Deans to discuss computer sign up

By BABS GREYHOKSY
UD Reporter

The possibility of implementing a new form of registration at Tech will be presented to academic deans today during a meeting of the Academic Deans Council.

According to Dr. Charles Hardwick, vice president for academic affairs, the idea for a new registration format was suggested previously by a few college deans.

HARDWICK SAID the office of admissions has prepared a report on the advantages and disadvantages of implementing the program. The report will be distributed to the deans for their examination.

Briefly, the new system would involve the use of computers, which would match the students' choices for teachers and classes with what is available. The use of computerized preregistration will eliminate the lengthy processing in the coliseum.

"We're really in the early stages of constructing the program," Hardwick said. "Right now we're exploring the possibilities, the advantages and disadvantages of using the computer."

HARDWICK SAID if the report is accepted favorably by the deans, the new system will require careful study, the computer facilities will be closely examined and other options of the program will be considered.

The primary advantage of the new program would come in the area of more careful planning of classes. Fall registration would be conducted in the previous spring semester while spring registration would be conducted during the previous fall.

"With early registration, we'll be able to see what the student demand is for particular areas and whether, for instance, more freshmen English teachers will be needed," Hardwick explained.

AN ADVANTAGE for the students is that everyone gets an equal opportunity for courses.

On the other hand, Hardwick said, some students may feel they have fewer options with the program.

"But we've designed a method of appeal, called a walk-through, whereby a student can go through a card-pulling process and can change, within a reasonable limit, any errors or make any adjustments," he said.

Hardwick said he did not know whether the computer registration will cost more money. Again he indicated the program will require careful study to ensure the selection of the right option and the effective implementation.

THE COMPUTER system has proved effective at the University of Texas at Austin, according to Debra Aime in the UT registrar's office.

Aime said that Texas, which has been using the system since 1970, has a preregistration and a regular registration format. Students who use preregistration have the chance to request what they want during a week of preregistration and advising. Then their requests are fed into the computer for matching.

Of the approximately 28,000 students who use preregistration, Aime said about 60 per cent get what they request, about 35 per cent require some minor adjustments through add-drop and about 5 per cent must keep what they are assigned because of full class loads.

ACCORDING TO AIME, about 14,000 use regular registration, which is conducted the way Tech's present registration system is designed. The disadvantage of using the regular registration is that students can only select from the courses left over from preregistration.

Texas A&M, which has used the computer system since 1969, claims to have the most advanced registration program in the country, according to Don Carter in the A&M registrar's office.

Carter said A&M uses a completely computerized format in which students register in December for the spring semester and in April for the following fall. Freshmen and new entering students are preregistered in the summer, Carter explained.

A WEEK OF drop-add is conducted a week before classes begin. Carter said the system helps keep the sections equalized.

Before the computer system can go into effect at Tech, regardless of the deans' acceptance, Hardwick said a committee of students, faculty and administrators will be established to try to get as much input as possible.

Guerrilla leader calls for black military rule

SALISBURY, Rhodesia (AP) — The leader of Rhodesian black guerrillas based in Mozambique said Monday his forces should be given military control of Rhodesia under the proposed transitional government leading to black majority rule.

Robert Mugabe, who claims to command some 10,000 guerrillas of the Zimbabwe People's Army (ZIPA), said in an interview in Lusaka, the capital of Zambia:

"THERE MUST be a disintegration of Prime Minister Ian Smith's military power. Our forces must move in to replace the settler forces in Zimbabwe, or else the proposals would be a sham and hollow."

Smith heads the white minority government of Rhodesia, a breakaway British colony called Zimbabwe by black nationalists.

Both Smith and the presidents of five nearby black nations have said they accept the idea, pushed by Britain and the United States, of setting up an interim government to prepare Rhodesia for majority rule.

BUT THEY have disagreed on whether the interim administration should be shared equally by Rhodesia's 278,000 whites and 6.4 million blacks, as Smith proposed, or whether it should be under a black majority.

At a summit meeting Sunday, the leaders of Tanzania, Zambia, Mozambique, Angola and Botswana — regarded as the "front line" states in the battle for black majority rule in Rhodesia — also objected to letting Smith set up the interim government, and said they want Britain to convene a conference outside Rhodesia for the purpose. The British immediately announced preparations for such a meeting.

The black Africans also reaffirmed their commitment to continued armed struggle by black guerrillas.

THE RHODESIAN government said that the plan it had proposed had been handed over by Secretary of State Henry Kissinger after his 11 day African shuttle, and that the Africans were now backing out of the agreement.

But the State Department in Washington said the plan as outlined by Smith had never been approved by the Africans. A spokesman said the Africans informed Washington they had not rejected the British American plan. He said the "matter is on track."

"The process is going to require major adjustments by both sides," William D. Rogers, undersecretary of state, told newsmen. He stressed that the Africans had agreed to attend a conference without preconditions.

Foreign oil demand continues upward

WASHINGTON (AP) — The nation's dependence on foreign fuels continued to increase this year with oil imports up 16.7 per cent in the first six months, the Federal Energy Administration says.

