

UT lawsuit dropped, Tech legal program gets new life

By ROBERT MONTEMAYOR
Special Reporter

Dr. Grover Murray said Monday he would consult Carlton Dodson, campus Resident Counsel, for advice on whether to continue procedures with the proposed Tech Legal Aid Program.

His decision came after lawsuit charges were dropped April 3 against a similar legal aid program involving the University of Texas' Students' Attorney Jim Boyle.

Murray said, "I will have to talk to Mr. Dodson concerning the program. I need to have some background information on what is going on at Austin."

The Legal Aid Program, proposed by SA President Bill Scott, was told to hold off any further procedures regarding its possible existence when the UT court case evolved.

Scott was told by Administration officials to wait until a decision had been rendered in the case.

Following the drop of the lawsuit, Scott said, "I see no reason why we can't continue with the program since we're no longer bound to a legal decision in the case."

He said he would like to start immediate work on the program by getting his appointed committees to set up policies and find a lawyer.

Scott set up two committees to work with the program. One will be policy committee while the other will select a Students' Attorney.

According to Judge Charles Mathews, 200th District Court in Austin, the plaintiff "didn't have a lawsuit," after signing a motion that dismissed the case.

Mathews said, "The attorney for the plaintiff in effect admitted that he had no lawsuit and conceded that the student attorney's office has a right to exist."

The lawsuit was filed in November maintaining that the students' attorney's office violated the state constitution by granting state money to "an association of individuals."

Since Tech is a state supported school a decision in the case would have been vital for the existence of the program.

"The fact that the attorney filed this motion is an admission on his part that he didn't have a lawsuit," Mathews said.

Boyle said he was delighted to hear about the drop and added that the state clearly has discretion to institute a program such as the one at UT.

The UT Legal Aid Program has been in operation for two years.

Murray said as soon as he consulted with Dodson and had attained all necessary information he would decide whether to continue with the Tech program.

Copelin named UD editor Lawhon, Shaw head L.V.

By GEORGE WELLES
Special Reporter

Editors for next year's University Daily (UD) and La Ventana were selected by the Student Publication Board Monday.

Hank Fletcher, junior journalism major from Graham was chosen advertising manager for the UD.

Copelin has been a reporter for both the newspaper at West Texas State and the UD. He is currently completing a year term as news editor for the UD and was recently chairman for the editorial board of Exordium magazine. He won first place in investigative reporting at the Southwestern Journalism Conference and was awarded a summer internship by the American Society of Magazine Editors.

Stating his beliefs, Copelin said the paper has an obligation to provide objective reporting and responsible editorials. "Only by stressing our own

"student professionalism," can the UD adequately serve the students," he said.

Copelin said he believes good relations and access to the university administration is a definite asset. "having reported on the administrative beat for a year and having met with Dr. Glenn Barnett (Executive Vice-President) weekly this semester, I have a background in dealing with the administration," he said. "This will aid in bridging any communication gap between the UD and the administration."

Lawhon has worked in the photography department for four years and has served as Head Photographer for the La Ventana. He has also served as assistant editor for the Life section of the La Ventana and is presently working as photograph editor for the UD.

Lawhon said he believes the yearbook should be representative of Tech and its students. "It should be flexible to meet the changing times and philosophies of the campus," he said.

Serving as next year's co-editor for the La Ventana, Ms. Shaw said a yearbook is for students and should reflect an accurate picture of campus life. "It should always be student-oriented," she said.

Ms. Shaw has previously served as co-editor of the Esquire section of the La Ventana and is presently the editor of the Life section.

"All aspects of Tech should be covered in the yearbook," she said. "The emphasis is on quality, not quantity. If a page is not interesting to the students, then it should be cut."

Chosen as advertising manager for the UD, Fletcher listed six assets for the job. "An ad manager must be knowledgeable of the psychology of people, imaginative, resourceful, tenacious, responsible, and organized," he said.

Fletcher has previously sold advertising for the Catalyst and the Student Association Guide. He has just finished a one year term as an advertising representative for the UD.

All three editors announced a desire to hear any comments or criticisms students might have of their respective publications.

Copelin announced any person wishing to apply for a position on the UD staff next year should turn an application in by noon Friday.

