

Bell Plans Survey Of Phone System

Monday will mark the beginning of a two-day test to be conducted by the Bell Telephone Company in regard to the increasingly serious campus telephone problem.

Testing will begin at noon and continue until all lines are cleared.

In a statement made at the October 31 meeting of the Men's Residence Council, Bell representative Roy Howard charged that the tie-ups were the result of students using the phones incorrectly.

A TELEPHONE test conducted by the company in October showed that 1,275 of the 2,400 phones on campus were tied up by dialups alone, and phones which had been taken off the hook accounted for many lines being unavailable. He said that if students would use the phones correctly, the number of lines would be adequate.

Dormitory supervisors also present at the meeting suggested the possible addition of new equipment and voiced ideas in regard to extension of the cut-off time.

RAY FINFER, vice president of MRC, disagrees with Howard. The Men's Residence Council has led the fight to improve the telephone situation and, in its latest action, has distributed survey sheets to various dormitory residents. It is their hope that the surveys will show concrete proof of the inadequacy of the phone lines.

In a statement to THE DAILY TREADOR, Finfer urged students to cooperate during the testing by leaving phones on the hook, limiting conversations to 15 minutes, and clearing the lines by 11 p.m. "If students will do this," he stated, "it can be proven that campus telephone lines are inadequate."

"One way or another, we are going to get action," Finfer said.

Bids On Dining Hall Food Center Go Out

By CAROLINE ENGLISH
Treador Copy Editor

Requests for bids were issued this week for a $1.5 million central food service warehouse and a consolidated dining unit for four dorms on the Texas Tech campus.

Plans and specifications on the project were approved by the Board of Directors at their Nov. 1 meeting and contracts will be awarded at the Board meeting Dec. 7.

The proposed central food warehouse, to be located southwest of the Tech Press, will house storage and refrigeration facilities, a salad and vegetable kitchen, a bakery, a training and recipe kitchen, receiving and delivery docks and offices for food service personnel.

Dining Consolidated

Dining halls at West and Sneed dormitories will be consolidated with the enlarged and expanded facilities at Bledsoe and Carpenter halls.

These changes in the Tech food service have been long under study by the Campus Planning Committee, headed by Marshall L. Pennington, vice president for business affairs.

"This is a new phase for food service operation for Tech," the vice president said. "We've gone into the big league now and must take advantage of every opportunity."

He explained that the new food service projects would be self-supporting and would not cause an increase in student dorm rates, but probably would "help prevent a raise."

Building Plan Set

Construction on the warehouse would probably be begun near the first of the year, Pennington predicted. This central receiving building would eliminate most separate deliveries to the individual dorms by outside suppliers, since the warehouse would have its own delivery trucks for campus use.

The warehouse is also planned with consideration of future expansion, he added.

The second half of the two-part program in food services, combining the four dorm dining halls, is another phase of making Tech food services more economical and efficient, he said.

Small Kitchen Problem

"Part of the problem is the small kitchens," Pennington said. Kitchens in both West and Sneed have a 320 capacity, which directly affects the efficiency of the unit. Units of 800 capacity and over are considered efficient, Pennington said.

In formulating ideas for the changes in the Tech food system, two residence hall directors, Knowles Smith, from the University of Wisconsin, and Alice Nelson, University of Indiana, were invited to Tech "to look at the operation here through the eyes of experienced, capable people," the vice president said. He added that the two visitors endorsed the CPC proposals.

Then, with approval of the Board of Directors, Arthur W. Dana, an outstanding food consultant from New York, was commissioned to study first the feasibility and possible economics and then to design the layout and equipment needed. He has been on the campus a number of times in the course of his study and the development of plans.

Tech Union Sets Dance Here Today

Tech Union dance committee will sponsor a "Roman Holiday" dance from 7-11 p.m. today in the Ballroom.

Trombonist Mark Anthony's dance band will provide the music. The night club dance will have an Italian menu. The setting is arranged like that of any regular nightclub.

Tickets are $1.50 each.

The Games and Tournament committee will sponsor a bridge tournament Sunday.

The tournament will be open to all Tech students interested in bridge, and there will be no entry fee.

Last year's tournament met with success, having more than 30 students entered.

Tournament time is 3 p.m. in the Mesa Room.

Famed Pianist Awes Near Capacity Crowd

By CAROLYN MOGRIDGE
Treador Staff Writer

Famed pianist Peter Nero Friday night wrapped a near-capacity crowd at Municipal Coliseum around his nimble fingers and carried them away into the fascinating world of jazz.

The audience was dazzled by the artist's combination of impeccable style and sophisticated wit. The final notes of his opening number, "Mountain Greenery," were greeted with awed silence, then thunderous applause, setting the pattern for the rest of the program.

ALTERNATING between snapped-up jazz and a soft, slow, almost-classical tempo, Nero presented such standard favorites as "Night and Day," "Tea For Two,"

"Moon River" and "My Funny Valentine."

Leaning casually against the piano between numbers, the artist proved himself an able comedian. Introducing "Don't Get Around Much Anymore," he dedicated the selection to all former 50-mile hikers.

