

22nd Homecoming Begins

HIGHER AND HIGHER goes the pile of wood which will become the Homecoming bonfire tonight after a pep rally in the Gym. Under the supervision of the Saddle Tramps the pile has been guarded for the past three days.

Saddle Tramps, Signal Corps, Dorms Guard Campus Against Pre-lit Bonfire

By DUANE HOWELL
Toreador Staff Writer

Enthusiasm shown at the pep rally tonight may be credited to the school spirit of Tech students. The fact that there was a bonfire to light is very likely due to the Saddle Tramps. Lt. Bill Bozek and his Signal Corpsmen, and a great number of residents of men's dorms.

Some weeks ago rumors and rumors of rumors were heard, to the effect that a certain college intended to have a pep rally of its own. This was mighty fine, except that this college's student body intended to use Tech's bonfire to throw a little light on their enthusiasm. This was to be considered . . . uh . . . retaliation for former visits from Tech students and former pre-lit bonfires.

"Walkie Talks" Used
Lt. Bozek and a platoon of 30 or more cadets were the Wednesday guardians, with dorm residents taking over Thursday night. A headquarters composed of a few men and a large radio set was established in X8. Then "handy talks" were placed in strategic positions around the immediate area of the bonfire. "Walkie talks," with longer range than their "handy" brothers, were situated so that they could cover the immediate entrances to the campus and a few strategic side streets.

Finally, to be sure that Techs were warned in plenty of time, large sets were placed in student cars and given a patrol beat. These "radio cars" ranged as far as 10 miles outside of Lubbock. Their job was to alert the sets nearer the campus, indicating how many enemy "troops and vehicles" were approaching the campus.

All roving and outside sets were in contact with general headquarters in X8. In addition to these, sets were manned in men's dorms.

The complete set-up required radios, volunteers from the Signal Corps and men's dorms, and many sleepless hours. The entire safeguarding set up was under auspices of the Saddle Tramps.

Forum to Discuss Presidential Issue

"Adlai or Ike?" will be topic of discussion at a campus-wide forum at 8 p.m. Monday, in the Aggie Auditorium. The discussion is sponsored by the Tech Forensic Union.

Mrs. William G. Dings, Lubbock clubwoman, and E. R. Heineman, mathematics professor, will be the major speakers of the evening. Ten-minute speeches by Mrs. Dings and Prof. Heineman will be supplemented by five-minute speeches by two Tech students, Max Preston, Ralls junior, and Glen Cary, Brownfield freshman. Mrs. Dings and Preston will speak for Stevenson, Prof. Heineman and Cary for Eisenhower.

Following the four initial speeches, Mrs. Dings and Prof. Heineman will be allowed five minutes each in rebuttal.

The discussion will be opened by Miss Thelmaeane Hutchins, Ysleta senior, who is president of the Tech Forensic Union and chairman of the discussion. Miss Hutchins will introduce President E. N. Jones, who will give the opening talk.

"The forum will be completed with a discussion period open to audience participation," Miss Hutchins says. "Members of the audience may ask questions of the panel members, or venture opinions themselves," she adds.

TOREADOR WEDNESDAY
Next issue of THE TOREADOR will be distributed Wednesday. No paper will be published Friday because so many students will be out of town at the North Texas State game.

Winners Named In Design Contest

Tech's local Featherlite Corporation architectural drawing contest was held this past week with Ben Wilson, senior from Lubbock, winning the $150 cash award for first prize.

All entries had a common problem, the designing of a bus station.

Other winners were Vernon Kim, Honolulu, T. H., $100; Geraldine Kirkwood, Amarillo, $75; Terrence Doane, Clayton, N. M., $50; and Charles Nolan, Lubbock, $25.

Winners, accompanied by three other Techsians, Victorine Proband of San Angelo, John Clayton and Evelyn Rorex of Lubbock, are now in El Paso for the final judging.

Featherlite Corporation donates $400 to five Texas schools for this type of contest. After local judging the schools gather in El Paso for final judging and selection of the state winner. Other schools competing are Rice Institute, Texas A&M, Texas University and the University of Houston. Winner of this contest will receive a $500 grand prize at a banquet in El Paso tonight.

The El Paso contest is part of the annual meeting of the Texas Society of Architects, says F. A. Kleinschmidt, head of the department of architecture and allied arts. Mr. Kleinschmidt and Prof. W. L. Bradshaw are with the group.

Mr. Kleinschmidt will appear before the contest jury and give the local committee's criticism of Tech's drawings. Members of the local judging team were: James E. Atcheson, Atmar L. Atkinson, Herbert Brasher, and H. G. Sprague, all Lubbock architects; and Mr. Kleinschmidt.

Weekend Activities to Reunite Alumni; Parade, Luncheon, Football Game Set

Class reunions and dedication of the Student Union Building began the weekend activities for Homecoming exes.

Reunions are slated for tonight at 8:15 and 9:30. The dedication of the Student Union and laying of the cornerstone was held at 3:30 this afternoon. (See story below.)