Liquor plan passes

Council delays rate hike

By KEITH GLASS
Staff Writer

The Lubbock City Council, cut to four members by the resignation of Mayor Pro Tem Deaton Rigsby, placed a temporary hold on the proposed electric rate hike for the city and passed on first vote a liquor zoning plan for Lubbock in a special meeting Monday.

A second vote will be needed at a future meeting before the zoning proposal goes into effect.

Rigsby confirmed his resignation in a press conference 30 minutes before the Council's 10 a.m. meeting in the Council Chamber.

Because of Rigsby's resignation, the Council could not approve an emergency zoning ordinance that would have taken effect immediately. To do so would require a four-fifths vote of the Council and, without Rigsby, this was impossible. Instead, the Council settled on the first vote passage of the liquor plan, with the second vote to come later.

In other action, the Council canvassed and declared the results of Saturday's election on liquor-by-the-drink, council positions, the mayor's post and the straw vote on garbage and property taxes.

Monday afternoon, following the Council meeting, two important council actions took place.

At 2:00 p.m. Councilman Lonnie Hollingsworth was sworn in as Mayor Pro Tem to replace Rigsby.

At 3:30 p.m., a drawing was held in the Council Chamber to decide positions on the run-off ballot for candidates in the mayor and council races.

In the mayor's race, the first name on the ballot will be Deaton Rigsby and the second Morris W. Turner.

In the Councilman, Place 2 race, Harvey Pruitt will appear first, with Carolyn Jordan occupying the second slot.

Jerry Nislar was chosen to head the Councilman, Place 4 race, with Dr. Bryce Campbell in the second position.

Financing straw vote draws fire

By IRENE FOXHALL
Staff Writer

In Saturday's election, Lubbock citizens were asked to vote for their preference of methods to finance city projects. An objection has been raised by the Lubbock League of Women Voters to the wording of that ballot.

In a press release issued Monday, Mrs. David Cummins, president of the League, said that the group had asked the City Council on March 9 to place the garbage service charge ordinance on the ballot voluntarily so that voters could express their approval or disapproval. Instead, Mrs. Cummins stated, the Council chose to put the whole issue of city finance on a straw ballot asking what method of financing the people preferred. It is impossible to conclude, she said, if the people are for or against the present garbage service charge ordinance, and any results are inconclusive.

"Of the three choices on the ballot, the people chose the service charge. This does not necessarily indicate that the citizens prefer the garbage service charge as it is, as some reports have indicated. Some voters have indicated to us that they were against the present garbage service charge, but voted for an overall service charge for city finance," Mrs. Cummins said.

Farentold, Briscoe visit city Wednesday

Two Democratic candidates for Governor of Texas will visit the Tech campus Wednesday. Frances Farentold and Dolph Briscoe will arrive in Lubbock Wednesday to campaign.

Only Briscoe will visit the Tech campus. Mrs. Farentold will be in Lubbock to open her campaign headquarters and be interviewed by the local news media. She will return to Lubbock in one or two weeks to visit the campus.

Mrs. Farentold will arrive at Lubbock Regional Airport at 3:30 p.m. The opening for the headquarters located at 8th and University, is set for 4:40 p.m. and she will depart for Wichita Falls at 6 p.m. Briscoe, who will be accompanied by his wife, will speak in the Coronado Room of the University Center at 1 p.m. He will then tour the campus and hold a press conference in the Mesa Room at 3 p.m. Another speech and a question and answer period will be at 8 p.m. in the University Center Ballroom.

Station co-op plan offers lower prices

Ammons-McAdams Auto Service (Texaco at 2301 Broadway) is co-operating with the College Allowance Program (CAP) to enable Tech students with IDs to purchase gas two cents a gallon cheaper than the average cost in Lubbock.

"Mac" McAdams, owner of the station has been a mechanic for 35 years and worked 14 years as a Ford mechanic. Students will be given a 10 per cent discount on all labor, parts and oil purchased at the station.

"The experimental co-op is presently under the authority of the CAP, but if it proves successful it will go under full ownership of University Services Inc.," said Curtis Brown, chairman for the board of directors of Texas Tech University Services, Inc.

The University Services, Inc. is chartered by the state as a non-profit organization. "It's non-profit in the same sense that all profits are turned back over to the Student Association.

