The Bill Will Be 36 Billion - - Taxes To Claim One - Third Of The National Income

By RICHARD G. MASSOCK
WASHINGTON, Oct. 6. (AP)—Chairman George (D-Ga.) of the finance committee told the senate today the American people would pay taxes totaling $36,537,000,000 or one-third of the national income, during the coming year under pending legislation.

George took the floor to explain the gigantic new revenue bill after a proposal by Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau for $6,000,000,000 in new levies, over and above those in the pending measure, had aroused cloakroom demands for a sales tax.

and individual income and excess profits taxes, he said $10,750,000,000 would come from corporations and $11,264,500,000 from individuals.

George said the committee gave careful consideration to the recommendations of Chairman Donald Nelson of the war production board. In fixing the excess profits rate at 90 percent with a 10 percent post-war refund, given in non-negotiable, non-interest bearing bonds payable after the war. He gave four main reasons for the post-war credit.

Aussies Score Further Gain In New Guinea

Marines Hold Firm On Guadalcanal Island, Convoy Flushed

SYDNEY, Australia, (Wednesday), Oct. 7. (AP)—Australian troops have sealed the last steep grades leading to the gap through the rugged Owen Stanley in southern New Guinea and there still is no sign of Japanese forces retreating toward their base at Buna, on the island's northeast coast, dispatches from the battlefield said today.

By The Associated Press
U.S. Marines, clashing frequently with Japanese patrols, were reported holding solidly on Guadalcanal in the Solomon Islands today, while on the New Guinea front Australian jungle troops nearer the summit of the towering Owen Stanley mountains after advances of three to six miles.

Gen. Douglas MacArthur's headquarters said the Australian counter-offensive had driven past Kagi, the last village below the mill-high gap in the range, and pressed on—still without contacting the retreating Japanese.

Battleship Sinking Claim Is Ignored

Italians Declare Ship Of Miss. Class Sunk

LONDON, Oct. 6. (AP)—The sinking of a United States battleship of the $3,000-ton Mississippi class in the Atlantic off Freetown, West Africa, was reported by the Italian high command in a special communique today.

There was no confirmation from any other source for this claim nor any indication that the United States warships were operating in that area.

The communique said the Italian submarine Barbarigo scored four torpedoes, hits on the battleship at 2:34 a. m. Rome time, today (8:34 p. m., E. W. T., Monday).

The communique, broadcast by the Rome radio, credited the sinking to the Italian submarine Barbarigo, an ocean-going type which previously had been reported by the Italians to have sunk a United States battleship of the Maryland class near Brazil last May 22.

This claim, more than four months later, still has no confirmation. (The navy department in Washington said it had no comment to make on the claim.)

Each of these battleships mounts 12 14-inch and 12 five-inch guns as her chief weapons and each carries three planes and two catapults from which to launch them.

Will There Be A Shortage—
Committee Opens Oil Hearing
WASHINGTON, Oct. 6. (AP)—Brig. Gen. Walter B. Fryon told a senate subcommittee today the army had plenty of oil for its war needs in 1943, but there might be a petroleum shortage on the west coast if the war lasted "too long."

As the first witness before a subcommittee on mineral resources, General Fryon, liaison officer between the army and the petroleum coordinator, said the army's use of oil products was considerably higher this year than last.

U.S. Graves In Australia

The Stars and Stripes fly at half-mast as four members of an American bomber crew who lost their lives in battling the Japanese in the Southwest Pacific area are buried in a cemetery reserved for Americans at Townsville, Australia.

Perhaps of tremendous significance to the whole New Guinea campaign, Gen. MacArthur reported that a Japanese convoy had been spotted and attacked as it headed north from Buna on the New Guinea east coast.

The enemy convoy, which included two destroyers and a big transport, apparently slipped into Buna under cover of darkness, and it was out immediately clear whether it was withdrawing troops from New Guinea, when discovered or landing reinforcements.

Observers pointed out that the entire future of operations in the New Guinea zone may hinge on the answer to the question of whether the Japanese were debarking or landing fresh troops, and it was recalled that the enemy withdrew from Milne Bay, in southeast New Guinea, when he realized the odds were against him.

In any event, Japanese ground forces were retreating in a great hurry in the Owen Stanley mountains, with allied troops continuing their advance for the eighth consecutive day.

At the same time, Washington quarters declared that new allied successes in the battle of the Pacific showed that Japanese footholds in New Guinea, the Solomons and the Aleutians were becoming death traps for the enemy's troops, planes and ships.

On the three strategic fronts, American and allied air forces within the last week shot down 22 Japanese planes, blew up a supply ship, blasted a destroyer out of commission, hit two cargo ships, strafed barges, and inflicted havoc on enemy camps, ground forces and installations.

A navy communique said U.S. dive bombers and torpedo planes attacked four Japanese destroyers, as they sought to cover a small landing in the Solomons, and left one of the warships "dead in the water."

Big U.S. flying fortress planes pounded airdromes and other installations at New Britain and then fought their way home through Japanese Zero fighters for 90 minutes. One American pilot brought in his slightly damaged fortress after a 30-minute battle with six Japanese Zeros.

Texas Slashes Speed Rates
WASHINGTON, Oct. 6. (AP)—The Texas highway commission has passed an order directing the motor speed limit be reduced from 60 to 55 miles an hour, the order has been passed on to Gov. Coke Stevenson, and the governor will issue a proclamation making the order public when he sees fit, Robert Lee Bobbitt, member of the commission, said yesterday.

Labor Record Of Production Lauded By FD

TORONTO, Oct. 6. (AP)—President Roosevelt, praising the "splendid" production record of United States workers, told the American Federation of Labor today in a message to its convention here he was sure "they can take whatever it takes to win the war."

Everywhere during my recent inspection of war activity, I found the workers at every turn gave assurance that they can do what it takes to win this war.

"They are not afraid of hard, continuous, precise and dangerous work. They are walking up to it as their duty and part in the war. They are proud of it."

The president acknowledged an invitation to attend the convention and expressed regret that the press of war affairs prevented him from accepting.

William Green, president of the federation, answered that the AFL "will respond to any request the president may make and every order which he may issue as commander in chief of the army and navy."

Green stressed that we "regard him as the commander of the army of production as much as he is the commander of the armed forces of the nation."

"Please note," he added, "he stated that he found on his trip, not that he was informed, that the service of the workers of our country was splendid. It strikes me very deeply, as I know it strikes you."

CINCINNATI, Oct. 6. (AP)—John L. Lewis pledged the United Mine Workers today to utmost cooperation in the war effort and challenged any labor organization to match its contribution so far—$38,000,000 in money and nearly 70,000 in the armed forces.

