

Pep Rally Features Stangel

A blazing bonfire will welcome Techsians for a pep rally at the Saddle Tramp Circle, 7:30 tonight giving Tulsa-bound Raiders a big send-off.

DEAN W. L. STANGEL, retired head of the agriculture department will speak at the rally. Another added attraction will be a skit presented by Alpha Phi pledges in the form of an international newscast predicting another win by the Red Raiders. Majorettes will present a twirling routine.

THE RALLY is sponsored by the Rodeo Association.

Although awards for spirit will not be given this week, the Rodeo Association hopes that all Tech organizations will turn out en masse and show that last week's spirit was not displayed for group recognition alone.

Sharla Pepper and Bill McElvane are on the rally committee.

Hammett Talks

Dr. Louis P. Hammett, leading authority on physical chemistry, will speak to Texas Tech scientists Friday night. Dr. Hammett is visiting the campus in connection with a chemistry lecture program sponsored by the Welch Foundation.

SOMETHING NEW — Pat Huse, Lubbock sophomore, admires a model of the new class room plant to be constructed in the near future. It will be located just north of the Journalism Building, and connected to that building.

Municipal Auditorium Features 'La Traviata'

The prelude to Act I of Verdi's dramatic opera, "La Traviata," will be presented at 8 p.m. Friday in the Municipal Auditorium by the Wagner Opera Company of New York.

Tech students and faculty can purchase center balcony seats for $1 at the auditorium box office. "LA TRAVIATA" is a typically boy-meet-girl story. It is Verdi's music that transforms the opera into a work of musical beauty.

It is one of the most popular operas in the modern repertoire of its dramatic action and its melodic and moving music.

The production will be presented with the same cast which starred in the New York Opera Festival's production.

THE WAGNER COMPANY is now making its second transcontinental tour, following favorable notices last season from coast to coast.

The opera is presented entirely in Italian with the support of a full orchestra and large selected choruses. Colorful scenery and costumes are also a feature.

Josephine Guido, the brilliant young lyric-coloratura soprano, will star as the tragic heroine.

Galloper Gets Gobbler At Turkey Run Saturday

The annual Sneed Hall Turkey Run will start off in front of Sneed at 2 p.m. on Saturday.

Runners will race on a mile course. The finish line will be at Sneed Hall.

THE WINNER will receive a turkey and a kiss from the Turkey Queen, Pat Taylor.

Nominees for turkey queen which were put up by each dorm wing were Shirley Stephens, Gail Hickman, Betty Davis, Carolyn Meek, Fern Vestal and Joyce Tallman.

Second and third place winners will receive a duck and chicken egg.

TROPHIES will be awarded to the four top sprinters to place in the race.

Any boy not on the track team may sign up for the race at Sneed Hall switchboard.

Freshmen Homecoming Meet Takes Place Wednesday

The second freshman Homecoming convocation in the history of Texas Tech will be on Wednesday in the Tech Union ballroom.

George Gilkerson, Lubbock District Attorney, will be guest speaker.

PURPOSE of the meeting, sponsored by the freshman council, is to promote school spirit and acquaint all freshmen with the traditions of Tech homecomings.

A spirit lantern will be lighted during the candle service during the program's conclusion.

"Levi Day" Meets Disapproval Again

For the second time this year, sponsor "Levi Day" has met with an attempt by an organization to official disapproval.

Tech Talent Show Opens December 9

Talented Techsians present their version of a vaudeville show Dec. 9.

Organizations and individuals interested in entering may obtain entry blanks at the Tech Union newsstand, the Music Bldg. and the Tech Bookstore. Blanks are to be turned in at the Union Program Office where audition times will be given.

ACTS ARE limited to 10 minutes of singing, dancing or comedy performed either as solos or in groups. Auditions for the show will be Sunday and Monday. All props and equipment must be furnished by the groups performing. A later audition date will be reserved for those who can not audition on Sunday or Monday.

First place winner of the talent show will be given an engraved plaque and will represent Tech at the Texas A & M talent show where competition will be statewide.

Winner will also appear on John O'Brien's television show. Second and third place winners will receive engraved discs.

Committee on student Organizations this week turned down a request by the Rodeo Club to sponsor "Levi Day". Earlier, the Veterans Organization dropped a similar request at the advice of Florence Phillips, dean of women.

THE COMMITTEE hastened to point out that its decision didn't rule out "Levi Day", it just ruled against this specific request.

