Superman marries

In the end, Superman didn't marry Lois Lane. He married Marcella Encinas.

Actor Scott Cranford dressed in a full Superman costume to wed his bride in an outdoor ceremony during the Superman Festival in Metropolis, Ill.

"Every little girl has dreamed of a Superman of her own, and now I've got mine," Encinas said. She had only a small Superman emblem on her dress, but Wonder Woman was the matron of honor and Batman's sidekick, Robin, was the best man.

In all, about 400 people attended, along with a dog dressed in a cape.

Preservationists lose

A Miami, Fla., preservation group has not only lost its fight against demolition of a historic home; it also lost a piece of its own home.

For months, the Dade Heritage Trust had been combatting efforts to tear down the 102-year-old home of James Jackson, a prominent Miami physician. The home is located next door to the trust's headquarters.

Wreckers began razing Jackson's home and made a wrong turn with their bulldozer.

It smacked into the trust's headquarters, taking out a wooden porch column, a window and a dozen roof tiles.

"What sheer stupidity!" the trust's executive director screamed on seeing the damage.

LOCAL WEATHER

The National Weather Service forecast is for more of the same for several days — high temperatures reaching the mid-90s, morning lows in the mid-60s, and little chance for precipitation. Tuesday and Wednesday should be the coolest days, with a high temperature around 93. The skies should be relentlessly sunny, making for a sunburn danger in the extreme range.

Heritage Center may get items from south part of county

JOURNAL STAFF REPORT

Members of the Bailey County Historical Commission and other interested parties were scheduled to tour several historic buildings in southern Bailey County on Saturday with an eye toward their donation for display at the Heritage Center.

Vivian White, a member of the commission, told Bailey County Commissioners' Court last week that the commission is working with Sammie Simpson of the Maple area to secure the donations.

Among them is the old Virginia City Hotel, which has been serving as headquarters on the Maple Wilson Ranch, White said. She added that Ed Busey, a grandson of Wilson, has agreed to place the building at the Heritage Center. The hotel was the center of a land promotion that went bust in severe droughts from 1909 to 1912, according to a marker at the original site.

Other buildings being considered are the Stegall school and the ranch house and a bunkhouse from the Figure 4 Ranch.

The group also is working on an unrelated donation from the Springlake division of the XIT Ranch, White said.

Weevil fight reportedly being won

SPECIAL TO THE JOURNAL

ABILENE — Cotton growers in Texas have always had to worry about adverse weather conditions, increased production expenses, and until recently, the damaging effects of the boll weevil.

Growers in eradication zones entering their third season as part of the Texas Boll Weevil Eradication program say they are receiving help with their worries.

Although the program has no control over the weather, it does help with production costs, and farmers in these zones are noticing a decrease in weevil numbers and the damage these insects cause.

Jerry McClain of Childress is seeing the results of eradication on his farms in Childress, Hardeman and Cottle counties, part of the Northern Rolling Plains eradication zone.

"The last three crops before eradication began, the weevils ate us up. It wasn't worth pulling," McClain said.

But during the diapause year of the program, McClain was able to make a top crop.

"The weevils usually get all of that," he said. "The last two years there hasn't been a weevil problem. But there has been a weather problem."

McClain is enthusiastic about the results of the program. "We had to have something, or I wouldn't be able to raise cotton anymore," he said.

Part of the fun

A clear crowd favorite in Muleshoe's Fourth of July parade, "Let Freedom Ring" — the United Supermarkets/Kinder Corner float (above) — placed third among the parade entries. First place went to Muleshoe Area Hospital District (right), featuring the furnishings for the district's new nursing home, its new slogan and several prospective future residents for the care center. Second was Muleshoe Heritage Center. The parade also had many other types of entries, including a car carrying Dr. Bruce Purdy, the Muleshoe Chamber of Commerce man of the year.

First class

An artist's drawing of what the new nursing home furnishings will look like is shown at right. The committee raising funds to furnish Muleshoe Area Healthcare Center, Park View, has topped $45,000; donations can be made to accounts at either local bank. The facility may open in early September

Tell someone they're appreciated

Have you ever had one of those days where everything is going wrong and everything gets on your nerves and no matter how hard you try to be pleasant you just can't pull it off for anything?

Well, that day — the all-time worst day of your life — is the day you meet someone who matters.

You're so sure they think you are this terrible person, so then your day just gets worse. You're paranoid all day and every time you see that person your mood just gets worse.

Then someone remembers something you mentioned in casual conversation, like your favorite food or TV show, maybe a song, and all of a sudden your day completely turns around.

You're in a great mood now. All you can do is smile, and when you see that person you show them how great you are.

It takes something as simple as a smile to turn someone's day around — just letting someone know that you appreciate them can save their entire day.

I got a letter in the mail from the pastor of my church, and I had no idea what to expect. I opened it and found a copy of my column with an attached sticky note that said, "This made my day! Thanks and keep up the good print, Pastor Steve"

That made my day. I wasn't having a bad day, but that made it even better.

Next time you have a chance to let someone know you appreciate them, take it.

Parade stars

Among the floats in the Fourth of July parade was "Land That I Love" (above), entered by the Jennyslippers. Adorning a pickup bed was this year's Muleshoe Chamber of Commerce farm family of the year, the Bobby Frees (left). One of the best-attended parades in recent years, Wednesday's event featured old vehicles, motorcycles, firetrucks and other service vehicles and plenty of people of all ages.

