Court denies districting injunction request

By GILBERT DUNKLEY
University Daily Reporter

The 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals on Tuesday denied the City of Lubbock's request for an injunction against Federal Judge Halbert O. Woodward's order that a single-member district election be conducted in Lubbock April 7.

The city filed a request for an injunction on Feb. 13, pending the court's ruling on the city's appeal of Woodward's order. That appeal was made in March 1983, immediately following Woodward's declaration that Lubbock's at-large election system was unconstitutional.

"The application (for a stay) was denied by judges Reavly, Randall and Higginbotham," a spokeswoman for the court said in a telephone interview from New Orleans Tuesday afternoon.

If the court does not rule on the city's appeal by April 7, it will effectively have cleared the way for Lubbock to conduct its first single-member district election.

City Council member Joan Baker said Tuesday the council had received no direct word from the 5th Circuit Court about its ruling.

Attorney Travis Shelton, one of four attorneys representing the city, learned of the court's decision at 5:15 p.m. Tuesday, although several members of the news media, as well as attorneys representing Lubbock minorities, knew of the ruling before noon.

Attorney Dan Benson, representing the minority cause in the single-member issue, said he was pleased by the court's order.

"It's a pleasant decision, and we are encouraged by it," Benson said.

Benson said he believes the court's denial of the city's application for an injunction may indicate that the court also will deny the city's appeal of Woodward's order.

Woodward's single-member districting plan creates six electoral districts in Lubbock, an increase from the four places under the at-large election system.

The new system, which the court designed to offer Lubbock's black and Hispanic minorities better chances of being elected to the City Council, already has attracted 10 candidates for the six districts.

Of the candidates who filed for council positions with the city secretary as of 4 p.m. Tuesday, three are incumbents. Mayor Alan Henry also has filed for reelection. So far he is unchallenged.

Seven of the 10 candidates have filed in accordance with the city secretary's request that candidates register under both the at-large system and the single-member system.

Under the single-member districting plan, real estate agent Maggie Trejo is the only person so far to file for the District 1 seat. District 1 spans north-central and northeast Lubbock.

Protesting what she describes as the unfairness of the at-large plan, Trejo has declined to register under that election plan.

Under Woodward's plan, Gilbert Herrera, Kyle Ray Wesley and T.J. Patterson have filed for the District 2 council position, which covers southeast Lubbock.

Patterson has filed only under the single-member plan.

Incumbent George Carpenter and Texas Tech pre-law student Pedro Mora have filed for the District 3 seat. District 3 encompasses south central Lubbock.

By 4 p.m. Tuesday, Bonner Bennett was the only person who had filed for District 4 in south Lubbock.

Councilman E. Jack Brown and Gary Bellair are running in District 5 in southwest Lubbock.

Under the single-member plan, council member Joan Baker on Tuesday was running unchallenged in District 6 in northwest Lubbock.

Under the at-large election plan, the two-year terms are staggered, and council members for places 2 and 4 are up for re-election in April.

E. Jack Brown has filed for Place 2, along with challengers Gilbert Herrera and Pedro Mora.

In Place 4, Baker is being challenged by Bonner Bennett, Kyle Ray Wesley and Gary Bellair.

Drug needed for treating hypotension

By GREG VAUGHN
University Daily Reporter

All parts of the body's nervous system need dopamine in order to function properly, and it is important to understand dopamine's function in the cardiovascular system as a treatment for shock, says David Potter, professor of pharmacology and ophthalmology at the Texas Tech University Health Sciences Center (TTUHSC).

Dopamine is a drug that also occurs naturally in the brain. The drug acts as a neurotransmitter, telling other cells in the body whatever message they need to change their bodily function, Potter said.

"It (dopamine) will make your heart contract more forcefully, which is usually a problem in shock, and direct blood in a most specific way to the kidneys," Potter said.

"When someone is in shock, the objective in giving a drug is to maintain blood flow to the heart, kidney and brain. When people die in shock, it's because their blood flow to those vital organs is greatly reduced."

Dopamine's uses in treating shock and hypotension (low blood pressure) will be addressed in two lectures today by Dr. Leon Goldberg, guest speaker for the eighth Pfizer Lecture Series in clinical pharmacology at the TTUHSC.

Goldberg, professor of pharmacology at the University of Chicago, will speak to Tech medical students on "Treatment of Shock" at 11 a.m. today in 5B148A, TTUHSC; and to house staff and faculty on "Peripheral Dopamine Receptors" at 3:30 p.m. today in the same room.

A receptor is that part of the cell with which dopamine interacts to give it a message so that organ can change its function, Potter said.

"Dr. Goldberg knows about as much about dopamine as anyone in the United States," Potter said.

"We're talking about its use not only as a drug, but also as something we need to understand more about in terms of its ability as a neurotransmitter in the peripheral part of our bodies," Potter said.

The peripheral parts of the body refers to those organs, such as the heart, kidneys and eyes that are supplied nerves by the peripheral nervous system.

"Dopamine tells the heart to beat more forcefully, and in terms of blood flow to the kidneys, it tells the renal arteries to dilate so that more blood can get to the kidneys," Potter said.