The findings, in FEA's latest monthly statistics, coincided with published reports — denied by the State Department — that Saudi Arabia was threatening a new oil embargo if the U.S. Congress adopts legislation unfavorable to the Arab economic boycott of Israel.

BEFORE THE Arab nations interrupted oil shipments in 1973, the United States imported about 35 per cent of its petroleum. The import level was about the same in early 1975.

But oil imports increased to more than 39 per cent of U.S. petroleum demand in the first half of this year, the FEA says.

Weighed against the U.S. consumption of energy from all sources, imports of fossil fuels — mainly oil and natural gas — provided about 20.3 per cent of total energy demand during the first five months of 1976, compared with 18.3 per cent a year earlier.

The FEA monthly report also indicated that the average price of regular gasoline was about 4 cents per gallon higher in the first half of 1976 than in the corresponding period of 1975.

BUT THE figures did not show any apparent connection between the price rise and the increase of oil imports.

Most U.S. gasoline is refined in domestic refineries from crude oil. The average price of crude oil, including both U.S. produced and imported, rose only about 1.4 cents per gallon during the same period, and that was mainly due to price increases on domestic crude oil.

Summing up its findings for the first half of 1976, the FEA came up with this picture of U.S. energy supply and demand:

—ENERGY CONSUMPTION for the first five months was up 1.5 per cent, while U.S. energy production for the first six months was down one per cent.

—The gap was filled by higher energy imports. Crude oil imports increased 33 per cent, but were partly offset by a 13 per cent decline in imports of refined petroleum products. Natural gas imports increased 5 per cent. Taken together, fossil fuel imports rose some 16.6 per cent, corresponding essentially to the net increase in oil imports.

—Consumption of petroleum products outraced the general increase in energy demand, rising some 3.8 per cent "due mainly to a 4.7 per cent in motor gasoline demand."

—ALTHOUGH U.S. energy production slipped one per cent, "this decline was considerably less than the 3.3 per cent drop" from 1974 to 1975, "and is an indication that the 3 year slump in domestic energy production may be leveling off."

—This optimistic appraisal stems mainly from a 4.1 per cent increase in coal production and a 10.8 per cent increase in nuclear power generation. Natural gas production slid another 3.7 per cent, domestic oil output declined 2.7 per cent, and hydroelectric power, partly dependent on the weather, ran 4.4 per cent behind the first six months of 1975.

U.S. attorney blasts Mexican border gun running

BROWNSVILLE, Tex. (AP) — An Asst. U.S. Attorney said store owners who "choose to look the other way" are factors in the booming business of gun and ammunition smuggling along the Rio Grande.

"If you sold guns and the same person came into your store every week and bought two or three M-1 rifles, wouldn't you get a little suspicious?" asked Charles Lewis, an Asst. U.S. Attorney in Brownsville.

Lewis said Monday the guns are bought legally in the United States and smuggled into Mexico where buyers are readily available—ranging from left wing guerrilla groups to the wealthy, conservative landowners.

"Any U.S. citizen 18 years or older who is not a convicted felon can walk into a store and buy a gun," he said. "We haven't been able to get to the primary source of the smuggled guns—that's the licensed gun dealer."

"They choose to remain ignorant about the buyers in their store."

Although officials are hesitant to estimate the amount of gun running along the Rio Grande, two recent cases give an insight as to the quantity and quality of the firearms.

"We ran two separate surveys involving hundreds of ammunition dealers along the border," said Lewis. "Both surveys showed the number one dealer was the Villa Verde Store in Brownsville."

"But you look in the Yellow Pages under ammunition," Lewis said as he flipped through the phone book, "and you don't find the store listed. You look under guns and you don't find it."

"Yet this store was selling a million rounds of ammunition a month and 90 to 95 per cent of it was going to Mexico. You know if somebody was buying that much ammunition, they have more than a few guns."

The co-owners of the store, Ignacio Reyes and David Dominguez, were found guilty of falsifying Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms reports. The pair was fined $3,000 and given three year probation sentences.

"They were falsifying the names and addresses of Mexican purchasers," said Lewis.

"So when U.S. officials reported the purchases to the Mexican government, the correct buyer could not be traced."

"That case involved only one store," said Lewis. "When you consider the hundreds of stores along the border, then there must be one hell of a lot of guns in Mexico."

"Another case in McAllen involved the confiscation of about 100 guns, he continued. "Most of them were .22, .38 and .30 caliber semi-automatics which could be converted to fully automatic in about 15 minutes by someone who knew what he was doing."

Lewis said the types of guns popular with the Mexican buyers are the AR-15, the M-1 and M-1 Enforcer.

"The Ar-15 was developed for use in Vietnam," said Lewis. "It uses small bullets that have a tremendous impact yet it can be fired for hours. It has no kick."

"The M-1 used to be the standard U.S. Army weapon and the M-1 Enforcer is a small gun with a pistol handle yet the rest of the weapon looks like a rifle. It's about 15 inches long. It's an assault weapon."

