One of the most heard "gripes" on the campus is the complaint about the poor quality of food served in the dormitories. The Toreador commends the action of 203 dormitory residents who last week took the matter to proper authorities in presenting a petition to the president.

Stating that present "quantity and palatability (of dorm food) have become so low as to render it almost inedible," the students said they believed that the situation "can and should be changed."

President Wiggins, who will be off the campus until May 1, was not available for comment, but the group reported that the president would "look into the situation and see if he couldn't have conditions improved."

Several formal complaints concerning dorm food have been registered during the past two years. In one instance, The Toreador interviewed several hundred students, the majority of whom felt food quality should be improved. A Student council investigation of the situation was conducted early this year.

Apparently, however, past attempts at improving dorm food have been unsuccessful, as the "gripes" have continued. This time the formal petition, we believe, will get results.

Council Establishes Committee To Investigate College Policy

By PAT JOHNSON
Toreador Associate Editor

The proposed investigation by the Student council of the college's policy on class absences looks like a good thing from here. Students and faculty members alike have been long confused on the number of cuts allowed upper and lower classmen without punishment.

Rumor had it at one time that juniors and seniors were allowed unlimited absences as long as grades were kept up to par. As it now stands, no one knows how many times he may cut without fear of a negative hour.

A mere investigation, then explanation of the policy to the student body will not be enough. The inquiring group should then turn to the students to see if they believe the rulings are fair.

As has been said, the investigation looks like a good thing—that is, if something constructive grows out of the findings and the group doesn't become "just another council committee."

A random sampling of Techsans has found that the majority cheats or has cheated frequently on examinations.

From reading the editorial pages of exchange papers we find Tech is not the only school faced with this problem. In fact, in many of the schools the situation has reached such a point that special committees have been set up to examine examination systems and ways and means to control the amount of dishonest grade-getting.

A special committee at the University of Wisconsin recently completed such an investigation and found glaring weaknesses in that school's examination system.

The group also made some recommendations to reduce dishonesty which we pass on for what they are worth:

1. Examinations that are representative of the objectives and subject matter covered in the courses.
2. Definite dishonesty - punishment codes published before exams.
3. Shorter exams and an increased number of days for examination period.
4. The essay type of exam or types requiring each student to formulate his own idea.
5. More care in seeing that students cannot see textbooks and reference material during exams.
6. Passing out two sets of exams alternately, or presenting the same questions in different orders on exam papers.
7. Supplying all writing materials except pencils to students at the time of examinations.
8. Oral exams wherever possible.

Most of these suggestions seem rather juvenile for college-age men and women.

The Toreador would like to bow its head and apologize to 22 physics majors who worked on their department's section of the engineering show.

Although small, this department had 35 exhibits in the show—a commendable record. Therefore, we would like to beg forgiveness for neglecting to mention the physics displays in write-ups about the Engineering show.

Western Days Slated At Tech for May 1-3

By JOHN NORCROSS
Toreador Editor

Dig out that cowboy outfit. Western costumes will be in order for Tech's annual Western Days to be staged on the campus May 1 through 3.

Sponsored by the Tech Rodeo association and the Block and Braid club, Western Days will be held in conjunction with the annual National Intercollegiate Rodeo. Four shows will be presented, one each on Thursday and Friday nights and two on Saturday.

This will be the third annual National Intercollegiate Rodeo to be staged on the campus. All performances will be held in Jones stadium. According to officials of the show, this year's rodeo will be the biggest ever. Numerous prizes will be given in all types of rodeo competition, which will include bareback and saddle bronc riding, bull-dogging, calf roping, bull riding and ribbon roping for the cowboys. Cowgirls will enter barrel racing and goat tying contests.

Goat tying competition should prove interesting, if we correctly remember the traits of that animal. The winning cowgirl in this division will probably well earn the gold trophy to be awarded.

Politics are seldom thought of in connection with rodeos, but fans this season will watch the leading contender for United States senator from Texas Price Daniel as he leads the annual parade from downtown Lubbock to the stadium. Daniel, who is at present Texas attorney general, has been named guest of honor.

Rodeo competition should be keen, since thirty colleges in the National Intercollegiate Rodeo association have been invited to participate.

Highlighting the first-night performance of the rodeo will be the presentation of the rodeo queen by Daniel. Following the final show on Saturday night will be an all-college dance in the Tech gymnasium.

