Iraqis free more allied prisoners amid uprisings

By The Associated Press

With rapid-fire prisoner releases and proclamations, Iraq struggled to clear away the fallout of its Gulf War defeat Tuesday. But an anti-Saddam uprising was reported sweeping city after city, in what a dissident spokesman promised would be "a long, violent battle."

The Iraqis turned over 35 prisoners of war, including 15 Americans, to the Red Cross in Baghdad, and said they were the last allied captives. Bad weather delayed a transfer of the ex-POWs out of Iraq in exchange for Iraqi prisoners.

The Iraqis formally annulled their "annexation" of Kuwait and pledged to return looted Kuwaiti property.

The Kurdish opposition claimed it seized a major city in the north, just days after violent protests against President Saddam Hussein began spreading through Iraq's southern cities. American military sources said Iraqi army units were choosing sides in bloody local showdowns.

Officials and news organizations reported that 28 Western journalists have disappeared while traveling in southern Iraq to report on the civil unrest. Four are newsmen from U.S. organizations.

Pentagon sources said a first wave of returning U.S. troops would arrive at Andrews Air Force Base outside Washington on Thursday.

The 4,400 soldiers, including members of the 82nd Airborne Division, might be personally welcomed home by President Bush, the sources said.

On Monday, the Iraqis moved quickly to meet the allies' demands for immediate prisoner releases, freeing six Americans and four other captives as an initial gesture.

On Tuesday, they freed a second group according to the Red Cross. Their names were not released. "Iraq has completed the handing over of all prisoners," an Iraqi Foreign Ministry spokesman was quoted as saying by Baghdad Radio.

That meant 29 military people remained unaccounted for in the war's aftermath. The Pentagon on Tuesday also updated the U.S. casualty toll in the 43-day war to 115 dead and 330 wounded. Tens of thousands of Iraqis were believed killed.

The Americans freed Monday in Baghdad went by road to Jordan and then were flown to Bahrain and the U.S. Navy hospital ship Mercy. Air Force Col. Wynn Mabry, a medical team chief, later told reporters, "I'm pleased to report that they are all in good shape and in good spirits."

The prisoners freed Tuesday were to have boarded a Red Cross plane for Saudi Arabia, after it flew in 294 Iraqi POWs in an exchange.

But the flight from Saudi Arabia was scrubbed because of poor visibility there and high winds in Baghdad, U.S. military officials said. Weather permitting, the swap will take place Wednesday, they said.

The U.S.-led alliance holds at least 63,000 Iraqi prisoners. Terms of the provisional cease-fire call for a full prisoner release, but U.S. officials say they will not repatriate any Iraqi soldier against his will.

The allies also demand that an estimated 30,000 Kuwaiti civilians abducted by the Iraqis be freed. Red Cross officials said they were discussing the missing Kuwaitis with the Iraqi government.

Some Iraqi soldiers returning to their homeland have joined with other anti-Saddam elements in protests and violence in at least a dozen southern cities in recent days. The upheaval reportedly was led by fundamentalists among the Shiite Muslims.

Tank units of Saddam's trusted

Republican Guard were in the southern city of Basra, exchanging machine-gun fire with elements of the regular army, said U.S. military officials in Saudi Arabia. The Pentagon later reported Basra had quieted down.

Both the U.S. officers and sources in the Kurdish opposition movement said Iraqi military units appeared to be reorganizing and choosing sides, both in the south and in Kurdistan.

In Syria, Jalal Talabani, anti-Saddam leader of the Patriotic Union of Kurdistan, claimed that the northern provincial capital of Erbil and nearby towns were seized by Kurdish guerrillas.

First troops returning, homecomings starting

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — The Bush administration said Tuesday it would steer clear of the civil strife that has hit Iraq following the Gulf War and warned Iraq's neighbors to do the same. The Pentagon made plans to welcome home up to 15,000 veterans of the war during the next week.

President Bush hailed the troops as "American heroes" and said "home towns all across America" will welcome them home soon.

"Their magnificent victory in the gulf has brought a renewed sense of pride and confidence here at home," Bush said. "It's contagious, it's all over our country. You can feel it every single minute."

White House spokesman Marlin Fitzwater said the administration welcomed the release of 35 American and allied POWs to Red Cross officials in Baghdad.

Pentagon spokesman Pete Williams said the POWs, of which 15 are Americans, will be flown out of Baghdad on Wednesday after an allied transport carries 294 Iraqi POWs back home. He said poor weather had delayed the exchange, which had been scheduled for Tuesday.

Maj. Gen. Martin Brandtner, the deputy director of operations for the Joint Staff, said interviews with the first six U.S. POWs to be released indicated "they were treated well."

The general said there was no reason to doubt Iraqi claims that they held no more allied prisoners.

At the State Department, spokeswoman Margaret Tutwiler cautioned Iran and other outsiders to stay out of the civil strife that has afflicted a dozen Iraqi cities.

"The United States respects and believes in the territorial integrity of Iraq, and we do not believe that other states should involve themselves in the internal matters of Iraq, and that other states should refrain from interfering in Iraq's internal affairs," she said.

Defense Secretary Dick Cheney said "significant unrest" directed against President Saddam Hussein has occurred inside Iraq, but that the United States and its coalition partners won't get involved.

"I'm not sure whose side you'd want to be on," Cheney said.

As for homecoming U.S. troops, Pentagon military sources, speaking on condition of anonymity, said 4,400 members of the Army's XVIII Airborne Corps, including members of the 82nd Airborne Division, would be among the first group returning on Thursday.

The sources said Bush was expected to welcome them at Andrews Air Force base outside Washington, but White House deputy spokesman Roman Popadiuk said he was not aware of plans for a presidential welcome.

Within a week of the initial return ceremony, up to 15,000 members of all service branches are expected to be back in the United States from the gulf area, said a senior Pentagon official.

The official said the redeployment of Operation Desert Storm's 540,000 troops "will begin this week," and that Bush was expected to address the issue of the timing of the massive return Wednesday night in his speech before a joint House-Senate session.

Loan program helps rural communities

By BOB BERLIN

The University Daily

Health care students who agree to practice in health care-deficient counties are eligible for a forgivable loan program sponsored by state Sen. Steven Carriker, D-Roby.

However, only five such loans have been awarded to West Texas students, said Shirley McManigal, dean of the school of Allied Health and adviser of the program.