Patty testifies of kidnaping

OAKLAND, Calif. (AP) — In her first appearance as a government witness, Patricia Hearst testified before a grand jury Monday about her kidnaping by the Symbionese Liberation Army and was followed into the closed chambers by her former lover, Steven Weed.

Hearst and Weed, who have not seen each other since she was abducted from the Berkeley apartment they shared on Feb. 4, 1974, did not meet on Monday.

HEARST testified for 2½ hours and was hustled into a waiting room across the hallway moments before Weed arrived to testify.

For her appearance, the 22 year old heiress wore a blue denim jumper, dangling earrings and a cross necklace. An Episcopal priest has been visiting Hearst in prison.

Surrounded by federal marshals, Hearst appeared weary as she left the grand jury. Sources close to the probe said she told substantially the same story she related in tearful detail at her bank robbery trial earlier this year.

ASKED HIS REACTION to again recounting the details of the night Hearst was abducted, Weed replied, "I'd rather not discuss the emotions that surround this event. They have been well documented."

Hearst has indicated through her attorneys that she will cooperate fully in the grand jury probe aimed at indicting William and Emily Harris for her abduction. She has publicly denounced the couple and identified them as two SLA "soldiers" who kidnaped her.

She said Harris held her while she was blindfolded and gagged and Mrs. Harris drove one of the cars used in her abduction. The other SLA members she named as her kidnapers died in a shootout with Los Angeles police in May 1976.

THE HARRISES were convicted of kidnaping and robbery in a Los Angeles case last month and are under 11 years to life prison sentences. Hearst faces trial early next year in the same case.

The Harrises pleaded innocent last week to a criminal complaint in Hearst's kidnaping, but a formal indictment is being sought to replace the complaint.

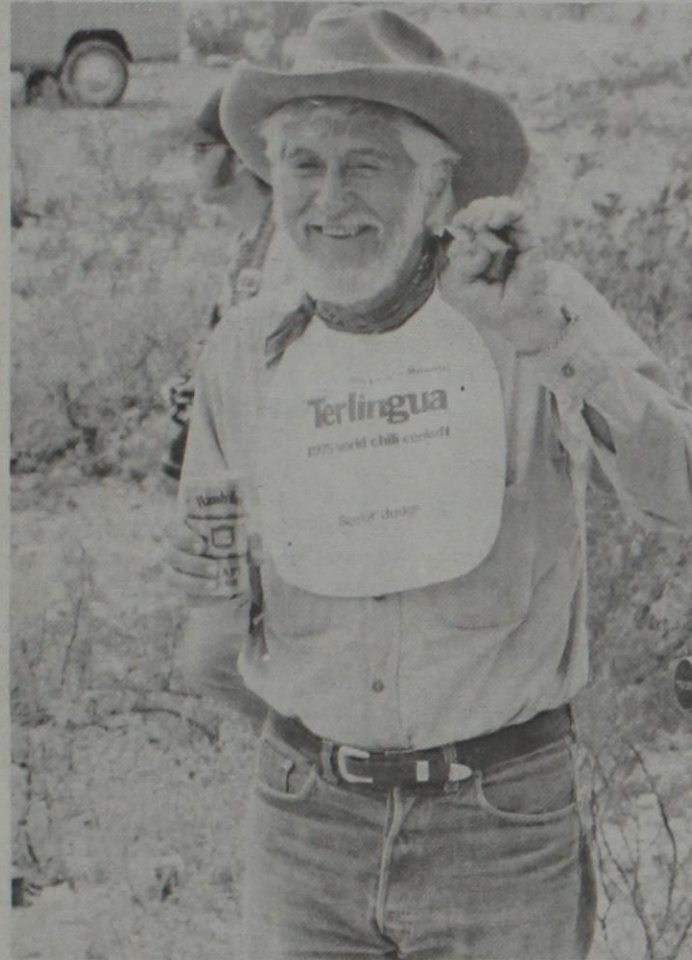

Hearst testified alone on Monday. Witnesses' attorneys are not permitted inside grand jury rooms. But Al Johnson, Miss Hearst's attorney, sat in an anteroom outside the grand jury chamber, and Hearst was permitted to come out and confer with him if she wished. Tall screens prevented reporters from seeing whether such conferences were held.

Hondo Crouch: Requiem for a Texas legend

Hondo Crouch was the most jovial fun-loving armadillo to ever crawl out of the Texas hill country. He was always, always smiling and was one of the few persons I've ever met who could be a kid and an old man at the same time—completely natural.

Hondo Crouch was the man who personified the word happy. He has been a tremendous influence to the central Texas mystique but more personally, a great influence to me. Talking to him over a couple of cold beers was like talking to a grandfather, and at the same time talking to my best friend. It was one of the warmest feelings I've experienced.

Hondo died Monday, and part of me died with him.

HE WAS WITHOUT a doubt one of the brightest personalities the Lone Star State has produced. And he reached fame by simply being himself, a warm but mischievous person, the kind that made people laugh, and feel good. He enjoyed making people feel good.

He was the self-proclaimed mayor of Luckenbach, Texas, a town which has the motto, "Everybody's somebody in Luckenbach."