Negotiations will begin to obtain ownership of the Gulf stations at Ave. Q and Broadway and Avenue X and 19th if the experiment is successful, said Brown.

Petitions due today

All circulating petitions for recreational - intramural facilities, whether filled with signatures or not, should be turned into either the Saddle Tramp or Student Association office by 5 p.m. today.

Kelly Hand, one of the Tramps spearheading the signature drive on behalf of the Intramural Department, said that 8,318 people have signed the petition as of Friday night.

The Tramps, Women's Service Organization, and Alpha Phi Omega are currently involved in a student survey to determine exactly what type of facilities are wanted by the Tech student body.

Iran quake claims 4000 lives

TEHRAN, Iran (AP)—An earthquake leveled up to 30 villages Monday in southern Iran in the country's worst quake since 1968.

The earthquake belt area of scattered villages has a total population of roughly 20,000, most of whom live in mud-brick dwellings prone to collapse in a tremor.

"The earthquake was so devastating and has leveled so many homes—in as many as 30 villages—that it will take days to find out the death toll," Gov. Manuchehr Pirooz of Fars Province said.

Lack of communications and the wide sprinkling of stricken villages "makes it impossible to determine the death toll at this stage," said Pirooz.

Unofficial estimates put the death toll at up to 4,000 many of them women and children still in bed when the quake struck at 5:38 a.m.

Officials are concentrating on relief work rather than counting deaths.

New tremors rocked the region at 4 p.m., an official for the Red Lion and Sun organization reported, and a sunspot cut radio communications with Tehran.

Speaking from the site of the disaster, 560 miles from Tehran, Pirooz termed the earth-quake the worst he had seen.

Pirooz, who flew to the scene from Shiraz immediately after the earthquake, reported by telephone that in a two-hour flight over the epicenter "I found 20 to 30 villages that were leveled or heavily damaged."

The quake struck at a time when most men of the predominantly agricultural region were already on their way to work in the fields, leaving sleeping families behind.

He landed at the village of Qeer, where "those who survived were either still in a state of shock, or cried for their loved ones."

A previous earthquake in 1968, which killed more than 10,000 in eastern Iran, and a gigantic tremor in 1963 in which more than 15,000 perished, both struck at similar times and took a heavy toll of women and children.

Pirooz, who said his own home in Shiraz, 105 miles away, was rocked by the force of the quake, immediately went to the airport, commandeered a helicopter and flew to the scene with regional military commander, Gen. Mohammed Zargham.

supply and re-establish road and radio communications. Construction materials were hauled in to build temporary shelters for homeless survivors.

Officials in Shiraz and Tehran began immediate relief and rescue efforts. Prince Mamoud Reza, who was visiting the area, was assigned by the shah to take over-all charge of the operation.

Late in the day, Pirooz said the situation was "well under control," with relief materials arriving, half a dozen helicopter loads of medical personnel on hand, and two field hospitals on the way.

Army engineering units from Shiraz began moving into the area to maintain the water Government officials said they knew of no foreigners killed in the earthquake.

Smith says polls not right, claims lead

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — "All polls smell to me," Gov. Preston Smith said Monday, but he added that a poll taken by his supporters showed he would make it to the Democratic primary run-off.

areas in the March 10-20 period. "It was more or less what you'd call a random poll," Smith said, with calls to 25 to 50 persons in a county, chosen at random.

Smith made the comment when asked what he thought about a Fort Worth Star-Telegram poll showing he would place fourth in the May 6 primary for governor.

The governor said it showed him with 32 per cent, Lt. Gov. Ben Barnes and Uvalde rancher Dolph Briscoe with about 19 per cent each and Rep. Frances Fahrendhold 14 per cent and the rest undecided.

"A polecat?" he responded. "All polls smell to me."

"We hope to win without a run-off," he said.

Smith also said at an informal news conference, that his supporters in various counties had been asked to poll their

Smith said he doubts the validity of polls because "a moment of truth comes when they go into vote."

On other matters, Smith was asked if he had instructed his staff to prepare a no-taxes budget for him to recommend to the special legislative session in June.

"We haven't talked about that," he said, although earlier he said he was "looking at all possibilities."

The treaty itself was negotiated over the past three years at the conference of the Committee on Disarmament in Geneva and was endorsed by the United Nations, which called for its ratification at the earliest possible time.