The president of the UMW told 2,900 cheering delegates at the opening of its two-week 37th constitutional convention: "We will carry on until our armed forces triumph and our institutions are preserved."

He declared the International union, districts, locals, and members had $39,200,000 worth of American and Canadian war bonds and contributions to various war agencies.

Germans Intensify Drive On Stalingrad As Cold Nights Hit Reds Repulse 22 Assaults

MOSCOW, Oct. 6. (AP)—Defenders of Stalingrad were reported holding firm today against three Nazi divisions in a flame-laced battle for a workers' settlement and Red army troops fighting for relief of the garrison stabbed anew into the German left flank.

German artillery and mortar barrages heralded the opening of a series of attacks by the three divisions—totaling from 30,000 to 45,000 men. Swarms of dive-bombers and 100 tanks roared into the fight for the salient. A Pravda dispatch said the flames were visible to Russian fighters in sectors many miles away.

Prisoners told Red army commanders that their officers feared to delay any further in their overdue plans to take the city. Cold nights have arrived on the Stalingrad front.

At one place the Germans hurled 23 assaults, but all were repulsed, the communist party newspaper said.

German losses in the last 24 hours have been huge and the enemy failed to advance on any front, it was declared.

Fierce street fighting persisted. German captives were quoted as saying that, as troops began to shiver in the cooler temperatures, they communique said.

Defense and offensive operations in the Mordok area of the central Caucasus were said to have led to the slaying of some 600 Germans and destruction of seven tanks.

"Southeast of Novorossisk (in the western Caucasus) Soviet troops counterattacked, capturing a height, routing a Rumanian battalion and destroying two tanks," the communique said.

Russian bombers stationed at Baile Bussan were declared to have destroyed seven Junkers dive-bombers and damaged 12 others in a raid on a German airfield. The communique said three other Nazi planes were shot down in aerial fights.

Western Germany Target Of RAF
LONDON, Oct. 6. (AP)—A "strong force" of RAF bombers attacked objectives in western Germany last night, an authoritative source said today.

It was the third night raid on Germany this month, Flensburg and the Rhineland having been the targets in raids last Thursday and Friday nights.

The Sphinxes—
CHURCHILL REFUSES COMMENT ON RUSSIAN WAR RELATIONS
LONDON, Oct. 6. (AP)—Prime Minister Churchill refused today to discuss Britain's war relations with Russia, urging the house of commons "not to press these matters unduly," after several members had brought up Joseph Stalin's letter to Henry C. Cassidy, chief of the Associated Press Moscow bureau, calling on the Allied to "fulfill their obligations fully and on time."

The questioners, prodding the prime minister for a discussion of both political and military aspects, warned that any misunderstanding between Britain and Russia might have evil consequences on British war production.

Churchill, however, declined to speak extemporaneously, insisting he had nothing to add "to the carefully weighed statement I have made on this matter."

Children Make Good Scrap Drive Start

The Junior Texas Rangers—your youngsters and mine—look as if they are going to deserve the title and the half school holiday promised them for bringing in a wealth of scrap metal in the two week scrap drive now underway.

Reports from Boyd McDaniel, chairman of the defense salvage committee, estimated approximately 12 tons of scrap have already been brought to school yards throughout the city for the total of two days of pickings by the Junior Rangers.

All elementary and high school students are in on the drive to bring in at least their weight in scrap, an estimated total of 100 to 150 tons of scrap.

Most of the metal now in the growing piles in school yards are small articles salvaged from backyards, attics and basements. However, McDaniel believed that over the weekend the Rangers would have an opportunity to scour the country side for unnoted scrap.

That the Junior Rangers were taking their responsibility seriously was evident in the fact that parents were being nagged for help in finding the metal and housewives were forced to defend even their wash tubs and dish pans from their Rangers whose idea it is "to bring the scrap in regardless."

The Berlin radio broadcast a DNE dispatch from Oslo which quoted Josef Terboven, German commissioner for Norway, as saying the order was "nothing" but justified German reaction to criminal acts committed by Norwegian radicals.

Communications Recruits Sought
Capt. Kenneth B. Cherouse and Tech. Sgt. F. Rohloff were here Tuesday to interview any prospective recruits for army communications service.

The two were to be at the office of Recruiting Sgt. Edwin Turner in the postoffice basement the remainder of Tuesday and all who can qualify were asked to contact them.

Negro Charged In Slaying Of Girl
NEW BRUNSWICK, N. J., Oct. 6.—A powerful negro theater porter was arraigned today on a murder charge in the brutal killing of pretty Marian Oliver during a movie show at the old opera house.

The nude, battered body of the 30-year-old factory worker was found yesterday behind the theater and Middlesex county Prosecutor John A. Lynch said today Swann, 26, six-foot four-inch porter and a bridgefoot of a month, had confessed he killed the girl in the women's lounge after she bitterly fought his attempt to rape her.

Atlantic Convoys Reaching Russia
While the announced score of neutral and United Nations ship sinkings in Western Atlantic waters received another notch yesterday a navy spokesman asserted that North Atlantic convoys, although bearing the brunt of German air and sea attacks, were reaching Russia.

"If we get 50 per cent of our shipments through," said Captain Leland P. Lovette, navy public relations director, "we consider the game worth the candle, but the average of our losses has been very much less."

The latest announced sinking—of an American merchantman destroyed last month off South America with one life lost—brought to 483 the Associated Press tabulation of neutral and allied losses in the Western Atlantic since Pearl Harbor.

Willkie Talks To Kai-Shek

CHUNGKING, Oct. 6. (AP)—Wendell Willkie spent six hours in conference with Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek last night and went to bed after 1 a. m., but he got up early today for another crowded schedule.

His talk with the generalissimo was the fourth in an unprecedented series and was the longest ever granted to a foreign personage by the Chinese leader. A plan was under way to rename a main thoroughfare Willkie street.

To Chung Kuo, in a strongly worded editorial, expressed the hope that Willkie would inform President Roosevelt and the American public of China's plea for the abrogation of extra-territoriality and foreign concessions.

"Willkie is a straightforward, sincere man who has won the friendship of everyone," the editorial said, "but when we shake his hand there is still the pain hidden deep in our hearts. Here we are a member of the anti-aggression front and we have been taking a beating longer than anybody else. Yet while fighting for a common cause our hands are still shackled by chains imposed by our friends in the last 100 years."

Will There Be A Shortage— Committee Opens Oil Hearing

WASHINGTON, Oct. 6. (AP)—Brig. Gen. Walter B. Fryon told a senate subcommittee today the army had plenty of oil for its war needs in 1943, but there might be a petroleum shortage on the west coast if the war lasted "too long."