Following the parade the fifth annual luncheon for exes will be sponsored by Furr Food Stores Inc. and Texas, New Mexico & Oklahoma Bus Co. All exes are to meet at the Gymnasium at 12:15.

Highlight of the day will be the game with the University of Houston at 2:30 p.m. tomorrow in Jones Stadium.

Immediately following the game, receptions will be given by some clubs. For a complete list of these, see the Homecoming Calendar in the next column.

At 9 p.m. in the Gym, KFYO and the Avalanche-Journal will sponsor a dance for all Tech students and exes. Tickets may be purchased at the door.

SUB Dedication Slated For Today

Tech's new Student Union Building was dedicated and the cornerstone laid in ceremonies held at 3:30 p.m. today.

The Tech Band and Choir opened the program with a Bach chorale, "Now Let Every Tongue Adore Thee."

James G. Allen, chairman of the dedication committee, introduced several officials. Among these were D. M. McElroy, retiring executive secretary of the Ex-Students Association, which contributed over $25,000 to the SUB fund; Atmar Atkinson, member of the firm which designed the building; Charles C. Thompson, member of the Board of Directors from Colorado City; Dr. D. M. Wiggins, Tech's fifth president; Dr. E. N. Jones, present president; and Harold Brannan, president of the Student Association.

The invocation was given by Patsie Seales, member of the executive committee of the Student Religious Council.

"Approximately $6500 has been given to the SUB fund from money accumulated by the Student Association over a number of years," Brannan announced. This money has built up from Student Association activities such as the Varsity Show.

CLASSES DISMISSED

Classes will be dismissed at 10 a.m. tomorrow morning, so Tech students may attend the Homecoming parade, says Dr. E. N. Jones, president.

The 11 o'clock classes will be dismissed, also.

Tech Ex Finds The Past Within Museum Portals

A Tech ex is overwhelmed with nostalgia from the moment he enters the campus portals until he takes a lingering look back on his way out the esplanade that joins Broadway and the busy commercial life of the outside world.

How often we wonder, does the ex pause, enter a quiet sanctuary and ponder his relationship with long ago, and look forward into the future? Such an ex did that very thing one day, and came out feeling better than he had when he entered.

Early that Homecoming Saturday our ex dropped his wife and kids off at her club gathering in a downtown hotel. He slowly drove down Broadway, and glided to the red light in front of the Museum.

He's Been There Before
The Museum! Gosh, he pondered, how long has it been since I've been there? He remembered his last visit. It was a fleeting visit, merely to clear a course number or something; not a real tour. That had happened too often . . . he had time now, so he parked the car and entered.

Change greeted our ex. The walls seemed to have mellowed and left an air of dignity to the interior, a charm that all museums acquire as years go by.

He sat in the auditorium, alone with the vast picture of the Indian migration in front of him, and surrounded by rows of empty chairs.

All minds wander in moments of peace and solitude and Mr. Ex began to take stock of the situation. Mentally pondering, he saw a splash of light, perhaps sunlight, or perhaps, just perhaps, of Coronado's flashing lance.

But that's silly, he thought. Me a grown man with responsibilities, imagining things like that! Funny enough though, it was fun. Why awaken himself now? He tried to imagine the Conquistadors proud, haughty carriers of the Faith.

He's Part of History, Too
Suddenly he found that he, too, was a frontier-maker, cutting an edge of advanced civilization, as Coronado, and De Vaca, and De Soto had done in an older civilization. He was, like them, merely doing the same thing in a later age. To himself, Mr. Ex was a light of devotion to man, to the age in which he was living, working, struggling.

Over these same miles of parched sun-drenched soil, Coronado, the Catholic fathers, and later Stephen F. Austin, Col. Charles Goodnight, and now himself, were and are this very day making things a little better and brighter for future Southwesterners and Americans yet unborn. Builders of the past had nothing on Mr. Ex, for they, too, were cogs in the wheel of humanity, destined to move a slight bit in the circle of life . . .

He looked up at the ceiling, and then down to his watch. Time to pick up the family, meet some old friends and attend the banquet, he thought. He got up slowly, and very slowly walked down the stairs and out the door into a serene reality, and a slightly better knowledge of it.

Tech Mining Engineers Hear Talk
By Dowell Executive on Tuesday

Pat Ramsey, district engineer for Dowell, Inc., of Midland, spoke Tuesday night to Tech members of American Institute of Mining and Metallurgical Engineers. Topic for Mr. Ramsey's speech was "Acidizing Techniques In The Oil Industry."

Refreshments were served after the meeting.

Baptist Students Attend Convention

Approximately 50 Texas Tech Baptist students left Wednesday by chartered bus for the 32nd State-Baptist Student Union General Convention at Dallas today through Sunday.

James Dent, Plainview senior and president of the convention, will convene the group today at Gaston Avenue Baptist Church. "Christ Must Reign," theme of the convention, will be the title of the keynote message by Dr. Chester E. Swor, lecturer of Jackson, Miss.