A reliable source, however, said Smith already had asked his staff to work up a fiscal 1973 budget that would require no new taxes.

The agreement is the first international accord in more than 25 years that calls for the destruction of weapons already in existence.

Of all the possibilities, the source said, that is the one Smith is leaning toward. But, he added, such a course might have to be abandoned because a hold-the-line or budget might affect fairly large groups, such as college students and state employees.

For the United States the germ-warfare pact formalizes decisions made three years ago by President Nixon when he ordered an end to development of germ-warfare weapons. The destruction of American stockpile of such weapons has been under way since then.

Smith also said he doubted he would endorse any candidate for the Democratic presidential nomination. He has said before he hopes to lead the Texas delegation to the party con-

U.S. and 73 other countries ratify germ-warfare treaty

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States, the Soviet Union and 72 other nations Monday signed a treaty prohibiting the use, manufacture or stockpiling of germ-warfare weapons and calling for the destruction of already existing arms.

peace and said its ratification would allow scientists previously working on germ warfare to "devote their entire work toward the end of disease."

In a ceremony at the State Department witnessed by President Nixon, Secretary of State William P. Rogers signed the pact on behalf of the United States.

Nixon said, however, that the world must realize the treaty, no matter how significant, is only a "means to an end."

He was followed by Lord Cromer for Great Britain and Anatoly Dobrynin, ambassador for the Soviet Union. The three nations co-sponsored the treaty negotiated last year in Geneva.

Dobrynin also spoke during the 25-minute ceremony, which was held simultaneously with similar events in Moscow and London, and said the agreement is a "concrete step toward general disarmament."

In his remarks Nixon called the treaty a significant step toward the major goal of world

Dobrynin said he hopes for immediate ratification of the treaty which he said "opens up new and further discussions for ending the arms race."

Policeman found guilty, receives life jail term

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP) — A judge ordered life imprisonment Monday for a former rookie Midland policeman who pleaded guilty to killing a two-year-old girl.

Michael Lee Moody, committed to the Rusk State Hospital for the criminally Insane in 1969, pleaded guilty Monday after a jury found him sane and capable of standing trial.

The jury deliberated on his sanity only 4½ minutes. State District Court Judge Peter Michael Curry assessed the sentence.

A Marine Corps veteran of Vietnam, Moody was charged with the August, 1968, suffocation slaying of blonde little Lori Margaret Gunn, a next-door-neighbor whose body was found in Moody's home at Midland.

Airline pilot outwits would-be hijacker

SAN DIEGO, Calif. (AP) — The veteran Pacific Southwest Airlines pilot who tricked a hijacker into leaving a commandeered 727 jetliner said Monday he was surprised the ruse worked.

Diego. A stewardess who asked Speck for his ticket said he wrote a note instead that demanded $500,000 and two parachutes.

Stanley Speck 31, was arrested Sunday night as he climbed down the airplane's ramp at Lindbergh Field here, expected to be handed navigational maps for a flight to Miami. Instead, he walked into the arms of FBI agents disguised as mechanics.

In one of several hand-written notes, the hijacker said he had a hand grenade. In another, he said he carried a gun.

The pilot, Capt. Arthur Steck, had convinced the hijacker to go outside to get the maps.

The plane landed at 8:05 p.m., and the passengers were allowed to deplane 35 minutes later. Steck, a pilot for 25 years, radioed the terminal and was told the maps would be delivered to the ramp. The hijacker opened the door, walked down the ramp and was seized by seven FBI agents and a security officer for the airline.

"I don't know what I would have done if he hadn't gone outside," Steck said. "I had no concrete plan."

The FBI said Speck was unarmed. He was identified as a political science graduate of Stanford University who did graduate work at the University of California at Davis and has been driving a San Francisco taxicab.

Speck was arraigned Monday before a U.S. Magistrate. He was ordered jailed without bond pending outcome of a psychiatric report and a new hearing April 21.

In San Francisco, Miriam Halford, Speck's mother, said her son is "writing the great American novel."

The hijacker seized control of the jetliner with 85 passengers and a crew of seven 10 minutes after it left Oakland on a scheduled nonstop flight to San

Ken 'Festus' Curtis

Ken "Festus" Curtis to appear in Tech Rodeo, April 20-22

Ken Curtis, "Festus Haggan" of the "Gunsmoke" television series, is featured guest star of the annual Tech Rodeo, April 20-22, at the Municipal Coliseum.