Booklet lists private-sector scholarships

Though the majority of scholarship money is from the federal government and is merit and/or need-based, millions of dollars are available to students from private-sector scholarships.

Much of the private-sector financial aid goes unused because the parents and students do not know how or where to apply.

Information is available listing such scholarship sources. Categories include scholarships for the handicapped, scholarships for members of a certain religious group, scholarships for "C" students, scholarships for children of veterans, scholarships for ethnic minorities and many more.

Free information on obtaining many of the scholarships is available by sending a self-addressed stamped No. 10 envelope (business-size) to U.S. Commission for Scholastic Assistance, P.O. Box 668, O'Fallon, Ill. 62269.

Maid of honor was Stephanie Bardwell of Midland, friend of the bride. Matron of honor was Katy Jones-Williams of San Angelo, also a friend of the bride. Bridesmaids were Leah Turner, cousin of the bride, and Kayla Magby Nickels, sister-in-law of the groom, both of Lazbuddie.

Best men were Chad Nickels and Terry Nickels, brothers of the groom from Lazbuddie. Groomsmen were Corey Williams and Jim Rogers, both of San Angelo.

The bride wore a white Italian satin gown with Alençon lace and a halter top with a V-neckline. The sleeves and neckline were outlined with pearls and crystal beads.

The bodice was covered with Alençon lace, pearls and crystal sequins, the back a lace-up corset. The Basque waist allowed the full skirt to fall to the floor with a scalloped cathedral train. The skirt and train were embellished with Alençon lace and finished with a matching hem.

The bride's attendants wore long black crepe dresses with Empire waists, square necklines and two broad straps that crossed in the back.

something new was her wedding dress. Something borrowed was a pair of earrings from her mother and aunt.

Something blue was the traditional garter.

Something special was the flower basket, which was carried by the bride in another wedding when she was 5 years old.

The bride's bouquet consisted of red, black and white roses in a silver Tussie Mussie accented with white and silver ribbons.

The groom wore a black tuxedo with tails, a white vest and white tie. The groomsmen were dressed similarly but wore black vests and white shirts.

The reception followed the wedding at the church. Serving the bride's cake were Socorro Reyes and Julie McDonald-Gaasch, the groom's cake by Dawn Weir and Regina Jones, and punch by Kylee Veazey, all classmates of the bride and groom, and coffee by Kayla Glover, cousin of the groom.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Dear Editor,

In the first place, was not the sheriff's office where the county votes for our own sheriff if so who gave the commissioners the right to vote for us — I did not.

It proves to show in the last election that Kemp had a bad attitude when he lost and moved away within two weeks.

I do not want my son to look up to an official like that. The votes then showed he was not the best man for the job. So what makes him think he is now!

Richard Wills everyone knows he does his job unbiased to the book and had the best teachers to show him his job.

When you have 400 hours classroom work means you have experience in the field. If you have never been to a class your being biased because your train of thought tells you "Oh well, he has no street experience."

I have taken law enforcement classes at SPC that I know the difference. Go to SPC they will let you experience the effect of "street" and "classroom."

So the vote for sheriff is 5-1 because as a citizen of Bailey County theirs my vote. And anyone reading this call, vote, write your answers as to who our sheriff should be.

A decision has been made to cancel the 2001 Portales Open Tennis Tournament.

This tournament has been an annual event for more than 25 years, but we are unable to hold it this year because the tennis courts at Eastern New Mexico University are being resurfaced and are not available for our use.

We would like for tennis players in your area to know of this change. We also would like for them to know that we will be looking forward to seeing them in July 2002 when the Portales Open will continue.

Dear Editor,

While talking to our son, Ross, on the phone about our visit to the Muleshoe Mule Memorial Center, Ross said: "The history of the mule and how he came to Muleshoe should be a part of the Muleshoe mule's story. Daddy, where did you tell me Pete, the mule, came from?"

Morris answered, "In 1928, the mule that was later used for the statue was part of a team of mules that pulled a wagon load of household items from our home in Sentinel, Okla. We moved to a farm north of Muleshoe. Dave Anders, who drove the team, worked for my dad, Luther McKillip."

Anders worked for the McKillips for a time after the move. Morris does not remember the name of that mule. (Morris was only 4 years old at the time of the move to Texas.)

"After using the mule," Morris said, "Dad sold the loyal hard-working animal to Dave Anders. Dave used the mule doing odd pulling jobs around town. I don't know what happened to the mule after the statue was cast. But I do know that "Pete" the mule played an important role as a worker in serving the Muleshoe-area people."

So could you please record and give that particular faithful mule the historical identity he deserves?

TODAY'S RECIPE

GARLIC-ARTICHOKE BREAD

1 loaf frozen bread dough, thawed
1 (6-oz.) jar marinated chopped artichoke hearts, drained (save marinade)
4 cloves garlic, pressed
1 cup jack or mozzarella cheese, shredded
1 cup Parmesan cheese, shredded
Grease a large baking sheet; set aside. On a lightly floured surface, roll thawed dough into Serve it warm or cool in on a wire rack.

Yield: 12 slices.