The Texas Outstanding Rural Scholar Recognition and Forgiveness Loan Program is designed to help the rural community meet its health care personnel needs and to motivate students from rural communities to go into health professions, McManigal said.

The program is funded by 50 percent state funds and 50 percent local funds raised by the sponsor and is administered by the Texas Higher Education Coordinating Board. Deadline for applications is April 1. The student must be sponsored by a rural community and must sign a loan agreement that stipulates he or she will return to that community to practice.

For each year the student practices in the community, the sponsor will forgive one year's repayments on the loan — the student begins payment on the loan when he or she leaves the community.

The program is designed for maximum flexibility in what the community decides is needed, McManigal said. If the community is in need of a physical therapist, they can choose to sponsor a student in that area of study.

"The student must work with a community agent," she said. "And that community agent has to be some sort of organized entity that has a board of directors."

However, she said "it is up to the student to take the initiative to contact that community agent. So we've put most of the responsibility at the community level. We don't think it is up to us to dictate to the community what they need."

The community also can agree to pay only part of their percentage of the loan, depending on the agreement reached with the student.

"In the nation, there is just a terrible shortage in nursing and allied health," McManigal said. "Right now there are 13 counties in West Texas that don't have a doctor and about 24 counties that don't have a hospital."

In the bill, 215 Texas counties are considered rural.

Eligible students include: high school seniors graduating in the top 25 percent of their classes and college students with a 3.0 GPA in their last years of study before entering a health professions program.

Students who have high school diplomas, demonstrate motivation and are enrolled at least half-time in a postsecondary health care institution also are eligible.

"This is a valuable program for the future of our children and the future of our rural communities," McManigal said.

Nobel Prize recipient discusses theories on origin of universe

By CHARRIE SOUTH

The University Daily

Leon M. Lederman, 1988 Nobel Prize winner in physics, called his Tuesday lecture to an audience of about 130 on the Texas Tech campus "A Brief History of the First 15 Million Years" and "From Miletus to Waxahachie."

Lederman began with theories about the universe developed by Thales of Miletus, Greece, and ended with a map of the new superconducting super collider planned for Waxahachie.

Thales thought that a simple principle accounting for everything in the universe must exist. Democritus, another Greek, called the smallest particle should be called a-tomos, or indivisible.

Later study showed that atoms were not the smallest particles in the universe, but that quarks and leptons are the smallest, he said.

"With all these particles, we were beginning to worry about whether the Greek promise of simplicity was true, or whether in fact, as our president said, it was a cruel hoax," Lederman said.

Scientists now know of six leptons and five quarks. The top quark has not yet been found.

"Everything in the universe is made up of quarks and leptons. Everything. Even everything in Texas," Lederman said.

The superconducting super collider in Waxahachie, which will be a laboratory for the study of subatomic particles such as quarks and leptons, probably will be modeled after Lederman's one-time home base Fermilab. Fermilab is 4 miles in circumference and 30 feet underground.

A particle travels around Fermilab's super collider 50,000 times per second. The Waxahachie superconducting super collider will be bigger than Fermilab, he said.

"During the time when the super collider's location wasn't set, I was giving a talk to a governors' conference. I said, 'One of the candidates is a city in Texas by the name of Waxahachie,' and the governor of Texas corrected me.

"He said, 'You'd better learn how to pronounce that right, because that's where the accelerator's going to be, and it's Waxahachie,'" Lederman said with a Texas accent.

Lederman also said particle physicists and cosmologists are working closely to determine the origin of the universe.

Cosmologists have learned that the Hubble Telescope is showing an expanding universe.

Lederman shared the Nobel prize in 1988 with two colleagues at Columbia University, Melvin Schwartz and Jack Steinberger, for their role in detecting the muon neutrino, a lepton.

Tainted Sudafed found in Dallas

By The Associated Press

DALLAS — Cold medication capsules from a shipment linked to cyanide poisonings in the state of Washington have been purchased here, but authorities said they do not exhibit evidence of tampering.

A Dallas man said Monday that he purchased a 10-capsule package of Sudafed 12 Hour capsules with the same lot number as the tainted capsules blamed in two deaths and an injury in the Tacoma and Olympia, Wash., areas.

On Sunday, Burroughs Wellcome ordered the recall of about 1 million packages of Sudafed. Customers were advised to return the product to the store where they bought it.

"Despite what appears to be a localized situation, the company has decided to institute a nationwide recall," said Phil Tracy, president and chief executive officer for Burroughs Wellcome.

The company, based in Research Triangle Park, N.C., said all three victims consumed Sudafed from blister packs bearing the lot number 8U2846. The boxes bore the lot numbers 002847 and 8U2849.

The lot number stamped on the foil wrapper should match that on the outer packaging, the company said.

Man awaits news of soldier's death

By The Associated Press

A Panhandle man awaited more information Tuesday about the death of his son, who was killed last week in the Persian Gulf when he picked up a bomblet.

Army Spec. Tommy Don Butler, 22, died in the blast last Friday, said his father, Gary Butler, a Potter County sheriff's officer. Bomblets are small explosive devices contained within larger bombs, said Army officials.

Butler said funeral arrangements were pending.

The elder Butler said the soldier's mother, Kathleen Butler, had asked him not to comment on his reaction to the death. The two are divorced.

Mrs. Butler, a nurse at High Plains Baptist Hospital, told the Amarillo Globe-News that her son was an avid sports fan. She did not immediately return a phone call Tuesday from The Associated Press.

Butler said military officials did not divulge further details about the death. He added that he was notified Saturday morning by Army representatives.

Tommy Don Butler was stationed with the U.S. Army B-Battery, 3rd Battalion, 18th Field Artillery in Ft. Sill, Okla.

Butler is the first soldier from Fort Sill to die in the war. Daran Neal, a post spokesman, said he didn't know where Butler was when he picked up the bomblet.

SA elections Make a difference — VOTE

Nick Federspiel
Student Senate President

Every March students have the right to impact student government by voting on Election Day.

There are many issues that face the university and student government. Chief among these are budget cuts in Austin which will affect students. This year the Student Association has worked with the administration to see that our voice is not only heard in Austin, but that our voice makes a difference in Austin. The challenge today on campus is to vote for the students who will continue to be competent and informed of the critical issues which will face Texas Tech.

Students are being asked to voice their opinions today on the ballot with two questions. First, whether or not a student representative should be on the board of regents. Secondly, whether or not funding should be increased for faculty salaries and the library.