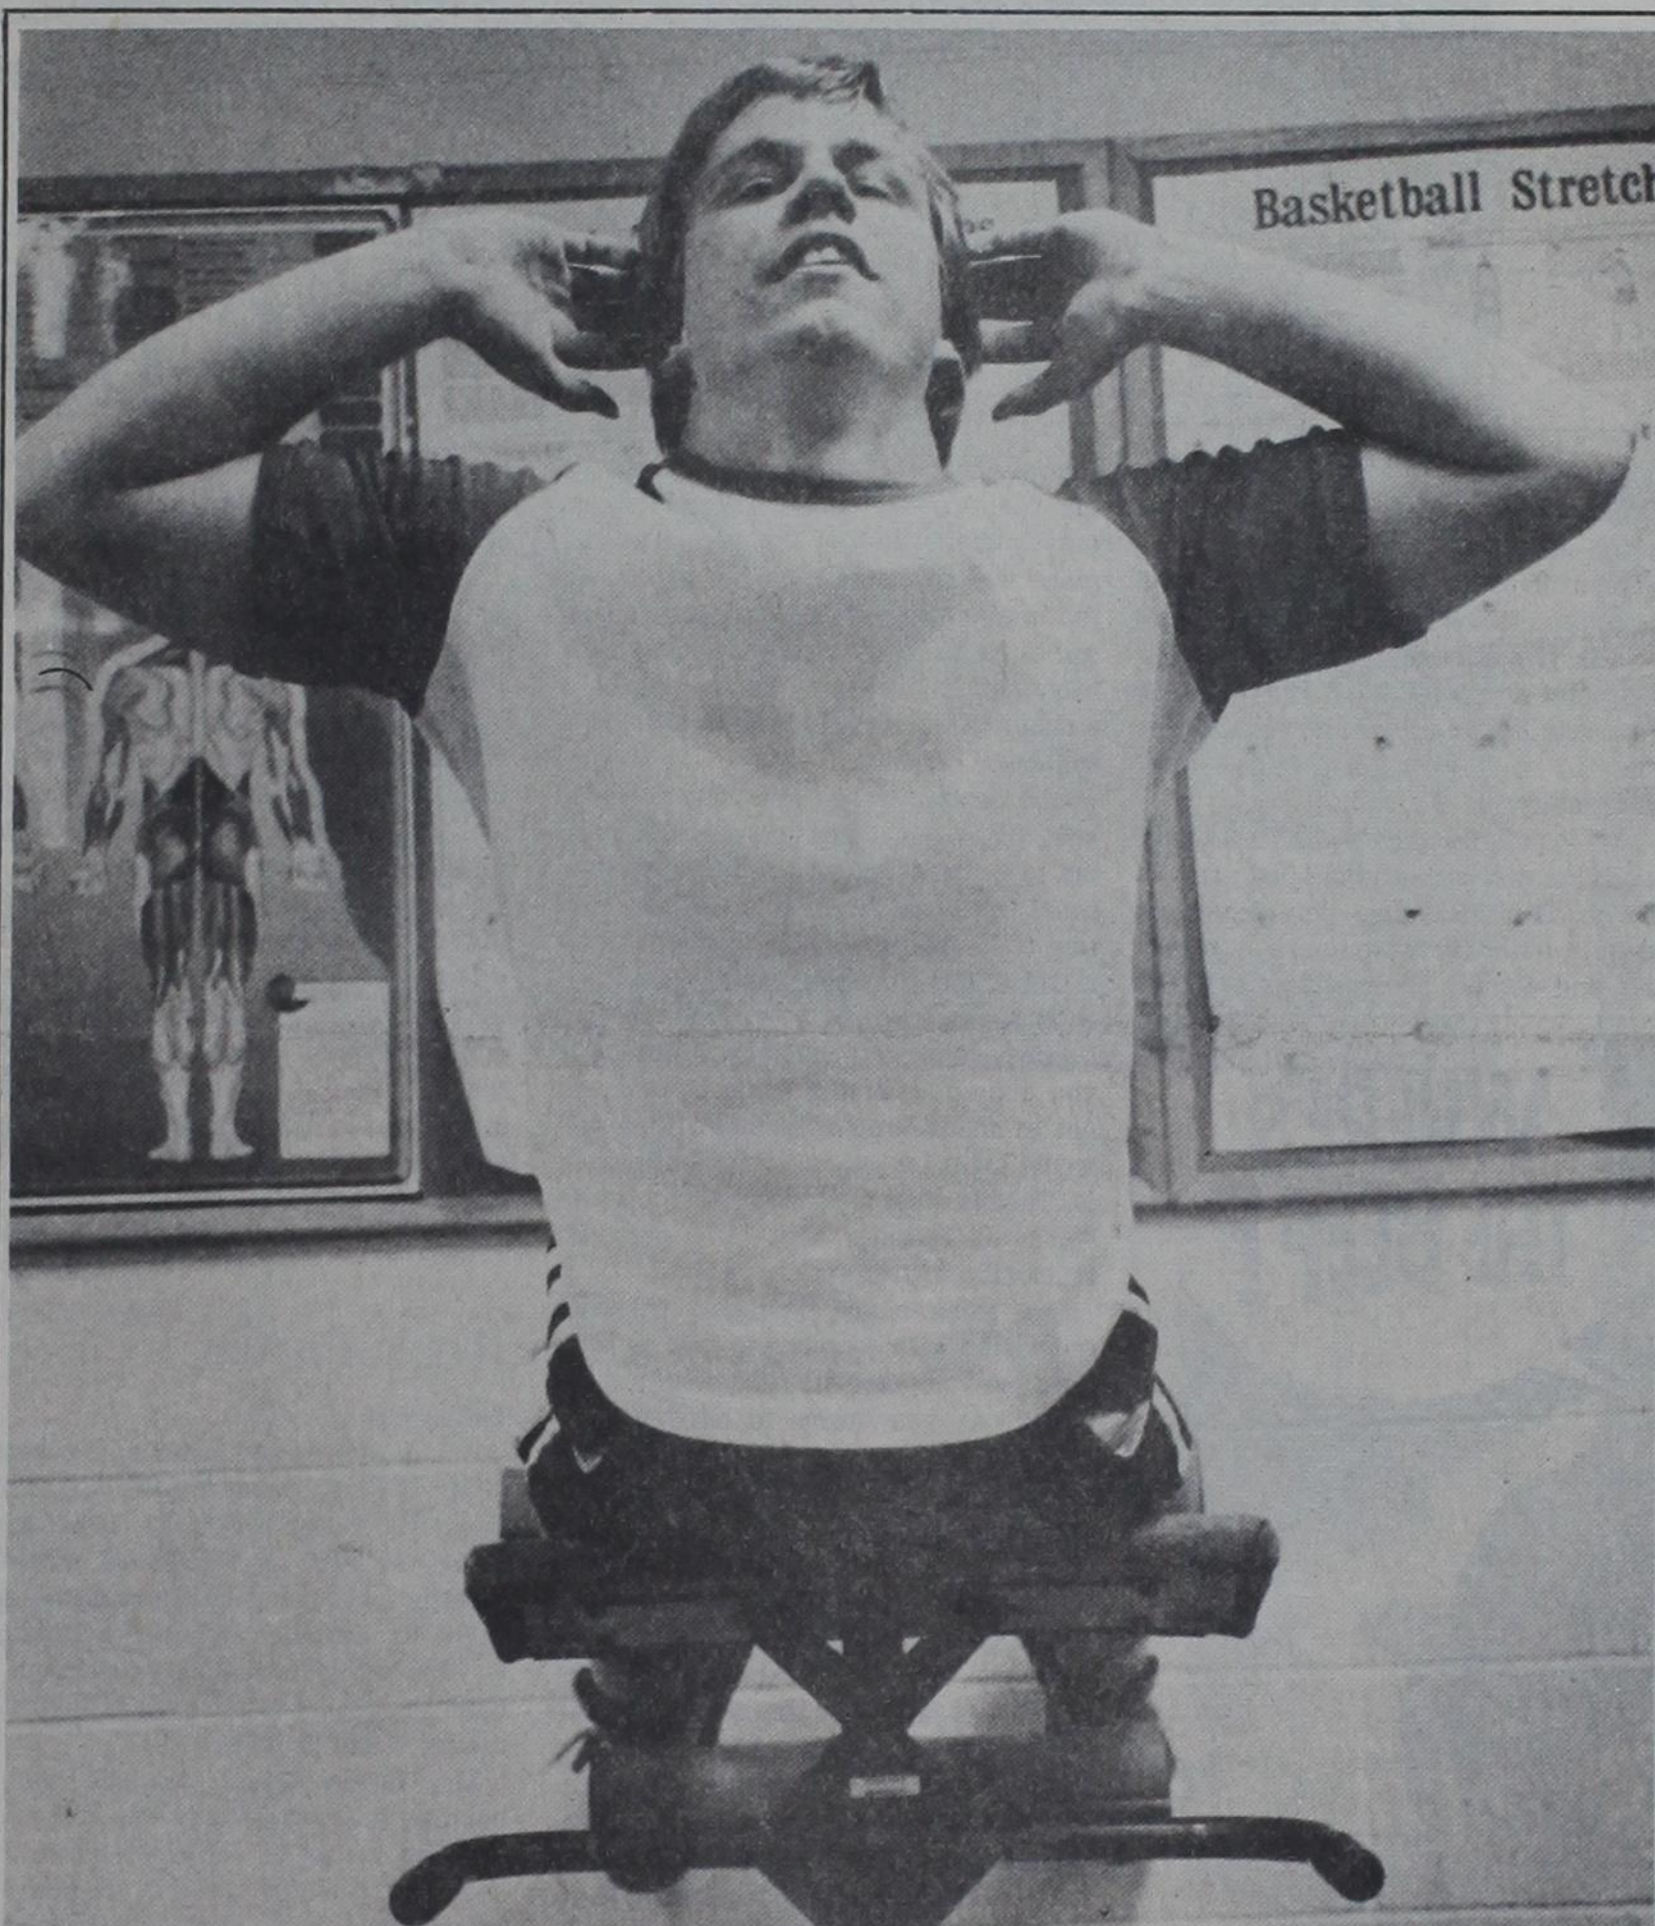

Potter said physicians at TTUHSC are conducting research on dopamine's role in regulation of pressure in the eye, such as with glaucoma. The physicians found that applying dopamine-like drugs to the eye lowers pressure in the eye that may cause blindness, Potter said.

Potentially, this is one of the new ways of treating glaucoma, and this is one among many reasons Dr. Goldberg is coming," Potter said.

Although dopamine is used universally in emergency rooms, the practice of treating shock with dopamine is relatively new.

Drugs used before the development of dopamine reduced blood flow and sometimes directed blood to the wrong parts of the body, Potter said.

Dopamine also is used to treat victims of Parkinson's Disease who have a form of hypotension due to a lack of natural dopamine being produced by the brain, Potter said.

Iowans support Mondale, Hart

By The Associated Press

Taking no time out to celebrate their Iowa victories, Walter Mondale and Sen. Gary Hart turned their attention on Tuesday to New Hampshire and the next big events on the Democratic presidential circuit.

Hart, who surged to a second-place finish in Iowa, was out early in New Hampshire the morning after, telling a crowd in Bedford that Mondale's support is "very soft."

But Mondale's chief pollster insisted the former vice president is seen as the candidate with the most experience and that negative attacks on him backfired on his rivals.

All eight Democratic candidates were making their way to New Hampshire for a League of Women Voters debate on Thursday where they will hone their appeals for New Hampshire's first-in-the-nation primary next week.

Hart described his second-place showing in Iowa as "a big boost" and said, "Hopefully, it does turn this into a Hart-Mondale race. ... It sets up a contest between the party's future and its past."

Mondale left early Tuesday for New Hampshire after Iowa Democrats gave him nearly half their votes in Monday night's precinct caucuses. His success in locking up delegates to the national convention this summer in San Francisco was even more substantial.

The former vice president's showing appeared to give him 48 of the 50 delegates who will be apportioned on the basis of the precinct caucus results. Eight other Iowa convention delegates will be officially uncommitted.

The Iowa results boosted Mondale's delegate total to 118. Sen. John Glenn was in second place with 17. The totals include House Democrats who were selected as delegates by their colleagues last month.

"The harsh negatives that John Glenn and others have been aiming at us, came back in on them," Peter Hart, the Mondale campaign pollster, said at a morning-after briefing.