As the first witness before a subcommittee on mineral resources, General Fryon, liaison officer between the army and the petroleum coordinator, said the army's use of oil products was considerably higher this year than last.

"The army does not anticipate any difficulties in meeting 1943 requirements," he said, but he added that "the demands will draw rather heavily on reserves," with the consumption already exceeding new production.

Chairman O'Mahoney (D-Wyo.) explained that the subcommittee was endeavoring to ascertain "whether or not the country is to face an oil shortage in the midst of a great crisis, as it has a steel and rubber shortage." He said the hearing was not an investigation.

"We can bring in new supplies of oil by encouraging the wildcat," O'Mahoney said, "by drawing on reserves, or by developing oil lands owned and controlled by the oil companies but not listed among the known reserves."

Charles F. Roesser of Fort Worth, Texas, a member of the petroleum industry war council, advocated a rise in the price of crude oil "both to provide funds now to carry on more exploration work and to furnish the reward incen-

Lake Yields Body Of Man

An unidentified man, wearing a Gerald Mora contractor, Houston, badge No. 2837, was found dead yesterday at the T & P (One Mile) lake by railroad men who saw the body caught on a fence in the lake west of the railroad yards.

Justice of the Peace Walter Grice stated that the body had evidently been in the water for three or four weeks and returned from unknown causes.

The man was dressed in a suit of overalls and jumper and wore work shoes. He weighed approximately 160 pounds and was five feet nine inches tall.

One eye was apparently bruised, Grice said, Nalley Funeral home had charge of the body.

Officers theorized that the man either had fallen off a moving freight train and had been knocked unconscious and rolled into the water, or had met with foul play. Owing to the state of decomposition, it was difficult to determine if there were signs of violence, but a preliminary examination indicated not.

A card found on the body of the man carried the name of H. A. Josie, Houston, but authorities said there was nothing to indicate whether this was the man's name.

New Study Begins With Spanish Luncheon At Methodist Church

W. S. C. S. Has Meeting Monday At 12 o'clock

Bowls of bright Mexican golden-glow and zinnias and platters of fruit carried out the Fiesta theme when members of the First Methodist Women's Society of Christian Service were entertained at noon Monday with a Spanish luncheon to begin a new study.

The new study deals with promoting the Good Neighbor policy through the foundation of Christianity. Mrs. H. G. Keaton, leader, gave the introduction, discussing "On This Foundation" written by Rycroft, author, traveler and aviator of the first World War. Mrs. Hugh Duncan discussed "Geography of Latin America," and human interest stories were related by Mrs. Edmond Finck, Mrs. Keaton and Mrs. Charles Morris.

The devotional—"Sowing the Seed in Latin America"—was conducted by Mrs. M. A. Cook, Mrs. H. N. Robinson and Mrs. H. B. Matthews.

Mrs. Morris, pianist, played "In Christ There Is No East or West." The benediction was recited in unison.

Places were marked for those on the program and for Mrs. C. W. Guthrie, Mrs. S. R. Nobles, Mrs. Stormy Thompson, Mrs. W. B. Graddy, Mrs. Ollie Cordill, Mrs. C. E. Shive, Mrs. W. A. Miller, Mrs. J. L. Notes By MARY WHALEY

Everybody you talk with these days has a problem. That seems to be the only thing left that everybody has in common with every one else.

Like the old fairy tale, you feel quite comfortable with your troubles after hearing some other people's. The women have their share, whether to get married or stay single, whether to follow their husbands or stay at home or where they can get a job to fill in the time known as "for the duration."

The men have their problems too. Should they join now or wait to be drafted into the army. Should they marry the home town gal or wait until after the war. Should they store their car and sell their business.

Parents worry about their sons and their daughters, about what is in store for them when this war is over, and about what life will be like when reconstruction begins.

Look around and you hear just about the same amount of laughter, just about the same amount of foolish human talk of plans and ambitions. Very few faces show the strain of these problems and it's only when you know people very well that you hear some of the thoughts that range inside their heads.

It makes you wonder what holds them together after the war has marred their lives. It must be because they have only a human's capacity for belief and understanding. War passes human understanding and leaves only a blank of despair in your mind.

THE WAR TODAY: Stalin's Talk Taken In Right Spirit

By DEWITT MACKENZIE
Wide World War Analyst.

LONDON, Oct. 6.—Premier Stalin's statement that Allied aid to Russia "has so far been little effective," as compared with the Soviet contribution to the cause of the United Nations, is being received in Britain in the spirit in which it apparently was offered—without rancor and with a desire to get ahead with the job of hanging Hitler.

Indeed, well-qualified observers point out that obviously there can be no dispute with the Soviet leader's estimate insofar as it concerns aid in the nature of action by combat forces. It is assumed this is what he referred to, not to equipment and supplies which Britain and America have been delivering with such difficulty and danger especially via that hell fire corner the Nazis established in northern Norway.

Stalin's statement made in response to questions by Henry C. Cassidy, Associated Press and Wide World correspondent, attracted attention throughout Britain. Far from causing resentment the premier's direct language is evoking a response in Britain and America, determined to deliver the necessary aid to Russia at the earliest possible moment.

The striking thing to my mind is that this triple alliance, which in many respects represents a strange assortment of bedfellows, should have reached a point of understanding where rebukes can be exchanged without causing friction. Certainly the same could not have been said not so long ago.

Now this is of vast importance, for upon the solidarity of the triple alliance depends the future of Europe. The three governments recognize this and lessening of the natural suspicions which at first existed between the communists and the Anglo-American combine presumably have been due to mutual efforts to reach an understanding.

There is no doubt that Stalin will get his second front at the first feasible moment. Irrespective of his desire, there would be a second front because of Anglo-American determination to establish one. To any trained observer it is wholly clear that this country is a perfect beehive of preparation by both British and American forces for offensive operations.

As I've already reported, Britain is being swept by the hunch that preparations are reaching the stage which will permit an offensive or offensives at almost any time. I find this feeling growing stronger daily though officialdom is sitting tight and not talking except to reaffirm that medicine is being prepared for the Nazis all highest and will be administered by force as soon as possible.

The British public, like the American, lives for the day when a major offensive can be undertaken. However, the man in the street who not so long ago was loud in demands that a second front be opened immediately now has reached the conclusion after all it must be for the high command to say when and where offensives shall be undertaken.

To the average person the term "second front" seems to mean only one thing—invasion of the continent through France.

Apparently that is what Moscow has in mind, too.

However, I believe the Anglo-American command places a wider interpretation on the phrase and a good many military experts hold there are several theaters which would provide very useful "second fronts."

What Stalin wants, of course, is an action that will draw a great number of German troops away from the eastern front in the quickest possible time and thus relieve the terrific pressure on his armies. Probably the only operation which would achieve this would be an invasion through France.