But the challenges for Tech go beyond the legislature in Austin. From parking to buses on campus, it is clear that student government leaders should be prepared to 1) know the concerns of students and 2) have the experience to see that our needs are met.

I should add that Tech is recognized for its leadership in student government. While other student government associations in the SWC are leading special interest rallies and stirring up trouble with the university administration, the Tech SA is cultivating an atmosphere of cooperation and creating the best possible university environment for our students.

We should all take the time today to vote for the students who will lead us next year.

Today on the ballot are candidates for president, internal vice president, and external vice president. In addition, 92 students are candidates for the 59 seats in the Student Senate.

Election polls are open today. I encourage students to take advantage of their right to vote. Make your decisions and cast a vote for the students who will be leading student government next year.

Prejudice rings

To The Editor:

I would personally like to thank Mr. Brian Mayes for being a perfect example of the prejudice that is rampant in this country.

His views on democrats do not bother me, but I am afraid he shows his ignorance by trying to blame one party for all the problems in the world. The republicans have done plenty to mess up this country as well.

The problem I have with Mr. Mayes is his stereotyping of people and his prejudice which both help spread many problems in this world. He stereotypes liberals, pacifists, democrats and journalists.

Mayes claims that all journalists (except him, of course) are pot-smoking liberals. Even if most of the journalists are liberals, smoking pot has nothing to do with it. Perhaps the reason the press is liberal is so that they can write unbiased articles. I wish I could say the same for Mr. Mayes, editorial or not.

Mr. Mayes claims that people with odd hair have no respect for authority. He also calls them "disturbed." I am not sure why Mr. Mayes has such a hard time accepting other people. I am what you call a person with odd hair, but I have no problem respecting authority. I believe it is very ignorant to try to classify all people in one group.

Many employers look for individuality in people. Mr. Mayes claims that those people with "odd hair" will be no competition for him when getting a job. Let's hope Mr. Mayes' work can stand on its own because he lacks the individuality necessary to stand out in a crowd.

Also, it scares me that he gets so uptight about people protesting and getting involved in issues. Mr. Mayes probably wants the First Amendment voided. I protested the war because I didn't believe innocent people should be killed because of our greed and love of oil. I do not protest every issue that comes up, but I have the right to if I don't agree with what is going on in our government. Does Mr. Mayes really love America? He surely doesn't seem to value the rights given to us Americans.

There is another point I must make. I have a really hard time believing Mr. Mayes is a true journalist. Even though his article was an editorial, certain journalism rules still apply, like honesty and avoiding stereotypes. Mr. Mayes throughout the article called various people names, classifying them into certain groups. This does not seem very professional, on or off the editorial page.

I attended the peace rally that Mr. Mayes referred to in his article. His story was filled with lies and half-truths. To begin with, we were singing long before the news got there and continued long after they left. No matter how Mr. Mayes feels about peace protesters, he has an obligation to tell the truth. It really scares me that KLBK Channel 13 has hired him as a journalist.

Note: Mr. Mayes, if you are reading this, I do not appreciate the fact that you told me that you respected my views after the peace rally. If this was true, then why did you write lies about our rally? (And you called Ann Richards a liar!)

I am really sorry that Mr. Mayes is so threatened by people who are active in our government, people who dress differently and wear different hairstyles, people who have different sexual preferences, people who have different political philosophies and the list goes on and on. Mr. Mayes obviously opposes anything or anybody different from him. It makes me wonder if he is a private member of the Ku Klux Klan, and hates Jews, thinks all blacks are stupid and believes all Hispanics are lazy. Or, were you just too afraid to print that, Mr. Mayes?

I hope everyone who read Brian Mayes' article recognizes the prejudice and stereotypical attitudes that he along with many other people hold. Let us recognize this and strive to be his opposite.

Stephanie Gilbreath

Sounding off

To The Editor:

To Mr. Mayes. Being a reasonably well-informed conscientious student, I read your column of 2/28 with a mixture of awe and disgust. I admire anyone who chooses to voice their opinion — it is everyone's right and not everyone is intelligent enough to form their own, much less have it publicized. But my admiring soon turned to a sickening taste in my mouth as I realized your intent.

I consider myself a democrat — that may or may not classify me as a liberal; but you, sir, committed a glaring error in assuming all democrats are liberals. It's just not that easy to make a distinction. In your column, you chose to group the ACLU, animal rights activists, gay-rights associations, flag-burners, and of course, those "wacky" anti-war demonstrators as one single, solitary, hell-bound group of liberal democrats. Granted, I do not belong to any of these organizations — they do not interest me, but they are of great interest to those members that are involved in them. May I ask you a question? Why the hell did you become a reporter if you can't "...report in an unbiased manner on all issues and topics..." and if you feel you may not be able to "...keep my personal feelings to myself..."?

If, as a reporter, you cannot take the good with the bad (i.e. "unfortunately I was the reporter assigned to attend this function," the function being an anti-war demonstration), perhaps you should consider becoming a republican politician; yeah, that's it, Brian Mayes for president. Sends a shiver down your spine, huh?

As a liberal-type person, I have supported our troops, the war, as well as President Bush since the Aug. 2 invasion of Kuwait. If anything, I believe President Bush should have acted even sooner — maybe fewer lives would have been lost. How can you blame the liberals for the length of the war — were they the ones in Kennebunkport or playing golf while American lives were being increasingly threatened?

Due to length limits, there are many more things I would like to address that I cannot. Please do allow me to touch on one or two more points.

Yes, I do get mad when I see people buying junkfood with food stamps — do you mean to imply that I wouldn't? The question is, what do we do about it? Sure, there are jobs in the paper; I believe there are jobs for just about everyone, too. But a minimum wage job will not feed, clothe, house, much less pay all the other assorted bills that an average-sized family incurs; therefore, that makes Welfare, AFDC, and WIC a necessity. Perhaps you'd rather see them starve and die of exposure.

Finally, your attack on the homeless and jobless man who returned the $30,000 for the "measly" $200 reward. He was honest enough to return the money — the lady had no obligation to even give him a reward, but she did. So what! He blew the money on "booze and cigarettes." How do you know he didn't use the remaining $160 for "clothes and taking a shower and looking for employment?"

Mr. Mayes, I'm glad you have an opinion and chose to voice it. This is encouraging; at least we know that you can think. How well you do that is another matter. Before you choose to take on such a task again, perhaps you can find some answers to some of the problems you stated, or heaven forbid, even something nice to say about anything.