Glenn was the big loser in Iowa, finishing fifth.

Interviewed on the CBS Morning News, Glenn recalled Ronald Reagan's experience in Iowa four years ago when he was narrowly defeated in the Republican caucuses by George Bush.

"I can remember someone else who got defeated in Iowa just four years ago, who's now the incumbent president," said the Ohio senator.

candidate	percent
Mondale	48.9
Hart	16.4
McGovern	10.2
Cranston	7.4
Glenn	3.4
Askew	2.4
Jackson	1.5
Hollings	.04

Also appearing on the CBS show was Sen. Alan Cranston of California, who had hoped to finish third and ended up fourth.

David Nagle, the Iowa Democratic Party chairman, said up to 85,000 Democrats went to caucuses, but he cautioned candidates against drawing too many conclusions from the caucus results.

The Democratic Party did its own tally and gave results with 94 percent of precincts reporting. The party figures included only percentages.

Phone-a-thon to aid president's endowment

By LAURA TETREAULT
University Daily Reporter

The Student Foundation is sponsoring an alumni phone-a-thon to raise $20,000 in donations for a Texas Tech president's endowment fund, said Bill Johnson, chairman of the phone-a-thon committee.

"We should make $18,000 without any problem," Johnson said.

The phone-a-thon began Feb. 6 and will continue through Thursday. Tech graduates living in the Dallas-Fort Worth area are being contacted and asked to make a minimum, tax deductible donation of $25 to the fund, which is used as an incentive for top academic students to come to Tech, Johnson said.

"For a donation over $25, the person will receive a free one-year membership to the Ex-Students Association," Johnson said.

Members of various fraternities, sororities and campus organizations are calling Monday through Thursday between 6:45 p.m. and 10 p.m. from telephones set up in the University Center Blue Room. Two organizations with 10 members each make phone calls on the Watts line each night, Johnson said.

"Callers have been real patient. We have had three or four outstanding calls (for donations)," he said. "Even if they didn't pledge, they were friendly."

The Student Foundation has set up several incentives for members of organizations to participate. The top caller for each night will receive a cash prize. The organization with the most calls overall will receive a cash prize, and the three top callers of the phone-a-thon each will receive a spring break weekend trip for two to San Diego, Johnson said.

Johnson said this is the first time the Student Foundation has sponsored a phone-a-thon of "this magnitude." Previous phone-a-thons were restricted to the Lubbock area and to Student Foundation members.

The incentive for a larger phone-a-thon came from other universities, such as Baylor, that use the system to raise between $50,000 and $100,000 in donations, Johnson said.

The Student Foundation had to remedy new problems with this year's phone-a-thon caused by its magnitude. He said the biggest problem was wrong numbers for graduates but that "the positives have far outweighed the negatives."

Johnson said the Student Foundation will try to run a phone-a-thon every semester, contacting graduates in various Texas cities.

"Next fall maybe we can call the Houston area," he said. "I've really been pleased with the people who are calling."

Marines begin withdrawal from Beirut; bombing continues

By The Associated Press

BEIRUT, Lebanon — U.S. Navy helicopters took Marines from their base at Beirut's airport to warships in the Mediterranean on Tuesday as the Marine withdrawal from Beirut officially got under way.

Israeli jets, meanwhile, bombed and strafed positions in the Syrian-controlled mountains east of the capital.

"Today the support people have gone and we're working on the combat gear," said Marine spokesman Maj. Dennis Brooks. "Today is the first day of the relocation" of the 1,300 combat troops standing by since President Reagan announced Feb. 7 his plan to withdraw them.

Brooks said he was could not say how many Marines were withdrawn Tuesday. He estimated it would take a week or two to evacuate the base at Beirut's airport. Since the base was established in September 1982, 265 U.S. servicemen have died in Lebanon.

The airport has been virtually circled by anti-government militias since last Wednesday, when Druse fighters drove to the coast south of the base, linking up with their Shiite allies and further undermining the government of Christian President Amin Gemayel.

"I'm ready to go. I've got women to meet and beers to drink," said Lance Cpl. Samuel Lee, 20, of Miami, Fla., as he moved out. Asked about the Marines' mission, he said, "We were just trying to restore peace. It doesn't look like it happened."

Brooks said the Marines would leave their bunkers and foxholes intact. He added: "I haven't been informed who's going to be taking over these positions, but they're welcome to them."

Akef Haidar, a former Lebanese army colonel now chief of military of Amal, the largest Shiite militia, said his forces would not take over the airport positions because they hold better posts in the area.

The Israeli command said its jets struck at four buildings described as guerrilla bases along the Beirut-Damascus highway in the central mountains and returned safely after the 20-minute midmorning raid.

Since the Druse offensive a week ago, the Israeli army has been sending patrols north of the Israeli defense line at the Awali River to the outskirts of Damour, 12 miles south of Beirut.

Israeli Prime Minister Yitzhak Shamir, in Brussels, Belgium, said Israel does not intend "at this stage" to move forces into permanent positions north of the Awali.

Meanwhile, Lebanese radio stations said Saudi mediators were working in Beirut and Damascus, Syria, on a new plan calling for a cease-fire throughout Lebanon and a government declaration scrapping a May 17 Israeli-Lebanese troop withdrawal agreement.

Cleaver changes viewed as good for minorities

COLIN E. KILLIAN

On Tuesday, I wrote of Eldridge Cleaver's newfound conservative views on foreign policy. Today, we will discuss his changed perception of some social issues.

For those who missed Tuesday's UD, Cleaver is the former Black Panther leader of 1960s fame who is running as a conservative independent for the 8th Congressional District seat in California. His opponent is incumbent Democrat Rep. Ron Dellums, one of the most liberal members of Congress.

Cleaver is not totally rightwing in his stands on domestic issues, but he has abandoned the radicalism typified by Dellums. Cleaver said that while he is "pro-free enterprise," his opponent is "an avowed socialist."