There is no other zone which would force Hitler to withdraw many divisions or great air strength from the siege of Stalingrad. Not even the threat to his army of invasion in Egypt—a vital part of his drive against the Caucasus and the middle east—would achieve this purpose.

It is equally true that some day Uncle Sam and John Bull likely will have to put a great army ashore in France. However, of one thing we can be very certain—the Anglo-American command never will undertake that most difficult operation in all history of war until it feels reasonably certain of success. That doesn't mean they aren't prepared to take chances, for they are, but the stakes are too great to gamble madly.

From that pleasant little town of Troutville we have an all around athlete. He plays a smashing game of tennis, a fast game of basketball, a bruising game of football, and does quite a bit of boxing in between. Ed Carey, our fire chief, came stompin' into the printin' office last week, madder'n a hornet.

"Say!" he yells. "If I could get my hands on that fellow Goebbels, I'd stick a fire hose in his mouth and turn on the pressure." Ed shouts, poundin' my desk. "Do you know what he's puttin' on the German short-wave propaganda to America NOW? He's tellin' folks that American army camps are full of drunks! Can you beat it?"

"Calm yourself, Ed," says I. "Nobody's going to believe what Goebbels tells 'em."

"But don't you see? He's puttin' this bare-faced lie on the air to stir up trouble."

"Pretty stupid propaganda, I'd say. Pretty silly, even for the Nazis," says I.

"How so?" says Ed. "There's people in this country that want beer taken out of the camps. That sure is going to hurt army morale. And this lie certainly is fuel for their fire."

"Not if I know Americans," I says. "And the Nazis don't know."

War May Break It Up— Cards Look Great

By GAYLE TALBOT
NEW YORK, Oct. 6. (AP)—If it were not for the probability that the war will break it up, the St. Louis Cardinals club that completed the job of wrecking the New York Yankees yesterday might within the next few years go tearing on to win ranking with the greatest teams in baseball history.

It is a son-of-a-gun of a baseball club—much better than anyone suspected even when it was running wild in the closing stages of the National League race. There is no team in either league at this time with anything approaching the all-around punch, pitching and polish of the new world champions.

On the off chance that somebody might think we are going overboard on the bold young men of Manager Billy Southworth, a few figures might be in order: Through yesterday's deciding game at the stadium, which was won by 4-2 on a two-run homer by George Kuroski, rookie third baseman, in the ninth inning, the Cardinals won 47 of their last 57 contests in the 1942 season. That comes to an altitudinous winning average of .824 down the stretch.

They slugged and slashed their way to victory in their last six straight games in the league race, paused only to drop the world series opener in St. Louis, and then battered the Yankees into submission in four straight. Some time, some team might have set a record that looks comparable in print, we doubt that the competition was as tough.

With all due respect for the Brooklyn Dodgers, it would have been a shame if the Cards' sensational charge had fallen short of the National League pennant. Two capacity crowds in St. Louis and three vast gatherings of nearly 70,000 here would have been deprived of a baseball treat to be treasured.

It is doubtful the Dodgers could have beaten the Yankees. Beasley, the solemn 23-year-rookie from Nashville, who defeated the Yankees in the second game to square the series and then came back to clinch the championship yesterday, probably deserved to be called the series star. He pitched two great games and showed an astonishing show of poise for a youngster.

But the Cardinals line-up was studied with stars. It strictly was a team victory. Take Kuroski, the rookie third sacker from Reading, Pa. His game-winning blow yesterday was little more important than the triple he smacked in the second game to drive in a run and throw the Yankees into a tantrum of umpire-baiting from which they never recovered.

Or Terry Moore, the team's great captain and center-fielder. In the course of the series he made two of the most spectacular catches ever seen on any field to stifle Yankee rallies and generally lent support to the claim that he is the equal of Joe DiMaggio. He singled and later scored the sixth-inning run that tied the count at 2-2 yesterday and set the stage for Kuroski's winning wallop.

Or Enos Slaughter, who saved two games with marvelous plays, one a dead-eye dick peg to third base from right field and the other a leaping catch of what should have been a homerun by Charley Keller.

To top off his fine performance, he slugged a fourth-inning home run into the deep right field stands off Red Ruffing yesterday to equalize a four-bagger with which little Phil Rizuto had greeted Beasley in the opening round.

And then there was White, the southpaw who blanked the Yankees 3 to 0 in the third game; and Walker Cooper, who out-starred Bill Dickey behind the plate, climaxing his efforts with a snap per that caught Joe Gordon off second base in the ninth inning yesterday.

V-Homes Are Suggested
Coke Stevenson, governor of Texas and chairman of the national defense committee for Texas is asking, "Is yours a 'V' home?"

"In this war," Governor Stevenson reminds, "a home, like a battleship, must ready itself for action, and every person in the home must take his battle station. This is not only important," he said, "it is necessary if we are to win."

"Texas homes," Governor Stevenson said, "should prepare themselves against air attack and a safety room in each house should be prepared. This room should be equipped with cooking and toilet facilities and so designed that no light can escape from it and that it has a structural resistance to blasts from bombs."

Among the items recommended by Governor Stevenson to be placed in the safety room are: a strong table as a protection against falling objects, food that does not require refrigeration, flashlights, candles and matches, chairs, cushions and sleeping equipment, games, books, and a radio, fire extinguishing equipment, and insecticides.

Governor Stevenson urges Texas citizens to consult their air raid wardens to learn best methods for handling fire bombs and in giving first aid.

Local civilian defense councils, through air raid wardens, are empowered to insure a "V award of merit" to homes who have complied with requirements set forth by the safety council.

Fortunately Didn't—
Beasley Came
Near Quitting
Ball Career

NEW ORLEANS, Oct. 6. (AP)—Johnny Beasley was about ready to quit baseball two years ago after three seasons as a bush leaguer whose back hurt every time he cut loose with his fast one.

"I took him to a doctor," Charles A. Hurth, business manager of New Orleans Southern Association club related today, "and the doc said if he would have his tonsils out, he'd be fit as a fiddle."

"That's just what he did, and the doc was right."

"I got my biggest baseball thrill," said ex-boss Hurth, "as I sat in St. Louis and watched that rookie beat the Yankees in the second game of the world series. When in trouble, ice water really slowed in his veins."

"Then I got my second biggest thrill yesterday as he polished off New York again to clinch the world series for the Cardinals. It was some performance for a major league freshman."

Beasley, now 23, started with Lexington in the Kitty league in 1937, but was unimpressive in two victories and five defeats. The next year he went to Greenville, Miss., in the Cotton States loop where he won two and lost four before finishing at Abbeville, La., in the class D Evangeline circuit.