The convention will be highlighted by addresses and seminar discussions. Among the noted speakers for the conventions are the Rev. E. Hermond Westmoreland, pastor of the South Main Baptist Church, Houston, and Robert S. Denny of the Southwide Department of Student Work, Nashville, Tenn.

Music will be provided by the State BSU choir under the direction of Wayne Philpott of Baylor University. Ann Edwards, Lubbock senior, is a member of the choir.

Engineering Society Elects Jay Taylor New President

Jay Taylor, Fort Worth senior, was elected president of the Engineering Society Tuesday night. Other officers elected are: Archie McNamara, Fort Worth senior, vice president; Mary Anne Johnson, Dallas freshman, secretary; Don Benton, Amarillo senior, treasurer.

Home Economist Visits Texas Tech

Miss Louise Garrett, home economist for the Wheat Flour Institute, visited the campus Tuesday through Thursday, presenting talks and films to various groups of home economics students.

A film on food techniques and standards was given Tuesday afternoon. Wednesday, slides on food preparation were shown, a lecture on "Opportunities for the H. E. Graduate in Business" was given, and a film on the Leverton weight reduction study was presented to nurses.

Miss Garrett is the regional agent for her organization. She appears on radio and television programs in addition to speaking to college students in Texas, New Mexico, Arizona, Mississippi, Louisiana, Arkansas, and Oklahoma.

A Message for Americans

from

General Eisenhower

ONCE before I had the honor and duty of leading a crusade for human freedom and dignity—in Europe during World War II.

That Crusade was won not by Generals and Admirals but by the blood and effort of American G. I.'s and all the other forces fighting for freedom. Now in 1952 a different call to duty has honored me—as Republican nominee for President of the United States.

This time the effort is civilian—not military. But again, the crusade will be won not by me nor by the political leaders, but by everyday Americans who value their National heritage and are willing to go to the polls and vote to protect it.

I INVITE YOUR SUPPORT NOVEMBER 4TH.

Arch Lamb Speaks at Saddle Tramp Banquet

The first Saddle Tramp Homecoming banquet ever to be held at Tech had, very appropriately, as its speaker Tuesday evening, Arch Lamb, one of the original members of the organization. After being introduced by master of ceremonies Emmett Adair, Mr. Lamb gave his listeners a first-hand account of the conception and formation of the now traditional Saddle Tramps.

In the spring semester of 1936 a group of Mr. Lamb's friends ran him in the campus elections for cheerleader for the next fall football season. When he entered college he was under doctor's orders to rest and recuperate after an injury. The next day he was cheerleader for the fall of 1936.

Began With 10 Members

Mr. Lamb gathered a group of 10 students, and together they began plans for an organization to bolster school spirit. A group of approximately 40 men picked by the original 11 formed the first Saddle Tramp unit.

In bolstering and creating spirit for the athletic teams, the first Saddle Tramps had a problem in public relations between the citizens of Lubbock and the student body. Careful planning and hard work paid off in solving such problems as victory "snake dances" through local theaters, which were stopped.

An incident resulting in the near disbanding of the Saddle Tramps was related by Mr. Lamb. A group of Tramps, in a highly jubilant mood after a football victory and without previous permission, rang the victory bells with much vigor and for many hours. The ringing of the victory bells, which is traditional now, had not been done before and as it turned out was frowned upon by both townspeople and the college administration. Many words were spoken, but the Saddle Tramps remained.

Mr. Lamb concluded his speech Tuesday evening with encouragement and praise for today's Saddle Tramps and the work they are doing. Bill Bales, president of the organization, thanked Mr. Lamb for his speech and promised that the present and future Saddle Tramps will "strive to uphold the ideals and goals set up by the original members."

Prof. Monasch Will Talk To Mechanical Engineers

Members of the American Society of Mechanical Engineers will meet at 7:30 p.m. Monday. Prof. Alfred Monasch will speak on the topic, "N. A. Otto, The Traveling Salesman Who Gave the World the Internal Combustion Engine."

The meeting will be held in Room 1 of the East Engineering Building. There also will be a short business meeting.

Student Plays For Contralto

Miss Jenny Lynn Rucker, senior music major from Kermit, will never forget the first Lubbock Symphony concert of 1952, or to be more correct, Jenny will never forget the guest artist.

The Tech student is more than just a fan and admirer of Miss Lucile Cummings, nationally-famous contralto of opera and radio, who appeared with the Symphony Monday and Tuesday. In fact, it might be said that Miss Cummings is Jenny's fan.

While in Lubbock early this week, Miss Cummings was introduced to Jenny and heard her play the piano. Miss Cummings received Jenny's playing with enthusiasm and remarked on her ability. The opera star did not stop there, Jenny was advised to go to New York upon graduation next spring and continue her studies in music. Miss Cummings said she would personally aid Jenny in locating a teacher for advance work and help her find a job.

Sociology Club Selects President, Other Officers

Ellis Dunn, Channing senior, was elected president of the Sociology Club in a regular meeting Tuesday night.