He was stricken with a heart attack at the home of Ken Morgan and his wife, Kathy, who was co-owner with Hondo of Luckenbach, population three, and died at a hospital in Johnson City.

He was 60. A very young 60. A FRIEND ONCE summed old Hondo up pretty good when he said, "He works hard at being a character, but he doesn't work hard even at that."

I was first mystified by the man at the Terlingua Chili Cookoff two years ago. A group of us led the crowd to believe Jerry Jeff Walker was with us. A friend who looked like Walker stumbled out of our motor home and the crowd went wild. We fooled them all. Cameras clicked. Autograph hounds swooped in. When the crowd was finally gone, a little old man—a cute little old man—walked up with his head bowed and asked if he could say hello to Jerry Jeff. We said sure. Head bowed like he was addressing a king, he said, "Mr. Walker. It sure is a pleasure to make your acquaintance, sir. You're one of my favorite singers and I just wanted to tell you that. I'm sorry I took up some of your time."

HE LOOKED UP for a second then humbly walked away.

We felt terrible. There was a knot in my stomach. We had taken advantage of a poor old man and we quickly agreed to call off our little joke. I went after the old man but there was a crowd of people around him. I asked if anyone knew the guy's name and two people turned and said, "Sure, he's Hondo Crouch, Jerry Jeff Walker's best friend. Everybody knows Hondo..."

Instant respect. He took us and took us good. We drank a beer with him later and he invited us to stop by his place for dinner. The Hondo Hilton. An abandoned two-room mud house in Terlingua which was filled with more warmth and camaraderie than any structure I've ever been in. Nobody knew the next person but we were all friends of Hondo's and we were all out in the middle of nowhere singing and drinking beer. Old ladies, longhairs, nuts, executives, all brought together by a spirit which this one man brought out of each of us.

AT TERLINGUA, where 10,000 of Texas' most unusual characters gather once a year, the one shining personality was the wonderful old man with the flowing white beard, the cowboy hat and scarf—and jeans tucked into his boots. And always a Lone Star beer in his hand.

He lived on a ranch 18 miles from Luckenbach, but made an appearance to his little town almost every weekday to visit with those who stopped in for a cold drink or a beer. On Wednesdays the town was closed, according to Hondo, that meant the general store didn't open that day. And besides the dance hall, that's about all Luckenbach is.

He told me once that it was the only town he had ever heard of that was in the phone book. I didn't understand and he explained that the phone book of nearby Fredricksburg listed Luckenbach, Texas and the town's phone number.

HE SAID THAT he bought the town because he got tired of driving home to his ranch and not having a place to stop for a beer.

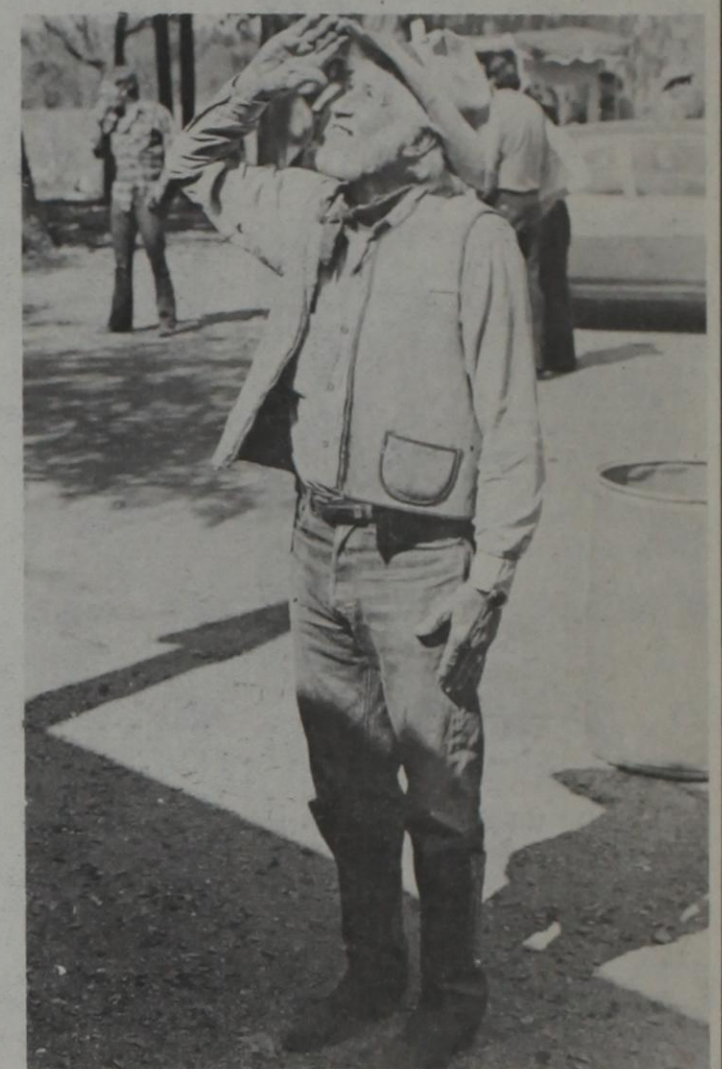

While talking once we agreed that we think alike in many ways. We traded stories and talked history of Texas. When I heard about the Non-Buycentennial Celebration he and some buddies were putting on, I knew I had to be there. It was a celebration which tastefully blasted the commercial exploitation of America's Bicentennial.