The big right hander lost six and won eight at Abbeville and then was taken on by New Orleans in 1939, but went back to his Nashville, Tenn. home with a sore back out all season.

The next year he was loaned to Columbus, Ga., and won five and lost three before packing again for home with his back ailment.

The latter part of 1940 he hurled four victories and lost two for Mobile, Ala., but he still complained of his back.

This is where Hurth, who had picked him up for a song, stepped in. Beasley came back from his operation to win 16 and lose 12 for New Orleans, with an earned run average of 3.61 last season.

The Cardinals grabbed him. And they were right, too.

Cubs Keep Alive
City Title Chance

CHICAGO, Oct. 6. (AP)—The Chicago Cubs won an extra inning game from the White Sox last night, keeping alive their hopes for victory in the annual city series.

The win, second straight for the National leaguers, gave the Cubs a change to extend the four of seven series to the limit with a victory tonight. The Sox won the first three encounters.

There were some changes coming in the Texas lineup; Bible planned to work Roy McKay part time at tailback and shift Jackie Field to fullback.

Rice players were in good shape and were to get down to heavy practice today. Jim Nall suffered a bruised hip in the L.S.U. game, but it improved over the weekend, and he was out for drill yesterday.

Dutch Meyer, recovered from an influenza attack, resumed supervision of the T.C.U. Horned Frog workouts. Guard Mike Harper has a bruised leg.

Bill Henderson of the Aggies had four stitches in his lip, cut in the Texas Tech game. Boots Simmons, the other starting end, had about recovered from an injured ankle, and Jake Webster was expected to resume his duties as extra point kicker.

The Arkansas Razorbacks had only one serious injury, but it was a damaging one—Center Floyd Thomas, 194-pound sophomore, had a sprained ankle and a torn ligament that will keep him out two weeks.

Tom Dean, giant Southern Methodist tackle, was the only Mustang to be counted out of this week's struggle with Hardin-Simmons. He had an injured shoulder.

Baylor's Bears had a light practice. All men were expected to be ready for their first conference go with Arkansas Saturday.

815th Sqdn. And Lester Lead In Bowling League

The Lee Hanson's (815th School Squadron) and Harry Lester fired the biggest guns in the opening of the Classic Bowling league here Monday evening, sweeping their entire series.

The school squadron hammered the Park Inn (Officers) into submission 3-0, while Lester's team was mauling Douglas Hotel (Officers) by the same margin. Cosden Petroleum beat Lee Hanson's (Officers) 2-1.

Donnie Alexander had high series for individuals for the evening and Lt. Argus ranked high single with 228. Harry Lester's team took series honors with 2,582 and the 815th was second with 2,289.

Ward School
Boys To Get
Grid Suits

Uniforms were due to be issued today to lads coming out for football teams in six elementary schools, John Dibrell, director of athletics, announced.

There will be only 12 uniforms, all bought especially for the smaller youngsters, issued to each school at present, but in a week or so three or four more will be issued where they are needed.

First schedule games for the youthful gridlers will be Oct. 15, but Dibrell hopes to have all of those coming out in uniform and as guests at the Big Spring-Odessa game here Friday evening.

Coaches from the ranks of ineligible or former Star players are working with the boys and report that they will be ready to undertake the schedule which calls for a round robin of games. There will be one tilt played Thursday afternoon each week and two on each Saturday—one in the morning and one in the afternoon.

Oil Production Shows Decline

TULSA, Okla., Oct. 6. (AP)—Daily crude oil production in the United States declined 290,480 barrels to 3,686,445 for the week ended October 3, the Oil and Gas Journal said today.

California production was down 38,000 to 690,750; eastern fields, 2,040 to 95,460; Kansas, 14,200 to 282,700; Louisiana, 4,350 to 325,700; Michigan, 600 to 42,400; Oklahoma, 3,000 to 365,550; Texas, 173,150, and East Texas, 69,400.

Illinois production increased, 3,250 to 264,170, and the Rocky Mountain States, 3,150 to 128,825.

S'west Teams
In Good Shape

Southwest conference teams came through last week's games with few serious injuries and today get busy preparing for their next gridiron rivals.

There were some changes coming in the Texas lineup; Bible planned to work Roy McKay part time at tailback and shift Jackie Field to fullback.

Rice players were in good shape and were to get down to heavy practice today. Jim Nall suffered a bruised hip in the L.S.U. game, but it improved over the weekend, and he was out for drill yesterday.

Dutch Meyer, recovered from an influenza attack, resumed supervision of the T.C.U. Horned Frog workouts. Guard Mike Harper has a bruised leg.

Baylor's Bears had a light practice. All men were expected to be ready for their first conference go with Arkansas Saturday.

Mims May Be Out For Odessa Game

Bronchos Due To
Be Plenty Tough
Customers

Only Billy Mims is likely to be missing from the Steer lineup when Odessa comes here to give the locals their first conference test of the season.

Billy suffered a charley horse in the game with Lubbock and Monday the kink didn't come out of it as had been expected. He has been running from the half-back post, serving principally as a blocker and doing a very nice job of it, too.

The Steers looked good in a vigorous workout Monday afternoon. Their contacts were more jarring and they were applying some of the fever with which Lubbock taught them to play.

Coach John Dibrell and Assistant Tommy Beene dished out lots of blocking Monday, and also brushed up on the aerial attack. Today they were to get more drilling on pass defense to offset some of the power Odessa is expected to manifest. At the same time, Dibrell is expected to give his charges a long and hard time of it in practicing on protection for the passer.

This is the one department in which the Steers really looked terrible last weekend. They never did get to where they looked as if they really cared about giving Boetick time to throw the ball.

But if they looked bad here, they looked good elsewhere, even if the score or statistics failed to reveal it. Hugh Cochran and Bobby Barron, either of whom may spell Mims, showed possibilities.

Odessa is planning to take Big Spring in stride. From the Ector county seat, Jada Davis writes that "this (Big Spring game) best won't be too strong—but anything can happen. The Steers didn't look so bad against Lubbock."

There's a big job coming up in trying to head the Etores. Against Lamessa Jack Wilkinson (he whose ineptly probably cost the Bronchos a district title last year), was hot. Otis McKay kept on twisting, jarring and running over what he couldn't out-run. Little Tommie Pharis and another one of those peppy Coats boys came up as new shift-runners. Tommy McCracken also was poison to the Tornados and ran them dizzy when not doing pretty well in chinking a rain-soaked ball.

And don't forget Big Keith Evans, manmountain end for the Bronchos. He was snagging passes and running them like a battering ram—a practice he may try against the Steers.

Pipeline Completion
Due In Early Dec.