Serving with Dunn will be: Gwen Williams, Lubbock sophomore, vice president; Bill Rogan, Lubbock sophomore, secretary-treasurer; Miss Mabel Smith, sociology instructor, and Frank Moore, assistant professor of sociology, co-sponsors.

TECH COED IN FINALS

Pat Ely, sophomore secretarial administration major from San Angelo, has been chosen as one of the 11 finalists in the Miss Wool contest sponsored by the Texas Sheep and Goat Raisers Association and Auxiliary. She was chosen from a group of Texas beauties by John Powers, famous New York modeling agent.

The 11 finalists will be brought to San Angelo Nov. 7 for preliminary judging and entertainment activities before the Texas Wool Fashion Revue, to be held in San Angelo Nov. 10.

We Have Spoken . . .

They all say it—or try to.

Giant universities print it in their polished, professional papers and small, obscure colleges run it in their more humble news sheets. Staff members of the papers brood over typewriters, searching their minds for a fresh, new way of saying it.

All the angles have been tried before, though; and nobody never finds an original way to say the thing. They keep on trying, however; because it is one of the most important and sincere comments that a campus newspaper gets a chance to make:

"Welcome Exes."

Thought for Tuesday . . .

Homecoming brings with it each year the occasion for the Annual Sermon on Drinking at the Football Game. This time, let's dispense with the hymn and the reading of texts from Prohibitionist headquarters, and merely add this thought, which is not aimed at the non-drinkers who will not constitute a drinking problem Saturday, anyway:

If you are in favor of Lubbock's admitting beer after the Tuesday election, remember that too many drunks in the stadium could influence many undecided voters to say "Dry."

Seen Through The Sand

BY ANN BRYAN Toreador Associate Editor

These are the days of howdies to exes and these homecomers are kings and queens for a day. We spread the plush carpets, the band plays inspiringly, and the Red Raiders will do their best to resemble the powerhouse teams that many of returning students remember from their college days.

The homecoming weekend is the time of celebration for former Tech students, but interested alumni groups work the year round, raising money to contribute to campus funds and general improvement of their campus.

An example is the money contributed to the Ex-students' Association which in turn gave $25,000 toward the construction of the Student Union Building. Alumni present at the dedication of that building this afternoon can rightfully feel possessive pride.

Progress is a word found often in the columns of this issue, but we believe it's still a good word. Its application to small things will likely be overshadowed by its use in describing the very obvious changes and improvements on the campus cleanliness. See the Backtalk column on this page.

This may be progression or retrogression, depending upon your viewpoint. We doubt that there are many exes who haven't heard of the highly-publicized coming of national fraternities to Tech.

Capitalizing on our columnist's rights, we will now get in a plug for one of our favorite hoped-for projects.

The advent of nationals will emphasize a need that has long been present here—an organization of Tech independents. Although principally a student affair, the organization of such a group could be boosted and advised by alumni interested in seeing progress in the social and governmental as well as physical and scholastic aspects of this campus.

A few advantages of such a group would be a stronger spirit of competition in student government affairs, more representative student government, more active participation in all campus activities, such as pep rallies, elections, and intramural sports, and a greater feeling of belonging and being a part of college life that will be held by more students.

We feel that our reasons for calling these things advantages can easily be seen, and we will not try to explain them here.

Progress again, also according to your viewpoint. Should the impending municipal election change the alcoholic status of Lubbock, our Double-T school will feel a great improvement.

Our reasons? Such a change will see the disappearance of campus bootleggers, as well as city variety, and drunkenness among students who feel they have to consume enough on one weekend to last until the next. Let's face it—a great many Tech students like to drink and see no harm in it.

This is our personal opinion. We would like to hear student reaction.

"It wasn't so much a question of how to get him, as where to keep him!"

Under the Breezeway

by Shirley Johnson, Toreador Editor

Homecoming this year again offers something to every Tech student and every returning alum.

For those interested in the material progression of Tech, there was the dedication of the Student Union.

For those interested in food, there is the lunch for the exes tomorrow.

For those interested in sports, there will be the game tomorrow afternoon.

For those interested in entertainment, there is the dance tomorrow night.

For those interested in sports, there will be the game tomorrow afternoon.

For those interested in entertainment, there is the dance tomorrow night.

For the average student, there are the classes dismissed tomorrow morning for the parade.

TO THE EXES: We hope you like what has been and is being done to the campus. We think good care has been taken of the school, just as you did when you were here. Welcome back.

Today being Halloween, everyone has been watching carefully for a hint of black cats and goblins. They should be out in full force tonight; maybe the bonfire will attract them.

All that's needed is a big black iron pot, with a witch's brew in it. Maybe someone could volunteer to furnish same.

All alums interested are invited to drop by the Journalism Building and talk. We'd be happy to have you.

Prediction has been made that in a year or so, the water sprinklers will be running the campus.