Joeli Moorman

Thanks Mayes

To The Editor:

What a response the editorial by Mr. Mayes received. He sure upset a few "radicals." I may not agree with his statements completely (though I do believe he meant many of his comments to be taken tongue in cheek). I am glad someone on this campus finally wrote an opinion that a majority of the Texas Tech students feel. In a way, he is a spokesman for the silent majority that so often keeps their mouth shut while The UD represents only a narrow portion of the students. I would like to thank Mr. Mayes for having the will and intelligence to pen such an editorial.

In response to the editorial of Mr. Rodriguez. It is a shame that a man who was fired from The University Daily staff would blame Mr. Mayes on losing his job. Mr. Rodriguez, it was you sir, who used the f-word on three separate occasions in The UD. It was you sir who degraded our university and the student population with your vulgarities.

I don't believe Mr. Mayes opposes the Constitution. In fact, he was only making observations. While he may have added a little humor to his observations, I believe he still made his point that liberals hold narrow, unusual views on life, and most people would agree. The last three elections have proved that.

One last comment. Mr. Rodriguez, I was one of the students who called various officials at the university about your use of vulgarities. I also talked to you and I asked you if you believe in God. You said no. I guess that explains a lot. You also stated that it did not bother you in the least that we have a large elderly population attending this university that would not think all students talk like you. Do you not care that someone's grandmother read your column a few weeks back?

Brandie Woodward

God bless Brian

To The Editor:

In regard to the publication written by Brian Mayes, we could do only one thing, and that is to stand up and cheer for conservatism. Since starting Texas Tech in the fall semester, we have yet to see but one article that comes forth from the conservative side of the university and states the story as republicans see it. Biased it is and biased it must be to project the old fashioned, traditional and downright American point of view. If I had a vote for every liberal article published in The University Democrat, I could have put Ed Koch into the White House four terms over against George Washington.

But politics is not the issue here, the ethics and values of the American people are. Most people do not look the eagle in the eye and take it for the truth and simplicity that it stands for. Conservatism is and always has been an idea conveyed by its supporters as a concern for the morals and well being of the American people. Brian Mayes was merely presenting his own opinion and ideas by sculpting an article, constituting his point of view which is by the way conservative. I only wish that there were more Americans with his backbone and grit. Thank you Brian for looking at the problem and calling a villain a villain. God bless America and God bless you, Brian.

Liberal defined

To The Editor:

Once upon a time the word "liberal" conjured up in my mind images of Franklin Delano Roosevelt, John Fitzgerald Kennedy, and Martin Luther King. I thought of old-fashioned ideals like tolerance, compassion and equal opportunity. But now thanks to the prose of "unbiased" journalist Brian Mayes (UD 2/28), I realize that those "liberal" guys were really communist flag-burning homosexual hippies bent on the destruction of the American way of life, apple pie and Sears Roebuck.

Thank God for Richard Nixon, David Duke and Brian Mayes.

Jerome O'Callaghan

Look around

To The Editor:

Ms. Guajardo, I have just finished reading your utterly pompous article (Thursday, Feb. 28) in which you stated your displeasure with the fact that the news briefings regarding the war in the Gulf have interrupted your afternoon soaps. I find it quite deplorable that you feel you have been so needlessly inconvenienced by the war.

It became quite clear after reading your article that you neither know nor care about any of the people currently affected by the situation in the Gulf. The fact that you feel so put out by these updates is revolting. If you could find it in your narrow mind and shallow heart to look beyond your own little world, you might see that, indeed, the majority of Americans have a deep personal interest in this war that you are having to "bear with" until you can get on with the soap lives.

Look around and you will see that literally millions of Americans are truly distressed over the safety of their loved ones in the Middle East. Stop and think for a minute about the children who will never again be held in daddy's arms. Think about the mother who has lost her only child. Consider the little ones who will grow up having never known the love of their fathers.

Just once, I urge you to look beyond your own self-interest and realize that millions of lives, in North America and abroad, have been irrevocably changed as a result of this war. Whether you support it or not, surely you must realize that we have been a nation at war. Including Iraqis and Kuwaitis, thousands of lives have been lost.

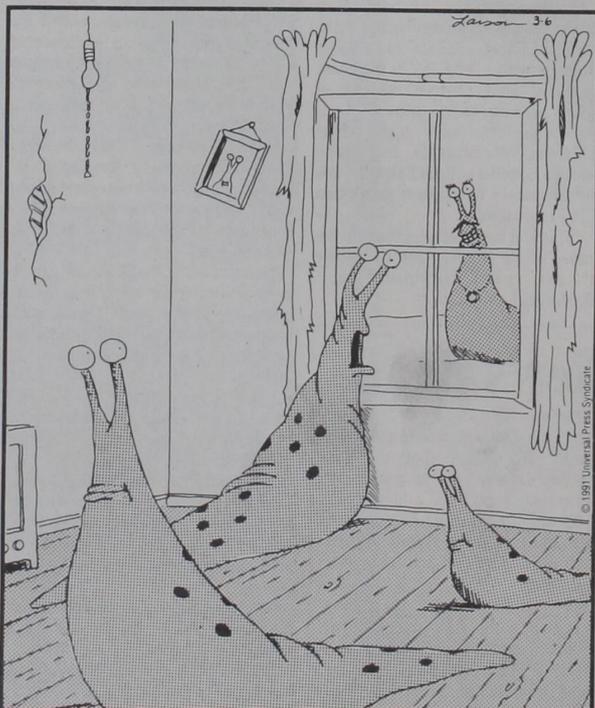

Still, in the midst of the fighting and concern over those in harm's way, you are so self-centered that you feel the need to whine about not being able to watch soap operas. You opened your article by saying "everyone in the country should have only the utmost respect for them," in reference to the troops. Do not insult those of us who do care by insinuating that you have anything even remotely resembling respect for our troops and then suggest that said briefings be cancelled, normal soap schedules be uninterrupted, and at the least, the use of "a purple podium" (and other decorator colors) to make the briefings more tolerable.

Your selfish attitude is disgraceful. My only suggestion to you is that you get up off the couch, take a good look around, and see that people are truly concerned about the war between the Coalition and Iraq. I hope that you are able to understand that these real life issues far outweigh your petty concerns over the fantasy lives of your soap characters. God bless our troops!

1991 Student Association Candidates

1. How do you think the proposed budget cuts will impact the university and what can the Student Association do to help the situation?