The group based its ruling on lack of thought in the request and preparation, doubt as to whether the event would be beneficial to Tech, and the previous request by the Veterans Organization.

"LEVI DAY" in the past has been a day set aside each year for students, faculty and administration to build school spirit and provide a break in monotony of the day-to-day grind. Over the years it has become a tradition.

"Something of this sort requires a good deal of preparation and thought for it to succeed," James G. Allen, Dean of Student Life, pointed out. "Such an event will not do Tech any good if it is a failure."

For Homecoming

Queen Election Nears

Preliminary election of Homecoming queen has been scheduled for Sunday at 1:30 p.m. in the Tech Union Ballroom, with an all-school election selecting one girl from the ten finalists slated for Wednesday.

Preliminary judging to select the ten finalists will be conducted by a representative panel consisting of one voting delegate from each organization sponsoring a queen contestant.

ALL ENTRIES for Homecoming queen should be turned in to Gerald Myers in West Hall by Friday. The nominee must be a junior or senior.

No queen entrant may be nominated by more than one organization.

If any organization has nominated a girl that had previously been nominated by another organization, Gerald Myers in West Hall or Ted Ferguson in Bledsoe Hall must be notified by Friday.

EACH representative is urged to be at the Ballroom promptly at 1:30 Sunday for instructions. Preliminary elections are open to all students and visitors.

The candidate receiving the most votes in the all-school election Wednesday will be crowned Homecoming queen preceding the bonfire and pep rally Friday night, Nov. 21. Dedication of the Saddle Tramp Circle will be made at the same time.

FOUR GIRLS receiving the next highest vote will act as the queen's attendants. The queen and her four attendants will be presented in the Homecoming parade and at the halftime activities of the Tech-Arkansas game, Nov. 22.

WHO NEEDS TALENT? — Shirley Stephens, Denton sophomore, exhibits some of the talent which will be on display when the annual Texas Tech talent show opens Dec. 9.

Ledwig Shows Travel Slides

Don Ledwig, Lubbock Ambassador to Finland, will tell of his experiences in Finland and Russia in the Tech Union Workroom on Nov. 18. He will show colored slides of the places he visited.

Ledwig, a senior at Tech, spent last summer in Finland on a good will tour.

Refreshments will be served during his travelogue.

Bits From Birdie

by merium jackson

The twitter in the air this week is mostly grades, quizzes and mid-semester reports. Birdie tells me that things are getting rough even in the freshmen dorms. He said that one young lady in Drane was very worried about her grades and in the midst of telling a friend the sad state of affairs became extremely irritated with her roommate for putting out her cigarette. It turned out, however, that the snuffed out cigarette belonged to the roommate and the irritated frosh found hers. Where? In her hand, glowing brightly!

MID-SEMESTER is not having such a drastic effect upon all Techsians, however. Gamma Phi for example took time out Tuesday night to celebrate their Founders' Day. Gamma Phi Beta actives, alumni, and pledges attended a dinner at the Lubbock Women's Club in honor of the occasion.

Sigma Alpha Epsilon members and pledges will "kick up their heels" this weekend because quizzes are over. They are planning a retreat to Ceta Canyon on Saturday.

BIRDIE has been keeping a close watch on the Delts lately and reports that they are "Playboys". It seems that he came to this conclusion while watching some preparation for the Playboy Formal Saturday Night. Delts and dates will dance to the music of the Kingston Combo from 8 until 12 in the Caprock Hotel Ballroom.

The time for chicken wire, paper mache and crepe paper has again arrived, so I'm told. Warehouses, garages and even back yards are filled with these items and Birdie said he was almost "caged" while watching one group nominate their Homecoming queen candidate.

KAPPA KAPPA GAMMA pledges loosed themselves from float long enough to elect their officers recently, however. Vee Hartman, will serve as president; Lucy Fox, vice president; Janet Knowles, secretary; Ginny Johnson, treasurer; Virginia Cooper, chaplain; Nancy MacCall, activities chairman; Phyllis Reed, marshal and Marilyn Campbell, song leader.

Alpha Phi members, will also take a break "from the chicken wire" Saturday to initiate five pledges. New initiates will be Earlene Anderson, Judy Redding, Sally Swafford, Phyllis Walker, and Mary Ann West. A banquet honoring the new members will follow the ceremony.