We know one boy who will be in complete agreement. Some sports publicity pictures were being made at the south end of the West Engineering Building. Two Techs were walking down the breezeway, passed the picture subjects, and, following a natural human impulse, turned back to see the faces of the posed students.

One walked into the sprinkler, the other missed it by inches.

Color has been added to the campus. Not only is the grass slowly turning brown, but the trees have now become completely yellow and brown. The ivy on the north side of the Library has added a flashy scarlet to the campus color scheme.

Maybe it has leftist tendencies.

Crowds at the morning pep rallies seemed to be good. Spirit was also good. We like the idea very much. Yells might have seemed a little louder in the Gym, but it could be that it was emphasized by the walls and ceiling. On the Circle, the yells had no sounding board. They still sounded good, though.

BACKTALK

Dear Miss Johnson:

It seems we are having a pleasantly large number of complimentary letters. If they are relegated to a file the boost they would otherwise give is completely lost.

Consequently, I am enclosing a copy of a letter received from Mr. William L. Gosdin, Superintendent of Grounds, which you may want to carry in the appropriate column of The Toreador.

May I suggest, should you add an editor's note, the line of thought that the campus of any college comes somewhat of a repository for beer cans, etc. which are distributed by night visitors to the campus. In other words, some but not all the responsibility for the morning accumulations is to be laid to our students. If you care to use this line of thought, of course, please put it in your own words.

Yours very truly,

E. N. JONES
President

Dear Dr. Jones:

May we take this opportunity to pass on to you a compliment to the Student Body of Texas Tech from the man on the campus who actually picks up the candy wrapper, the discarded cigarette package and the beer can.

It is common talk around the Care and Maintenance of Grounds Shop at odd times when the men gather, that there is an absence of beer cans and liquor bottles on the campus around the dormitories, stadium, and everywhere in general. This is a great improvement over the past years. We feel that this is a very deserving compliment for the students on the campus this year and would like to pass it on to you and the student.

We are often prone to criticize the student for parking on the lawn, reckless driving, and other mischievous stunts and some of these things are highly publicized, so we would like to pass on a little praise to them and to those who are doing such a fine job of supervision.

Very sincerely yours,
WILLIAM M. GOSDIN
Superintendent of Grounds

TECHnicalities

by Ralph Shelton, Toreador Associate Editor

Random impressions collected by means of typewriter, after rambling around the campus (and presented herewith to prevent boring both the writer and the reader with deep thinking on worthwhile topics).

SIGHTS AND SOUNDS — the lazy arch of water from a sprinkler and the sound of the droplets splashing down your coat collar... the gentle gurgle of water seeping into your shoes as you walk across a stretch of apparently dry grass... the slime-rung victory bells in the Ad Building tower, which we hope will be making music on Saturday night... the foreboding metal spikes on the stairway railing in front of the Science "Bldg." you'll hear more about them this winter, when those steps are sheathed in ice...

SMELLS AND TASTES — the aroma of Rec Hall coffee, which is better, by the way, than it was last year... the sensation of sand in the teeth when the wind comes sweeping down the plain... the heady scent of rich fertilizer which has considerably been piled close to the Library—what an involution to hours of study...
FEELING — in this case, the sensation of being a present part of the college on this Homecoming weekend when the past parts return for a second look.

The recorded music piped into the dormitory, chow halls that makes the institutional cooking taste a bit better—"Poisoned Love" with the vegetables and Nellie Lutcher with dessert... the men of the corps out-drilling on Thursday afternoon.

Color has been added to the campus. Not only is the grass slowly turning brown, but the trees have now become completely yellow and brown. The ivy on the north side of the Library has added a flashy scarlet to the campus color scheme.

Maybe it has leftist tendencies.

Crowds at the morning pep rallies seemed to be good. Spirit was also good. We like the idea very much. Yells might have seemed a little louder in the Gym, but it could be that it was emphasized by the walls and ceiling. On the Circle, the yells had no sounding board. They still sounded good, though.

Idea for Texas Tech Dates Back to 1896

Did you ever wonder just how Tech got its start and how it happened to be located in Lubbock? Well, here's the dope.

As early as 1896 the idea of an agricultural and mechanical college in West Texas was considered. However, many obstacles were met and many dreams were shattered before actual organization was ever started. It was not until Feb. 6, 1923, that the state senate passed a bill making the organization of Texas Tech become a reality.

The bill provided for the establishment of a Texas technological college "west of the 98th meridian and north of the 29th parallel." It further provided that $150,000 should be available for the purchase of the land site and $350,000 more would be provided the following year.

37 Applications for Tech

Bonds were voted, streets were paved and cities were cleaned up in their vigorous campaign for the school. After they found out the establishment was a certainty, West Texans organized their towns and filed application with the locating board showing the advantages of their particular locations. In all, there were 37 applications from West Texas and Panhandle towns. The three chief contenders were Snyder, Sweetwater, and Lubbock.