For those who like black coffee early in the morning the annual chuck wagon breakfast at 6:30 a. m. Thursday will be of interest. Late comers will probably be able to get their cup of java, too, since it will be mixed by the gallon.

Rodeo officials will face the usual problem of drinking among the audience. It seems some persons can't enjoy themselves without a bottle. While these individuals are in a minority, they are an annoyance to other fans who paid the same admission and want to watch activities in the arena.

In order to minimize unruly conduct in the stands, police officers will be stationed in the crowd with authority to oust any person who refuses to respect the right of others to enjoy the performance without distraction.

About The Campuses

Baylor university recently adopted Saturday night as recreation night on the campus. Students may see a movie or skate for 10c, or bowl and play ping pong free without leaving the Union building. Hot dogs, coffee, cakes and cokes are served and the lounges are open for table games.

While the national telephone strike was in full swing last week, students from Stanford university in California picketed the Berkeley telephone building with signs and posters. They were protesting the action of other university students who had served on switchboards during the current strike.

Residents of a boys' dorm at Texas College of Arts and Industries recently decided to redecorate their rooms by repainting them—much to the disapproval of the college president. They had wanted to make improvements rather than play pranks, but they were throttled just the same.

Students from Colorado School of Mines signed petitions last week to change the college's system of grading. Instead of continuing with the letter setup, the miners seem to want to change to the expression of grades to percentages.

ers, or anyone interested in learning the game. Instruction in the "game of kings" will be conducted at 7:30 p. m. on Mondays and Thursdays in the Rec hall beginning April 28.

Instructors will be Dr. A. L. Strout and Dr. R. S. Underwood, faculty members who are both experts at the game.

Tech architects will don costumes from all periods of history Saturday when they attend the annual Beaux Arts ball, sponsored by the Gargoyles society. Theme for the high style masquerade will be "Mad Night in the Museum." Last year the architects played the role of visitors from neighboring planets, when the ball featured a "Satire on Saturn" theme.

Survey Shows 15 of 20 Students Interviewed Admit They Cheat

By DOROTHY THOMPSON
Toreador Society Editor

Do you cheat on tests? If so, why do you cheat?

Such questions as these were asked 20 Tech students by way of a research recently conducted on the reasons for cheating among Tech students.

Of the Techs interviewed, 15 admitted cheating either steadily or occasionally, while the remaining five denied ever having cheated.

Reasons for Cheating

Reasons for cheating were many and varied. Most often given as the causes were poor instruction and preparation of the students on the part of the professor and poorly constructed quizzes. These quizzes were said to be unfair because they were so made that only a minority of the class would pass.

The cause for cheating mentioned secondly was the failure of students to see the importance of the course. If the student is getting low grades in a subject which is not in his major field, he is more prone to cheat than if the course were not an elective.

No Time for Study

Third highest reason was the fact that the average Techsian either does not have time to study for the exam or he procrastinates until there is no time left.

Following closely behind in reasons given was the opinion that the emphasis placed upon grades by the administration and Tech's general activity setup caused students to cheat. Those interviewed pointed out that every organization or office on the campus is open to a student only if he has the conquerable grade-point average.

Overemphasis on Grades

Overemphasis on grades on the part of companies employing students was given least often as a cause of cheating. In the intense competitive plan conducted, too much emphasis is placed upon the grade average rather than actual knowledge of the field, students seem to think.

When questioned as to whether they thought the honor system work as Tech, eight replied in the negative, 10 said yes and two held no opinion.

Opinions on Honor System

Reasons given by those who do not believe that the system would be successful on our campus were that if students are going to cheat they are going to cheat, regardless of an honor system; that Tech is incapable of achieving the close unity of students required for the system to be a success; and that our present faculty and program of exams would make it impossible for it to become effective.

What will happen to the dreams of many for an honor system at Tech remains to be seen; but according to our cross-section investigation, only half of the students give the program a chance of survival.

Math Profs To Represent Tech at State Conference

Three members of the Tech mathematics department will take part in the annual meeting of the Mathematical Association of America, Texas division, which will continue through Saturday in Commerce.

Dr. Emmett Hazlewood, head of the departments of mathematics and astronomy, will be moderator for a panel discussion on training and certification of mathematics teachers.