2. What would your role be as a student leader and what priority would top your agenda?

3. How would you ensure Texas Tech will assert itself as a competitive force among Texas universities?

4. How would you improve the Student Association's performance as a student leadership organization?

5. At what state do you see the university now and where would you like it to be at the end of your tenure, if elected?

Candidates for SA Presidents

Gary Bannister

1. It is difficult to assess the impact of a budget cut on the University. While the final decision rests with the Texas legislature, it will be my responsibility and duty to provide the lawmakers in Austin with information why a cut in funding to Tech would be detrimental not only to the school, but to the West Texas economy. At this time the best thing to do is promote Texas Tech to the best of our ability and let them know down in Austin exactly what we stand for up here.

2. My role as student leader is to put the student first. A student leader's success is determined by how effectively he/she meets the needs of the student body. I will represent all students and their concerns as if they were my own. The top priority on my list is to help provide students with a sense of worth, accomplishment, and to better identify themselves with Texas Tech. I will accomplish this goal by going out and speaking to the 70 plus groups I spoke to before the election and asking them what I could do for them.

3. Texas Tech is already asserting itself as a competitive force among Texas universities. For example, the Texas Tech Law school is one of the best in Texas. The increase in faculty salaries and student admission standards are just two examples of Texas Tech's commitment to excellence. My goal is to cultivate a desire to be the best. We must stimulate a continued belief in ourselves and Texas Tech University.

4. The Student Association must be proactive to the students' needs. Student leaders must address potential opportunities and problems with immediacy and efficiency. The Student Association must strive for unification. Though Tech is large and diverse, common goals can be achieved by endeavoring to work together. I believe the Student Association is the catalyst for promoting a better and stronger unified student body. Some ways include: paying special attention to helping new student organizations and remaining accessible.

5. I see Texas Tech as a premier research university and a major driving force in the state of Texas and especially in the West Texas economy. Texas Tech is continually being recognized as an excellent academic university in the nation. At the end of my tenure greater strides will have been taken to make Texas Tech better recognized for its diversity with its strengths in business, law, medicine, engineering, communications and agriculture.

Robert Guimbellot
"The Mad Hatter"

1. The proposed budget cuts will not impact the university that hard. This is due to the fact that Lubbock has some excellent politicians in Austin who know how to mess over the other guy to keep the money here. We should have no problems.

2. My role as a student leader would be not to be one. The students don't need to be led, they need a chance to lead themselves and decide for themselves what is right and what is wrong. My first priority would be to give the students as much self-determination as the office allows.

3. I would not want to. I don't care whether or not we are competitive in sports. I don't want to see the university compete for the masses of people, because I don't want to see the university grow to the size of UT, since we would lose the current quality of education that we now enjoy due to monster classes. And I don't want to see us compete for quality of education with UT or A&M, because I don't want us to lower our standards.

4. I would improve the S.A. by making sure that it interfered with as few people as possible. Also, I would allow for people who wished to quit being a member of the Student Association. Right now, every student of Tech is a member whether he likes it or not.

5. Quite honestly, the university as a whole will stay the same no matter who is elected as S.A. President, so I would like to see the university just as it is, with the few minor improvements as listed above. This is quite feasible. Anyone who believes that they can greatly change this place in a year is self-deluded.

Russell Laird

1. The effect of the proposed budget cuts cannot yet be determined. The Legislative Budget Board has proposed a 9.1 percent decrease in funding for Texas Tech. These projections are based on present levels of funding.

However, if sufficient sources of revenue are not found, some cuts must be implemented in university budgets everywhere. If this does take place we must fight to ensure that the cuts in our budget are as low as possible in comparison with other universities and state agencies.

2. The SA President should be a leader and representative of the whole 25,000-member student body. This position leaves no room for on-the-job training. We must have a leader who will represent the needs of the majority of the students on our campus while protecting the rights of the minority. The SA President serves the student body in many ways. When members of the community interact with our SA President, he represents the views and attitudes of the whole student body.

3. Communication is essential with other Texas universities to exchange ideas with them and represent our needs and interests. There is no need to be constantly "reinventing the wheel." When we are able to exchange ideas with other universities to improve our situation we should take every opportunity to do so. Also, by cooperating with other universities and concentrating our efforts we can often accomplish more with certain legislative issues than if we were working as the "lone ranger."

4. To truly be a student leadership organization our Student Association must first work to earn the respect of our students and to represent their needs. As effective student leaders we must not only be responsible with our work in the Student Association, but must first be respectable as students in the classroom and on campus.

5. Texas Tech has many things to be proud of and impacts the state in many areas. However, we must constantly work to ensure that our university remains competitive and never becomes complacent. As SA President I will show that Texas Tech is a powerful force among Texas universities, and is second to none.

Richard Qualls

1. Tech is facing a period of continued growth in enrollment and decreased funding. I would like to see the standards raised again and higher retention rates. As far as the budget cuts are concerned, I hope that Tech can retain as much funding as possible. However, we will face some cuts and the students need to have an input on the cut programs. I would like to see Tech with quality students and program at the end of 1992.

2. The most important role that I can play as SA President is to be a liaison between the students and the administration. I want to keep an open door policy and visit with other students as often as I can. I have been active with the SA and my college. I feel this will give me a better insight into other student opinions. My top priority is to fight against the budget cuts and help to preserve the programs that the students want and discontinue the unwanted programs.

3. I feel the SA needs to be more publicized to the students at Tech. I think the majority of the students do not know what the SA does or provides to the Tech campus. This is shown by voter turnout. I would like to have more students involved and take advantage of the SA programs such as the "Word" magazine, We Think Students Day, housing guide, student health insurance, Family Day, etc. The only way that the SA can improve these programs is to have more people involved.

4. Texas Tech currently competes with ten other universities in Texas. However, we cannot stop now. Tech has been known as a research and technological university in the past. We have to continue to improve our research facilities and faculty. Currently, Tech ranks fourth among state supported universities in research funding. The SA and administration could work more with the City of Lubbock in recruiting new industries to Lubbock. In return, this would lead to more research funds to Tech.

5. The SA needs a strong voice in Austin to lobby for Tech's share of funding. However, I feel that cuts will occur across the board and Tech will be included, but we do not need to lose more than UT or A&M.

If cuts do occur, the SA needs to know what programs and faculty need to be cut. I would like to include a faculty and course evaluation with "We Think Students Day." I would also like to work with the administration on restructuring the tenure programs when cuts occur.