On the morning of Aug. 8, 1923, the locating board convened for the purpose of deciding on the site of the college. Board members had previously considered all applications and personally visited each town. In the afternoon the board's decision was announced: "We the members of the Locating Board . . . do, hereby, unanimously select and designate Lubbock in Lubbock County, Texas, as the official location of the Texas Technological College."

When the news of the decision reached Lubbock, the little town (then 6,000 population) began a noisy celebration that lasted far into the night. Then all settled down to the task of making Tech a great school.

Dr. Paul W. Horn was selected first president in November, 1923. The next year, on Armistice Day, the cornerstone of the college administration Building was laid with appropriate ceremonies by the Masons.

It was in September, 1926, that the dreams of West Texans finally became a reality. Legislative appropriations were made for 300 students; however, 1,043 students actually registered. This unexpected initial enrollment has been followed by an unprecedented growth which has brought current registration figures to well over 5,000.

Museum Will Be Busy Next Week

The calendar of activities and exhibits has been announced for the coming week by the Tech Museum.

At 4 p.m. Sunday, the Twilight Music Hour will be held in the Museum Auditorium. Featured will be Ina Schantz, tenor, in a program of solo cantatas and song cycles. He will be accompanied by Miss Mary Jeanne Van Appledorn. Also at 4 p.m. Sunday, there will be a tour of exhibits, with Mrs. French Pruitt acting as guide. "Tone Sketches" will start at 5 p.m. with the music of Respighi, "Fountains of Rome," and a painting by Seurat, "Fishing Fleet at Port-au-Bessin." The narrator will be Mrs. Asher Thompson.

The Junior Welfare League will hold a meeting in the Auditorium at 10 a.m. Tuesday. Guest speaker will be Dr. W. C. Holden, who will talk on "The History of Lubbock." Members' night is Thursday at 7 p.m. Highlight of the meeting is a preview of the new South Plains Gallery, Savoie Lottenville, director of the University of Oklahoma Press, will be guest speaker. The Children's Art Workshop will be held in the Historical Gallery at 8 p.m. Saturday.

Dormitories Participating Vigorously In Annual Homecoming Decoration Contest

Techsians are becoming more ingenious each year, or so it seems from plans for Homecoming decorations. For days, students have been working like beavers to make their dorm decorations the best on the campus. Judging of the dorms at 7 p.m. tonight will determine the winner of the trophy to be given by Alschuler's clothing store.

Knapp Hall presents a giant clock face with the hands at game time and the slogan "Time to beat the Cougars." Dolores Howell was chairman of the decorations committee. Helping her were Betty Busch, Jo Benesch, Marjorie Rogers, Linda MacEachin, Lois Evans and Janet Lloyd.

Cheerleaders are Motif
Horn Hall has an 18x20-foot card section with two girl cheerleaders and a Saddle Tramp in front of it. The cards form the state of Texas, with a double T to locate Lubbock. "Hi Alumni" appears across the top in red letters. Working on decorations were Betty Lewis, chairman of the committee, Joan MacAulay, Minnie Lee Thompson, Doris Cooper, Lettie O'Neal, Jean Stevenson and Beth Starnes.

Gordon Hall has constructed a large picture of a freshman's head with his mouth as the entrance to the dorm. "Howdy Exes" is the accompanying slogan. Roy Smith, Don Daniels, Fred Willis, Royce Cawthron, Tommy Morris, and Jim Davis worked on decorations.

Red letters four feet high and three feet wide, spelling "Beat the Cougars for the Exes" decorates the front of Bledsoe Hall. Working on decorations were Bill Philpott, Fred Currie, Fred and Carl Bruegel, Martin Line, Dale Maxwell and Rex Morgan.

"Here's to the Exes"
Sneed Hall has a 14x14-foot frame with "Here's to the Exes" in black letters on a red background. Large mums are in the corners. Two large champagne glasses with the number "29" on one and "43" on the other signify the classes that will hold their reunions in Sneed Hall. Working with Robert Jameson, chairman of the decorations committee, were Weindell Stiles, Tim Russell, Willie Dunham, and Herbert Reed.

West Hall has the least expensive decorations, costing less than $3, which was contributed by the Double T boys. The 1st, 2nd and 3rd floors of the west wing are blackened to form a background for red cellophane letters saying "Hello Double T Exes." Joel Mitchell and Jerry Julian were in charge of decorations.

Doak Hall Uses Matador
A Matador with his sword through a cougar and a football player kicking a ball decorate the front of Doak Hall. With this is the slogan "We like Adlai, Ike and Texas, but especially we like Exes." Working on decorations were Sterling Rogers, Jack Blackstock, Dick Burford, Bill Glover and Bill Lashier.

Drane Hall is not entering the contest since so few unmarried students are living there this semester.

BOBBY CLATTERBUCK, star Houston quarterback from San Angelo, will lead the Cougars attack against the Raiders tomorrow. Clatterbuck has completed 29 of 70 passes this season for 496 yards and three touchdowns.

Club Lists Needed For La Ventana

Clubs planning to have pages in La Ventana must give alphabetized lists of members to the yearbook office, J205, by 5 p.m. Monday, Nov. 7, says Dick Shoeky, organizations section director.