THE TECH ACCOUNTING SOCIETY will host Harold Bolinger, Lubbock, CPA, at a meeting tonight at 8 p.m. in the Tech Union. Bolinger, past president of the Lubbock Chapter of the Texas Society of Certified Public Accountants and partner in the Firm Bolinger, Seers and Burk will speak on "Professional Ethics of Accountants."

Future lawyers will listen to Ronny Bass, Lubbock attorney, tonight at 7 p.m. in the Tech Union, Room A.

Election of historian and parliamentarian will also take place at that time.

THE "BIRD'S EYE" also noted that new pledge officers of Delta Tau Delta have been elected. Holding office are Jerry Beeler, president; Doug Howell, vice-president; Ed Ratliff, secretary; Carl Hyde, treasurer and Frank Davies sergeant at arms.

"Little Hut", starring Ava Gardner, David Niven and Stewart Granger will be shown in the Tech Union Ballroom on Monday at 4 and 7 p.m. The movie, filmed in color, will not be shown on Sunday this week.

Another Tradition Down the Drain?

Traditions, no matter how large or small, play an important part in the lives of students attending college. They are often linked closely with school spirit.

"Levi Day" at Tech has never been a big tradition, but it has occurred each year, and the students year after year have begun to expect it to pop up, although they can't tell you when.

This tradition serves a definite purpose. Most of the Tech students feel a need at different times to break away from the ordinary, and do something different, as is the case here.

Levi Day never had a long lasting effect — it simply gave students the impression that today is a little different than yesterday. Today we'll all wear levis together! This is good, but some individuals with authority in this matter seem to think it lowers the standards of students, especially girls.

Earlier in the year the Tech Vet's Club attempted to get permission to sponsor Levi Day for this year, and were advised to drop the question.

This week the Rodeo Club asked permission to sponsor the event. They were not immediately discouraged, but at the last moment, when they expected approval, they were refused. Publicity had already begun to take form — and wham!

Dean James G. Allen explained that this was not a final ruling, but that the Committee on Student Organizations and he felt there wasn't ample time for preparation in this instance, and that the Vet's Club had been turned down previously.

Whether this is a deliberate attempt to stamp out Levi Day cannot be ascertained at this time, but whatever the thinking is behind the two refusals, it will do well not to cut out Tech traditions just like that.

Possibly the two organizations involved should get together and see who will sponsor what, but Levi Day should continue.

Techsans Talk Back

WHAT HAPPENED?

In view of the recent concerted efforts of the Tech cheerleaders, Saddle Tramps, and campus newspaper to promote school spirit and enthusiasm on the Tech campus, I should like to know why the victory bells were not rung after Saturday's win over Arizona.

If the ringing of the bells after a Tech victory is a tradition, it should be carried out after every victory, not just when we defeat a "major" college or Southwest Conference member (Texas A and M).

I feel that this tradition is beneficial to our school because it announces to everyone within hearing distance that Tech has triumphed again and that we as a school, want the world to know.

It has been my understanding that freshmen boys, athletes in particular, were to be responsible for seeing that the victory bells are rung at the appropriate times. If our Tech freshmen do not have enough school pride and school spirit to carry out their part in this campus tradition, it is up to us as upperclassmen to motivate them and instill a little spirit in our freshmen's hearts, or at least in their ringing arms.

MORE BELLS

Do you know someone who can give at least ten good reasons why the victory bells were not rung immediately after the Arizona game Saturday afternoon?

Is it so rusty from disuse that it has become immovable, isn't there a freshman class anymore? I don't want any nonsense about the tower gates being locked, because that has never made any difference before.

School spirit has reached an all time low, but this is ridiculous.

PAT ON THE BACK

A standing ovation to the TOREADOR for its editorial in the Nov. 11 issue.

The American concept of equality is being butchered in our United States today, not only in busi-

two party

The Throb

mccarty

Once a person begins to feel the throb of the campus heart-beat, it seems that a never ending flow of activities are taking place, some activities being evident per se, others are camouflaged to some extent, and still others you can't figure out at all.

This may seem like a lot of nothing, so an attempt will be made to explain. The more obvious activities are things like football games, weekly dances, homecoming, elections, etc.

Now we move into the camouflaged area. The recent food strike is a good example of this type of activity. Although the food was the main thing in question, there were probably many underlying causes, not immediately visible.

For example, the fact that nothing had happened that would have enabled students to release the tension that had been built up probably played a major part in the actual perpetration, but not too many of the actual participants recognized it.

