Texas tuition costs may triple by next fall

By ROBIN FRED
University Daily Editor

AUSTIN — College students potentially could feel the pinch of the state's economic problems with a tripling of basic tuition rates, a spokesman for the lieutenant governor's office told The University Daily Thursday.

Tom Scott, director of research for Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby's office, last week presented a study on tuition costs at state-supported colleges and universities. The report shows tuition at state institutions in Texas to be among the lowest in the nation at a time when legislators are grappling for new sources of revenue.

Gov. Mark White said Thursday he will call a special session of the Legislature after mid-May to discuss education reform and methods of paying for them.

Scott said the fact that the report was completed just as White is preparing to call a special session might, but "does not necessarily," mean a tuition increase will be proposed this summer.

Scott said tuition costs were discussed during the legislative session last spring after comptroller Bob Bullock revealed that state revenues were declining. The study was conducted now, he said, because "the fiscal situation is still gloomy."

Although the study indicates Texas tuition costs are among the lowest in the nation, Scott said no proposal to hike the tuition rate has been drawn up.

But if the tuition rate is raised at all, it could go as high as three times the current $4 per semester hour, he said.

When tuition last was increased, in 1971, it covered about 9.5 percent of the total cost of education, according to figures supplied by the Coordinating Board, Texas College and University System. The $120 a year tuition paid by the average resident Texas student enrolled in 15 hours per semester pays only about 3.1 percent of the total cost of education.

Scott said if legislators decide this summer or next year to raise tuition, they may try to restore the old percentage figure, meaning they would have to raise tuition from $4 per semester credit hour to $12. After such an increase, the 30 credit hours that now cost $120 in basic tuition would cost $360.

But Scott said any such increase would be implemented gradually, and he downplayed the possibility of an increase being pushed through the Legislature during the summer when students are between sessions.

He said Hobby would push for an increase only if the revenue situation became critical enough.

"If it came to the point we just couldn't finance higher education, one of the options is always to increase tuition," Scott said.

A tuition increase would be the first in 13 years. Scott said all state fees except college tuition and motor vehicle registration fees were raised during the last legislative session.

Part of the additional money raised with any increase in tuition would be used to set up grant programs for needy students, he said.

The Legislature could approve an increase of less than $12 per credit hour; but if approved, a $12 rate would make Texas one of the 10 most expensive states to go to public college in.

Figures from the American Association of State Colleges and Universities show Texas currently ranking 47th in the amount the average resident student pays for tuition each year. Only the District of Columbia and Hawaii are cheaper. Delaware and Wyoming were not included in the AASCU figures.

The average student in Pennsylvania paid $1,650 to attend state college last year, the figures show.

Scott said public higher education in Texas is much cheaper than private school tuition. Average tuition and required fees at Texas private schools were about six times as much as at public institutions.

Scott stressed that no move to raise tuition has been proposed at this point.

White told The UD earlier he would not support a tuition hike for resident students, but the governor said he might approve increasing tuition for non-resident students, who make up an estimated 12 percent of Texas' enrollment figures.

Scott said no tuition increase was considered until early last year, when the realization of state revenue problems hit state officials.

"In the last several years, while we had healthy economic growth, you didn't have to consider raising tuition... that's changed given that we are going to have budgeting problems," Scott said.

He said those budgeting problems result largely from decreased revenue from oil severance taxes, agricultural problems, the national recession and the devaluation of the peso.

Education Committee proposes reforms

By GILBERT DUNKLEY
University Daily Reporter

AUSTIN — Texans almost certainly will be paying higher taxes next year to support steep education expenditures recommended by the state Select Committee on Public Education.

Those taxes, so far unspecified, may be formulated during a special session of the Texas Legislature that Gov. Mark White said will be called this summer.

The state select committee, appointed by the Texas legislature and headed by millionaire H. Ross Perot, is proposing sweeping — and expensive — education reforms in the state's public school system.

Proposed reforms include:
• reducing the average class size to 15 students in grades 1-4.
• establishing a four-tiered career ladder system for teachers.

Reducing the average class size to 15 students would be the most expensive reform, State Comptroller Bob Bullock said.

That measure would cost $906.5 million annually, according to Bullock's analysis of the costs of the committee's reform proposals.

The career ladder, which "provides additional compensation and professional advancement opportunities for teachers," would cost $365.2 million annually.

The total reform package proposed by Perot's committee bears an estimated price tag of $19 billion for five years.

The state comptroller's staff has identified several "revenue alternatives" areas.

The resulting revenue package, which is heavily dependent on new and increased taxes, lists the following potential sources of revenue:

- increased sales taxes
- motor fuel taxes
- severance taxes (levied against minerals)
- tobacco and alcohol taxes
- state corporate income taxes
- state personal income taxes

Bullock says the revenue sources he has identified are not firm proposals but simply are potential sources of revenue.

State personal income tax could raise almost $3 billion in 1984-85.

A corporate income tax could generate $663 million in 1986.

But White, in an exclusive interview with The University Daily, ruled out the possibility of corporate or personal income taxes.

“Texas now is the leading state in new jobs and industrial growth.”

—Bob Bullock

He said the state has to rely on other taxes, and he named increased motor fuel taxes as one of the available options.

White said he also will try to get the education package through the special legislative session intact. But he indicated that even if a portion of the package has to be dropped, he will seek to preserve the teacher pay raise recommendation.

"I think there will be dramatic increases for them," White said.

Bullock later echoed White in ruling out the income taxes option.

"It is my opinion that it (corporate taxes) would retard industry in Texas," Bullock said. "Texas now is the leading state in new jobs and industrial growth."

"The only reason they (industries) come to Texas is because of the favorable tax climate," he said.

Bullock said anyone who proposes corporate or personal income taxes would be committing political suicide.

Procedures for reporting child abuse clarified

By GREG VAUGHN
University Daily Reporter

AUSTIN — Revised guidelines for reporting and investigating child abuse in state institutions clarify the responsibility of state agencies under the law, Gov. Mark White said Thursday.

Speaking at his weekly press conference, White announced that an inter-agency working group has completed uniform guidelines for reporting and investigating incidents of child abuse and neglect in state institutions.

"One case of child abuse is one too many," White said.

"The people of Texas have a right to expect that children entrusted to the care and supervision of the state will be adequately protected," he said.

The working group, a conglomeration of representatives from about 11 state agencies, also updated defined roles and operating procedures for the Office of Youth Care Investigations (OYCI). Based in the Governor's Office of General Counsel, the OYCI receives reports of child abuse in state agencies and reviews investigations conducted by state agencies.

White said the inter-agency group was created by executive order two months ago because of uncertainty that arose in particular instances of child abuse in state agencies.

The current law pertaining to child abuse outlines penalties for child abuse, and the agreement was an effort to reform people, White said.