The rodeo, sponsored by the Tech Rodeo Association, is the world's largest indoor intercollegiate rodeo. It includes competitors from colleges and universities in West Texas, Oklahoma and New Mexico, according to Dr. Frank Hudson, professor of the Tech Animal Science Department.

All three 8 p.m. performances will include men's events such as calf and steer roping, bareback, bronc and bull riding, with goat tying, barrel racing and break-away roping competition for the ladies.

Curtis will perform at each show, accompanied by The Frontiersmen.

Hudson said that winners in each event will be awarded a silver buckle trophy. He added that the All-Around Cowboy and Cowgirl will receive as a trophy a leather-tooled saddle.

"Proceeds from the rodeo will go to finance the Tech rodeo team, maintenance of the Dub Parks Arena and scholarships," said Hudson.

Tickets are $4, $3, and $2.25 for reserved seats and $1.50 for general admission. They may be purchased at any Lubbock western store, at Sir Pants-A-Lot and at the coliseum door.

Man vs. beast

Bull-riding, calf-roping, and all the other traditional rodeo events will be included in the Tech intercollegiate rodeo April 20-22. Performances will be at 8 p.m. each night in the Municipal Coliseum.

Tower optimistic on re-election

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP)—Sen. John Tower, R-Tex., said Monday he is optimistic about his race for re-election, but he's taking nothing for granted.

"When you're only 5-foot-5 inches tall, a preacher's son, a former school teacher and a Republican in Texas, you can't afford to take much for granted," he told a news conference.

He said he has been campaigning in Texas every weekend.

Asked who he thinks will be his Democratic opponent, Tower replied:

"My opposition in November is a matter of supreme concern at the moment. I have no preference. And if I did, I wouldn't tell you."

Tower said he did not believe the current communist offensive will affect the withdrawal of ground troops from South Vietnam.

The South Vietnamese should be able to withstand the offensive, with the support of U.S. logistical, naval and air power, he said.

Earlier Monday, Tower was interrupted as he spoke to a group of high school pupils by a man demanding that he address himself to the problems of farm workers.

"What about the farm workers?" shouted the man, apparently referring to the National Labor Relations Board's efforts to halt secondary boycotting by Cesar Chavez' United Farm Workers Union.

The man left without a struggle when a policeman arrived.

Tower told newsmen that the NLRB had no choice but to seek action prohibiting secondary boycotting, since this is a feature of the laws which the NLRB enforces.

However, he said, the NLRB's record in the past has been "pro-union." He added that he is supporting legislation that would transfer cases involving unfair labor practices from the NLRB to the federal district courts.

Tower was interrupted as he addressed about 2,000 youngsters on the space program at a technical conference.

Chavez' supporters have picketed or interrupted Republican officials here for several days over the NLRB's action, claiming the Nixon Administration is to blame.

New addict said emerging

HOUSTON, (AP)—The head of one of Houston's largest drug abuse clinics said Monday a different heroin addict is emerging, that of the middle class.

Dr. Harold Rockaway, medical director of the St. Joseph Hospital Clinic, called for a reduction in the penalties against marijuana use and asked that Texas laws stop regarding drug abusers as criminals.

Rockaway testified before the Texas Senate's Interim Drug Study Committee at a public hearing.

Mrs. James Tinsley, president of the Houston School board, also said she favors reducing the marijuana penalty from a felony to a misdemeanor.

"Heroin addicts are not criminals, they are people who are sick," Rockaway said.

He suggested the legislature pump money into more methadone maintenance programs. Proponents of methadone say it allows addicts to lead normal lives.

Rockaway said Houston has four drug abuse centers but needs five or six more to reach all the city's addicts.

He blamed the increase in youthful heroin addicts in part to hypocrisy on the marijuana issue, saying adults had not told the truth about pot. He said pot really is just a mild intoxicant.

"It's no wonder they didn't believe us when we told them about heroin," he said.

Mrs. Tinsley said a survey indicating a 5 per cent use of opiates among Houston students is most alarming, adding that the survey showed a 2 per cent increase over last year in secondary schools.

