taken from the Chap presentation were returned, her club would not enter the alliance. Because here is the oldest club on the campus, it should be permitted to have its Valentine presentation, she said.

Sane Ministers, president of Sans Soused, answered Miss Lostsome with the statement that Las Chaporetatus was no older than Sans Soused, but that it got in writing first. Since her baseball team has won for two years, it should be permitted to use its presentation theme, she said.

The meeting had to be called back to order by Miss Tonsil. Carry Cane Linchey, president of F.D.F. then asked that the meaning of F.D.F. not be disclosed. This brought a storm of comment and a Boreador reporter heard one party say that the initials meant Fraternity of Dizzy Females.

A motion was then made by an unidentified party to exclude F.D.F. from the organization's dances because they would be too crowded. Miss Linchey replied that the D-Vi-Ko-Sans-Chaps couldn't use her club's 175 pledges and then not let them go to a dance.

The meeting was in an unusual state and Miss Tonsil adjourned the group when two unidentified parties began pulling hair. In a statement to the press, Miss Tonsil said, "Though it has been voted on and passed to combine, I am sure that at the next meeting of the presidents of the clubs, it will be overruled."

Why Allow Our Criminals To Become Degenerate?

Once were the days on this campus when a man could kiss his girl without interruption. This privilege has been taken away from us and for just reason. Be it far from this mouthpiece to complain or badger, for a great and crying need was answered when this restriction was granted by the administration.

The morality rate on this campus has been considerably lowered since this policy was taken up. Nightwatchmen prod weary couples who find kissing in fashion. Parked automobiles on the campus are sometimes unparkeed by policemen. Occupants are sent to the various disciplinary committees, and justly.

As we say, it has been the policy of this paper and the administration of this school to keep men and women students completely segregated. Ultramodern smooching and petting and have been discarded for spooning the practice of our pilgrim fathers. We have worked hard in our job. Students have learned the evils of a kiss in the dark, and under the process of reeducation have learned the evils of a casual carress or holding hands.

No sooner have we accomplished our purpose, Educated students, than we find the police tearing down the great handiwork of this administration and this generation. Take one glance at the picture on page one of this paper. Carefully note that the most dastardly act has been perpetrated on the president of the student council and his secretary. They are locked in the same cell.

Let us again state our policy!

We believe that the complete segregation of men from women is the only solution to the basic problems facing religion, society and the world today. We shall devote all our talents to securing this end.

With this great ideal in mind, El Cuspidor suggests separate jails for men and women in this and every other city in the state. We can't afford to have our criminals become degenerate.

Robbed Again . . .

Students are being robbed or their right to secure an education, and the robber is the Tech faculty.

Pseudo teachers and so-called educators are making things too easy for the student body. Examinations are so mild that they exert only a feeble tax upon collegiate initiative. Class time is frequently wasted by buffoonery and fruitless moments of levity. In all departments laxity prevails. A state of lethargy has settled over all divisions. Faculty members thumb their noses at responsibility, and have become so lazy that tests are ignored. Classes are often dismissed early so that an errant professor man enjoy an extra moment of relaxation. Work has become a forgotten activity in local collegiate circles.

Besides their gross neglect of academic assignments, faculty members are far too lenient in classroom regulation. Students are allowed too many privileges and are encouraged to take their studies lightly. Assignments are too short.

The only progressive group on the campus, the Home Economics division, has realized the fruitlessness of erratic supervision and has offered a comprehensive solution. Its faculty has pointed out that Tech's scholastic record is below average and recommends that grades of each student be raised so that he will stand near the head of his class. Furthermore they have advanced the commendable plan of convening classes two hours for seven days a week. Students will be compelled to study each assignment for at least four hours. Frivolity and capricious capers will be completely eliminated from classrooms.

This plan exemplifies a situation which the Cuspidor believes approaches the ideal. Therefore we urge the student body to support the reform so that each collegian will garner full remuneration from his padentic activity. Work and Study must become the paramount factors on Tech campus.

The deans of men and women have come to the conclusion that "what we need for our students is more entertainment, because they are studying entirely too hard and making too good grades."
In order to conform with this most generous decision, an addition to the library will be made in the very near future. To make the situation even more pleasing, girls will no longer have restrictions. They will be given the same privileges as men.

EL TORO GRANDE

We Shot The Darn Bull

(Guest columnist this fine April's fool day is anonymous as all get out, which incidentally, is just what the various editors of El Cuspidor have done — Two Gun Pete, who just shot the devil).

Millions of Tech students and faculty will be guided on a free tour of the Press building today to see at first hand how the Boreador is written. This is "Be Kind To The Boreador" Week.