"The main thing is we're trying to prevent the child abuse — not punish someone after they have improperly conducted themselves," White said.

The governor proclaimed April as Child Abuse Prevention Month in Texas.

Both the uniform reporting guidelines and the reformed OYCI procedure agreements were signed this week by White and are being circulated for approval by state agency directors. Implementation of the guidelines will begin immediately after all signatures are obtained from the directors.

The guidelines developed by the working group specify a time frame for reporting child abuse allegations to the Texas Department of Human Resources and law enforcement agencies, and they provide for status reports for investigations not completed within 30 days. The guidelines also establish a framework for staff training in areas of recognition and reporting of child abuse allegations.

Procedures for reporting instances of child abuse and neglect to state agencies include notification of the OYCI within five days of report of the incident, submission of a final report to the OYCI within 10 days after the completion of the investigation and immediate notification by the OYCI of the involved agencies after receiving complaints.

Recognizing disabilities important step to recovery

By BETTY ALBERS
University Daily Staff

Sometimes students do not realize they have a learning disability until they are in a university setting, says Trudy Putteet, Texas Tech assistant to the dean of students.

"People don't know what a learning disability is. One of the things involved in diagnosing a learning disability is that a student, even in order to have a learning disability, has to be extremely intelligent," Putteet said.

Putteet said few students with learning disabilities make it to the university level because of a lack of preparation in public schools.

One of the ways to diagnose a learning disability is with an IQ test, and then there has to be an extreme variation of between ability and performance on the test for a number of unexplained reasons, she said.

"The university has a very sophisticated process that rules out all kinds of diagnostic problems," Putteet said. "It rules out the traditional concept of slowness and inability to learn, because the student has the ability to perform above-average work."

She said the university performs a sophisticated diagnosis because there are as many learning disabilities as there are students with learning disabilities.

"We need to find the specific ability the student has in order to be able to enhance those abilities," she said.

The Association for Students with Learning Disabilities sponsored a symposium Thursday in the University Center.

The organization planned the symposium because it is not content to see the situation remain the same, Putteet said.

State Sen. John T. Montford spoke Thursday on "The Current Legislation Affecting the Learning Disabled Population of Texas."

Montford seeks education tax bill

By SARAH LUMAN
University Daily Staff

State Sen. John Montford said Thursday that a tax bill must be approved during the special legislative session scheduled for May in order to achieve any significant improvement in education.

The Lubbock legislator addressed a crowd of about 200 during a campus seminar on learning disabilities and educational legislation in Texas.

Montford spoke for about 45 minutes discussing House Bill 603, passed by the 62nd Legislature, and House Bill 2289, passed last year.

The Coordinating Board, Texas College and University System, has suggested that implementation of bills for post-secondary education programs to assist learning-disabled students cannot be furthered because there is no state funding earmarked for the programs, Montford noted.

"I call that a flimsy excuse," he said. The cheapest price tag to implement the H. Ross Perot proposals for special education is $4.6 billion, Montford said.

"That is the cheapest price I foresee." The Texas Constitution requires a balanced budget, he said. "We can't spend, in state government, more money than is generated by tax revenues."

"Unless the Legislature passes a tax bill in the special session, I doubt seriously we will be able to address the problems of education," Montford said.

"Last week we had the added alarming news that we're probably going to be about $2 billion short of revenues," he added.

But Montford noted that tax bill options are available to the legislators.

"The proposals are for a 5-cent-per-gallon gasoline tax, a 1-cent sales tax, or the so-called sin tax on tobacco and liquor," he said. He asked the audience to indicate which tax they would vote for if they were in his place.

"The gasoline tax would raise, for education, about $750 million annually. The sales tax would raise $1 billion, and the sin tax would raise about $270 million to $280 million for education," Montford said.

His listeners voted overwhelmingly to approve the sin tax. Others were heavily in favor of the sales tax, and only four voted to approve the gasoline tax.

Montford said the revenue problems should not discourage educators. "I am optimistic. I have been a supporter of progress for learning disabled students for a long time."

"Keep those cards and letters coming," he said. "If you let me know about it, we'll find a way to get it done."

Montford mentioned briefly his "chilly relationship with the Coordinating Board." In relationship to the board's handling of Texas Tech and the status of Tech in comparison to UT and Texas A&M, he said he "met with the chairman, and we had a flap."

"They promised me they would be more responsive to our needs in the future," he said, "and I'm going to hold them to it. I'm looking forward to seeing what they are going to do."

Montford said the people of his district have given him the impression that funding to improve Texas education would not face heavy opposition from the voters. "The premise I'm hearing is that the people are willing to pay for an educational system provided they're sure they're getting the benefits of it," he said.

President of the Association of Students with Learning Disabilities, Hal Cain, said the symposium was designed to make Lubbockites and Tech students aware of the problems that exist.

He said many students have learning disabilities and do not even know it until they go through testing. He said when he was a student at Texas Tech, he had to deal with a learning disability and now he would like to help others who have similar problems.

Cain said the aim of the symposium was not necessarily to solve the problems of learning disabilities, but rather to learn how to compensate them. For instance, if a person has dyslexia, the teacher should allow additional reading or testing time to that student.

Constitutional guarantee covers all opinions no matter what or whose

KEVIN SMITH

Freedom of speech is a wonderful thing. Think about it for a minute: if you want to open your mouth or write a letter to a newspaper for publication you can do it, provided you have a Crayola and a working knowledge of Webster's dictionary.

This is not so everywhere. If you were to stand in the middle of Red Square in Moscow and yell "Lenin sucks," the fur-capped bogeymen of the KGB would be removing your vocal chords with an amazing turn of speed.

If you published such a statement in the Soviet Union the results probably would be just as swift and twice as painful.

I, among others, I warrant, would like to make a stand for freedom of speech. Not because I'm a journalist and make my bread and butter through the printed word, either. Many may not know it, but newspapers have no constitutional right to report and print fact. It's a sort of tradition we got used to and now hold on to, because if we didn't the public at large would be even more ignorant than it is, and we'd be out of a job.

What the constitution does protect is the publication of opinion — specifically unpopular opinions. As far as I can gather, the founding fathers wanted to ensure that minority opinions, no matter how obnoxious or distasteful, had a chance to be aired.

This has proven very valuable. Eccentrics who disagree with the status quo have, through the years, managed to do some quite extraordinary things. Martin Luther King Jr., for example, wasn't always a popular hero. At one time the majority of the nation's population probably thought he was a crazy preacher inciting the blacks to riot.

And what about women's rights? A hundred years ago our male chauvinists were all for keeping the wenches in the kitchen, making babies and making sure we had supper when we arrived home after a hard day's slog flexing our muscles, slugging down a couple of shots of red-eye and gunning down the local sheriff.