Hondo (who's real name is John but his hometown is Hondo, Texas) was an all-American swimmer for the University of Texas in 1939. While at school he was friends with John Connally. A story goes that Hondo ran into then governor Connally in Austin and the governor said, "Well, Hondo I hear you're raising goats here in the hill country."

TO WHICH HONDO smiled and slowly replied, "Yea, John. Still raising goats. Tell me, what are you doing these days?"

Many kids got to know Hondo as a counselor at Camp Longhorn and others from Camp Champions, of which he was part owner. There was actually a shrewd businessman beneath that famous image.

The album, Viva Terlingua, which launched the whole Texas music scene, was recorded underneath a tree in Luckenbach. On the album cover is a hand pointed to the title of the album. That's Hondo's hand and the album is really Hondo's album. Many of the songs are dedicated to him and a few are about him.

He told me that "Desperados Waiting For a Train", one song that really moves me, is a song about he and Jerry Jeff. Since then, everytime I hear it I think of the old man, Hondo.

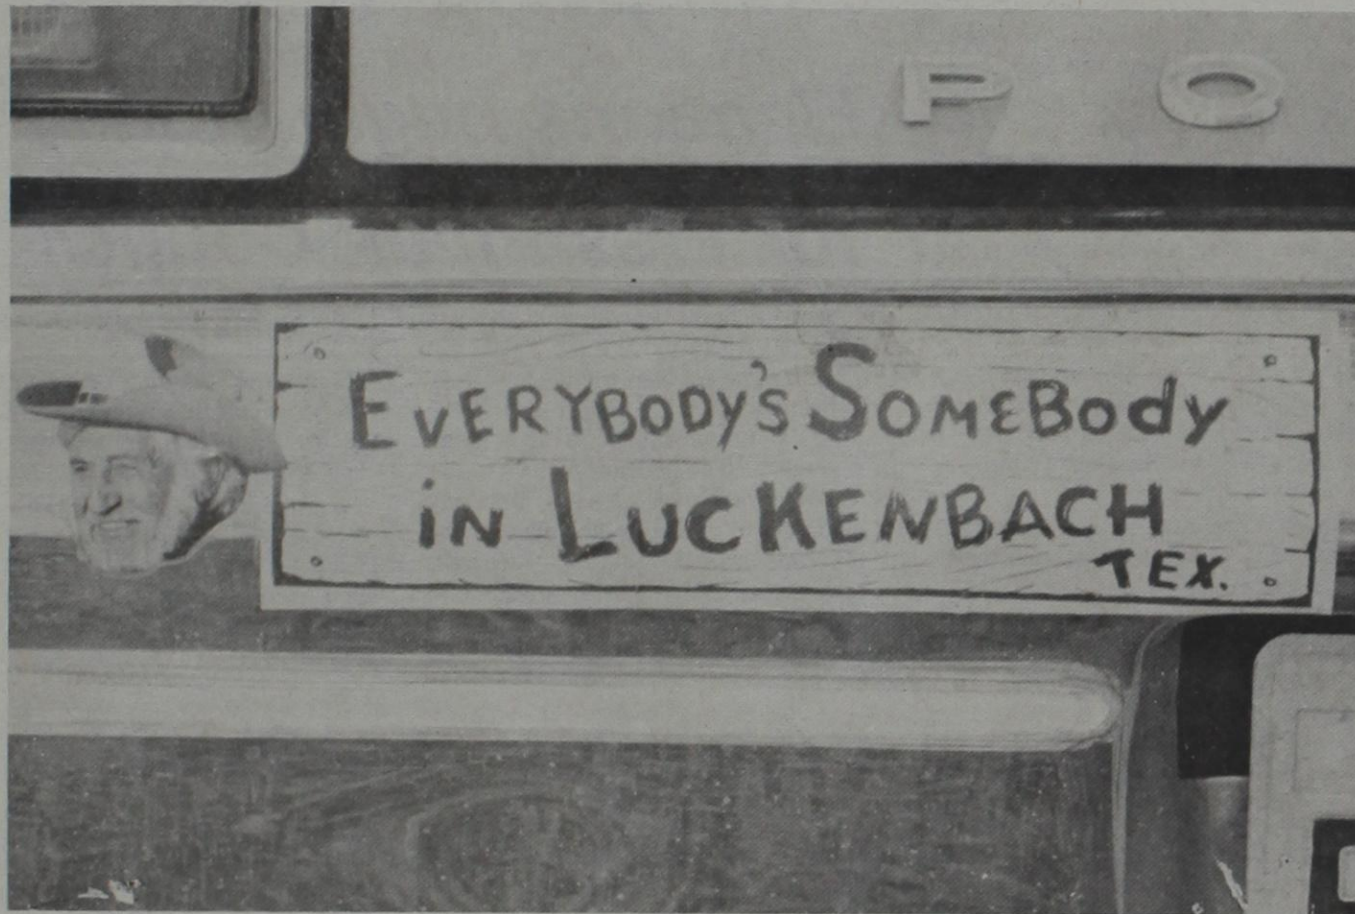

"The day before he died I went to see him,

I was grown and he was almost gone,

Closed our eyes and we dreamed us up a kitchen,

Played another verse of that old song.