LITTLE ROCK, Oct. 6. (AP)—The 531-mile oil pipeline from Longview, Texas, to Salsen, Ill., will be completed by the first week in December, Burt E. Hull, vice president of War Pipelines, Inc., said last night.

He asserted 322 miles of the line has been completed and that sections have been put down in all four states through which it will pass: Texas, Arkansas, Missouri and Illinois.

Proposes Ban On Weakened Poisons

AUSTIN, Oct. 6. (AP)—A bill to curb the sale of adulterated insecticides within the state will be introduced at the next general session of the legislature beginning in January.

Grand Dad Of Them All— Stagg Is Still Going Strong

By SAM JACKSON
Wide World Features Writer
STOCKTON, Calif. — They used to call Amos Alonzo Stagg the Grand Old Man of Football, but as time rolls on such allusions seem a little weak. Now his admirers are likening him to Old Man River and the pyramids of Egypt.

At 80 years of age, the rugged patriarch of the gridiron is still up and at 'em here at the College of the Pacific. A suggestion from the college president, Dr. Tully C. Knoles, that this was an unpromising year for football, that at his age Stagg might like to take a rest, and so on, didn't get anywhere.

Stagg said there would be football and football there is. This is his 53rd year of coaching the game. His fame rests chiefly on his solid 41-year stretch at the University of Chicago, terminated only when he reached the compulsory retirement age of 70.

Despite all the honors paid him when he was transferred to the pension list, some unidentified alumnus of Pacific suspected that he really was a disappointed man—that he'd like to continue coaching. So Dr. Knoles started negotiations and the result was that

IN 53RD YEAR as football coach of Pacific mentor, reacts same as h. Alonzo Stagg (above), College's over to game's tense moments.

Stagg carried on without missing a game. In this, his tenth season at Pacific, Stagg has already shown the old touch is still there. His initial game was with the Navy's Pre-Flight School, which has so many all-Americans and star professionals that they stumped him over each other. Against the squad—potentially the strongest in the far west—he had to field a team of almost no experience and with only ten days' practice. Compared with the expected slaughter, the score of 35 to 9 was a Stagg triumph.

At 80 Stagg is stocky, erect, bronzed as an Indian and with a head of thick gray hair. He appears on the field bareheaded in a business suit and wears glasses only when watching the play. Though a great performer himself at Yale and a member of Walter Camp's first all-American team, he appears diminutive beside the towering, padded football players of today. In the press box at all games sits Mrs. Stagg, who has charted the play for him from the turn of the century. Though he made his original reputation as a baseball pitcher, and also coached track for 22 years, Stagg now confines his activities to football. He draws on a student body of about 2,500. Throughout life Stagg has abstained from alcohol and tobacco, and gave up coffee at 3, when his ambition was to become a wrestler. Despite his vigor in advanced age, he has had spells of illness and at times had to coach his Chicago team while seated in an electric chair. Stagg and his wife live in a modest but attractive cottage near the campus, filled with trophies and other mementoes of his long career. They have two sons who also have taken up coaching.

THE BEER THAT MADE MILWAUKEE FAMOUS

Editorial - It's Foolish To Fight Wars Trying To Hit The Jackpot

Perhaps we should be thankful that we have been spared thus far from wild financial schemes brought on by the tempo of the times. But now A. J. Sabath, veteran Illinois congressman, writing in the American Magazine, comes up with a proposal which seems to us to meet all the classifications of this point.

Sabath proposes to "harness" the $10,000,000,000 American people spend annually on gambling to the war effort. His idea is that the secretary of the treasury will issue $1 war participation tickets which in effect will be lottery tickets.

To sugar the pill, he proposes that half of the money received from the sale of these tickets would go directly to the government to help finance the war, and that the remaining half would be divided among winners in cash, bonds and non-interest bearing but negotiable "war loan certificates."

Washington Daybook - Prisoners Are Fighting From Inside Walls

WASHINGTON—There probably isn't a lad going off to the wars these days who isn't packing something or using something that was made in this country's prisons. Already more than 100 prisoners and at least one in each of the 48 states) are going all out on war materials. Prison farms and dairies are contributing to the food production program. Prison shops and machines are turning out hundreds of articles that go into the sinews of war: tent stakes, camouflage cloth, airplane castings, bomb parts, ammunition boxes, tool chests, and what not.

The prison industries section is part of the war production board. It was organized by Maury Maverick, chief of the bureau of governmental requirements, and is now headed by the former congressman and San Antonio mayor. It is directed by Dan Turner, former governor of Iowa. Having had to overcome the hurdle which prison labor is always up against of not infringing on the rights of organized labor, prison was production still is in its infancy. It has, however, been given the green light by a presidential directive just issued. This removes some of the legal obstacles surrounding the sale of prison made goods.

The point is that everything turned out by the prisons now operating under the program goes directly to the army, navy, or lend-lease. Maverick and Turner hope eventually to put the whole force of 168,000 prison laborers, many of them skilled mechanics and machine tool operators, back of the war effort.

There are for example cotton spindles operated by state prisons capable of turning out 20,000,000 yards of 5 1/2-ounce fabric a year. Jute, no longer available from India, is being replaced by osage cloth fabricated from cotton grown on prison farms in the south. This

Man About Manhattan - Maybe Billy Williams Is Pretty Smart Guy At That

By GEORGE TUCKER NEW YORK — You've heard about the filing clerk who got herself a lifetime job by working out an index system so complicated that only she understood it. Now there's Billy Williams, who got himself a job with Sammy Kaye's orchestra because he's the only man who can sing "Where the Mountains Meet the Sky" the way it should be sung. Small wonder, because Billy wrote the song himself.

He's a tall, brown-eyed Texan of 28 who looks just like he should look when he sings his cowboy ballad. Before Kaye heard him singing and subsequently signed him, Billy was pretty much of an itinerant musician. He toots a capable saxophone, but the bands he worked with had a bad habit of is turned into camouflage cloth and sand-bags. Vegetables and fruits from thousands of acres of prison canneries. Maverick can reel off all the figures, but he likes to talk most about what all this is doing to prison morale. One of his favorite stories is about a young man serving a life sentence in a Georgia prison.

It's the young fellow's first stretch. Almost the first day of his sentence, he went berserk. Within a few weeks, he had drawn every kind of punishment the prison could mete out. He was a bad one and considered almost incurable. When Fernal Harbor came he was doing a long stretch in solitary confinement.

He heard the news and asked to be taken to the warden. He pleaded. The interview was finally granted. He asked to be put to work on war materials. The warden couldn't believe his ears, but he gave the fellow a chance. For nearly ten months, the young man has been a model prisoner.