But somehow these minority opinions grew until they became part of the majority and were accepted.

Presto! Freedom of speech in action. You don't have to recede into the dim mists of time to find such examples, either. If you can drag your eyes off of Opus in Bloom County long enough to read the letters to the editor or even the editorials (dare I hope) you are privileged to be witnessing freedom of speech in action.

What is really amazing is that some of you are not casual observers either, you take part. When one of us learned scribes gets up on a soapbox and spouts forth with 20 column inches of what you think is claptrap, some of you don't mind telling us about it.

Perhaps the issues that are wrestled with on page 2 of The UD aren't exactly going to set the world on fire, but some people don't mind saying they like to live in the slam-bang, laugh-in-the-face-of-death, live-on-the-razor's-edge world of twister bead wearers. You get the point.

Any opinion can be expressed here. Frats are useless, frats are OK, Boy George is cute, Boy George looks like a wart on my toad, etc., etc. Any individual who wants to express his opinion, within the boundaries of law, can do so. Perhaps Boy George and my toad won't save the world, but opinions about them are protected.

For example, if you wanted to write an opinion about Islam or Buddhism, it's still kosher constitutionally.

Perhaps some people don't realize this. If you find any column in The UD patently offensive, though, write a letter and tell us about it. I can hear the Smith-Coronas tapping out a fiery articulate response to this column on Dukes of Hazard stationery right now.

Perhaps because of policies that allow publication of differing opinions, newspapers — along with their staffs — have been unfairly labeled liberal.

I don't classify my politics, such as they are, as liberal. I burned my Brotherhood of Foot-in-Mouth Journalists union card when they endorsed Mondale. Furthermore, I think socialism eats Stalin litter and communism consumes even worse tidbits.

The politics that appear on this page are not dictated by The UD. To a large extent they're dictated by the letter to the editor writers, and we don't tell them what to think.

Perhaps the liberal tag came from the fact that we don't mind printing differing opinions. If I wanted to say all the good looking girls on campus should take a turn dating the male members of The UD staff, that's my opinion and I have a right to it. Of course I don't really feel that way, so please, girls, sheath your pens (for a good time call 742-5357).

Socrates probably was the first who believed that the answers to most problems could be arrived at through differing opinions coming together, also known as debate. The results have been mixed; we got democracy, and Karl Marx, using Hegel's version of the Socratic method, gave us communism. You can't get much more different than that.

Whatever your brand of politics, democratic, totalitarian, or whatever, you have a right to hold that opinion. Apparently not everyone exercises that right, or the left, if you get my drift.

But — yes there's always a but — with the right to hold your opinion and publish it comes the burden of accepting responsibility for what you write.

As long as you realize that with the right comes the responsibility, the editorial page is wide open.

Freedom of speech (including the press) is the most effective vehicle for change; it also is immensely satisfying to know the layman can air his opinions.

Every medium to some extent censors the material within it, but basically the freedom to express your opinion remains intact.

Doesn't that make you feel better? Probably not.

But then again, that's just my opinion.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Rape Trial

To the editor:

America's cultural melting pot has melted. No longer are we a nation of cultural and ethnic pluralism, molded and formed into a cohesive whole. Rather, we have degenerated into a land of heated factions, race versus race, as our eyes are blinded to justice by our scorching pomposity.

The recent events in New Bedford, Massachusetts, hold proof to this theory. Despite a guilty verdict, rendered by a jury of their mostly Portuguese peers, the people of this town have turned a case of rape into a senseless, irrational display of bias, prejudice, and misplaced anger.

Thirteen thousand citizens of New Bedford have taken to the streets to protest what they mistakenly view as a lack of justice. They are not only holding marches and candlelight vigils to voice their dissent of the guilty verdict, they are barring their complete and incredible ignorance of the issue which prompted the verdict: the issue is RAPE.

In the aftermath of the verdict, the citizens have been quoted blurting out such sagacious comments as "She had no business being in a bar ... destroying men's lives." (I strongly suspect that this speaker is grossly mistaken: it was the WOMAN who was raped, whose life was nearly destroyed.)

Another sterling comment from a protester: "I don't care if these people (the men on trial for the rape) were guilty or innocent. What hurts me is what this case has done to my people." Again, it is apparent that New Bedford is confused as to WHAT exactly was on trial, rape or prejudice.

It is interesting, yet confounding, to note that the victim was Portuguese, the rapists were Portuguese, and the jury was mostly Portuguese. Why, then, all the fuss about prejudice?

Rather than waste energy and effort in an attempt to prove to the rest of the nation that they are the victims of bigots, the Portuguese faction would appear more reasonable were they to expend their efforts to assure that justice was done.

This would easily have been accomplished by accepting the guilty verdict, denouncing those upon whom the verdict was cast and offering support to the victim of the crime. Incredibly, the opposite has occurred; while two bystanders to the rape walk the streets arm-in-arm with their supporters, it is the victim who has been denounced, and sadly, exiled from the community.

Dry Rush

To the editor:

This letter is in response to all of the articles regarding dry rush and Delta Tau Delta.

It seems all the statements made in articles about our views were extracted fragments or misunderstandings. Almost all the negative comments on our views were fragments of what was really said. For example, Joan M. Gately's comment, "What do you know about life in Communist Russia?" has nothing to do with our statement.

We are not talking about life in other countries, but are using communism to illustrate that now people going through rush do not have the freedom to choose to drink or not to drink. It is mandated that during rush no fraternity can serve alcohol and we feel that some of our rights have been abused.

Also, the responses we are receiving that we must promote drunkenness and disorderly behavior are outrageous. We do not believe you must drink to be acceptable, but we do believe that we have the right to serve alcohol at our parties for those who want it. Those people who say that we do promote drunkenness are taking everything out of context or just being stupid. We are not trying to knock someone's views, but common sense would dictate that we do not promote drunkenness. Only those who wish to drink do, but now they do not have that choice.

We do not believe that you must drink to have a good time.

During rush most fraternities only had two or three parties. All the other functions were dry, to give a complete view of the fraternity. But those parties did serve a purpose in showing how the rushee will act when exposed to alcohol.

This also works for the rushee in determining which fraternity to choose.

It was very difficult to learn as much as you would like with the limited exposure time allowed by the IFC. But now, it will be even more difficult for both the fraternity and the rushee to make the best choice possible. Dry rush will do nothing to help the fraternities except save them some money on alcohol.

We hope that we have cleared up some of the narrow-minded views of those who have been writing the erroneous letters.

If all would only stop and think, what is dry rush really going to do for me, almost all would come up with the same answer ... NOTHING.