Also to be turned in are requests for the number of pages wanted and the kind of pictures to be used.

Pictures may be re-orders of class pictures, group shots, or special photographs.

If clubs do not have this information in by the deadline, pictures will not be in the annual, says Shoeky.

Deadline for juniors and seniors to have class pictures taken is 6 p.m. Nov. 8. The deadline will be extended.

Important Contests Slated In Intramural Football Play

There will be plenty of action and important games played in the intramural football schedule this weekend.

In MICC league Sunday the feature game will be between Kemas and Wranglers. Others will be College Club against Socii, Centaurs and Keys and Los Cams meeting Adelphi.

Monday in the dorm loop, Sneed plays Bledsoe 2nd N while Gordon meets Bledsoe 2nd & 3rd S. Tuesday in the independent league, BSU meets Wesley Wildcats while the Steers try the Ro Eds.

SPORTALK

By Bob Lovelace

The Tech exes will be watching with critical eye as the Raiders take on Houston tomorrow. Although everyone was pleased with the Tech showing against Baylor, it will probably take a victory over the ambitious Cougars to send the alumni home happy.

The contest will be the first afternoon game the Raiders have played this year. The University of Houston has been playing football only since 1946, and they have moved up rapidly in pigskin company. Last year they had their first winning season, winning 6 while losing 5. They defeated Dayton, 26 to 21, in the Salad Bowl.

Last year also marked another step in the rise of the Cougars. For it was then that they joined the Missouri Valley conference, which is considerably better company than they had been keeping in the Gulf Coast league.

The game should be one of the most colorful ever seen in Lubbock. The Raiders have been working hard all week sharpening up their offense, since the Houston team is known for their vaunted defense. . . . Houston will have the favorites tag placed on them when they arrive for the game. Tech has had two weeks to get ready for the contest, however, and should be ready. We think the Raiders will be ready and take the Cougars by 6 points. . . .

There should be a colorful half-time ceremony for this game. The band will be on hand to give its usual good performance.

TU Will Try Fifth Win in Homecoming Battle

Houston Favored Feature Game

The highly-rated University of Houston Cougars will furnish the main attraction for Tech's annual homecoming game slated for Jones Stadium tomorrow at 2:30. The Cougars will be seeking their fifth straight victory as they have won four since dropping their opener to Texas A & M.

The homecoming affair will be important to both schools. Tech is anxious to gain back some prestige and break their home game losing streak while Houston is hot and must face tough Mississippi and Baylor on consecutive Saturdays following the game tomorrow.

The Cougars play from a power-split-T and spread offense led by quarterback Bobby Clatter. Clatter, halfback S. M. Meeks, transfer from Texas and line-dicker Paul (Rock) Carr. Tech rivalry with Houston began last year with a 6 to 0 loss at Rice Stadium. The game was led with fumbles. Tech 10 and Houston 6. This game was the only one that the Raiders failed to score in.

Besides Clatter, players at will bear watching are tackle J. D. Kimmel, transfer from West Point, halfback S. M. Meeks, transfer from Texas and line-dicker Paul (Rock) Carr. Tech rivalry with Houston began last year with a 6 to 0 loss at Rice Stadium. The game was led with fumbles. Tech 10 and Houston 6. This game was the only one that the Raiders failed to score in.

The Raiders should be almost at full strength for the contest, although Jack Kirkpatrick and Paul Barrington will be sorely missed. Kirkpatrick is out due to a car wreck while Barrington dropped out of school last week. Houston is a member of the Missouri Valley conference and coached by Clyde Lee. The Cougars have beaten such formidable opponents this year as Arkansas, Oklahoma A & M, Tulsa and Tempe State. The 33 to 7 triumph of Tulsa was a big shock to the Southwest.

A near capacity crowd is expected for the contest.

JOHN MOUGHON, senior Raider halfback from Weatherford, will probably see plenty of action in the Homecoming game tomorrow. He will be used at safety and adding extra points.

championship. However, should they slip, Keys, Wranglers and Kemas are ready to take up the slack, as they all have just one defeat.

In the dorm league the standings are in a mess. Four teams have yet to meet defeat. Sneed and Doak lead the pack with four victories apiece while Drane follows close behind with three wins. Gordon rounds out the top four with two triumphs.

BSU has taken over the undisputed leadership of the independent league. They have won three games without defeat while the Ro Eds and Wesley Wildcats are tied for second with two victories and one loss. BSU and Wesley will tangle in the feature game of this league next week.

Previous Homecomings Show Bare Win Margin

Homecoming time is jinx time when it comes to football games, but not on the Tech campus, however. For the Red Raiders won't be able to throw much of a jinx at the University of Houston tomorrow afternoon.

In past homecoming attractions the Raiders have come out on the winning side in 14 encounters while trailing in 8 others. The Techs have usually picked a formidable opponent for their clashes for the exes, which might account for several of the losses.