Candidate for Internal Vice President

Michael Catt

1. Obviously, the proposed cuts will have a negative impact on the university.

However, the Student Association can try to help the situation. By letting the legislature know that the Texas Tech student body deserves and needs the money it has been receiving, the Student Association may be able to influence the legislature. The S.A. would present the students' views on the situation as well as information on how we use the money in the tight budget Texas Tech has.

2. As a student leader my role would be to effectively represent the students' needs and opinions. Whether it be with the administration, faculty, or any other group, I feel it is important that we, as students, work with these people to better the university. As a student leader, I would serve as a liaison between the students and these groups, especially in the role of President of the Student Senate.

Therefore, the priority that would top my agenda would be to improve the interaction between the S.A. and the student body.

3. The Student Senate can be very useful to students. Every student on this campus will have two or more Senators representing him or her. A student from the College of Arts and Sciences will have twenty.

There is no reason why a student should not be able to use the benefits of the Student Association. Its availability must simply be made known.

I think the big problem is that too many people at this university do not see Texas Tech as a first-rate university in this state when, in fact, it is.

4. I feel that the Lawless Administration has made great strides in improving Texas Tech as an educational institution.

I believe it is important for us, as students, and for me as a student leader, to support such programs and policies which make our university more widely respected and improve its quality.

As I stated in Question /2, the S.A.'s performance can be improved by more interaction with the students. I feel there is not enough communication between the S.A. and the students.

5. I see Texas Tech University as a fast-growing institution of higher learning.

At the end of my tenure, I want to see the university as well as the S.A., on a new level of excellence. They say that there are strengths in numbers. I want to see more students than ever involved in the S.A. If we can accomplish that, I believe we will be able to improve the university more, and, therefore, make Texas Tech a better place for everyone involved.

Candidates for External Vice President

Todd Joy

1. The current proposal is a 9.1 percent decrease in overall funding for Texas Tech. If passed as is, this would definitely hurt; however, this is simply a proposal based on current revenue projections for the upcoming year. The Student Association has been in contact with our state legislators, and will continue to be, in order to ensure that any cut in funding for Texas Tech will meet stiff resistance.

2. My role as a Student Association officer would simply be to work to full potential to advance the interests of Tech Students. By the nature of the office of External Vice President my top priority would be to further cultivate the relationship of the Texas Tech students and the Lubbock community.

3. Texas Tech has already asserted itself as a competitive force among Texas universities. As far as the Student Association is concerned, we have one of the most active and well respected student governments in the state. We are able to be effective because of the strong relationship we have with our administration and faculty, something many other Texas schools don't enjoy.

4. The way to improve the Student Association's performance is to increase communication, primarily between the Student Senators and their respective colleges. The Student Association's officers are in close contact with the Senators but more communication is possible.

5. Texas Tech has made great strides in the last two years. At the end of my tenure, I want the Student Association to be more active, visible, and helpful to all of us.

Matt Weinheimer

1. The Student Association must help find additional funds and fundraising projects by working with the Texas Tech and Lubbock Development offices. The proposed budget cuts would dramatically affect the way our dollars are spent. The cuts could be in student services, research funding, and faculty positions. Because the cuts would happen at the administration level, the Student Association must step forward to assure the image task force objectives.

2. As External Vice-President, my role is to act as the liaison between the student body and the community. I would serve as an extremely visible figure for the students. My top priority would be to maintain the quality of the Word magazine by making it more colorful, adding more Student Association articles, and adding more coupon sponsors.

3. Texas Tech must be competitive by continuing to raise the standards at all levels of the university. Although not financially strong, we must make it our goal to create a strong, positive image of Texas Tech and make the cuts less noticeable. If the Tier system passes, we must be Tie /1.

4. The Student Association can improve by tying in more closely to the community and interacting more organizations with community service projects. Secondly, the students need to be more informed through the U.D. by having a bi-weekly column from the Student Association offices concerning accomplishments and updates. The Student Association also needs to have an open-minded committee to listen to concerns and complaints across campus and find solutions to the problems.

5. The university has made great strides by increasing the number of presidential scholarships in working to increase student retention and by implementing more programs to benefit students. I want to continue this driving force of excellence, by increasing financial aid and scholarships to students, and by giving Tech a strong, positive academic school of teaching research.

World renowned ballet dancers toe through Hub City tonight

Renowned dancer Rudolf Nureyev will perform several selected interpretive dance routines along with several of his friends at 8:15 tonight at the Lubbock Municipal Auditorium.

Nureyev began his ballet career in his native U.S.S.R. at a very young age. After witnessing a ballet performance, the enthused seven-year-old decided dance was his calling in life.

With the encouragement of his mother, Nureyev began taking dance lessons and thirteen years later he was accepted to the prestigious Leningrad Kirov Theater.

After graduating, Nureyev became a principal dancer with the Kirov Ballet. With this troupe he performed the major male roles in "Laurencia," "Don Quixote," "Giselle," "La Bayadere," "The Sleeping Beauty" and "Swan Lake" among others.

After Nureyev's defection on June 17, 1961, he went on to perform with some of the world's finest dance troupes — 30 in all.

Now at the spry age of 52, Nureyev has expressed that he feels his dancing days are far from over. His current performance, while described as not technically spectacular is set to feature his interpretive strengths. The tour consists of Nureyev and an ensemble of six dancers.

SMU first step in Tech's bid for SWC tourney title

By LEN HAYWARD
The University Daily

For the ninth consecutive year, the Texas Tech women's basketball team will make an appearance in the Southwest Conference Post-Season Tournament, and coach Marsha Sharp feels the team must not look beyond Southern Methodist in the first round.

The Red Raiders will face the Mustangs at noon today at Moody Coliseum in Dallas, SMU's home court.

Tech enters the tournament as the No. 3 seed in front of Houston and behind regular-season champion Arkansas and No. 2 Texas.

"I think we are excited about the tournament starting and that is kind of a whole new season for us," Sharp said. "Post-season play is always something that adds a little extra meaning to things.

Leading the Raiders in scoring after the regular season was junior post Jennifer Buck, with her 13.9 points and 4.7 rebounds per game.