Free Speech

To the editor:

Anyone who has read The UD for any period of time will notice that Reagan White is somewhat conservative (with a name like that, what do you expect?) and Marla Erwin is somewhat liberal. This is fine, in that a balance is achieved, and the paper appeals equally to Neanderthal redneck yahoo bigots and commie knee-jerk liberals. My purpose in writing this letter is not to condemn either of these diverse views, but merely to intercede in the behalf of fairness that both should have their say.

Lately, (April 3, to be exact) Miss Erwin took an extremely dim view of the recent writings of Mr. White — to the extent of comparing the latter's writings to "nigger" or wheelchair jokes, merely because he made some quasi-sexist statements in a recent editorial. Before this intra-UD (sounds like a contraceptive device, huh?) rivalry gets out of hand, let's calm down a bit.

It is amazing that Miss Erwin, of all people, takes these satirical writings so seriously. Do all the fraternity members on campus call for tar and feathers when she finds it difficult to differentiate between Greeks and geeks?

Has Cavazos threatened to expel her over the EE "scandal" or "Pot With the Prez?" Of course not! VISITOR'S PASS is merely satirizing social trends, in the tradition of other great comic strips such as BLOOM COUNTY or THOSE ZANY STICK FIGURES. (Ah, those were the days!)

Mr. White's column is equally harmless. I seriously doubt that it is his intention to portray women as inferior beings any more than the rather caustic portrayal of sorority women in VISITOR'S PASS. When Reagan White muses aloud on his frustrations with the opposite sex, he probably is lampooning himself more than anyone else.

I do not wish to sound too critical of Miss Erwin, and must agree that racism or real bigotry has no place in The UD. I am a great fan of her comic strip, which I find to be amusing (harmless) satire. I merely wish to offer that Mr. White's column is no more damaging.

Senate approves Salvadoran military aid bill

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — The Republican-controlled Senate approved $61.7 million in emergency military aid for El Salvador and $21 million to assist anti-leftist guerrillas in Nicaragua Thursday after beating back a week-long series of Democratic attacks on President Reagan's Central American policies.

The vote was 76-19. The measure now goes to the Democrat-controlled House, which meets on Tuesday, leaving only three days in which to complete congressional action on the bill before a 10-day Easter recess that begins April 13.

The Senate also rejected 50-44 an amendment by Sen. James Sasser, (D-Tenn.), that would have required congressional action before temporary U.S. military installations in Honduras could be made permanent. The amendment would also have barred use of the installations for anything but training exercises.

Four Republicans joined 40 Democrats in supporting Sasser's amendment. Sasser said several GOP senators "indicated they wanted to vote for my amendment or were seriously considering it and changed their minds at the last minute."

The Senate also rejected amendments to delete or curtail the $21 million for the anti-Nicaragua rebels and to cut the amount for El Salvador or tie it up with restrictions.

The mainly Democratic supporters of the amendments charged that Reagan is trigger-happy and leading the United States closer to war in Central America.

"The Senate has voted for wider war in El Salvador, secret war in Nicaragua and the brink of war in Honduras," Sen. Edward M. Kennedy (D-Mass.), said in a closing speech.

Administration supporters said the amendments would make it more difficult to stem a rising communist tide in a region only a few hundred miles from the U.S. border.

Tax-cut program called unfair

The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — President Reagan and the Congressional Budget Office, whose conclusions he has attacked as something worse than "blankety-blank lies," agree that his tax-cut program has provided proportionately more dollars to the wealthy than to the poor.

Reagan and the non-partisan researchers on Capitol Hill also agree on the reason. That is, because about everybody got the same percentage of reduction in their income tax rate, it stands to reason that a person who pays more tax would get a greater dollar amount of a cut than one who pays less in tax.

At his news conference Wednesday night, Reagan was asked about a new CBO report that said the poorest people in America have lost more than they have gained from tax and spending reductions recommended by the president since he took office in 1981.

Saturday's city elections will be the first in Lubbock to be conducted under a single-member districting plan, and as many as two minority candidates may be elected to the council from districts 1 and 2.

The 1980 Census Report describes the areas into which districts 1 and 2 fall as "minority influenced areas." The areas span eastern Lubbock, from the north to the south.

District 1 covers northeast and north central Lubbock, and District 2 encompasses east central and southeast Lubbock.

North central Lubbock's population is dominated by a mixture of blacks and Hispanics, the report states, with the east being dominated by black neighborhoods and the southeast by Hispanic neighborhoods.

According to the report, Lubbock's Hispanic population was 32,791 in 1980.

There were 14,204 blacks living in Lubbock in that year, according to the report.

Audubon Society schedules day of work at Buffalo Springs nature trail

By REAGAN WHITE
University Daily Reporter

The Llano Estacado Audubon Society (LEAS) is sponsoring a work day beginning at 1 p.m. Saturday to work on a nature trail at Buffalo Springs Lake. Admission to the lake is free for volunteers who want to help work on the trail.

Elayne Banks, LEAS president from 1981 through 1983, said one of the three trails planned by the Society for Buffalo Springs Lake has almost been completed through efforts of volunteer helpers and society members.

Trail signs, brochures to help people guide themselves through the trail, and benches placed at strategic locations along the trail still need to be added to the first trail, which begins at the stables at Buffalo Springs Lake.

Two local Boy Scout troops, #590 and #402, have worked on the trail. Lubbock Mayor Alan Henry's son, a member of one of the troops, convinced his father to help at the last work day, Banks said.

Persons interested in helping out with the work should wear jeans and gloves. "We need people who can come out and move rocks," Banks said.

Work on the trail is directed by Wolfgang Oesterreich, who is the editor of "The Scissor-tail," the LEAS newsletter that is published 10 times annually.

The recent rains and the harsh weather winter has eroded some sections of the trail, so railroad ties are being cut and placed along the trail to provide steps and stop erosion, she said.

Another pending job is the construction of several small bridges. The trail area primarily is marshland, which is ideal for both wet- and dryland birds, and many other forms of wildlife, she said.

The long-range project of LEAS is the construction of a Nature Center at the start of the three nature trails. The Nature Center would serve as an information center concerning plant and animal life indigenous to the South Plains. The entire project should be complete in three to five years, possibly more, she said.

The project is being supported strictly by donations and funds in memory of two Audubon society members.

No city or county funds are used by the Buffalo Lake Association for the general upkeep of the area. Funds come primarily from the gate admission fee, and the small fee paid annually by residents of the area, she said.

The activities of the LEAS parallel the work of the Sierra Club, of which there is no local chapter. Area residents who want to get involved with an organization concerned with ecology are welcome to join LEAS, Banks said. "We're more than just birds," she said.

For more information about the Trail Work Day contact Maggie Mason at 799-1982 or Wolf at 792-4153.

CLEAR UP YOUR FUTURE IN THE 2-YEAR AFROTC PROGRAM.

What's up after college? That question is enough to get a lot of young people down.