Mrs. Tinsley described new antidrug curriculum materials being introduced in kindergarten through sixth grades and urged the creation of small "rap" groups among teen-agers and young doctors, lawyers and pharmacists to explore the truth about damaging drugs.

Senators Don Kennard of Fort Worth and Barbara Jordan of Houston conducted the hearing.

The committee also plans to hold a hearing in Fort Worth.

Girl named judge in Colorado

SALIDA, Colo. (AP)—Twenty-year-old Holly Leewaye will don a black robe Monday, her first day in office as municipal judge.

Mrs. Leewaye, an attractive blue-eyed, brunette, took the oath of office Friday after her appointment by the city council. She is believed to be the youngest person holding the office in the country. She will deal primarily with traffic and parking violations and other misdemeanors in this community of 4,300.

Poll shows Barnes leading Briscoe in state governor's race

FORT WORTH (AP)—In a copyrighted statewide poll prepared for the Fort Worth Star-Telegram, Lt. Gov. Ben Barnes holds a narrow lead over Dolph Briscoe in the race for the Texas governor's chair.

Rep. Frances Farenthold is in third place and Gov. Preston Smith is in fourth place in the Star-Telegram tabulations prepared by a firm of pollsters.

Previously, the Star-Telegram editorially endorsed Barnes for the post.

The survey was conducted Monday through Friday among 2,000 registered voters across the state.

When qualified as a registered voter and likely participant in the Democratic primary on May 6, each respondent was asked:

"The following is an alphabetized list of candidates in the governor's lieutenant governor and U.S. Senate race.

Please tell me which one would receive your vote if the election were held today?"

The results:
Governor-Barnes, 27 per cent; Briscoe, 25 per cent; Rep Farenthold 14 per cent; Smith, 11 per cent; all others, 3 per cent; undecided 20 per cent.

Lt. Governor-Bill Hobby, 22 per cent; Joe Christie, 8 per cent; Ralph Hall, 3 per cent; Bill Jones, 3 per cent; all others, 2 per cent; undecided 42 per cent.

U. S. Senate—Ralph Yarborough, 43 per cent; Barefoot Sanders, 18 per cent; Hugh Wilson, 3 per cent; Tom Cartledge, 2 per cent; Alfonso Veloz, 1 per cent; undecided 33 per cent.

A poll conducted by the Houston Chronicle March 9-16 also had Barnes leading, but with a wider margin. That poll showed Barnes with 33 per cent, Briscoe with 29 per cent, Smith with 21 per cent and Farenthold with 17 per cent. Farenthold was called "a fast-charging fourth" by the Chronicle.

In the senate race, the Chronicle poll had Yarborough leading Sanders 56-44. It did not survey the lieutenant governor's race.

Also the Chronicle poll did not interview voters but instead was "based on a cross section of expert political opinions at local levels," the newspaper said.

In the Star-Telegram poll, for purposes of analyzing areas of weakness and strength, the state sampling was divided into five regions.

West Texas points are west of Fort Worth including El Paso and the Panhandle. East Texas included points east of Dallas. North Texas, in addition to Fort Worth and Dallas, also includes Waco, Denton, Sherman-Denison, and Wichita Falls. South Texas takes in Austin, San Antonio and the Rio Grande Valley. The Gulf Coast includes all points from Beaumont to Corpus Christi.

U.S. Senate-Yarborough percentages ranged from 52 per cent in the Gulf Coast area to a low of 31 per cent in the East. Sanders was strongest in the East with 30 per cent and was weakest in the Gulf Coast area with 11 per cent.

Governor-Barnes' strength came in the North with 33 per cent with his weakest area being the West, where he received 20 per cent. Briscoe's strength lay in the South where he had 41 per cent. He was weakest in the Gulf Coast with 19 per cent.

Farenthold's best percentage was in the Gulf Coast where she had 23 per cent. She was weakest in the West with 7 per cent. Smith was strongest in the West with 17 per cent and weakest in the South with 8 per cent. Lt. Governor-Hobby's returns varied from a high of 27 per cent in the Gulf Coast to 16 per cent in the West. Connally ranged from a high of 29 per cent in the South to 17 per cent in the North. Christie had 20 per cent in the West and fell to 2 per cent in the Gulf Coast. Hall's best percentage came in the East with 11 per cent. He had a low of 3 per cent in the West and Gulf Coast.