"(We need) programs to put this country to work," the former radical said. "But I want them to be oriented toward people working and earning their living as opposed to more government welfare programs."

Cleaver also opposes forced busing. "It is a failed policy — it upset both black and white people," he said. "It causes anxiety and is unworkable."

Many liberals probably will think Cleaver has "sold out" the black cause. Yet those fears are unfounded, for Cleaver still is a proponent of civil rights. This time, however, he's on the mark.

"Look at the people pushing forced busing and you'd be surprised to find out how many times you don't even have ... black people involved," Cleaver said. "You've got the NAACP Legal Fund — it's controlled by white people. They have political motives in pursuing some of these suits against the black people involved — that's happened ... in San Francisco."

Cleaver, if he succeeds in ridding Congress of Dellums, would offer a breath of fresh air to black America. He understands the damage that has been done to blacks by the welfare state to which they have been subjected the past 20 years.

The insanity of the '60s that swept Dellums into office mercifully has subsided. It is refreshing to find a black who has realized the moral pitfalls of liberalism. A Cleaver win in November certainly would send shockwaves through the leftwing black "leadership" in this country. And maybe it would help clear the way for Black America to break out of the economic straits it has been stuck with since the advent of liberalism.

At a time when it is almost a sin in the eyes of the media to criticize Democratic presidential hopeful Jesse Jackson, Cleaver hasn't spared the liberal black leader. He is especially critical of Jackson's recent trip to Syria.

"(He went there) where blood is still wet on the ground to advance his own political cause," Cleaver said. "It's a damn lie to say he did it (out of) humanitarian concern."

He added if Jackson "is not arrested and prosecuted, he should at least be censured by a joint resolution of Congress, and the Democratic party should not even consider him ... for their nomination."

Cleaver said Jackson's "mission" to obtain the release of Robert Goodman was a "media hype — a hoax being foisted on America."

He compared the incident to the Iranian hostage crisis when the Iranian kidnappers released the black men and white women shortly after taking over the U.S. embassy.

It just goes to prove that miracles do happen. I would've expected another parting of the Red Sea before I would have expected a liberal to gain a sense of reality. But Cleaver fooled me.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Christianity

To the editor:

This is in response to Kevin Smith and his column in the February 20th issue of the UD. It was really good to read your Viewpoint on Christianity. It challenged me to relate to you what I have seen to be true in my own life concerning Christianity.

Just for starters, let's say that Christianity, to me, is more than just going to church. It's more than denominations, and it is definitely more than a system of do's and don'ts. These things are side issues. Whenever we make side issues the main issue, something is wrong; maybe that's part of the problem. The more we concentrate on the problems, the worse they seem to become. God wants us to focus, center, and revolve around the main issue. The main issue is a relationship with God through the person Jesus Christ.

God desires to see everyone come to know Him — not just to know OF Him, but to actually know Him through a personal relationship. It would be like getting to know someone through the comments of other people. You might end up with a distorted view of that person, because you would just know OF them. If you actually met the same person and got to spend time with them, then you would know for yourself who that person is. That is what God wants us to do. He wants us to know Him by a personal friendship with Him.

One thing about having a personal friendship with someone is that as time goes by, you want the relationship to be better. As you desire to have a good growing relationship with another, you get rid of things in your life that you know offend your friend. The same is true about doing things for that person. Things that you normally would not do, you might do to show your love.

As we emphasize relationships, the side issues just come into place, because in a relationship the law of love prevails. We do things out of love and consideration for the other person. A growing relationship is one where people are committed to each other, and commitment, in all cases, means sacrifice for the good of the other person.

This is what God did, through the person Jesus Christ. God desires to have a relationship with us. Because of this, He sent Jesus Christ, who was God in the flesh, as a sacrifice so we could experience life through His death.

This very basic message is what changed my life a few years back. It occurred when I accepted the sacrifice that Jesus Christ performed on the cross into my life. You see, I did not have a relationship with God before, because of sin. When Jesus died on the cross, He dealt with the sin that held me back from a relationship with my Creator.

One thing I want to say in closing is that if Jesus Christ was God, and He walked this earth as a man, then we have an example of a perfectly fulfilling life and lifestyle. If Jesus Christ was God, then we have a standard, and we don't have to be sidetracked by religious systems... because people make mistakes, but God is perfect.

Rock Profile

To the editor:

I have written this letter as a rebuttal to Mr. Garcia's rebuttal (Feb. 17) to Mr. Daniell's letter (Feb. 16) concerning ROCK MUSIC: A PROFILE. For the record, I attended this program, and share Mr. Daniell's sentiments. Obviously, this whole ordeal is getting out of hand; so as not to bore the uninformed reader, I will be brief.

Mr. Garcia has an uncanny habit of pointing fingers; perhaps this is due to a blinding sense of self-righteousness. I quote Mr. Garcia: "I fail to see how Mr. Daniell can state that our logic and premises were weak. In this respect, he is in the minority. This presentation has been well received and has opened the eyes of many people in this country to the truth." I am very curious as to how he derives this minority. Did he take campus surveys? May we (gentle readers) see the results? Furthermore, since Mr. Daniell is a minority, as Mr. Garcia states, does that mean we (gentle readers) should rally to Mr. Garcia's defense by virtue of his popularity? And this truth he speaks of — is it one of popular consensus? Does that make it omnipotent?

I would like to rub Mr. Garcia's nose in the atrocities committed by popular consensus in the name of God and truth. For this, a history book will suffice. Mr. Garcia himself states, and I quote, "The problem then is that we lose our objectivity, and cling to preconceived notions and prejudices. We become deaf and blind to reality and remain deceived. For most of my life I was in this state." It appears to me that Mr. Garcia has nailed himself to his own cross. He is inferring that as he once shunned all notions of clarity and righteousness, he can now see clearly to burn the devil's work. Little boys should not play with fire, lest they get burned. I smell the stench of hypocrisy, and it makes my stomach turn.