According to past performances, it has been predicted the Boreador office will appear something like this: On an enormous sun porch, numerous reporters will be seen sunk in red velvet easy chairs, occasionally typing upon diamond studded typewriters.

The person dashing to and fro to wait upon these languid creatures is Benevolent Brooooooer, the editor. He is serving caviar and champagne to all the reporters at present. That person anxiously adjusting hassocks under all the reporters' feet is Amiable Owlven, assistant editor.

The piteous little fellow in the corner here is Pot Pourri. It has been rumored around the office that he was banned in Boston.

Heart-rendering sobs are coming from a group at the far end of the porch. They are having a funeral for a rat. Notice the man and woman to the left who are crying so heart-brokenly. She used to run a race around the Press building with the rat early every morning. The gentleman beside her was also a friend of the deceased. The rat used to sit on his knee and watch him develop film down in darkroom A.

The group of people to the right who are munching burned out flash-bubs and occasionally knocking their heads against the wall are pledges of the national Kow-tow At Members club. Around the table to the right of them are a group of KAM members gazing raptly into microscopes looking for filter-factors. Another group of members nearby can be seen sipping acetic acid. They say it is quite potent and helps them think up new things for the pledges to do.

Pardon that noise, the Press club members are ironing out difficulties on the next sun-porch.

The bunch of folks in the middle of the floor cutting out paper dolls are proof readers. Notice how tenderly the reporters bang them on the head every hour on the hour. The special mallets were imported from old concentration camps from Germany.

That boy talking to a group of Theta Signify Nothings near the swimming pool is the editor of La Puerta, a bigger view than The Window. It is the largest book on campusology ever published at Texas Wreck.

JACK TOURNAMENT

Tech's jacks experts bounced their way to glory at the NJPAOA (National Jacks Players Association Of America) in the national playoffs in Madison Round Garden, New York. Big, Eurlly, Boistrous, 210-pound Franklin Grunts won first place in the "eggs in the basket" contest. "I had a hell of a time on my fivesies," stated Grunts. Gene Halford, tricky exhibitionists, nearly lost the "pigs in the pen" contest but his opponent, a

Notre Dame man, broke under the tension of trying to put six "pigs in the pen" and ran screaming from the arena. In the "peas in the pod" routine, Otis Shorn had a narrow squeak when he dropped two jacks, but before they hit the floor, he inhaled strongly through his nose which caused the jacks to be sucked up long enough for Shorn to regain them.

Damp To Address Joint Convention In Boiler Room Of Tech Power Plant

Dr. Uman W. Damp, English department choreman, has announced that he is to speak to a joint meeting of the Lubbock Campfire Girls and the delegates to the South Plains convention of the Bartenders' Association of North America sometime next week in the boiler room of the college power plant. His subject is "English Teachers Confronting the Usual Problem." Damp is well-known as a speaker and is prominent in English speaking circles on the campus for his usual proficiency at hog calling.

When queried, he revealed that he has not always had this confident public manner. As he said, "Muh first speech did sort of throw me."

In making the announcement of his speech, he modestly said, "Aw shucks! It probably won't amount to nuthin' nohow. Heck, if yuh put this in thuh paper, somebody might come to muh speech and

In recounting some of the episodes of his early life on a small farm, Damp recounted the occasion of his first speaking experience. It was at a tea party of his Mother's that she asked him to entertain the small group.

Two hardened policemen fainted when Billie Greagh dropped a jack in his "sheep in the stall" speciality. Greagh has a long record as a jack expert. He has stated that he started playing the game five years ago when he developed a special stance which enabled him to bounce the ball once and then pick up 2061 jacks before the ball hit the ground again.

"Uman," she said (she always called him Uman because that was his name), "Uman, come on and show the girls how you can throw your neck out of joint."

Tommie Maniels, entered the contests but was disqualified when it was discovered that he was using a jet propelled ball.

With that he modestly declined. "Aw sun know how frustrated I get when folks drop in." He therewith climbed into the fireplace, hid his face up the chimney and began to scratch his back with a piece of fire wood.

After the guests had departed, he quickly recovered his marvelous presence of mind, crawled out of the fire place, and obligingly threw his neck out of joint for his proud mama.

Since this modest beginning, Damp's audiences have grown larger and larger until now he sometimes speaks to as many as four or five people at once without getting embarrassed.

Raiders Got Tough Competition Next Fall

An improving Red Raider football squad will face a double-tough schedule of teams next fall, the coaches' office announced sometime last week.