Yea Jack, you know that old sumbitch is coming back..."

NEWS BRIEFS

One more claims Hughes will

HOUSTON (AP) — A New Jersey woman who says she was the second wife of Howard Hughes has entered the probate court fight over the billionaire's estate.

Alyce Hovest Hughes of Atlantic City filed a petition notifying Harris County Probate Judge Pat Gregory that she is an heir to the estates, saying she never divorced Hughes.

She contends she married Hughes in 1946, about 17 years after his divorce from Ella Rice of Houston and about 11 years before his marriage to Hollywood actress Jean Peters.

She described herself as a businesswoman but refused to comment further on her relationship with Hughes.

"It's a private issue," she said. "I'm in a state of shock right now. All I can say is, it's true."

Ford talks law and order

MIAMI (AP) — President Ford said Monday that a crusade against crime, including a drive to jail career criminals and "violent and street wise" youthful offenders, would key note the first 100 days of a new term if he wins the election.

Ford said the voters should and will check their ballots on Nov. 2 "and identify those candidates who have demonstrated indifference or permissiveness toward crime..."

Ford's appearance here closed out his three day campaign swing through Democratic presidential candidate Jimmy Carter's home territory, the Deep South, and he was to return to Washington later on Monday.

In a stern law and order speech to more than 2,000 policemen, Ford accused Congress of inaction on his own crime fighting proposals and said:

"I serve notice today that a top priority of the first 100 days, beginning with Inauguration Day for the Ford administration next January, will be the rallying of America behind federal anticrime legislation."

Flu vaccine arrives in state

AUSTIN (AP) — The first shipment of swine flu vaccine reached the State Health Department Monday and will be flown to the department's 10 regional offices, a department spokesman said.

The first shipment, 420,000 doses, will not be used for the elderly and those with chronic diseases. These doses are the monovalent type, or one strain doses. The elderly and diseased require the bivalent or two strain type that will come later.

Another shipment is expected this week, the spokesman said.

Sowder speech set

Madison Sowder, Lubbock County Democratic Party chairman, will speak to the Tech Young Democrats chapter tonight at 7:30 in UC 207.

Sowder will make a short lecture on the Carter-Ford debate and other local Democratic Party issues.

Sowder, a local attorney, has been active in local politics since 1955. He has managed election campaigns for local and state democrats and has also been president, vice-president and secretary of the Lubbock County Bar Association.

The meeting is open to all students, according to Danny Koch, Young Democrats president.

Today last day to drop with 'W'

Students wishing to drop a course and still receive a grade of "W" must do so today in their academic dean's office by 5 p.m.

The grade of "W" is given for a course officially dropped during the first five weeks of a term and for a course officially dropped after that time providing the student's work is passing at the time the course is dropped. A student who is failing may still receive a grade of "W" if he drops the class before today.

After the first five weeks of a semester, the grade "WF" is given when the student's work is not passing at the time the course is dropped or when the student is required by his dean to drop the course for failure to attend class.

Carter blasts Ford's economic policy

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) — Jimmy Carter said Monday that President Ford's economic policies placed a record 2.5 million Americans below the official poverty line last year and have created a new class of poor to whom the American dream has been denied.

Campaigning by boat in Portland's deepwater harbor and with speeches, rallies and impromptu news conferences, the Democratic candidate pledged that if elected president, he would never increase taxes on Americans who work for a living, or whose major source of income comes from wages and salaries rather than interest, dividends and capital gains.

It was an assertion that Carter has made repeatedly in efforts to clarify statements he made concerning taxes in an Associated Press interview more than a week ago.

In that interview he indicated he would seek to raise taxes for everyone above the mean or median income. But when reminded that the median was somewhere around $12,000, he said he could not fix a level at which an increase would be sought.

Carter's campaign in this Pacific Northwest city was busy and varied.

He talked to labor leaders at breakfast, discussed the problems of the merchant marine and international trade on a harbor boat.

Deans meeting today

Registration procedures will be discussed at the Academic Council meeting today at 2 p.m. in the Deans' Council room.

This will be the first regular meeting of the year for the council, since the meeting planned for Sept. 14 was cancelled. The deans met in a special session with Tech President Cecil Mackey last week to discuss his official policies.

designations and faculty consultation on outside employment are also included on the council's agenda.

Holmes movie review

Python brings craziness back

By JOHNNY HOLMES
UD Fine Arts Editor
For those unfortunate enough to have missed "MONTY PYTHON AND THE HOLY GRAIL" the first time around, you're getting a reprieve.