'Sandinista democracy'

Marxism remains as leftists hold elections

By The Associated Press

MANAGUA, Nicaragua — The leftist Sandinista government said Tuesday it will hold nationwide elections Nov. 4, three months earlier than expected. But it insisted that Marxism would remain a part of "Sandinista democracy."

"We do not accept democracy that is ordered by the U.S. government," said Daniel Ortega, coordinator of the governing junta, an apparent reference to U.S. pressure for open elections.

Nov. 4 is two days before the U.S. general election.

Ortega spoke to an estimated 130,000 people in the Plaza of the Revolution to mark the 50th anniversary of the death of guerrilla hero Augusto Cesar Sandino, the Sandinistas' namesake.

Ortega also announced: ●The president, vice president and legislature will take office Jan. 10, 1985, for six-year terms.

●The voting age will be lowered from 18 to 16.

●An amnesty for rebels, to expire Tuesday, will extend to May 4. The amnesty does not extend to rebel leaders.

He did not mention the state of emergency, in effect since March 1982, which has restricted political activity because of what the government said was the threat of a U.S. or U.S.-supported invasion.

Opposition parties say they will boycott the elections unless the government lifts the emergency and press censorship, respects human rights and cuts links between the official party — the Sandinista National Liberation Front — and government security forces.

Citing the costs in lives and damage from U.S.-backed rebels, Ortega said, "We don't want that democracy that used power to threaten and attack those who do not follow its imperialist designs."

"We don't want that kind of democracy where only 30 percent of the population vote," he added. "For us democracy is for the people. ... For us democracy is the agrarian reform. For us democracy is rights for the worker."

He added, "Christianity and Marxism are part of the Sandinista democracy. We took power in 1979 promising democracy and we will fulfill our promise," Ortega said.

They would be the first elections since the Sandinistas toppled the regime of rightist strongman Anastasio Somoza in July 1979. The last elections were held Sept. 1, 1974, when Somoza was re-elected easily.

It had been expected that the elections would be announced for 1985, with next

Feb. 21 as the most probable date.

Most of those at the ceremony were activists from neighborhood Sandinista defense committees. There also were thousands of students, brought in from the north where they were picking cotton and coffee. About 500 Americans are helping with the harvest.

Opposition leaders have protested that lowering the voting age to 16 is an attempt to take advantage of the extensive Sandinista penetration into youth sectors.

The first speaker of the day, Juan Pablo Sanchez, organizer of the student harvest brigades, said: "If we were old enough to fight Somoza, if we were old enough to aid the revolutionary government in production, are not we old enough to vote?"

Hart prepares for New Hampshire

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON (AP) — Democratic presidential candidate Sen. Gary Hart plans to exploit his second place finish in the Iowa caucuses by working hard in New Hampshire and then waging a "guerrilla campaign" to nibble away at Walter Mondale's big lead and well-financed organization.

"We are not going to play by Mondale's rules," Oliver Henkel, Hart's campaign manager, said in an interview Tuesday. "We are going to go our own way."

Meanwhile, in New Hampshire, the Colorado senator predicted that after that state's primary election next Tuesday, he will replace Sen. John Glenn as the principal rival to Mondale.

"I think this will be a two-person race and I'll win it," said Hart, who attracted 15 percent of Iowa Democrats Globe survey in late January, compared with Mondale's 45 percent. Glenn had 5 percent.

for a sixth place finish — behind four other candidates and an uncommitted slate.

At the very least, Hart said he will become known among millions of potential supporters nationwide and attract much more money to a campaign that has been low budget from the start.

But Hart's strategists concede that what happens after New Hampshire is another matter.

Even before the Iowa caucuses, Hart's organization in New Hampshire was rated second behind Mondale's and his fund-raising had tripled, compared with last fall and winter.

Hart has been gaining steadily in New Hampshire in polls taken among Democrats and independents, rising four points to 12 percent in a Boston survey in late January, compared with Mondale's 45 percent. Glenn had 5 percent. But even if Hart finishes a strong third, or second in New Hampshire, the focus of the presidential campaign shifts to important states where his campaign strategists say he will be unable to take advantage of momentum developed in Iowa and New Hampshire.

On March 13, known as "Super Tuesday," there are 11 primaries and caucuses, including Florida, Oklahoma, Alabama and Georgia.

Hart has almost no organization in Florida or Oklahoma, although he plans some campaigning in Georgia.

Henkel said, "We will be running a guerrilla campaign," which includes focusing on Washington state, where caucuses will choose 70 delegates March 13.

"It is important for Hart's credibility that we do well in the western states early," said Henkel. "In the early going, we will not challenge Mondale in states with big urban areas, where he has the labor unions working for him."

Besides Washington state, Hart will also campaign hard in Maine, Wyoming and Nevada.

Under the Hart strategy, Henkel said, once the other Democratic challengers have dropped out — except for the Rev. Jesse Jackson — Hart will challenge Mondale directly in primaries in Kansas, Montana and Connecticut.

Former Sen. George McGovern of South Dakota finished third in Iowa.

Engineering class certified for CPR

By REAGAN WHITE
University Daily Reporter

Texas Tech Electrical Engineering Professor Darrel Vines and his senior electrical engineering experimental lab received a Certificate of Recognition Tuesday from the American Red Cross for successful completion of a cardiopulmonary resuscitation course.

Kayla Roberts, the coordinator of CPR programs at the American Red cross, worked with three members of the class to organize the training.

One of the student leaders, James Robb, said the class had to be certified in CPR before doing lab work because the high voltages used in the lab could cause severe electrical shock, requiring immediate medical attention.

The CPR training is given to the senior level class because it is the first class in the electrical engineering curriculum that uses potentially incapacitating voltages, Robb said.

Robb encouraged all Tech students to learn CPR. "Everyone should be exposed to these methods," he said.

The knowledge of CPR techniques could be beneficial in many emergency situations outside of the lab. The students are instructed how to use CPR on a baby, as well as ways to help choking persons, he said.