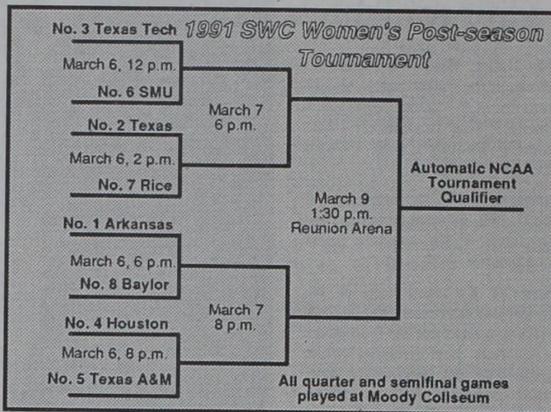

Buck is also among the league leaders in shooting percentage, hitting 54.7 percent of her shots in the regular season.

Helping Buck with the inside game has been junior forward Teresa McMillan. During the regular season, McMillan finished with 13.7 points per outing and led the team in rebounds with 7.1 per contest.

If the Raiders are victorious over the Lady Mustangs, they will face the winner of the game between the Rice Owls and Texas Lady Longhorns.

Sharp feels the team is looking forward to a rematch with the Lady Horns if they should triumph over Rice, but it must not look beyond the game with the Mustangs.

"I think we are looking forward to that rematch if we can get to it," Sharp said. "We felt like we should have played a lot better down there and we did not play as bad as the score indicated, we just did not shoot the ball well."

Tech received good news earlier this week, as Sharp was named the SWC coaches Coach of the Year and two Raider players garnered all-SWC honors.

Sophomore Krista Kirkland received honors by being named to the all-SWC second-team, with her average of 13.7 points per game during the regular season.

Kirkland, a 5-10 guard from Spearman, also broke a school record for most three-pointers made in a season with 57. Kirkland made 57 of 143 shots from three-point land for a percentage of 39.9.

Junior-transfer Tami Wilson received Newcomer of the Year honors, thanks in part to her school-record 69 blocked shots. Early in the year, Wilson also pulled down a SWC record 23 rebounds against San Diego State.

Tech falls to Sun Devils 18-12

Tijerina's two home runs not enough

TEMPE, Ariz. (Special) — The Texas Tech baseball team suffered its third loss of 1991 with a 18-12 loss to Arizona State last night in Tempe, Ariz.

With the loss, the Red Raiders dropped to 17-3 on the season.

Leading the way for Tech was senior catcher Tony Tijerina, who finished the night three-for-four with two home runs and five runs batted in.

In the top of the fifth inning, Tijerina smashed a two-run shot with one on and no outs to pull the Raiders to within three at 10-7.

But Arizona State got five runs in the bottom of the inning to push its lead to 15-7.

Tijerina's second blast came in the top of the sixth inning, when he belted a three-run homer to right field to make the score 15-10.

The Raiders battled to 8-5 in the top of the fourth inning when they loaded the bases on a Joe Mendazona walk and a pair of bloop singles by Tijerina and Jon Mize.

Tim Tadlock hit a sacrifice fly to center field to bring in one run, and after Kent Blasingame drew a walk to again load the bases, Wes Shook was hit by Sun Devil's reliever Tony Pena to drive in the second run of the inning. Tech scored its third run of the inning when third baseman Darrin Glenn drew a walk.

Babeball stars whine to get their way

Mike Pender Associate Sports Editor

The 1990 National League Most Valuable Player may not be as important to his team this year after losing two salary arbitrations.

Pittsburgh Pirates' star Barry Bonds, like many baseball players recently, had to settle for less than what he asked for in arbitration and now he is making enemies on his team because of his problems.

In a similar story, Baby Huey dropped his pacifier on the floor and his mother would not pick it up so Huey pouted until he made his whole family miserable.

I imagine everyone is just about tired of reading about baseball players and how their lives are so terrible. It is such a shame they are so underpaid.

Yesterday, as I was reading an Associated Press article in another newspaper, it dawned on me...Bonds must be trying to win the hearts of the American public because he did not get the $3.25 million he was asking for, but had to settle for a paltry $2.3 million.

What is another measly $950,000 to someone who has endorsements and bonus clauses in his contract, anyway?

It would be such a shame if Bonds was not able to buy that extra Rolls Royce that he always wanted since he was a child.

Far be it from Barry to be a chip off of the old block. Bonds' dad, Bobby, was known for his easy-going style and hard play on the field.

Anyway, the story read, "Bonds' unhappiness over his contract boiled over Monday into an obscenity-laced, on-field shouting match with Pittsburgh Pirates manager Jim Leyland."

Poor Barry.

I have tried to put myself in Bonds' shoes to try and figure out his predicament, but this is the best analogy I can come up with.

Six people, one of whom is Bonds, are at a friend's birthday party and the mother brings in the cake. She only cuts the cake into six pieces, but the fat kid at the end of the table has to have two pieces or else he will make the party miserable for everyone.

What do you do?

If it were Barry's party, the fat kid AND the mother would go hungry.

I guess what I am getting at is what everyone has known for some time. Sports figures, especially baseball players, are extremely overpaid.

My biggest problem with the high salaries is, who is to say that athletes should make more than people who really make the world spin, like doctors or school teachers.

I like watching athletes performing on the field much better than seeing a doctor pull out a malignant tumor, but when you get right down to it...which is more important for the survival of man?

Please Barry, as well as the other athletes crying about how little they are paid, give us all a break and just play baseball.

NBA allows Wingate to sign with Spurs

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — The National Basketball Association has given the San Antonio Spurs permission to sign guard David Wingate to a contract, the team announced Monday.

Last Friday, Wingate and the Spurs agreed to contract terms pending approval by the NBA.

League general counsel Gary Bettman gave the Spurs the go-ahead following a meeting with the 27-year-old player in New York.

Wingate's status with the club has been in limbo since last summer when he was named in connection with two separate sexual assaults.

In San Antonio and Maryland, two different women accused Wingate of sexual assault last summer. The women alleged the attacks occurred after they drank tequila with Wingate.

Both cases were settled last month. The San Antonio case was settled when Wingate reached a civil agreement with the 22-year-old alleged victim. After the settlement, Bexar County authorities dismissed the criminal charge.

A prosecutor in Maryland last week decided against trying Wingate after the 17-year-old alleged victim's parents asked to have the charge dropped.

Newly acquired pitchers aid Astros' staff

HOUSTON (AP) — Newly acquired Don Carman and Curt Schilling are the likely choices to become Houston Astros closers this season, Manager Art Howe says.