Python and his Flying Circus return in the Holy Grail, now playing at the Village. Ah, but such honorable quests are never easy and the king discovers this rather quickly. The incredible journey leads to a castle - full of obnoxious Frenchmen who proceed to pummel them with rotten fruit, live cows and other assorted animals - whatever happened to boiling oil? But Arthur is not easily outwitted. The knights retreat to the cover of the forest where they construct (with a chainsaw - in the Middle Ages?) a Trojan rabbit. You read that's right - a Trojan rabbit. Everything goes like clockwork except one minor detail. The knights forgot to get inside the thing. Oh well. Anyway the journey marches on and the group encounters a series of hassles, like a knight who gives life and limb (literally) to prevent the posse from passing. The trip really becomes a trip as the knights march on and on, through the Forest of Darkness and the Knights who say "Ni" and the Valley of Death with its mysterious troll and his three questions, and the most beastly beast who gets disposed of with the Holy Hand Grenade. The humor borders on absurdity, which is the Britons' specialty anyway, and the circus employs many tricks to bring about feeling of absolute craziness. Animated monsters and the passing of time are done in a sharp contrast to the real life of the movie. And it's deeper than just the plot. Director Terry Gilliam, who also stars, does a great job of picking the sites for the film, which is beautiful as well as authentic. All in all, the movie is quite impressive. The journey takes several strange twists and each knight is given his chance to shine. A noble job for a noble quest, and though the ending is not exactly what you'll be expecting, it is different. American humor is void of such antics and it's nice to be able to laugh yourself sick at something other than an endless series of one-liners. Your search for a holy grail - full of humor is over. Long live the king.

Are you a leader? Show us.

Only a select group of people have the qualities which command the respect of others. Do you think you have the qualifications which make you a natural leader? If you do, we'd like to reinforce them with the kind of training that develops standout men and women into Marine Corps officers. A college degree is essential. KEN NORTON
AUGUST 9, 1945
JACKSONVILLE, ILL.

ESTIMATED WEIGHTS -- EXACT WEIGHTS WILL BE ANNOUNCED FOLLOWING AN OFFICIAL WEIGH-IN.

Norton-Ali in World Championship

Muhammad Ali, the 34-year old king of all the heavyweights, and Ken Norton, the 31-year old ex-Marine who has been his most persistent tormentor, will resolve all disputes with the World Championship at stake over 15 rounds, or less, in New York's new Yankee Stadium on Tuesday, September 28th.

The closed circuit program will begin at 8:30 p.m. (CDT), with the Ali-Norton fight slated for a 9:30 p.m. start and can be seen via special "live" telecast direct from ringside at the Lubbock Municipal Coliseum.

The fight, jointly promoted by Madison Square Garden and Top Rank, Inc., has guaranteed Ali $6,000,000 and $100,000 for training expense and 50 per cent of all income above $9,000,000. Norton is guaranteed $1,100,000 plus 5 per cent of all income. Top Rank will handle the ancillaries. The fight will be shown all over the world via special telecasts. It will be closed-circuited into theatres and arenas in North America, with an expected seating potential of 1,750,000 seats. Overseas it is expected that the fight will be seen in every country which has television facilities. Most countries will receive the fight "live" via the satellites.

This marks the third meeting between Ali and Norton and the first time under championship conditions. In 24 rounds of boxing, they fought two split decisions and the total points added up to 33 for each. In the first fight in San Diego, Cal., on March 31, 1973, won by Norton, Ali suffered a broken jaw. In the second, at the Forum in Inglewood, Calif., on September 10th, 1973, Ali was awarded a controversial nod. For Ali, this fight represents the 17th time he will be defending a world crown. He defended nine times prior to his so-called "exile" in 1967 and seven times since he regained possession of the championship with his spectacular knockout of George Foreman in Zaire, Africa, in 1974.

Here, in our bicentennial year, Norton is listed as a 7-5 underdog for their "rubber match", which takes place in New York's sparkling new Yankee Stadium. The Stadium will seat approximately 67,000 fans for a round figure gross potential of an astounding $6,000,000.

The year 1976 has been a strange one for Ali. On September 30, 1975, he had fought "The Thrilla in Manila" and won over Joe Frazier in their third meeting in one of the greatest heavyweight fights ever seen. Then came three title fights this year with varying results. Ali stopped a completely inept Jean-Pierre Coopman in San Juan, Puerto Rico, on February 20th. On April 30th, in Landover, Md., he received a controversial verdict over Jimmy Young. Obviously and admittedly, at 230 pounds, heaviest of his career, Ali was not in the best of condition. He trained down to 220 for Richard Dunn in Munich, Germany, on May 24th, and dispatched the rugged Englishman in five exciting rounds.

Ali's record shows 52 wins in 54 fights, with only the two losses—to Frazier and Norton. He has knocked out 37 rivals.

Tech Spikers face duo

Tech's winning volleyball team puts its 13-0 record on the line tonight at 6 p.m. as it takes on Abilene Christian University and McMurry College in the Women's Gym.

Tech defeated ACU last weekend during a five-way meet, but has yet to face McMurry. Both schools are in Tech's zone, and both would like to be the ones to mar Tech's undefeated record.