The students received a one-year certification card. Whether the students come back in one year for the refresher course will depend on what types of risks the seniors face in the jobs they get after graduation, he said.

The certification lasts only one year in order to keep persons trained in CPR abreast of possible changes in CPR techniques, Robb said.

'Footloose' inspires 'evil' dancing

By KRISTI FROELICH
University Daily Lifestyles Writer

Footloose is a movie that can take you completely by surprise. The previews of the film may give the idea that it will be one of the movies reserved for the genre otherwise known as the "summer movie." This kind of film is made strictly for the biggest summer audience draw — the youngster.

Well, Footloose is a "teen" movie of sorts. It may seem like a summer movie in mid-February because it deals with teen-agers and high school and dancing. But don't let the idea of another movie about kids and dancing scare you away from seeing what could be a truly entertaining experience.

The story is a little far-fetched, but that doesn't seem to matter. It's about a big city boy named Ren who comes to a small town called Bomont with his mother, for reasons that aren't made exactly clear.

The kids in the town, and the adults for that matter, find Ren a little hard to take. He wears his clothes and his hair "differently" than they do. The locals stare at him when he arrives for his first day of school in a yellow Volkswagen with Quiet Riot blaring from the tape player.

Ren soon finds out that kids in the town aren't allowed to listen or dance to rock music. It has been outlawed because of a car accident that happened five years back.

Dancing and music are "sinful and will cause corruption," according to the town's reverend. Ren, who loves to dance and listen to loud music, tries to keep his identity (and sanity) in this absurd place that still burns books on occasion. Seemingly far-fetched, right?

Forget all that. The storyline here is not important. You probably will forget how unreal it seems. There is something about this film that draws (and deserves) your attention. What makes this film work is the performance of Kevin Bacon as Ren. He brings a young, charming quality to the silver screen. Bacon is both believable and realistic, with a touch of charm thrown in for extra effect.

Bacon, formerly seen in Diner, brings the role and the town a sense of what is right and wrong about the world. He is hassled at school and handles the pressure brilliantly by using a witty, "city" style of put-down that either makes him friends or brings him enemies. You either love him or you hate him.

Ren sets out to get the town on its feet. He just wants to dance, and he soon gets some of the other kids interested enough to fight the old law, including the preacher's daughter, Ariel.

Lori Singer, who portrayed the cello player in the television show Fame, plays Ariel. She is the reverend's rebellious, hell-raising daughter who constantly goes against her father's word. So when the seniors want to have a prom, Ariel (and especially Ren) are for it all the way.

Singer doesn't live up to her end of the bargain in the acting department. She is cold and foreign to the big screen. Her characterization seems mostly like a chance for Singer to shed her former Fame image. Her acting is a true disappointment, especially in light of Bacon's superb performance.

Christopher Penn plays the country boy named Willard who befriends Ren. He is at first mesmerized with the stories Ren tells of life in the big city and is fascinated by what he can teach him. Willard shows Ren how to drive a tractor, and Ren teaches Willard and his two left feet to dance in a scene comparable to the training scene in Rocky III.

As you may have already figured out, it comes down to a fight between the seniors who want to dance and the town council. Forget the predictability of the film. Enjoy it for its entertainment value.

If you like to dance, see the movie before going dancing. You'll leave the theater dancing all the way to the club. If you don't plan on going after the movie, be prepared to change your mind. The film makes you want to "boogie" down the aisles, Footloose and fancy-free.

The movie, rated PG, is showing at the UA South Plains Cinema at South Plains Mall.

LCC hands Tech first loss, 18-16

By CHIP MAY
University Daily Sports Writer

Texas Tech and Lubbock Christian College must have thought they were competing in a batting contest rather than a baseball game Tuesday at Texas Tech Diamond. Whatever the case, LCC won the slugfest 18-16.

"Both teams swung the bats exceptionally well, both pitched fair and both played poor defense," Tech coach Gary Ashby said of the game where his team's record fell to 3-1. "I think we just played a little worse than they did."

Tech scored first in the bottom of the first inning to take a 1-0 lead. The Chaparrals, 5-5, answered with three runs in the second inning, six in the top of the third and four in the fourth and took a 13-1 lead over the Raiders.

With the game seemingly showing every indication of a rout, the Raiders finally showed some life.

After an LCC error brought Mark Michna to first base, catcher John Grimes singled. Johnny Vidales then stepped to the plate and hit a three-run homer to shrink LCC's lead to 13-4 in the bottom of the fourth.

Mitchell Jones added another Tech run when he hit an RBI driving in Greg May to close the gap to 13-5.

LCC pitchers Scott McLanahan and Kent Dudley walked a batter a piece with the bases loaded to shrink the lead to 13-7 in the bottom of the sixth.

Later in the same inning, Vidales lined a single, driving in Todd Howey and Jim Sullivan to cut the LCC lead to 13-9. Michna continued the Raider rally when he scored on a wild pitch.

Tech's Tommy Dobyms brought the Raiders closer in the bottom of the seventh when he hit a solo home run over the left field wall to shrink the deficit to 13-11.

Tech scored its final run in the bottom of the ninth with an RBI double by May.

John Grimes finishes the tag on Eric Leger

UH, Hogs advance in poll as N. Carolina stays No. 1

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK — The four college basketball powers rated the best in preseason have returned to the top in the weekly Associated Press poll released Monday, though not in the same order.

North Carolina, Georgetown, Houston and Kentucky — ranked 1-4-3-2 in the preseason — were 1-2-3-4 in this week's rankings. The No. 1 Tar Heels took out the frustration of losing their first game of the season — a 64-63 loss to Arkansas on Feb. 19 — by defeating Atlantic Coast Conference rivals North Carolina State 95-71 and Maryland 78-63 in the past week.

Coach Dean Smith's team received 61 of the 62 first-place votes for 1,239 points in the nationwide panel of sportswriters and broadcasters.

The points system is based on 20 for each first place, 19 for each second, etc.