"Carman has the most experience down there, and he's a power pitcher," Howe said from the club's training site in Kissimmee, Fla. "I'm going to give him the opportunity to finish up games from the left side. Schilling's the top candidate from the right side."

Carman signed with the Astros as a free agent and Schilling was part of the trade that sent first baseman Glenn Davis to Baltimore. Neither pitcher has been a closer.

Carman's success against lefthanders (they hit .175) and his work ethic have caught Howe's eye.

"He has a personal workout that lasts about an hour and that's beyond what we do as a team," Howe said. "To me, that means he's got endurance and he's mentally tough enough to stay with that program. I see that as being a sign he could be a closer."

Eight players assigned to WFLA teams

ORLANDO, Fla. (AP) — Quarterback Mike Elkins of the Kansas City Chiefs was among eight NFL players assigned to World League of American Football teams in Monday's enhancement allocation draft.

The WFLA previously drafted 650 U.S. players and 40 international players. Elkins was taken first by Sacramento.

Houston Oilers kicker Teddy Garcia was selected by San Antonio and Los Angeles Raiders tight end Zeph Lee was taken by London. Houston running back Doug Lloyd was selected by the New Jersey Knights.

New Orleans cornerback Calvin Nicholson was taken by Raleigh-Durham and Saints offensive lineman Bobby Sign was selected by Barcelona. Kansas City linebacker Tracy Simien was drafted by Montreal, and Raiders safety Marcus Wilson was drafted by Frankfurt.

Texas pitchers fail to report

By The Associated Press

PORT CHARLOTE, Fla., — Pitchers Kevin Brown and Kenny Rogers, displeased with contracts, and raises, handed them by the Texas Rangers, failed to show up for the team's morning workout in spring training camp on Tuesday.

"Do I look at this as the end of the world? No," said General Manager Tom Grieve. "If this is the worst thing that happens this spring we'll have a pretty good camp. We would like for them to be here and hope we can resolve the issue and get them back to playing."

Brown had his contract renewed for $327,500, a 50.2 per cent raise. Rogers was renewed at $287,500, a 105.4 per cent raise.

Brown and Rogers were not immediately available for comment.

Major league baseball's basic agreement allows teams to renew the contracts of players who do not have enough service time to be eligible for salary arbitration. The only stipulation is a player's salary cannot be cut more than 20 per cent.

"This is not the way to build a relationship for the future," Brown said on Monday. "I'm not demanding all the money in the world. I don't think that way. I just wanted a chance for the market to show what a fair number would be."

Brown was bothered by a tired arm in August for the second consecutive season. He was disabled for 15 days and made his last appearance on Sept. 4. He was fourth on the team in innings pitched (180) and strikeouts (88). He was 12-10 with a 3.60 earned run average.

Summer camp counselors needed

Applications are being accepted for students interested in becoming counselors for the Recreational Sports Summer Sports Camp offered this summer. This camp is designed to improve the sports skills of children, but the emphasis is on FUN!

Instruction is geared so that every child will be a winner — not by defeating another child but by acquiring a new skill or improving skills already known. This is a non-competitive camp with a recreational approach to sports. There are three two-week sessions: June 3-14 and 17-28 for children 7-12 years of age and session III, July 8-19 for children 10-14.

Sports offered during the first two sessions are tennis, softball/soccer, archery, basketball/volleyball, and Red Cross swimming lessons. In the third session, volleyball/basketball and softball/soccer are replaced by racquetball and an outdoor camping section and swimming lessons are replaced by water activities. Each session runs Monday-Friday from 8 a.m. till noon.

If you're interested in working as a camp counselor, enthusiastic, patient, creative, love working with children and possess teaching skills in one or more of the sports listed above, drop by the Recreational Sports office in room 202 of the Student Recreation Center and fill out an application.

Applications are due by 5 p.m. this Friday, March 29. The current stipend is $5 per hour. This is an excellent experience to work part-time with children and still be able to take afternoon classes. For more information contact Denise Kopriva at 742-3351 or stop by the Recreational Sports office.

9-Ball Pool results and upcoming pool tourney

Rec Sports and the UC Gameroom sponsored the 1991 9-Ball Singles Tournament Thursday night, Feb. 28. Many entrants used this as a tune-up for the ACUI Regional Tournament. The competition was intense: this year's championship came down between Sean Cochran and Nguyen Cuong. Cochran held true to his recent excellent play to capture this year's title over Cuong.

The 8-Ball Doubles Tournament is set for tomorrow night (March 7) in the UC Gameroom at 7 p.m. Entries can be made at the UC Gameroom or the Recreational Sports Office during regular office hours today and tomorrow (March 6 and 7). Drop-in entries are also welcomed. All eligible students, faculty and staff are welcome to play. There is no charge and the champion will win a Rec Sports Intramural champion T-shirt.

Fitness testing today and Thursday

Fitness testing will be done today and Thursday in the Lowel Level Multipurpose Room. Five tests are done — blood pressure screening, flexibility, skin fold percent body fat, a 3-minute cardiovascular step test and abdominal strength sit-ups. The entire testing takes about 20 minutes. Testing will be repeated in April. Testing will be held from 4:15 to 5:30 p.m. today and Thursday.

Techsan vies for slam dunk title this weekend

By TELEA JOHNSON
The University Daily

"I think he's got wings under that jersey."

After winning the All Nighter Dunk Contest with a 360, off-the-backboard and behind the back dunk, Darryl Barnes was invited to be Texas Tech's representative at the Southwest Conference dunk contest in Dallas.

"I was most certain that I was going to win here, and I feel I would have won last year had I not been injured. I always do my best, and I think positive," Barnes said.

Barnes, a sophomore telecommunications major from Houston, will travel to Dallas Friday for the First Southwest Conference Dunk Contest.

"Hopefully this will be an annual event for Tech. I feel that I am a pioneer so to speak and I hope it ends up well," he said. "This is a good opportunity to improve relations between schools and to get to know people from within the Southwest Conference".

There will be two preliminary rounds. The first is Friday night between games two and three of the Southwest Conference Basketball Tournament, and the second round is between games four and five. The final round will be Saturday night between games six and seven.

Barnes said he has one or two basic dunks that he will do, but everything else he does is spontaneous.

"It is really not until I get in the air that I decide what to do. I don't think about it. I just let my body take over and do what comes natural, and hopefully it's the best," Barnes said.

"Creativity is important. Dunking is done by many people nowadays, and it is not enough to just be able to dunk, but to show the judges something they have never seen before," Barnes said.