Air Force ROTC college graduates have that worry, too. But their immediate future (and longer if they choose) is much more secure. As a commissioned officer, there's a good job...Travel. Graduate level education. Promotions. Financial security. And really, lots more.

If you have two academic years remaining, there's a great 2-year AFROTC program still available to you. Look into the details. We think you'll be pleasantly surprised. And pleasantly rewarded. Call 742-2143 for more information.

Put it all together in Air Force ROTC.

Tech library participates in National Library Week

By LAURA TETREULT
University Daily Reporter

The Texas Tech library is participating in National Library Week beginning Monday and running until April 14 by scheduling activities and presenting displays that promote the library's services and importance.

"This is the first time in many years the Tech library has participated in National Library Week," said reference librarian Caroline Baber.

Promoting libraries and reading were the original purposes of National Library Week. The purpose now has expanded to make people aware of the importance of information in everyday activities, Baber said.

"Information becomes important to every man for everyday decisions as consumers, citizens and students," Baber said.

This year's theme for the national celebration, sponsored by the American Library Association, is "Knowledge Is Real Power." The significance of the slogan rests in the importance of knowledge for personal achievement. Special activities the Tech Library will hold in conjunction with the week include a win-a-book contest, $5 discounts on on-line searches, book displays of "hurt books," 1983 publications by Tech faculty and free special bookmarks, Baber said.

"A 'hurt book' is any book that has been damaged to the extent that it can't be used again," Baber said.

Sometimes damage or lost books cannot be replaced because either the book is out of print or is too costly to be replaced. The real harm caused by a damaged or lost book is the loss of information that may never be recovered, Baber said.

A "hurt book" display will be set up in the CORE located in the library's basement. The damage of the books will range from torn pages to dog bites.

Students who find a damaged book on the shelves are requested to bring the book to a reference librarian's attention. If a page is missing, the library can send for a photocopy of the page from another library and paste the photocopy into the volume, Baber said.

Also on display will be 30 books published by Tech faculty members in 1983, including an original musical score, said reference librarian Theresa Trost.

The display, presented for the first time this year, is designed to recognize Tech authors, Trost said.

"We hope to make it an annual event," Trost said. During each day of National Library Week, three people will be allowed to choose from a pool of various books by correctly answering three library-related questions.

Baber said the questions are designed to make people more aware of the library services. The questions are:

● MONDAY: How many books will be checked out at the Tech library on Monday, April 9?

● TUESDAY: How many people will use the Tech library on Tuesday, April 10?

● WEDNESDAY: How many periodical titles does the Tech library currently subscribe to?

● THURSDAY: How many student assistants work in the Tech library?

● FRIDAY: What is the average cost for replacing a lost or damaged book?

Entries must be submitted on official entry forms available at the information desk in the library. The three entries that come closest to the correct answer, without going over, will be chosen as the winners. In case of a tie, the winners will be randomly drawn from the entries that come closest to the answer.

The first 40 people who walk into the On-line Computer Searching Office, located in the reference room, during National Library Week will be given a $5 discount on an online search, Baber said.

The on-line search provided by the Tech library has access to data bases to obtain bibliographic citations for periodical articles, dissertations, conference papers and government documents. The service can be used to obtain sources for specific subjects for such projects as research papers, dissertations and theses, Baber said.

The average cost for a service is $30. Searches for scientific and technological disciplines are more expensive than searches for the social sciences.

'The Women'

Play directed by Sorensen regarded as semester's best

By SANDY MURILLO
University Daily Staff

The University Theater's production of The Women, directed by George Sorensen, is by far the best play of this semester.

Despite a few minor technical difficulties, the acting was superb, the costumes were of the latest fashions and the sets and lighting fit the atmosphere perfectly.

The acting was excellent. All the parts, with the exception of Mrs. Morehead, were properly cast. The parts of Mary, (played by Pam Mallory) and Sylvia, (played by Susanne Barnard) were the best performances of the play. The costumes were effective. Francis Fuselier, costume designer, did a superb job of fitting the costumes to the characters.

“Despite a few minor technical difficulties, the acting was superb, the costumes were of the latest fashions and the sets and lighting fit the atmosphere perfectly.”

The costumes were in white, red and black and of the latest styles. Some of the evening wear resembled styles from New York.

Michael Massey, set designer, created imaginative sets that were easily changed for the different scenes. The scenes changed from a beauty parlor to a bedroom, from a dress boutique to a bathroom.

The lighting, designed by Beth McGeehan, was effective, and the colors helped to emphasize the mood. Spot lighting the actors guided both actresses were consistent in their roles, and their characters were effectively relayed to the audience.

Mallory's acting was sincere and honest, and she seemed to be a natural for the part. Mallory was able to attract and maintain the audience's pity throughout the play. Her actions were gentle and smooth; she was believable, and the audience was able to sympathize with her character.

Susanne Barnard's performance was outrageous. Her portrayal of the "bitch" of the play was fantastic. All Barnard's lines were witty and well-stated. She continuously kept the audience laughing by executing extreme tones and moods. Barnard's acting also was believable because of her ability to touch base with reality and truly "act" like a bitch.

Stephanie Geyer, portraying Crystal Allen, also gave a good performance. Geyer's portrayal of Allen was sleezy, snotty and pushy. Geyer had an excellent attitude and continually maintained her snobishness throughout the play.

Edith, played by Lea Barron; Peggy, played by Paige Parker; Nancy played by Kim Claybough; and Jane, played by Beth Larson; also were outstanding performers. The roles were well-cast and successful.

The audience to the main characters and main points as well. By fading and brightening the lights, McGeehan was able to contrast each scene.

Overall, The Women was outstanding. The production was well done, and all involved did a fine job.

Raiders try to regroup in weekend series with Coogs

By COLIN E. KILLIAN
University Daily Sports Writer

Cougars are mean enough when they're healthy. When sick, the critters just get meaner.

When the Cougars from the University of Houston play Texas Tech Saturday and Sunday, the Raiders had better beware. The two teams meet at noon Saturday for a doubleheader at the Tech Diamond and square off at 2 p.m. Sunday in a single game.

Houston currently sits alone in the Southwest Conference cellar with a 1-8 league mark. But numbers can be deceiving.

The Coogs have dropped eight straight SWC contests since opening the conference schedule with a 2-1 win against Rice. Houston lost its next two games with the powerful Owls, then was defeated three times by perennial favorite Texas.

Surprising SWC leader Texas A&M sunk the Coogs in a three-game series last weekend at College Station. So it's not like Houston has succumbed to a bunch of nobodies. The Coogs are 24-16 for the season.

Houston beat Southwestern in its last two outings, taking a 9-2 win Tuesday and an 11-5 victory Wednesday.

But don't expect the Raiders to be taking Houston lightly. With A&M, Texas and Arkansas still remaining on the Tech schedule, the Raiders know exactly what they must do against the Coogs. Win.