And at one point in the program, Nero played an "original composition" titled "Scratch My Baha."

THE PIANIST introduced his able backers, on drums and bass respectively, as Alvin Arbery and Teddy aTnk. The group's name, he alleged, was "The Fifth Tank Battalion."

Nero attributed the unglorious tag to a reaction to overabundance to groups with fancy names like the "Cadillacs" and the "Billy, Sol and Estes" trio.

Particularly well received were Nero's rendition of the score from "Westside Story," "Tonight" and "I Feel Pretty."

School Name Change Goes Before Students

On Wednesday, Techsans will go to the polls to vote on the highly-controversial name change issue.

The five names appearing on the ballot will be:

- Texas Tech University
- Texas Technological University
- Texas State University
- Texas State University of Arts, Sciences, and Technology
- Texas University of Arts, Sciences, and Technology

A space on the ballot will also be provided for write-ins.

A special pencil will be used to mark the ballots, and none other may be used. Students are cautioned against bending the cards, and are reminded that ballots must be marked heavily in circles provided. Only one mark is permitted in each column.

Ballot boxes will be located in the Administration, C&O, Student Union, Plant Science, Music, Architectural Computer, East Eng., Home Economics, and Agriculture Buildings.

Students are urged to vote in this matter as it is of greatest importance to them and to the future of their school.

Fine Arts Festival Gives Mixed Events

The department of music will present a program of chamber music, consisting of a Haydn String Quartet, Ibert Woodwind Quintet and a Piano Trio by Beethoven. Performance time is 4 p.m. Sunday in the Tech Library.

The performers are violinists Virginia Kellogg and George Robinson, violist Paul Ellsworth, conductor of the Tech Symphony, cellist Benjamin Smith and pianist Thomas Mastroianni.

The members of the Woodwind Quintet are flutist Francis Bowen, oboist Robert Humiston, instructor in the music department clarinetist Keith McCarty, instructor in the music department, hornist Anthony Brittin, instructor in the music department and bassonist Richard Brown.

"Form in Epic" will be presented Monday by the members of Sigma Tau Delta, English fraternity.

The discussion will be moderated by Mrs. Eloise Schreiner, and will compare Dante's "Divine Comedy" with Milton's "Paradise Lost." Discussion time is 4 p.m. in the Union Coronado Room.

A slide lecture entitled "700 Years of Art," will be presented Monday also by Prof. Joseph Skorepa, department of architecture.

The program will show and discuss slides contrasting the different ways men have represented their ideas in art during the last 700 years.

The slides are furnished by the National Gallery of Art in Washington, D.C. and spans from medieval to modern times. Among the works of paintings, sculpture and other arts, that are included in the slide series are Giotto's Madonna and Child; Jan van Eyck's The Annunciation; Titian's Saint John The Evangelist on Patmos; El Greco's Saint Martin and the Beggar; Murillo's Return of the Prodigal Son; Stuart's Mrs. Yates; Monet's Rouen Cathedral and Cezanne's The House on the Hill.

Coffee will be served. Admission is free.

Lecture time is 10 a.m. in the Mesa Room.

All of the above events are presented through the Fine Arts Festival Week.

Reader Concerned About Phones

Dear Editor:
I believe some serious steps should be taken by the Student Council to remedy the telephone situation in Tech's dorms. At times the chance of getting a line is "nil" and a walk up the hall of a men's dorm will show that quite a number of phones are off the hook and unattended.

Those that have lines and are aware of it manage to manipulate the phone so they can phone after hours (if they get a line during the evening they hold it and thereby eliminate its use for the remainder of the night.)

It seems that there would be enough lines for everyone's use if considerate use of the room phones were observed.
If everyone concerned would participate in an experiment outlawing unattended phones, tying up of lines, and overly-extended conversations, it would restore the dorm phones to something more than a wall decoration in the evenings.

ment for violations of the traffic regulations there must be an independent board to which appeals under the law may be taken; if this board were under the control of the punishing agency then a breach of justice, as we see it, would occur.

Our board is independent of the punishing agency, and any student who wishes, no matter what the Traffic Security Department says, may have his case reviewed and a binding decision rendered upon it. Mr. Hallum, if you felt justified in appealing your ticket your right was clear—you should have done so. I assure you that the board would have reviewed your case with all fairness possible.

Your last statement was, "Is it fair?" Yes it is fair, and we are continually searching for the better way. Possibly in the future you might try to help us; we are trying our very best to help you.

Sincerely,
Mike Stinson, Chairman
Traffic Appeals Board

Dear Gayle,

I wish to give reply to a letter published in "Letters To Editor" by Cecil Hallum in the Oct. 19th edition of the Toreador and reply in general to all Tech students who hold the same conception of the Traffic Appeals Board and the parking and traffic regulations of this campus as Mr. Hallum.

First, in respect to the need for a new consideration of the traffic and parking problem I can answer that there is a continuous consideration and re-evaluation of these problems by the Traffic Security Commission on which, I might add, the student body is represented.