With the exception of two or three games, Tech homecoming games have been fairly close when the final whistle blew.

The 1947 homecoming game was played against Hardin-Simmons, as the final game of the season with the Border conference championship hinging on the outcome. It was the first game played in Jones Stadium, and the underdog Raiders came from behind to spank the Cowboys, 14 to 6 before 20,000 roaring fans.

Many Raider supporters will remember the 1950 game when the Tulsa Golden Hurricane invaded Jones Stadium. Although the Raiders had lost 6 out of 7 games, the two teams were rated about even before the game. The stadium was filled to capacity, with the exes expecting the Raiders to get back into the victory column. But Tulsa buried the Raiders with an avalanche of touchdowns to the tune of 39 to 7.

Four of Tech's homecoming wins have been at the expense of Southwest conference opponents. Baylor was the victim in 1932 and 1946 while Texas Christian took the count in 42 and 45.

History of Jones Stadium Includes Fire, Enlargement

Jones Stadium has a past, a present and a future.

Twenty-five years ago Tech's athletic program had its start. The "young upstart Matadors" had had surprised the South Plains and the state of Texas by ending their first football season with a record of 6 wins, 2 ties, and 1 loss. The Board of Directors, as enthusiastic as the student body, acted accordingly, and the first Tech stadium (of a reasonable facsimile) was built.

Actually the structure that went up in the spring of 1928 was not a stadium, but it served the same purpose. Steel stands were erected to seat the relatively small but enthusiastic group of Tech supporters. These same steel stands can be found at the south end of the present football field. The bleachers were moved this summer from their original position on the practice field to their present site in order to accommodate the mounting crowds of Tech fans.

A Need Seen

Nineteen years after the erection of these first steel stands, the Board of Directors recognized the necessity for new facilities. In the spring of 1947, construction on our present stadium was well underway. The stadium was named for Dr. and Mrs. Clifford B. Jones. Dr. Jones is president emeritus.

On June 27, 1947, the new stadium was damaged by fire. The east side stands were destroyed by the blaze, and completion of the stadium was delayed for more than 60 days. The stadium was repaired and completed, however, and for the past five years, Tech-sans have crowded into Jones Stadium to watch the Red Raiders in football contests. The present stadium, with the added end-zone stands, seats approximately 18,000 persons.

Bright Future

As for the stadium's future, it's bright. On Aug. 9, 1952, with the sanction of the Board of Directors, an application for permission to enlarge Jones Stadium was filed with National Production Authority. The NPA considered the application and informed Tech officials that no permits were being granted at present because of the steel shortage. The application, however, was put in the NPA active file.

"The request for permission to build will be acted on in March," says M. L. Pennington, vice president and comptroller.

Plans for the stadium are to add a section on each corner of the present concrete structure. Each addition will hold 2,000 persons—making a total of 8,000 additional seats and a grand total of 26,000 seats for Tech fans in the future.

Techsans Hurrying Last Days of Preparing For Saturday Homecoming Invasion of Exes

Tech student coat-tails a all that have been visible during the last few days before Homecoming as the campus prepared for the extravagant annual affair.

Pledges had been shining the silver cups on display in the rotunda of the Ad Building, pom-poms were being made, and practically every student was working on floats, dorm decorations, banquets, breakfasts, or coffees.

All this bustling naturally brings nostalgic reminiscences to exes of "when they were in Tech." They recall when there was an abundance of slims caps on the campus; a huge pile of shoes in the freshman shoe race; and a mob at the Homecoming dance. Says one, "If a girl danced over six steps with one boy in those days, she was stuck."

Then the recollectors turn to the highly-touted Homecoming parade. This event has gained recognition all over the South Plains for its novel ideas and methods. There are varying opinions of which floats were the most outstanding, but several recall the "Graduation of War" theme in

'48, the Matador Song presented in '50, and several floats during the war, representing "Victory."

"Gone With the Wind"

Something to be proud of is the fact that little vandalism has taken place over the years. There have been several accidents, however, such as the year one of the float's decorations practically blew away. Accepting the catastrophe in good humor, the committee piloted the battered float down Broadway in the parade, bearing the sign, "Gone With The Wind."

In the unusual materials department, one float was a huge birthday cake. To make the frosting, cotton was glued to pasteboard layers, and a paint-gun spray was used to color it. To give a "for-instance" in the hard-work department, some committees have worked weeks at a time in making paper rosettes to cover an 8x16-foot float.

Little Houses Swapped

Difficulties have often arisen after completing the floats. One year a club had obtained an outhouse to use on its float. Not long before parade time, a member spied a better outhouse on top of the bonfire. The structures were exchanged. During the proceedings, the owner came along to claim his property. After many explanations he agreed to allow the club to use his outhouse (the float—if members would bring it back immediately after the parade).

A current problem for one float committee is how to get a girl to her place on top of the float which is much higher than ladder can reach.

"Flash! The problem has been solved by a little imagination at the consent of the Lubbock Fire Department to swing the poor girl up to her place of honor.