"We have a chance to win every game this weekend," Tech coach Gary Ashby said. "Houston is not that bad; look at the teams they've lost to."

Tech swept Hardin-Simmons Tuesday in a doubleheader after falling to Rice twice in a three-game series last weekend. The Raiders led the Owls 8-4 in the last game of the series before giving up five runs in the final inning for a 9-8 loss.

Tech, 24-15 for the year and 3-6 in SWC play, must win all three games against Houston to preserve any hopes for a SWC tournament bid. The top four teams in the final regular season standings advance to the conference tournament.

A&M, 29-6 overall, has bewildered the entire conference with its 6-0 SWC slate. Texas, 39-8, is alone in second place with a 5-1 mark. Rice, Baylor and Arkansas are log-jammed in a tie for third place with 5-4 records.

Rice, 26-7, and Baylor, 21-14, meet for a single game today and a twin-bill Saturday in Waco. A&M travels to Arkansas, 26-7, for a single game today and a doubleheader Saturday.

Meanwhile, Texas will hope to move into first place, should A&M falter in Fayetteville, with a single game today and two games Saturday at TCU.

Tech righthander Clay Hollock (3-2) is scheduled to start in Saturday's first game against the Coogs' Ed Clark (4-3). Rod Simon (2-2) is scheduled to start for the Raiders in the nightcap against Houston's Greg Brinkman (3-1). Starting pitchers for Sunday's game have not been announced.

The Raiders go Aggie hunting next week. Tech will take a break from SWC play for a 1 p.m. doubleheader Tuesday against New Mexico State-type Aggies, then travel to College Station Friday to begin an important three-game series with the A&M variety Ags.

SWC STANDINGS
OVERALL	CONFERENCE
Texas 39-8	Texas A&M 6-0
A&M 29-6	Texas 5-1

Arkansas 26-7	Arkansas 5-4
Tech 24-15	Baylor 5-4

TCU 15-11	Houston 1-8

Moore hopes QB will emerge in Red-Black scrimmage

By CHIP MAY
University Daily Sports Writer

Texas Tech's version of spring football will be spotlighted at noon Saturday when two teams, divided equally by Tech coaches, will compete in the annual Red-Black game. The matchup will be played under game conditions, including kickoffs and punts.

"It should be a pretty intense game," Tech coach Jerry Moore said. "There is still a lot of evaluating to do, and this game will help us know how the players will respond when there are people in the stands and something's on the line."

A new NCAA rule concerning eligibility and another dealing with kickoffs should add a new dimension to the '84 season.

According to the NCAA rule, a player can count one year as a redshirt season if he did not play in more than 20 percent of the games that year. Ronald Byers and Danny Buzzard, both seniors last year, have been granted eligibility for this year.

In addition, the new kickoff rule has been established. If a ball is kicked through the end zone on kickoffs, it will be placed at the 30-yard line.

Moore said the passing game will be stressed strongly in the Saturday contest.

"We aren't going to become another Brigham Young, but we need to be able to throw effectively," Moore said. "The only way you can learn to do that is work extra long on it."

Monte McGuire and Perry Morren enter the contest tied for the No. 1 quarterback position. Backups Bryan Brock and walk-on Paul Davis may also see action. Kevyn Williams, who injured his knee last week, will miss the remainder of spring training.

Moore hopes one quarterback emerges from the pack.

"We want a guy to take charge, to become a leader, to move the football down the field," he said.

The game also will introduce Tech's new 4-3 defense alignment. Brad Hastings, Dwayne Jiles and Mike Kinsey have impressed Moore at linebacker while Byers and Brad White have stood out at defensive tackle.

The biggest question mark defensively before spring training began was the secondary. But Moore has been pleased with what he has seen so far this spring.

"I've been especially impressed with the secondary. That was one of the places we knew we had to shore up," Moore said. "Depth-wise, linebacker, defensive end and defensive tackle are considerably stronger than they have been in the past."

THE QB COMPARISON

/PERRY MORREN, 6-0, 195, Sr. — Entered spring training as No. 1 QB ... Saw limited action last season as backup to Jim Hart ... Moore says maybe the smartest quarterback of the group ... Tough competitor, good leader ... Coaches like his accuracy on short passes ... Above average running ability for a quarterback ... Redshirt during 1981 season ... Led JV in total offense and passing as freshman in 1980.

Morren

/MONTE MCGUIRE, 6-4, 200, So. — Was considered sleeper entering spring training ... Has impressed coaches with strong arm ... Moore likes his long-passing ability ... Starting JV quarterback last season ... Redshirt in 1982 ... Height gives him an advantage on the drop-back pass ... Coaches question his experience ... Has surprised Raider fans by moving into contention for starting role.

WEEKEND SPORTS PREVIEW

Women's track team at relays

The Texas Tech women's track team will compete today and Saturday at the 57th annual Texas Relays at Memorial Stadium in Austin. The meet will begin at 12:30 p.m. today and at 10 a.m. Saturday.

Raiders who will participate in the stiff competition include Gwen McCray, Veronica Cavazos, Cee Williams and Pat Jefferson.

"This will be an excellent meet for Gwen to have an NCAA qualifying jump," said Tech coach Jarvis Scott. "The competition will be tough, and that should help Gwen."

McCray won the high jump with a 5-8 effort last weekend at the Texas Tech Invitational.

Cavazos, the first long distance representative at the Texas Relays from Tech, has a best time of 17:12 in the 5,000 meters.

"Comparing Veronica's time with others competing, she should have a good chance to do well," Scott said.

Williams won first place at the Tech Invitational with her toss of 46-3/4. Jefferson, the Tech record holder in the discus at 158-7, set the school mark in the event last season at the Texas Relays.

Tech also will participate in the sprint medley, 400-meter and 3200-meter relays. The sprint medley and 400-meter team consists of Alvina Franklin, McCray, Yvette Patterson and Patryce Curry. Members of the 3200-meter team are Jerri Howell, Maria Medina, Jean Davis and Cavazos.

The Raiders' next meet will be April 14 at the Angelo State Invitational in San Angelo.

Tech men linksters face tough field

The Texas Tech men's golf team tees off today in the 54-hole

Morris Williams Invitational at the par-72 Morris Williams golf course in Austin.

All Southwest Conference teams are scheduled to compete, along with Oklahoma State, Oklahoma and Louisiana State.

Several of the nation's top college golfers will play in the tournament. Scott Verplank and Andy Dilliard of OSU, Billy Ray Brown and John Slaughter of Houston, Andrew Magee and Greg Turner of OU and Philip Parkin, winner of last month's All-America Intercollegiate in Houston, should vie for medalist honors.