Another thing along this line is that the actual beginning of the strike, and the ones who started it are generally unknown. This anonymity was felt to be necessary for protection against an invisible administration lurking somewhere in the Ad Building. (Actually they aren't invisible, and don't bite either).

The kind you can't figure out at all are the actual rumors which have a beginning somewhere (no one knows where) and they spread and spread, and are soon taken for the truth when actually they aren't. But how is one to know this?

You can't tell about a lot of things, but if a person would just stop and think about a lot of the things he hears, he could see through most of the falsities. When in doubt about something, go talk it over with someone who knows, and can give the bare facts about the situation.

David S. Weaver

SATISFIED

After having completely flooded the floor with tears, shed over the sorrows and miseries of my fellow Techsans, I sat down to my cute lil' typewriter to compose this masterpiece. Being one of the few, I'm sure there aren't more than six of us, Techsans who are happy here I will probably be frowned upon. But I would nevertheless like to say that the food in Doak is so much better by comparison than was the food in Horn that I am quite content.

I have found the boys in general to be much the same as they were last year, thus I am not disappointed (neither am I ecstatic) but once more I am content. As I am still allowed to talk in the halls and have not been forbidden to walk through Weeks, I feel grateful. With all this I can make but one request, as you pass on the campus please smile; things could be worse.

james hamm

The victory bells rang (figuratively, not actually) again Saturday after a four-game drouth, as Tech got back into the winning ways at the expense of Arizona's Wildcats.

IT WAS NICE of the football team to start the bells ringing figuratively, but they should have been rung actually.

Freshmen, by popular decree, have been assigned the job of ringing the bells (actually) following a Tech victory. This is tradition.

It is also tradition for upperclassmen to make certain that freshmen cheerfully do this job. It is bad enough that our freshmen neglected ringing the bells, but it was worse for upperclassmen to let them get away with it.

RECENTLY, opportunities to ring the victory bells have been few and far between. We should take advantage of the opportunity whenever it's offered, or Lubbockites will think we lose all of the games we play.

The football team came away from the game with a fine victory to its credit, but the student body failed miserably. Besides not ringing the victory bells, some students booed an injured Arizona player (shades of racial prejudice). This is poor sportsmanship.

WITH THE form shown in Saturday's game, it appears that the football team will keep the victory bells ringing figuratively. It's up to the student body to see that they ring actually.

Now is the time to cram. Mid-semester reports will be coming out soon, and instructors are giving the last exams of the first half of the semester.

LOW GRADES can be raised on the basis of a high grade on these last exams, in some instances parents have been known to be narrow-minded about low grades. So, estudiamos mucho.

Homecoming is just around the corner, and exes will soon be flocking to Tech. Let's put our collective best foot forward and show them the improvements that Tech has made.

SKI HEIL!, SKIERS

Club Meets Tonight; Bainbridge Speaks

Ski Heil! These enthusiastic words will be heard from Buzz Bainbridge at 7:30 tonight at the Tech Ski Club meeting in the Texas Tech Union Ballroom.

Bainbridge, ski instructor from Santa Fe Ski Basin, will talk to all Tech skiers, beginners and experts, and show typical ski attire from the Santa Fe lodge. The ski fashions will be modeled by ten Tech coeds.

SKIING techniques will be emphasized by a movie. Also on the agenda is election of a club secretary.

Officers already elected are Mack Robertson, president; Tom Tiano, vice president and Kathy White, treasurer.

Ski Club makes an annual migration at minimum cost between semesters. Preparations are now being made for the trip.

THOSE students who are interested in skiing or learning to ski are urged to come to the meeting and to make arrangements now to go on the Tech Ski Trip.

Two buses and numerous carloads took an estimated 125 students to Bishop's Lodge in Santa Fe last year. Those who went on the buses ate and lodged at Bishop's.

THE GROUP left on Sunday afternoon and returned Wednesday night in time for registration which began on Thursday, spending three full days on the ski run. Facilities for all types of skiers were there.

Drane Hall Boasts Choir

"Alleluias" may be heard re-sounding through a dormitory several times a week because of Drane Hall's new activity this semester—a dormitory choir.

Organization of the choir, first of its type on campus, is made entirely of freshmen students. About 40 members compose the choir, which usually rehearses two nights weekly after 10 p.m.

THE CHOIR is under the direction of Judy Harper, freshman music education major from Dallas. She was student director of her high school choir, "Lads and Lassies," of Highland Park.