Georgetown, which received the other first-place vote and a total of 1,169, remained in the runner-up spot after defeating Providence 59-38.

Houston replaced DePaul as the No. 3 team, drawing 1,097 points. The Blue Demons, upset by Dayton 72-71 Saturday, fell to fifth place. And despite withstanding a scare from Vanderbilt 58-54 Sunday, Kentucky advanced two places to No. 4.

The major surprise of the week was a 68-43 loss to Fresno State by Nevada-Las Vegas, which dropped the Runnin' Rebels two notches to No. 7, behind Illinois which inched up to No. 6. Oklahoma and Texas-El Paso each climbed one spot to Nos. 8 and 9, respectively, while Tulsa entered the Top 10 for the first time this season in the 10th spot.

Indiana and Louisiana State, tied for 17th the previous week, fell from the Top 20, giving way to Auburn at No. 19 and Oregon State at No. 20. Both had been in the rankings previously.

Also in the Second 10, Arkansas, Duke and Temple continued to draw support. The Razorbacks, now 21-4, advanced three places to No. 11 while Duke, victor over Stetson and Wake Forest, soared five places to No. 14, one spot ahead of Wake Forest, which slipped from No. 13.

Temple, undefeated in the Atlantic 10 and 20-2 overall, moved up three to No. 17.

Workshop focuses on new water sport

Recreational Sports will conduct a workshop on one of the hottest new water sports in the Southwest, boardsailing, at 6:30 p.m. Tuesdays and Thursdays from April 3-May 3 in 205 Student Rec Center.

Boardsailing, a combination of surfing and sailing, was developed in California in the late 1960s and was first presented as a new sport in 1967. It was introduced to Europe in 1971, where it developed into a major sport within a few years.

The rapid expansion of recreational boardsailing has led the International Olympic Committee to adopt boardsailing as the seventh olympic sailing event for the 1984

Olympic Games in Los Angeles.

The workshop will familiarize participants with the basics of boardsailing, including rigging, terminology, balance, stances, wind knowledge and sail adjustments. A Hi Fly 300 board-sail and a dry land simulator will be used for practice. Call 742-2949 to register.

Upon completion of the course, students will be eligible to rent the boardsail from the Outdoor Shop. Weekend rental is $30 and four-to-seven-day rental is $60. Rental costs include life jackets and car racks, if needed. A $35 refundable deposit is required.

fastest combined time, while the couple on the right, Judy Crowder and John Kuhn, ran closest to the time predicted.

IM BRIEFS

WSI course offered

Rec Sports will offer a water safety instructor course from 4-7 p.m. Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays, Feb. 27-March 30, at the Aquatic Center.

Prerequisites are a current advanced lifesaving certificate and swimmer-level ability in the front crawl, backstroke, breaststroke, elementary backstroke and sidestroke. Students who successfully complete the course will be eligible to teach in the American Red Cross "Learn to Swim" program. Course fee is $12.50. Registration is accepted at the Aquatic Center, 742-3896.

Basketball play-offs to begin

All-university basketball play-offs begin Sunday. First- and second-place teams from each league will advance to the single elimination tournament. Play-off schedules are available in the Rec Sports Office.

Saturday "Live" entries due

Entries for Saturday Morning "Live" badminton singles are due by 5 p.m. Thursday in the Rec Sports Office.

Photography workshop slated

Participants will learn the basics of photographing scenery, wildlife and other outdoor subjects at the outdoor photography workshop at 7 p.m. March 1 in 205 Student Rec Center. Basic instruction will be given on film speeds and ways to avoid common errors. Participants should bring their own cameras. Registration will be accepted at the Outdoor Shop, 206 Student Rec Center, or by calling 742-2949. There is no charge.

Injury clinic continues

Rec Sports' weekly injury clinic will continue at 7 p.m. today in the Rec Center Classroom.

Turf shoes on sale

The Rec Center Sport shop has leather and nylon Kaepa turf shoes on sale for $26. Shoes will be on sale through February especially for intramural softball players. The Sport Shop is open from noon-9 p.m. Monday-Friday.

Softball deadline Thursday

The deadline for team registration for men's, women's and co-rec slow-pitch softball is 5 p.m. Thursday in the Rec Sports Office.

Softball officials needed

Rec Sports needs softball umpires to officiate the men's, women's and co-rec intramural softball games.

Training clinics will be from 6-8:30 p.m. Monday-March 1. Prospective umpires should attend all the clinics. The season begins March 4, and clinics will continue from 5:30-6:30 p.m. March 19 and 20 in the Rec Center Classroom. Umpires must attend one of the last two clinics.

Umpires will be paid for attending training clinics provided they meet the requirements set by the intramural staff. First-year umpires receive $5.25 per game.

Call Denise Kopriva at 742-3351 for more information.

Sports nutrition seminar slated

Athlete and nutritionist Dale Brigham will answer questions on the relationship between food and performance at a sports nutrition seminar at 7 p.m. Thursday in the Rec Center Classroom.

Brigham will discuss when and what food should be eaten before training or competition and will present the latest scientific research on nutrition.

Tai chi class offered

A class in tai chi, an ancient Chinese series of breathing exercises for relaxation, will be from 4-5 p.m. Mondays and Wednesdays in the Rec Center Classroom beginning Monday. Tai chi is a series of movements in circles that blend into each other to loosen tension. Registration may be made by calling 742-3352.

T-shirts ready for pick-up

Participants in the Health of Life fun run may pick up their t-shirts in the Rec Sports Office.

Snorkeling workshop offered snorkeling workshop offering actual practice in the use of equipment will be at 7 p.m. March 6 in the Aquatic Center. Participants will receive instruction in the use of masks, fins and snorkels. Call 742-2949 to register.

Greg Henry instructs Ben Barnett in the proper techniques of carrying a backpack during the backpacking workshop in the Rec Center last week. Upcoming outdoor workshops include outdoor photography and snorkeling.