Tech will be represented by Steve Chambliss, Jeff Watts, Brad Simnacher, Randal Strickland, Chris Hudson and Tommy Darland.

The Raiders challenge the greens again April 20-21 at the SWC tournament at Fairway Oaks Country Club in Abilene.

Softball squad to play No. 1 team

The first, fourth and sixth-ranked softball teams in the nation will compose a portion of the field the Texas Tech softball team will face in competition today through Sunday at the Texas A&M Aggie Invitational in College Station.

The Raiders will put their 13-9 record on the line against the No. 1 team, Cal-State Fullerton, No. 4 Texas A&M, No. 6 Louisiana Tech and 1983 NAIA national champion Sam Houston State team in tourney action.

Tech begins play at 5 p.m. today against Sam Houston State in the round-robin portion of the tournament. The Raiders then will play 14-12 McNeese State at 7 p.m.

Tech begins play Saturday at noon against Louisiana Tech and faces host Texas A&M at 6 p.m. The Raiders will face Cal State at 11 a.m. Sunday and will take on Baylor at 1 p.m. Sunday.

"This is a tough tournament with three of the seven teams in the NCAA Division I Top 10," Tech coach Kathy Welter said. "Since it's round robin, we'll play everybody and we'll have to have six good, consistent games."

"However, we are playing solidly right now so we feel we can compete," Welter said. "Several of our players are playing better than they ever have before and that's going to help us tremendously."

Karen Hall, a junior second baseman, leads the Tech hitting corps with a .357 average. Connie Vaughan has a team-leading seven RBI. Freshman pitcher Sherri Mach has the squad's best record at 7-4.

The Raiders next competition is April 13-14 at the Texas-Arlington Maverick Invitational in Arlington. Tech will complete season play April 28-29 in a four-team series at Columbia, Mo.

Raider women netters face SMU

Texas Tech's women's tennis team will continue Southwest Conference play this weekend when it plays Southern Methodist in Dallas and Baylor in Waco.

The Raiders, 11-2 overall and 1-2 in SWC play, will face SMU at 1:30 p.m. today and Baylor at 1 p.m. Saturday.

SMU defeated Tech 5-4 last year and is nationally ranked this season.

"SMU is ranked No. 6 in the NCAA poll right now. It will be the toughest match we have played all spring," Tech coach Mickey Bowes said.

Karen Mannheimer is the No. 1 singles player and teams with Leigh Mires in the top doubles spot.

Against Baylor, Pam Booras will play at the top singles spot, followed by Julie Hrebec, Lisa Lebold, Lisa Roberts, Robin Poston and Debbie Novak. Booras and Laura Scott will be the No. 1 doubles team.

The strong Mustang squad is 13-7 in spring play and is 2-0 in conference play. The Ponies have defeated Baylor and TCU in SWC action this season. SMU finished fourth in the conference last season.

Tech defeated Baylor 9-0 last season and should fare well against the 1-14; 0-6 Bears on Saturday.

The Raiders' road swing continues Sunday as they play Texas Women's University at 9 a.m. and North Texas State at 1 p.m. Tech returns home to play Wichita State at 2:30 p.m. April 13.

Women golfers third at Invitational

The Texas Tech women's golf team finished third in an eight-team field Tuesday at the Big Red Invitational in Norman, Okla. The Raiders compiled a three-day total of 990.

Oklahoma State fired a total of 937 to capture first. Lamar was second at 952.

Lamar's Lori Brock took medalist honors, edging OSU's Robin Hood by a single stroke, 226 to 227.

Tech's Sami Browne led the Raiders with consistent rounds of 79-80-80-239. Other Tech team scores: Kathy Fuertges, 83-79-84-246; Laurie Brower, 78-83-86-247; Sabra Srader, 87-86-85-258; and Glenda Kissell, 95-87-86-268.

Three Raiders played as individuals in the tournament: Cathy Cramer, 87-88-85-260; Robin Madison, 95-90-89-274; and Leslye Fondren, 92-91-101.

Jabbar nears scoring mark

By The Associated Press

LAS VEGAS — Los Angeles Lakers' center Kareem Abdul-Jabbar was 21 points shy Thursday of breaking Wilt Chamberlain's all-time National Basketball Association scoring record — a mark that once was considered unsurpassable.

The nation's gambling capital is rolling out the red carpet for the game, which is expected to draw a capacity crowd of more than 18,000 fans, with 14,000 tickets already sold by Wednesday.

Those expected to attend include Chamberlain, NBA commissioner David Stern, Nevada Gov. Richard Bryan, and Abdul-Jabbar's parents, Ferdinand and Cora Alcindor.

In his 15th season in the NBA, Abdul-Jabbar has 31,399 regular-season points after scoring 27 against the San Antonio Spurs Tuesday night. Chamberlain, who played 14 seasons, scored 31,419 points. However, Abdul-Jabbar already is the leader in total points — regular-season and playoffs — with 35,031, five more than Chamberlain.

"It's a great personal achievement, something I'll treasure all my life," the

"If anyone is deserving to break that record, it's definitely, definitely him. I'm proud that he will have it."

— W i l t Chamberlain

36-year-old player said in anticipation of breaking Chamberlain's record.

"To be No. 1 in anything in American sport is something to be proud of. I'm very thankful and I hope everyone thinks I deserve it."

Chamberlain is one who agrees that Abdul-Jabbar deserves it.

"If anyone is deserving to break that record, it's definitely, definitely him," said Chamberlain. "I'm proud that he will have it."

The 7-foot-2 Abdul-Jabbar has averaged 20.3 points per game against the Jazz this season, but scored 29 in their last meeting at Los Angeles. He has scored 20 or more points in the Lakers' last 17 games.

Scoring, however, has not been Abdul-Jabbar's only strong point.

He has been named the NBA's most valuable player six times, played in 14 All-Star Games and was named the league's Rookie of the Year when he broke in with the Milwaukee Bucks in the 1969-70 season.

If Abdul-Jabbar breaks the record, officials plan to stop the game and conduct a brief ceremony, with Stern congratulating him and Chamberlain presenting him with the game ball.

Adding to the evening's entertainment will be trumpeter Al Hirt playing the national anthem and providing music at halftime.

Additional ceremonies are planned at Los Angeles tonight during the Lakers' game against the Kansas City Kings — even if Abdul-Jabbar breaks the record at Las Vegas.

More than 2,000 fans were expected to make the trip from Los Angeles for Thursday night's game, officials said.

Las Vegas has served as the Jazz' home-away-from-home for 11 games this season.

USA cable will televise tonight's game, also starting at 10:30 p.m., EST.

NCAA delays vote on shot clock until meeting after '85 Final Four

By The Associated Press

SEATTLE — The National Collegiate Athletic Association's Rules Committee, in a surprise vote, decided Wednesday to put off for at least another season using a 45-second shot clock in college basketball.