A paper entitled "Loca on the Four-Axes Plane" will be presented at the conference by Dr. R. S. Underwood, professor of mathematics. Third representative from Tech is Dr. Fred Sparks, professor of mathematics.

Other colleges to be represented at the convention include Rice, TCU and East Texas State.

Department Head Speaks At Weed Control Meeting

Dr. A. W. Young, head of the plant industry department, was one of the principal speakers at the fifth annual Texas Weed Control Conference held Thursday and Friday at the Amarillo experiment station.

Prof. Young spoke on "Johnson Grass Control". Persons attending the conference viewed exhibits of dusting equipment, machinery materials and windbreak plantings.

Tech's Graduate Program Studied; Tulane Dean Addresses Faculty

Graduate work is "potentially the biggest pay-off in educational history," Dr. Roger P. McCutcheon, graduate dean of Tulane university, told members of the Tech faculty in a general faculty meeting in the Aggie auditorium Tuesday.

Creative research promoted by a good graduate program leads to great advancement in industry he asserted. An example given was the evolution of atomic energy from Einstein's theoretical equations.

Facilities Lagging Educational facilities in the South are lagging far behind those in the North, said Dr. McCutcheon. The "prestige schools" are still in the North and East, he said, comparing 2,000 doctorates granted in the North last year to 525 in the South.

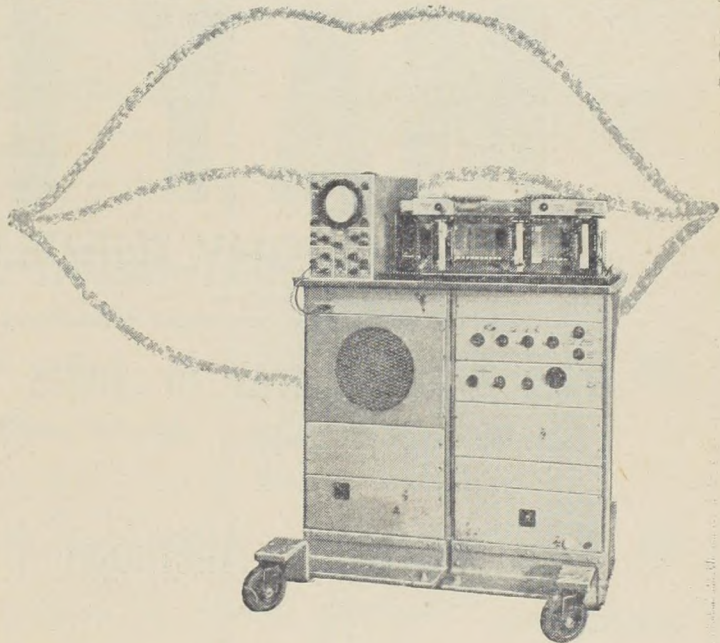

However, Dr. McCutcheon saw this condition of Southern education today as an "attractive opportunity" for educators. "If you raise your sights at Texas Tech, you will see vistas that will excite you. You have a magnificent future here."

Two-day Examination Dr. McCutcheon's speech followed a two-day examination of the college's graduate program. He is a past president of the Conference of Deans of Southern Graduate Schools and is now the southern representative of the Carnegie Foundation and a member of the Committee on Institutional Self-Evaluation of the Board of Southern Regional Education.

It will be the first time since 1937 that the state BSU has held a meeting at Tech. The two-day conference opens next Friday at the First Baptist church.

Speakers at the conference include Dr. Burford Nichols, a former missionary to China who was evicted when the Communists took over China.

Gridsters to Clash Tonight In Renewal of Squad Rivalry

Tech's annual intra-squad game will be reeled off tonight at 8 p.m. in Jones stadium.

The Raiders had their last rough drill Wednesday afternoon in preparation for the tilt. A light workout followed yesterday with no scrimmage and not much contact work.

The squads will be almost the same as they were in the 21 to 21 tie last week at Odessa, according to Coach DeWitt Weaver.

Wyatt Posey and Jack Mitchell will run the Whites again while Wade Walker and Babe Wood will lead the Reds.

Two players were injured during practice sessions this week and will not get to play.

Bobby Cavazos will be out with two broken ribs, and Paul Barrington received a neck injury in blocking drills with the extent of his injury unknown.