All games will be played on Sunday, in spite of the wishes of the athletic department. The decision for Sunday games came as a result of the recent firm stand of the college administration in demanding that football games be played on the Sabbath or not at all.

Whiteface High school will open the season against the Raiders on September 18. This game is expected by several to be the toughest of the coming year. Whiteface fields a squad which boasts some of the strongest backs in the state, but their fronts are said to be pretty weak.

North Dakota Institute for the Lame, Hall, and Blind at Kidney Trouble, N. D., occupies the next slot on the Raiders' calendar. NDILHB will meet the Redmen on September 25 at Weeping Willow, S.D. Here the Raiders are expected to meet their toughest competition of the year. NDILHB fields a strong team boasting some rapid runners.

For their next four games, the Techs take a South Seas tour. On October 2, Tech plays Pago Pago Polytechnic and then journeys a week later to New Zealand for a match with Auckland Kangaroos.

Coming next is a game with West Samoa Teachers college. The concluding tussle of the Pacific tour will be the engagement with Young Ladies' Seminary of Bali.

Raiders Drop Long Handles To Win 2-0

Before a roaring capacity house of 33, Tech's Red Raiders smashed through to a 2-0 victory over the University Long Handles in the gym last night.

The win marked Tech's first victory of the season against 27 defeats and indicated that the unused power and skill of the Raiders is at last coming to the fore. Tech has one more game on its schedule—the tussle tomorrow night with the Cowpunchers of Hardly-Persimmons in Abilene.

Brilliant defensive play highlighted the hard-fought battle. Particularly brilliant for the Raiders was Jarvis Zartop, who scored no points in 45 attempts and missed 18 free throws.

Another brilliant performer for Tech was Thon Stove, the rangy centerpiece whose work this season has been nothing short of brilliant. Flashing about the court, in and out of the ranks of the Handles, Stove put on a dazzling exhibition, tossing ball after ball at the basket and hitting it never.

Also brilliant was Simpkins Still, top-notch scorer who has chalked up a total of 4 points in Tech's 28-game season.

Last night's duel opened explosively as Zartop seized the ball immediately after the jump and raced with it to the north basket. He crashed into the padded wall and missed the shot completely.

Near the end of the first half, Stove grabbed the ball and dribbled it near the home basket, losing it at once to a Handlebar.

Tech's single tally came late in the second half when Stove tossed the ball from center court in an effort to keep it from the hands of the Handles. The ball bounced off the boards and sank into the basket, causing an uproar from the astonished crowd.

On October 16, the Raiders tackle Slippery Rock Orphans Home, Slippery Rock, O., and then turn southward to Texas for a game with the stout-hearted men of Buffalo Lakes Eleemosynary institute.

This game is expected to provide the toughest competition of the year, said coaches.

Next on the Raiders' schedule is the duel with the Experiment and Research school at Aggie Grove, Tex., a spot little-known to most students of Tech.

Last game will be played against the Tigers of Littlefield university, which will have a team that is expected to give the Raiders their toughest competition of the year.

All games this season are to be played away from home, it will be noticed. Athletic officials said that the schedule was arranged in this manner in order that students desiring to study on Saturday afternoons would not be attracted by the lure of sports being played near them.

Student: "The sacrament."

Chemistry, Physics Classes Changed

Yesterday, after long consideration, Dr. A. Gee Oburger, head of the chemistry department, and Dr. See See Schniff, head of the physics department, announced they are planning to initiate a new program in the chemistry and physics departments. This entirely different program is intended to brighten up dull laboratory courses and to make the spring semester less strenuous.

"I can't bear to see the students pulling their hair over a course when the birds are singing and the flowers are budding," said appeared in the last issue of the Boreador. Kindly notice her expression of emotional de-fraction at the return of her supporting players. The play was a crying success after all characters were located. (Photo by Long Gone).

Doctor Oburger.

He explained that after discussing the matter with numerous students, the Bored of Detectors, and Tech's president, Dr. Grave C. Diggins, he has come to the conclusion that Chemistry 220 (sometimes known as qualitative analysis) must go.

Chemistry 220 has been a thorn in the students' sides for many years, said Doctor Oburger. In order to remove this thorn, the chemistry department urges all miserable souls who are registered for this course to drop it immediately before spring completely envelops the campus.

"I hope my decision doesn't affect the enrollment in physics," announced Doctor Schniff.

In visiting various physics labs during the last week, he said that he had observed many of the boys gazing out of the windows and panting. Schniff said he believes the disinterest that students are showing in physics is caused by the warm weather.