The committee will next consider the shot clock issue at a meeting after next year's Final Four tournament in Lexington, Ky. Ed Steitz, the committee's secretary-rules editor, predicted its adoption then.

Steitz, athletic director at Springfield (Mass.) College, was the only committee member to appear at a news conference after the closed-door meeting.

"The vote was very, very close," he said, but he refused to disclose the exact balloting.

Steitz said the committee decided not to go with the shot clock because of uncertainty over whether to use it for the whole game.

Some wanted the clock used during the entire game while others favored shutting it off in the last few minutes, he said.

In order for the rules committee to adopt a uniform, nationwide shot clock, it would have required a two-thirds vote of the 13-member committee.

He said his earlier prediction that the 45-second shot clock would be adopted for the 1984-85 season was "just my personal opinion."

NCAA Division II and III schools will continue to experiment with the shot clock next season.

Steitz said the committee was leaning toward a shot clock to take the stall out of college basketball because the slowdown game was not exciting to watch on television and TV generated much of revenue for Division I schools.

Twelve conferences, 10 in Division I, experimented with the 45-second shot clock this past season.

Georgetown beat Houston 84-75 for the NCAA basketball title in Seattle's Kingdome. In the second round of the tournament, Georgetown was involved in a 37-36 game with Southern Methodist.

The committee failed to respond to a survey of the nation's college hoop coaches disclosed by the National Association of Basketball Coaches here last Thursday, in which 53 percent of the college coaches favored a shot clock.

Steitz, a 28-year member of the committee, said the committee voted to continue experimentation with a 45-second shot clock, left on the entire game, with no lack-of-action and a combined experiment involving the 45-second clock and a three-point play, measured 19-feet, 9-inches from the center of the basket.

The committee did adopt the use of a coaching box, effective for the 1984-85 season. It also increased the number of timeouts in games involving the electronic media from three to four per game.

Coaching boxes were experimented with in six Division I conferences last season. Coaches, players and bench personnel were required to remain in a designated bench area except to request specific information from the scorers' table during a timeout, address a correctable error, or, in the case of players, report into the game.

Astros' victory relieves pressure

By The Associated Press

HOUSTON — The Houston Astros no longer are haunted by fears of starting this season as they did the 1983 campaign — by losing a National League record-tying nine straight games.

The 0-9 start was never far from them in spring training and it continued into the regular season opener Tuesday night when Montreal added more pressure by defeating the Astros 4-2.

But now it is gone, exorcized in the sixth inning Wednesday night by Terry Puhl and Dickie Thon, who hit consecutive triples to almost the exact spot in right-centerfield to rally the Astros to an 8-2 victory.

The Astros now can get on with the rest of their season, which resumes Friday night with a three-game series against the New York Mets in the Astrodome.

"Thank goodness we don't have to hear about that 0-9 stuff any more," Astros relief pitcher Vern Ruhle said. "I didn't want to hear about that for another day. When we got that 5-2 lead (in the sixth inning) you could feel the pressure easing up. We were in good shape then with the full bullpen still left."

Astro manager Bob Lillis used his regulars more extensively in spring training this year and the Astros tied their all-time spring training record of 17 victories.

"When we went ahead I started feeling good about it," Lillis said. "We wanted to get that first victory as quickly as possible because of all the questions we had about last year's start."

Although the team tried to ignore its past, questions about getting off to a good start this season never stopped.

"Now maybe we can get on with the rest of our season," Thon said. "We can relax now and just play our game."

Astro first baseman Ray Knight, whose eighth inning single helped further secure victory, said dispensing with the losing streak would help team concentration.

"Sitting on the bench when we went up 5-2 I felt a great relief," Knight said. "Now we can go take on the rest of the league."

Mayotte wins first match in Houston tennis tourney

By The Associated Press

HOUSTON — Second-seeded Tim Mayotte, slowed by the unfamiliar red clay of River Oaks Country Club, rallied to defeat Aaron Krickstein 4-6, 6-3 6-2 Wednesday in a first-round match of the $250,000 River Oaks International Tennis Tournament.

Top-seeded Jimmy Arias, a late arrival from Corpus Christi where he played an exhibition match, also sagged briefly before defeating Eddie Dibbs, 6-2, 4-6, 6-4 in another first-round match in the World Championship Tennis event.

Mayotte's serve-and-volley game was nullified by the clay surface and gusty winds swirling about the Stadium Court. Krickstein broke Mayotte in the fourth and 10th games to win the first set before Mayotte got his bearings.

Mayotte broke Krickstein in the third game of the second set, then served a love game for a 3-1 lead. Mayotte continued to pick up steam in the third set, breaking Krickstein in the fourth, sixth and eighth games to complete the match.

Mayotte stroked eight of his 15 forehand winners and eight of his 21 backhand winners in the final set.

Arias, the No. 5 ranked player in the world, won the first set easily but slumped in the second set. Dibbs broke Arias in the ninth game and held to win the second set.

BU early favorite in Relays

By The Associated Press

AUSTIN — With former world indoor record holder Billy Olson out of the pole vault because of a hurt ankle, attention at the Texas Relays has shifted to what could be the best college 1,600-meter relay race ever run here. Baylor, which won last year's Texas Relays in a college-record 3 minutes 1.98 seconds, returns three of four runners from 1983.

The Bears from the Southwest Conference will be challenged by another SWC team, Texas Christian, which won the NCAA 1,600-meter relay last year, and Southern Illinois, which beat Baylor two weeks ago at Baton Rouge, La.

Alabama, second in the NCAA last year, and indoor winner Oklahoma also are entered in the event, which closes out the relays Saturday.

The relays field includes more than 2,400 athletes representing 177 schools.

Running events today start at 7 p.m., and Saturday at 3 p.m.

Olson's absence should leave Joe Dial of Oklahoma State and Dale Jenkins of Abilene Christian as the top vaulters. Dial won this year's NCAA indoor vault and was runner-up outdoors last year. Jenkins won the college vault at the relays in 1983 with a division record of 18-4.

The invitational 100-meter dash matches Rod Richardson of Texas A&M, winner of this year's indoor 55-meter dash, and Bruce Davis of Baylor, who was third.

Meet director Cleburne Price, track coach of the Texas Longhorns, said the high school 100 meters Friday today be one of the better races. Junior Roy Martin of Dallas Roosevelt has run a wind-aided 10.07, and he could be tested by Tony Jones of Houston Sam Houston, last year's relays winner and an A&M football recruit.

Cletus Clark of Houston, runner-up in the indoor 55-meter hurdles, returns to defend his 1983 record-setting relays victory of 13.56 in the 110-meter hurdles.

Mike Conley of Arkansas, who won the long jump and triple jump at the NCAA indoor meet last month, is favored in those events at the relays.