This, says Maverick, is one of hundreds of such cases that have been called to his attention. He's convinced that there is no group anywhere more eager to do their part in licking the axis than the "men in stir."

folding up, particularly when he was a couple of thousand miles from his home town of Avery, Tex.

I'm taking Kaye's word for it that smiling Billy sings his own song best. Bing Crosby should be able to do pretty well with it, of course. But Billy's price is a little high for orchestra work.

People go to a lot of extremes to pass the time in subways. I noticed a man filing his fingernails yesterday. He was being extremely meticulous about it, giving each finger several final touches before going on to the next. By the looks of other people's faces, I could tell they thought he was quite foolish.

Warner Baxter, a "washed up" actor, to play Walsh's part in "In Old Arizona" — and unwashed him. Lewis Milestone ("The Edge of Darkness") is looking for a role for Lewis Milestone — a token role. More than 10 years ago, when he directed "All Quiet on the Western Front," Milestone played one of the screen's most famous scenes. The picture ended with Lew Ayres, the German soldier in the trench, extending his hand to touch a vagrant butterfly — just as he was shot. The hand, in close-up, was Lewis Milestone's.

New York's subways are so marvelously punctual, the trains sometimes running 90 seconds apart, that you can figure home-to-office time down to the minute. It's a great advantage in this town, so given to luncheon dates and appointments on the half-hour and quarter-hour, to be able to calculate distance and running time and wind-up within five minutes of the intended time, even though you travel five or six miles.

Women are much given to knitting and crocheting on the subways, and they, like the man filing his fingernails, get clocks in their heads. I have seen them with yarn, needles and bag spread out in a seemingly hopeless tangle, but when the train hits a certain switch, they start putting things back in the bag and just as the last scrap is tucked away, the train stops and they stand up. You may have guessed it by now — my own favorite way of time-killing in the subways is watching people.

Auto Shops Are Subject To OPA Control Rules

Machine shops supplying automotive repair, maintenance and rebuilding services are subject to the controls of the Service Trades Price Regulation and should file with the Howard county War Price and Rationing Board statements of March prices and not send them to the Washington office, Shirley Robbins, local board chairman advised today.

The announcement is made, Robbins said, because many have gone to needless work sending to Washington the price lists required by the regulation. Concerns required to furnish the list included those whose services include such operations in connection with automotive vehicles as crank shaft regrinding, cylinder reboring, repairing and rebuilding automotive generators and starters, reconditioning and rebuilding motors, clutch refacing, brake shoes, reconditioning and rebuilding connecting rods, align boring of main bearings, truing brake drums, brake lining installation, clutch rebuilding, cylinder head resurfacing and valve refacing.

Printed or mimeographed price lists such as are regularly distributed by such concerns to their customers may be used if the prices quoted are the highest prices actually charged in March and providing they contain an appropriate description of each service listed.

Hollywood - Directors, Too, Have A Leg On Dizzy Doings

By ROBBIN COONS HOLLYWOOD — Directors, just directors:

Once Leo McCarey ("Once Upon a Honeymoon") sold a story to Sam Goldwyn for $50,000, expecting to cash some more heavy chips for the job of directing it. Sam crossed him up — William Wyler got the assignment. But things did not go well, and midway through the filming of "The Cowboy and the Lady" Wyler surrendered the direction. Producer Sam approached John Ford, who would have none of it. Producer approached Leo McCarey. "I'll give you $75,000 to finish the picture," said Sam to Leo.

"No, thanks," said Leo McCarey. "But why?" asked Sam. "I don't like the story," said Leo McCarey.

Edward Dmytryk ("Seven Miles from Alcatraz") is a quiet, studious young man who, for some strange reason, draws thrillers like "Seven Miles" and makes very creditable jobs of them. I say strange because Dmytryk's favorite game, which he plays well and deliberately, is chess. And his hobby is the study of Chinese.

Irving Reis is a young director from radio. After a couple of "B" pictures Irving was selected by Damon Runyon to make "The Big Street." After the preview of this typical Runyonesque fable, which was applauded highly, I saw Irving Reis standing alone around the corner from the theater. He looked nervous, miserable, and forlorn, just as if he were headed for Skid Row instead of the Big Street of Hollywood.

Raulo Walsh ("Desperate Journey") is another former actor. He might have been an actor today but for a jackrabbit. En route by car to a desert location, Walsh hit the creature, sent it flying through the windshield, lost an eye from shattered glass. They sent for Warner Baxter, a "washed up" actor, to play Walsh's part in "In Old Arizona" — and unwashed him.

Lewis Milestone ("The Edge of Darkness") is looking for a role for Lewis Milestone — a token role. More than 10 years ago, when he directed "All Quiet on the Western Front," Milestone played one of the screen's most famous scenes. The picture ended with Lew Ayres, the German soldier in the trench, extending his hand to touch a vagrant butterfly — just as he was shot. The hand, in close-up, was Lewis Milestone's.

A Promise for Tomorrow

Chapter 15 SIGNALLED FROM SHORE

It had turned suddenly very hot. As if summer, to make amends for being late, had turned on full measure. Sprawled in wide comfortable hammocks, Dawn and her guests sipped the tall cool drinks — Jarvis prepared, and let the conversation drift idly. Julie, completely relaxed for the first time in months, was nearly asleep in her swing when the crooning music from the radio stopped suddenly, a deep voice announced the station and a late news bulletin.

"We have just received word of the torpedoing of the tanker Anna Marie off the coast of Oregon. Captain Stuart reports having seen two periscopes. The ship was fired on just at daybreak this morning. All forty-three men on board accounted for."

Julie sat up with a jerk, wide-eyed now. "Did you hear that?" "Submarines off our coast again!" Pete moved to the radio, tuned in another station for more details.

Bob's sudden chatter of conversation that drowned out the announcer's clipped tones, Pete shouted finally, "They think the subs were signaled from shore. The tanker was only a mile from the beach. And full of oil. An other hour and she'd have been safe in port."

Then, a little later when the others had gone back to their deck chairs and their bridge games, Pete and Julie were alone in the living room. Pete still turned from station to station trying to pick up more details of the disaster.

"What do you make of it, Pete?" Julie asked quietly. He looked up at her steadily a moment. "I don't like it. If the Japs are getting cooperation from spies on the coast here, it means we've a big job to do. Do you realize how many miles of mountainous coast line we have?"

"Yes, but it's all guarded now, isn't it? And every Japanese has been moved inland, interned?" "A spy doesn't have to be a Jap," Pete said dryly. "And guards would have to be planted every fifteen feet to keep a good agent from making a try at contacting his buddies. We're in for some excitement, I'm afraid!" His words only corroborated the feeling Julie had. And even the oppressively hot afternoon during which not the faintest breeze stirred the tall, silent trees seemed to be waiting for something.