Vets To Receive Big Increase To Aid In Avoiding Dementia

By TEE DEE BROWN
Cuspidor Staff Writer

Veterans will receive an increase in their subsistence checks, effective as of April 1, H. A. Handerson, veterans coordinator announced today. Married veterans will receive $150 and single veterans $250 per month under the new pay book, according to an announcement received from the regional office.

Proceedings of Senator Roosters investigating committee, which has been looking into the needs of the veteran, has been kept in secrecy because the committee saw no need to raise the hopes of the veteran in regard to getting more pay until some official decision was made. But after several months of research and investigation, Rooster found that the veteran does need considerably more pay. Congress graciously appropriated the extra 25 billion dollars that was necessary for this increase.

Need For Money

Rooster said that students need more money in order to "kowtow" to people who are able to give them the greatest grade-point returns.

It costs the single man more for gifts lights and sweet music than it does for the married man to stay home with the wife and kids, the committee learned. So the investigators suggested that the bill allow the single veterans more money. Congress thought that this was one of the greatest strides forward toward rehabilitating the single veteran that had been made since the advent of the psychiatrist.

Reportorial Survey

To determine whether it is entirely fair to allow the single veteran $100 more per month than the married veteran receives, your reporter has, from a completely objective standpoint, done a little investigating.

In Lubbock, a person may rent a fastidiously modern shack or rather house, with two unusually spacious 5x6 rooms for a mere $75 per month. These houses are large enough for any size family; the only complaint that could possibly be offered is that one sometimes has a minute inconvenience of sharing the bath with only five other families. With the $75 remaining after paying house rent, the family man can purchase 90 cans of pork n' beans and 105 cans of top grade pressed meat, which in your reporter's estimation is enough to feed a family for 30 days, and there will still be enough money left to attend away my time at Tech for peanuts and decided to hit the big time. It's all Flint's fault. I told him we should have abandoned the car and swam the river like a wet-back in reverse!

"Yes, Laredo was our Water Lou," admitted the one time president of all the students. "But now I'm tired . . . tired and ready to pay the penalty. I want to pay my debt to society as soon as possible. Hanging is too good for me."

The beautiful Miss Lark was not so contrite. As officers claimed on the handcuffs, she merely glared and shook out her long blonde hair in a defiant dramatic gesture.

She later admitted that continued reading of the Student Council minutes had probably unbinged her mind and dulled her sense of right from wrong. Then she relaxed into a sullen silence and has not spoke since.

Couple In Laredo Jail

The couple have been incarcerated in the Laredo jail. They will be returned to Lubbock for trial as soon as the Tech rodeo sheriffs and their deputies can escort them here.

When asked for comment on the disgrace to the council, George Haymouth, vice-president, opined: "My only fear of this loathsome affair is that it will establish a precedent. That is something we have earnestly striven not to do all year long. Set a precedent, that is."

Single Man's Problem

Look now, the single man is another problem: having no wife and no children, he has no one to receive his devotion when he returns home after a rough day at the college, he has no shoulder to cry upon when he has made a 25 on a physics test, he has no one to take pride in not even himself. This is a serious, unsound psychological condition. This is a menace to society!! He must have something to divert his attention from himself: if not, he soon suffers from schizophrenia or dementia praecox which is characterized by great apathy or indifference to the environment, and some degree of emotional disintegration.

The sufferer from this psychosis is typically withdrawn and plays little attention to other people, not even to his instructors. Psychologists say that sometimes this apathy takes the form of silent seclusiveness and a loss of all interests including study.

Diversions

Unlike the family man, the single man has no loved ones around him; he doesn't hear the patter of little feet on the Big-slow carpet; he can't hear a tiny tot whimper, "Daddy, when is Mommy coming home?" Now, this $250 a month will allow the single man some diversions; $60 a month will pay room and board. With the remaining $190 he can go to Amarillo every week-end. If he can't find diversions there, he needs a psychiatrist quick.

Well that is the scoop on the pay boost, but listen, every one should sign the petition that is being passed around. This petition is to make the increased pay bill retroactive as of last September.

Tech Gymnasium Burns To Ground

Texas Tech's elaborate, expensive gymnasium burned to the ground at 2:07 a.m. this morning. The loss is estimated to be between $235 and $239. Exact cause of the fire is unknown, but certain officials stated that approximately 18 boys were seen pouring gasoline in different sections of the building at about 1:49 a.m. The rumor is that the fire-bugs are ex-students who had originally planned to use the gym as the traditional bonfire at Homecoming celebration, but were delayed in Amarillo and thus arrived a few months late.