Admission to the contest will be $1 for adults and 50 cents for children.

Buddy Barron, Jim Turner Elected Captain, Alternate Captain By Squad

Tech's new football captains will start out working against each other.

Guard Buddy Barron of Temple elected captain this week, will lead the "Reds" in Friday night's intra-squad game here. Tech's new alternate captain, Halfback Jim Turner of Olney, will lead the "Whites" in the spring training game.

Both will be seniors next fall. Barron, who played for Temple High School, is a former all-stater. A letter winner also as a sophomore, Barron started every game last season at offensive right guard.

Turner, also a two-year letterman, led Tech scorers last fall with 78 points. He started offensively and played good enough defensive ball to make the Associated Press All-Border Conference defensive team.

Barron and Turner succeed Tackle Jerrell Price of Brownfield, captain, and Center Aubrey Phillips of Fort Fort, alternate captain.

Coaching Clinic To Be Held Here

The second annual Tech football coaching clinic is being held in conjunction with the intra-squad game Friday night.

On the program today were talks by the various Tech coaches on the Split-T formation along with a talk on scouting. Visiting coaches will see the intra-squad game tonight.

Saturday's schedule will include a discussion of Friday's game with movies of last year's games being shown. Saturday afternoon Tech players will be on the field to demonstrate all phases of Split-T offense.

Tech Takes On Three Top Foes

Three tough opponents were added to the 1952 Tech basketball schedule, Coach Polk Robison disclosed yesterday.

The teams are Oklahoma A&M, Tulsa and North Carolina State. Tech will play the Aggies in Stillwater, December 15, and North Carolina State in Raleigh, December 20.

A keen rivalry started last year when the Raiders upset the highly ranked N. C. State five 63 to 62. This brought about a football game between the Raiders and State in Lubbock next fall. Tech last played the Aggies in 1946, losing 39 to 33.

Raider Home Court to Be Site of ACC-Tech Matches

Tech's mile relay will consist of Hutcherson, Ben Wilson of Lubbock, Bill Killough of Edinburg, and Bobby Hawkins of Lamesa. In the distance medley will be John Weaver of De Leon, Wilson Killough, and Hawkins.

This will be the last competition for Tech before the Border Conference Meet at Tempe, Arizona, May 9 and 10, unless a dual meet is scheduled here next week.

It's Done With Committees

Techsans To Have Vital Jobs In Operation of Student Union

Sure, it's yours and for your use, but have you ever wondered who does the planning and management that makes the Recreation hall the pleasant place that it is? Or just how much of this planning and management is left to students?

Well, students may have a larger part in the functioning of the Rec hall than they think, and it's all done through a system of committees. Student committees suggest changes and recommend procedure which they believe will stimulate student use and enjoyment of the Rec hall. The governing board considers these suggestions and recommendations when formulating new policies.

Committee members are selected by the governing board from students who have voluntarily offered their services, and selects a chairman for each committee. At present, there are nine committees on which students may serve. Volunteers have first, second and third preferences as to the committees on which they will work.

The new Student Union building will be near completion by next fall and promises Tech campus life a big boost. Committee members will have important positions in the operating of the union.

Bigger, Better Committees

Plans are being made by Rec hall Director Dan Pursel and the governing board to organize bigger and better committees to insure that students get the most service possible from this new building. Here is a list of present Rec hall committees and an outline of the duties for each one:

The hospitality committee is responsible for the functioning of a larger committee of students who serve as hosts at all Rec hall functions. The objective is to increase participation in all activities. Present hospitality committee members are Shirley Schmidt, chairman; Cy Cook, Coffee Conner, Marjorie Stockton, Don Olsen, Buddy Suggs, Bryan Close, Patsy Nay, Coy Orr, Glen Terry, Carolyn Schaeffer, Bill Holmes, Lena Schmidt, Chloise Shofer and Jo Ann Schovajsa.

The dance committee may submit modifications to policies governing ballroom dances. It may suggest the type of music to be played and recommend orchestras. Pat Lindsay is chairman; Mary Ruth Shannon and Montie Wallace are committee members.

Square Dance Committee

The square dance committee recommends music for the square dances. It may make suggestions which will increase attendance of square dancers. Present members are Bill Brewer, Marjorie Scales, Patti Pipkin, Marvin Kitten and Patsie Scales, chairman.