This board tries its best to cope with the tremendous difficulties in this area, hoping always to arrive at the best solution for all concerned. Mr. Hallum, your way is open for complaint or suggestion; you merely have to make this criticism known to the Student Council, but they cannot act on your complaint with no knowledge of its nature.

Secondly, you seem to indicate that your dormitory parking violations were unjust on the basis that you were not aware of the regulations concerning your parking area. We live in a society in which ignorance of basic laws does give adequate excuse for leniency of the law.

You are given the privilege of bringing a car to this campus, but with this privilege comes a responsibility to familiarize yourself with the regulations which restrict its use; part of the job of every driver on this campus is to read and understand the parking regulations pertaining to his car and to try his best to follow them to the letter. Obviously, you failed to meet your responsibility, and, thus, your privilege is removed.

Thirdly, you assume, and possibly others do also, that the Traffic Appeals Board is under the control of Traffic Security Department. This is definitely false. Since there is a monetary form of punish-

Dear Editor:

As a graduate of Texas Tech, I wish to comment upon the controversy concerning the name change.

I am 100 per cent in favor of the name Texas State University. I feel this illustrates the true status better than other suggested names. I hate to see the "Double T" go, but I feel that the value of the new name would be worth the sacrifice.

I have never been polled by the Ex-Students Assn., but I cannot believe that the majority would not be in favor of a name change. Your for a better University,

Council Promotes Service

Tech's Campus Service Council fills the need for a body to coordinate the activities of the various service organizations on campus.

ORGANIZED late last year, the Council was set up to further service work, encourage and promote service projects and spread work around among the five working groups presently at Tech.

"Our main duty is to serve as a communications center," said Bill Brasher, Lubbock junior and president of the Council. "We are still young and feeling our way through, but we are getting our records in order and will soon be able to keep track of all the jobs and route them to the various organizations."

COUNCIL membership is limited to two delegates from each service organization and one faculty advisor. The president of each group is included in the delegation, plus one other member.

Dr. P. J. Woods, associate professor, is the faculty advisor, and Dru King, Plainview senior, is the Council's secretary. According to Brasher, new officers will be selected in a few weeks to replace those who were elected for last year's Council.

THERE ARE currently five service organizations on campus — Alpha Phi Omega, Saddle Tramps, Circle K, Women's Service Organization and Junior Council.

"Since our organization," continued Brasher, "we have had limited opportunities to pass around projects, but I think we will have an organization with excellent possibilities in the near future."

Raiders Challenge Tough Miners Today

By ARTIE SHAW
Toreador Sports Editor

Texas Tech's wide-open Red Raiders meet a group of scrappy Miners in El Paso today at 8 p.m. (MST). The Raiders are prepared to meet the finest anti-aircraft artillery in the nation.

The Miners, who have given up an average of only 41.4 yards per game in the air, also have the nation's lowest number of completions against them. Opposing throwers have only managed 19 completions of 61 attempts in seven contests with the Miners. Total air yardage against the El Paso crew is 290.

Rookie coach Warren Harper inherited a wealth of talent when he took over Texas Western football fortunes this year, but has yet to make good of it. The Miners own two victories—an upset of North Texas State, and a runaway triumph at the hands of Eastern New Mexico University. Harper got 16 of 18 lettermen back, including virtually all starters from last year's 4-5 team.

The biggest man offensively is end Jim Evans, who will be Tucker's target for most of the evening.

The Miners are also a youthful team (not more than three seniors will start) and are in the midst of an extended building program.

Besides Evans, they should start junior Ulysses Kendall at the other end; Mart Adams and Robert Glover (both juniors) at tackles; Tim Morton and Fred Belt (junior and sophomore respectively) at guards and Dexter Pate (another sophomore) at center.

Tucker will quarterback the team, with Julius Glosson and Bob Mortimer at halves, and Charles Arciniega at fullback. Mortimer and Arciniega are sophomores, while Glosson is a junior.

Meanwhile, Coach J T King also plans to start a young team for the Raiders, with only two seniors, Bill Shaha and David Parks, slated to start for the Red. Three juniors, Reg Scarborough, Jim Zanos and C. C. Willis will be in the starting lineup, while the rest are sophomores.

The Raiders have surpassed even the fondest hopes of their supporters, winning four of their first eight games. Two of those victories are conference wins — A&M and SMU — and the other two are the wins over Kansas State and Washington State. Last week the Tech men closed out their 1963 home schedule to the delight of the hometown fans, with a 51-13 rout of Kansas State.

Texas Tech leads the rivalry with Texas Western, having won nine of 16 games with one tie. The series began in 1930, with the Miners winning 31-0 in Lubbock. The last time the two teams met was in 1957. The Miners won by a 26-14 count.

King will probably go with Parks and sophomore Tommy Doyle at ends; John Carrell and John Porter, both sophomores, at tackles; Willis and Shaha at guards and Scarborough at center.

In the backfield sophomores Ben Elledge, Donny Anderson and Johnny Agan get the nod at quarterback and halves, with Zanos at fullback.

The game will be broadcast over the facilities of KSEL radio, 950 in Lubbock.