"As long as that zero stays on the right-hand side of our record," said Coach Janice Hudson, "every team we play will be wanting to beat us badly. Everybody in Texas will be watching out for Tech—as well they should be."

West Texas State will also be at the Women's Gym tonight, playing ACU at 6:45 and McMurry at 8. Tech plays ACU at 6 and McMurry at 7:30.

Soccer team drops one, ties one

By EDDIE GOLDBERG
UD Sportswriter

Last weekend the Tech Soccer Club ventured to Big D for a two - game stand with North Texas State University and TCU. Neither game ended in victory for the Raiders, although Sunday's game was not a defeat. The result of Saturday's effort was a 5-0 defeat, while Sunday produced a 0-0 tie.

The loss on Saturday is partially attributed to Sheen Smith and Rick Bjorkman being sidelined because of the previous week's red cards. The defeat could also be attributed to the professional way in which North Texas handled the ball.

Tech defended its goal against 13 attempts during the first 28 minutes before Rodrigo Mackenna, a sophomore from Santiago, Chile, broke through to make the score 1-0. Eleven minutes later, a yellow warning card was handed to Rueben Maldonado, forward from Dallas for high - kicking. A North Texas goal by Claudio Turati, a forward from Lima, Peru, six seconds from the end of the half, making the score 2-0.

It only took Larry Thompson 5 minutes of playing time this week to draw a yellow card. Six minutes in to the second half he was called for kicking. Four minutes later Claudio Turati scored his second and third goals with assistance from fullback, Cristian Sotomayer, also from Santiago, Chile, to make the score 4-0.

The final goal of the game came as Jairo Escobar scored with 22 minutes left to play. Sunday's game against TCU was played with a different zone strategy, as the coach, Sahab Ates, decided that the 4-3-3 zone would be better than the 4-2-4 zone the team has been playing this season.

"They know what to play, but not how to play," Ates said. "It's my fault, I'll have to teach them better."

What seemed to be a defensive game Sunday, was actually a truckload of missed goals by Tech. Although Tech worked the ball well, and played a good defensive game against an unimpressive TCU soccer squad, they couldn't score. The opportunities for Tech to score were numerous, but none of the attempts succeeded.

The high point of the game came when Larry Thompson made a valiant effort to score a mislaid pass before the goalie got to it. Thompson missed the ball, but did put the TCU goalie out of the game.

Next week the team travels to Wichita Falls for a rematch with Midwestern University.

Breakaway

Tech's Rob Crowley gets a step on a Midwestern defender in recent soccer action in Lubbock. This past weekend the soccer team fell to North Texas in Denton, 5-0, and tied TCU 0-0 in Fort Worth. The team now prepares for a rematch with Midwestern in Wichita Falls this Saturday. (Photo by Karne Thom)

Herrera's 'biggest kick'

DALLAS (AP) — There should have been little suspense in Efen Herrera's 32-yard winning field goal over Baltimore Sunday. After all, he hasn't missed this season.

Herrera, a former UCLA star who is a native of Guadalajara, Mexico, is six for six in three games, including his game winner with three seconds left to play against the Colts.

"I guess it was the biggest kick of my career," said Herrera. "As soon as I kicked it, I felt like it was going in."

"I NEVER think of missing," said Herrera.

Herrera dreamed he would kick a 50 yard field goal to defeat the Colts.

"I dreamed I would win the game but I took a little kidding when I told some of the guys about it," said Herrera.

"I changed shoes three times because of the rain," said Herrera. "I found a pair I liked in New Orleans but I couldn't get them back until Thursday. I put them back and saved them. They were in the dry pair I had for the last. I was happy I had saved them."

HERRERA SAID "When the team works hard, I feel like it's my obligation to come through. I knew it was almost the last play of the game. If I missed it or something, I knew we would get another shot. So, there wasn't really all that much pressure."

Raider fems in competition

By KIM CORNWELL
UD Sportswriter

Tech's women's tennis team will take on South Plains College today herein Lubbock. The match begins at 9 a.m. and will be played at the Racquet Club.

The Raiders took two team matches from South Plains last year. Returning for South Plains this year is their number one player, Magie Thompson, from El Paso and Ruanna Meyers from Lubbock.

Tech will play a dual match consisting of four singles and two doubles matches.

Leading the Raiders in singles competition will be Kim Hood along with Joneen Cummings, Mamie Bevers and Tresea Williams.

"Since the Midland Tournament we have been stressing mostly singles play," said Coach Foster. "We will try something new with our doubles teams in this match. Kim Hood and Carla Weathersby have never played together in a match and neither have Tresea Williams and Mamie Bevers. Hopefully the new combinations will prove to be winning combinations."

The match will last until about noon and there is no charge for admission.

KEITH'S Casuals
Keith's has done it again--two more casual styles created especially for men and women using a unique "his and hers" shear cut technique from Roffler. These are just two of the wide range of styles learned and fashioned by Keith's stylists.
The name Keith's may be new to you, that's why we'd like for you to get acquainted today, at Keith's Hairstyling Centers of Lubbock. Call one of the locations listed below for your next appointment.