The ping pong room was destroyed, and officials state that equipment in the gymnastics room was practically all ruined. One athlete stated that the bar bells were completely melted out of proportion. The cocktail lounge is believed to have suffered no damage.

Dr. Dilly Wavis, chairman of the Athletes' council, states that the University of Texas has donated $3,000,000 for the purpose of building a new gym. Construction is expected to get underway by April 15. The Tech architectural department holds the contract according to unofficial information from that department, the new building will be completed by April 19.

Slot Machines Set For Installation In Engr. Building

Super-bell slot machines will be installed in the Engineering building tomorrow. Mathew Myopic, secretary-treasurer of Alpha Gamma Lambda, county honorary fraternity of theatre ushers.

"We have long planned this wholesome recreational facility for the men who work, sweat and sacrifice to get a college degree. No more will they be forced into cut-throat poker games in the dorms in order to keep body and soul together," said Myopic.

Clever manipulation of the funds of Zeta Psi Zeta, city sorority of popcorn concession managers, of which Myopic is treasurer also, enabled him to purchase the machines "out of my own pocket," as he put it.

"You might tell the people that I'm losing on the deal," he chuckled modestly.

Myopic has been in for quite a bit of light-hearted ridicule since his still in the ladies' powder room blew up and killed three men who had gained entrance by claiming to be electricians. They were later discovered to have been spies from Hardy-Persimmons college in Abilene who were sent to check on the rumor that Tech's football team plans to use helium in the balls next season to bolster the Raider aerial offensive sparked by "Rifle Arm" Geekus, star letterman from Dismal Seepage, Ia.

He, Myopic, plans to offer fard, fantan and double canfield to students, of engineering only, in the near, or distant, future, if something of a disturbing nature does not happen to his, Myopic's, plans for the game room, or casino, as he, Myopic, calls the dimly-lit basement, or cellar, which has lately, considering the time, figured in several vice raids by local police.

Not to be outdone in generosity, grateful students have collected a large amount of money to buy him a bullet-proof smoking jacket.

Tech Made Separate Municipality; City Wets Now Confident Of Win

Texas Tech has become a separate municipality, it was revealed early this morning by the city council.

The move to segregate the college from the city of Lubbock originated from an organization closely akin to the Pyramid club. This organization, composed of Lubbock "wets", moved swiftly in its campaign to isolate Tech from the city. The "drys" at Tech have been instrumental in preventing Lubbock from going wet in 185 elections.

"With 6,000 avid Tech 'drys' unable to vote we figure we can carry the forthcoming election with no trouble at all," said one "wet" leader, as he gently swayed on his beer box pedestal and sipped grain alcohol.

Several hundred Tech students dressed in red and black uniforms began picketing in eight-hour shifts slightly west of College avenue early this morning after news of the segregation had been received on the campus.

Acting as tattletale for the group Franklin Prant, useless manager of the Boreador, wept large round tears as he explained: "This move stifles private enterprise on the campus. Poor students working their way through Tech by making home brew in the dormitories will be left without a source of income."

Miss Bozelle Praddock, director of institutions, expressed joy when she heard the news. She declared that concoctions mixed by the students are eating holes in the floors of the residence halls.

As a challenge to Tech students to accept the defeat bravely, Dean Maggie W. Wobble, matroness of females, sang, "Don't Powder Your Face with Moonshine," while standing in the west belly of the Administration building. She was accompanied by the clanging of chimes and of southerly puffs of hot air blowing through the mason-

nry. "Worse has happened in California, you know," she told an indifferent El Cuspidor reporter.

When this paper went to press, indications were that a student body convocation would be held early tomorrow at Ignorant Ridge if enough Tech residents have not withdrawn from college.

Easter Yegg Hunt Planned By Aggies

Students have been selected by the poultry department to represent Texas Tech at the Intercollegiate Easter egg hunting contest to be held in Oklahoma City April 17. H. Mattyouse, associate professor of the poultry department, said yesterday.

Practice workouts have been going on every evening the past week in Aggie grove. Alligator eggs, spider eggs, snake eggs, glass eggs, as well as the traditional Easter egg, are being used in the practice.

At present it is difficult to say who may be the quickest egg finder, but the cleverest devices have been used to deceive the team. Eggs have been placed in trees, behind shrubs, and under the ground so as to prepare the team for any eventualty. Turtle eggs, recommended by the home economics division, are being consumed in order to condition the team for the ordeal. Contrary Gurgleson, who trained last year's Easter egg hunters, will be coach again this year.

The prize for the winning team this year will be a case of bubble gum which will be used to throw a "blow out."