The movie committee selects the movies to be shown through the Rec hall program and may offer suggestions as to how presentation of these movies may be made more popular. The movie committee is Joe Hastings, chairman; Nina Spearman, Donna Caldwell and Cecil Carter.

The games committee suggests games to be used in the Rec hall. It may arrange tournaments for these games and provide recognition for winners. Dick Mitchell is chairman; J. C. Chambers, Bob Parkinson, Reta McIlroy, Garnet Reeves and Don Hancock, committee members.

The socials and parties committee determines which receptions, parties or other special functions shall be included in the Rec hall program. Its members are Sandy Welton, Mary Jo Craig, Neal Chastain, Kathryn Phillips, John Brown, Wanda Stafford, Punk Whitaker, Scharlyn Daniell and Marvel Gibner, the chairman.

House Committee

The house committee recommends policies governing the use of the Rec hall and Green room. It may suggest equipment and facilities for both. Present members are Bill Burton, Robert Jacobson and Dudley Montgomery, the chairman.

The entertainment and lectures committee selects the entertainers and lecturers brought here through the Rec hall program and the lectures and discussions by students and faculty. Bill Parsley is chairman; Jo Simmons, Beverle Ross, Brian Webster and Alma Dozier are members.

The finance committee works in conjunction with all other committees. Its members are George Morris, chairman; Mary Francis Arledge and Joseph Hill.

Anyone desiring to work on one of these committees next fall should contact Dan Pursel at the Rec hall before the spring semester is ended.

Dr. Wiggins Will Preside Over Meeting of Presidents

Dr. D. M. Wiggins, Tech president, will preside over the meeting of the Council of Presidents to be held in Austin Monday.

Dr. Wiggins, chairman of the council, will be accompanied to Austin by Roy Wells, assistant to the president, and M. L. Pennington, comptroller.

The council is an organization of all the presidents of state colleges in Texas.

Information to Be Available To Women Planning Rush

Campus women desiring information about pre-school rush may sign a mailing list through May 25. The list is posted on the door of room 365 of Horn hall.

Rush week for the five women's social clubs will be held Sept. 7 through 13, a week before the opening of school.

Women signing the mailing list will receive a rush booklet which contains rush rules, rush week schedule, housing regulation and information about the women's organizations. Women living outside of Lubbock will be housed in Knapp hall during rushing.

"Signing of the list does not obligate women in any way," said Jo Ann Appleby, president of the Women's Inter-Club council. The information is sent to help the student decide if she wishes to participate in rush week activities.

Job Opportunities

The Placement office has announced the following job interview schedule for May and August prospective graduates:

Monday & Tuesday: Civil, Industrial and Mechanical engineering students will talk with Harry McDermott of the U.S. Department of the Interior about positions as surveying and cartographic engineers.

Wednesday: Business administration students will see J. E. Rook of S. H. Kress and company about training as store managers.

Wednesday & Thursday: Industrial, electrical and mechanical engineering majors interested in General Electric company will attend a general meeting at 9 p.m. Wednesday in the Engineering auditorium. Interviews will be held both days. Juniors interested in summer employment should attend the general meeting. Persons interested should report to the placement office immediately to schedule appointments. Mrs. Jean Jenkins, office director, said.

Two Tech Profs To Address Classes at Sunday School

Two Tech professors will speak at the First Christian church Sunday morning.

Fire Disrupts Life in Dorms

The wail of fire engines brought hundreds of persons to the scene of a fire which broke out in the basement of Horn and Knapp halls about 9:15 p.m. Tuesday night.

The fire left about 600 girls without lights for two days. The blaze was believed to have started in a fuse box in one of the dorms.

Girls were running everywhere wondering what had happened. Many of them sat calmly on the balcony of Horn hall viewing the spectacle.

Many of the girls enjoyed the "pioneering." They had a good excuse for being unprepared for lectures and quizzes. Besides the little studying that could be done, they got to eat in the boys' dorms, which wasn't so bad, they said.

Everything wasn't rosy however. They couldn't listen to radios or iron their clothes, much less see what they were doing. The greatest inconvenience was caused by the disruption of buzzer service.

As a solution to this problem, they moved their bridge games and maybe a little studying to the lounge and game room where they could hear the telephone and see the date arrive.