Section directors of the choir are Virginia McBride, first alto; Ann McElheny, second alto; Ann Jaroszewski, first soprano and Rita Mills, second soprano. Accompanist is Julia Steed.

One of the nicest things about watching a sporting contest of any kind, whether it be crap-shooting or arm wrestling is the fact that in this country you can yell, stomp or maybe flog the man sitting in front of you with a program without anyone thinking too much about it. It's just a natural thing to do and it makes no difference which side you're on — you have a free choice.

If the arbitrator of any of these competitions makes what you consider a bad decision, you are completely within your rights to let him know about it. This includes booing, stomping and yelling loudly. About the only thing you can't do is cut down on him from the stands with a machine gun. If a player, or players, on the opposing team does something that you think is wrong, you can also express your disapproval. I think we all do it now and then.

However, there are some instances where booing and hooting are the most miserable things that can happen. Saturday I heard some booing and hooting that came at the wrong time. A few Tech students gave the colored boys on the Arizona eleven a rough time. Fortunately, these students weren't very large in number — the majority of Tech students are truly good sports, but there were these few.

The only thing these students could have done worse would have been to chuck rocks or spit at the colored boys on Arizona's team.

Some Negro boys play dirty football. Boo them. Some Negro boys play hard, clean football. The kind you and I like to watch. It is absolutely wrong to sit warm and comfortable in the stands and squall, "Boo," "Kill old Snowball," or "Look at slick-foot out there on the ground, maybe his back is broken." It is wrong when these boys are giving their all for their coach and school.

Saturday, we won. Some students lost. They were the real losers — if you know what I mean. In one instance, one of the colored boys an end, was hurt. As he was lying on the ground writhing in pain some of these same catsalls and boos came banging out from the student body — our student body.

People that have the intelligence to even enroll in an institution of higher learning should have enough reasoning power to see that this is wrong. When a man is giving all he has, or for that matter even part, for his team it is a shame to bring him down, even if he is colored. When a boy puts on a football uniform and makes his team — he is no longer black, purple, pink or what have you. He is a football player.

You who made fools of yourselves — and you know who you are, should remember that in this country it's fine to get a man down but nowhere in any rule book does it allow you to kick him in the teeth after he's down.

I'm sure you enjoyed the game. We won. You know, we all say that when our team wins a game — "We won." If you will listen to yourselves when our team loses the shoe is on the other foot — it's "They lost."

Those negro boys on Arizona's team are football players, trying to do a good job for their school and their team. They should have been treated with due respect by our student body. They were representatives of another state and another city and they should have been recognized as such.

You, the boopers and stompers, sat on your respective "fannys" in the stands and raised sand with someone who was playing the best he could for his school. I wonder what you would have felt like had the positions been reversed.

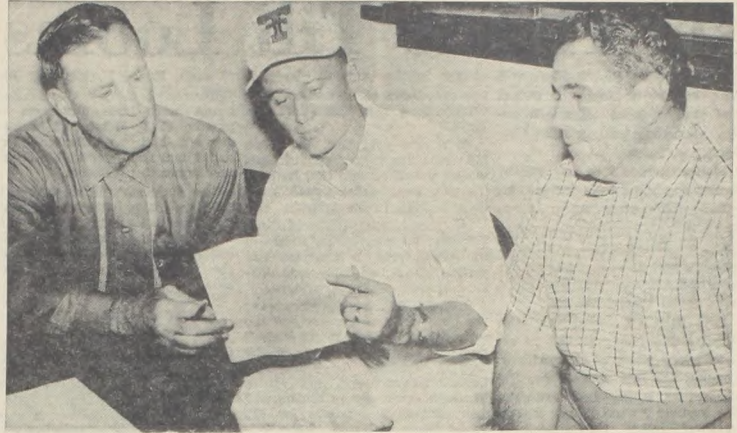

Think it over.

Raider Eleven Faces The Best

Latest NCAB statistics point up the terrific job Texas Tech has had trying to defend its air lanes this fall.

THE RED RAIDERS have faced Arizona's Ralph Hunsaker, nation's No. 1 passer; Baylor's Humphrey, No. 2; Texas A&M's Charlie Milstead, No. 10; and Tulane's Richie Pettibon, No. 14. They've also been confronted with the nation's No. 1 receiver, Arizona's Dave Hibbert, and the fourth best receiver in Texas A&M's John Tracey.

Tulsa, this week's opponent, doesn't have any nationally ranked individuals, but the Golden Hurricane is second in rushing defense and 10th in rushing offense.