Something burning! It wasn't until they were all starting back to town that Julie noticed the odor of wood-smoke. "Something burning around here?" she asked, sniffing.

"Probably Jarvis burning some trash," Dawn said carelessly. "Don't forget the dim-out on the shore highway before you turn onto the Santa Felice road. No car driving along the ocean side of the mountains can show lights, you know." "Won't that be something," Bart muttered as he stowed the luggage into the turtle back. "Driving a mountain road with no lights. And no moon tonight, either."

"Just be glad there's no fog, mate," Julie suggested an hour later as they finally pulled out of the Kellard driveway, head of a small caravan of four cars.

Pete, grinning, waved a final good-bye from the porch as they pulled out of sight. "Gee, he certainly looks swell, doesn't he," Bart said. "Miracle, really, that he can walk straight again, huh?" Julie nodded.

"He's a lucky stiff. Got Dawn eating out of his hand already. And probably he'll walk right back into a swell commission with the Army Air Corps."

"Probably," and Julie's heart hurt when she said it. If the week-end had served for any purpose other than just fun, it had been proof of Dawn's devotion to Pete. She'd scarcely looked at anyone else. And been jealously suspicious of Julie's morning on the trout stream. Any similarity between Dawn's attitude toward Julie and friendliness had become purely accidental, Julie thought now, a little smile curving her lips. She'd been polite and that was all.

"Look ahead, Julie. Would that be fog, d'you suppose?" Julie looked. Rolled down her window, stuck her head out to look again. Not fog. She could smell it plainly now. Smoke. Clouds of smoke!

"There's a forest fire somewhere near," she said. "A big one." "Hope it isn't too near." But it was. The next snappy turns took them into an advance guard of stinging smoke that swirled across the shaft of light from the car headlights. Bart stopped the car finally, signalled frantically to the car pulling around the curve just behind them.

"This will probably last only a little while," Dawn called. "Go on. We'll get out of it in a minute." But they didn't get out of it in many minutes. Bart held the car to a snail's pace, crept cautiously around the winding, narrow road. "I don't like it," he muttered finally. "I'm for going back."

They did turn back finally. But not until an opening through the trees showed them a whole hillside ahead-laced with a thin thread of fire. A treacherous wind blowing straight up the valley now, fanned the fire, pushed it with invisible fingers straight up the slope toward the crest.

Turning the four cars involved careful backing into the turn-out, careful maneuvering. But to go on ahead was sheer folly. Pete had had word of the fire by the time they got back to the cabin.

"The ranger was by looking for fire-fighters," he shouted from the porch, where he was struggling into boots, a heavy coat. "He's going to pick us up on the way back."

"Not you, Pete!" Julie protested. He looked at her sharply. "Certainly me, too. Why not?" "Then I'm going, too," she answered quietly. At least she could be on hand when Pete's weakness finally overtook him. No man recently out of a hospital could stand this kind of strain.

DRIVER GETS QUAYULE TIRE

SALINAS, Cal. (UP)—Included in contributions to the scrap rubber drive here was one of the first tires ever made completely of guayule rubber. It was constructed for the International Rubber Co. in 1925 and was turned in during a clean-up of samples and scraps from the guayule rubber mill and nursery. One of the tires made at that time is now in the Smithsonian Institution. More than a ton of guayule scraps and products were included.

But Pete stood it. Hours later as they tramped through brush, Julie marvelled at his great endurance. Bart and the others had dropped back, one by one. And Julie herself felt ready to drop any moment, but Pete never faltered.

"Gad, Julie," he muttered once as they waited once for orders from the ranger. "It's great to be back in the fight again." He grasped her shoulders, looked down into her eyes, a smile on his own grime-streaked face. "I've never been happier than I am this minute."

A moment later she had to admit that awful danger cracked and crashed around them. A forest ranger dashed up the trail toward them.

"We're going to have to dynamite the trees on the ridge," he shouted. "Can you handle the stuff?"

"Sure. Let's go."

"Begin fifty yards up that way," he pointed. "Take it as far as you have time. The fires burning fast. It was well planned."

"Planned!" Julie echoed, horrified.

The ranger turned. "Most of that dynamite you heard going off down there wasn't mine! Every other tree was stuffed with it."

"But—how—why—"

"I can guess how—but not why!"

Non-Draft Prospects Are Urged To Offer To Perform Farm Work

People both above and below the draft age are urged to aid in the war effort by offering their services for farm work.

By so doing those who are now drawing old age pensions or other similar government payments need have no fear that such payments will be discontinued because agricultural work is not covered by the social security act, Big Spring U.S. employment service officials pointed out.

Boys and girls who are 16 and 17 years old and who wish to extend their summer vacation in order to work on a farm may continue to receive their monthly insurance benefits while so working. But, they must notify the social security board office of the date they expect to return to school.

Anyone in this category wishing to lend a helping hand to Uncle Sam in his effort to provide food for victors should apply to the local U.S. employment service office.

Advance Sales Indicate Large Crowd For Philips Book Review

Review of Shine Philips' book, "Big Spring, Casual Biography of a Prairie Town," will be well attended Thursday night at 8:30 o'clock at the city auditorium if advance sales of tickets are any indication.

The 1930 Hyperion club members are handling the sale of tickets for the review, which is sponsored by the review by Evelyn Oppenheimer of Dallas, well-known reviewer.

In a review given at Dallas by Miss Oppenheimer last week on the Philips book, standing room was all that was left for those attending late. To accommodate the crowd, a second review of the book was then given.

Mr. and Mrs. Philips were in Dallas for the opening review and were honored by Miss Oppenheimer with a reception. Among the outstanding guests attending were Mr. and Mrs. Jerry Bywaters, he was illustrator for the book, W. J. Brown, head of Titche-Goettinger company and his wife, Sam Acheson of the Dallas News, Alex Acheson of the Dallas Times Herald, J. F. Albright of the Cokesbury Book store, Mr. Nash of the Texas News company.

Teachers Exempt From Hatch Act

WASHINGTON, Oct. 6. (AP)—The house today voted to exempt teachers and country editors on federal payrolls in any capacity from the Hatch act ban on political activity.

The measure previously had been passed by the senate to exempt the employees of educational institutions, and the exemption for country editors was included in the house. It now goes back to the senate for consideration of the editors' amendment.

During house debate the teachers and country editors were described as "beneficial elements" and "the unpolluted, non-contaminated voice of the people."

Rep. Hoffman (R-Mich.) complained that the brief bill was a "disguised attempt to repeal the entire Hatch act," which forbids participation of federal employes in elections.

In other places that light is needed, put the lamp as close as practical for better illumination.