WEEKLY REPORT — Tech's trainer, Don Sparks, is shown going over the injury reports after the Arizona tilt with Tech assistant coaches Joe Kerbel on the right and J. T. King on the left. Sparks keeps all Tech coaches well informed on the physical condition of the players. In addition to his trainer's duties, Sparks is Tech's track coach.

Raider halfback Jimmy Knox of Graham will be seeking his 98th consecutive carry without a loss against Tulsa this weekend. Knox, a senior this season, hasn't lost a yard in varsity play.

RONNIE RICE

Hurricane Tilt Looms

Texas Tech's Red Raiders will face the task of stopping a potent and well-balanced offense Saturday when they take on Tulsa University at Tulsa.

Unlike Raider foes of recent weeks, the Tulsa team features an attack which, according to Assistant Coach Junior Arterburn, features an almost equal amount of running and passing. Against Tulane and Arizona, Tech was faced with aerial bombardments.

ARTERBURN added that the Tulsa group has potential in almost every phase of their attack. Leading the line charges for the Hurricanes is big Bob Brumble, the leading ground gainer in the Missouri Valley Conference. If Brumble's power fails, they are quick to call on speedster halfback Ronnie Morris for outside plays. Morris is in his third year at a starting halfback post for Tulsa.

Calling signals for the Tulsa lads is sophomore Jerry Keeling. Keeling, according to Arterburn is an accurate passer and is also dangerous on the run or pitch option.

TO COMBAT these weapons, the Raiders will use a line-up similar to the one they used to maul Arizona last weekend. One major change in the starting eleven is the promotion of sophomore Dan Gurley to a first team halfback berth.

Arterburn said that the Tech lads have shown good spirit in this week's practices, and that he feels the win over Arizona will be a definite help to the team.

He singled out fullback Doug Duncan and guard Dale Robinson for their work in practice this week. "The squad is in good physical shape," added Arterburn.

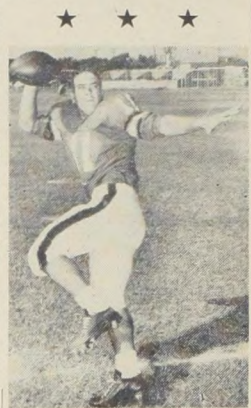

THE TULSA team is known for the changes in formation and the wide use of flankers it has devised through the season. One of the leading wingmen the Hurricanes have employed is end Dick Brown. Through seven games the big lad has caught nine passes for 103 yards. Other stalwarts in the Tulsa line include Opie Bandy, 216 pound senior tackle. Bandy is touted as the finest tackle in Tulsa history. According to Arterburn, this year's team is the best that the Oklahoma school has fielded in several years, and one of the better teams that Tech will face this year.

The Raiders will leave Friday morning by plane, and are scheduled to hold a light workout in Tulsa Friday afternoon.

STARTERS FOR Tech will be Bob Witucki and Jerry Selfridge at ends, Roger Nesbitt and Phil Williams at tackles, Gerald Seemann and Dale Robinson at guards, E. J. Holub at center, Jerry Bell at quarterback, Gurley and Floyd Dellinger at halfbacks, and Duncan at fullback.

The Raiders will be trying to spoil the Tulsa homecoming, since the Hurricanes edged Tech 3-0 in the Raiders homecoming game last season. Tackle Bandy kicked the field goal which sank the Tech lads.

Frosh Meet Shoats In Little Rock Tilt

Texas Tech's first freshman football game with another Southwest Conference school — University of Arkansas — in Little Rock tonight will complete the Picadors' 1958 schedule.

TOM HAMM'S frosh are 3-1 for the season, while Arkansas, with probably its strongest team in history, is undefeated in three starts. Tech downed North Texas 21-16, lost to Tulsa 7-0, beat the West Texas frosh 31-20, and defeated the Hardin-Simmons B team last week 26-8.

Running the split-T offense, the Picadors are averaging 231 yards a game rushing, 71 passing. Defensively, Tech has yielded 153 rushing, 59 passing. Chief offensive threat is halfback Dickie Polson of Amarillo, averaging 6 yards a carry.

LIKELY PICADOR starting linemen ends Jerry Elbert, 200, of Wellington and Charles Rice, 195, of Amarillo; tackles

Larry Mullins, 195, of Snyder, and James Elliott, 205, of Decatur; guards Jerry Mason, 200, of Grenville, Miss., and Kenneth Sherrill, 200, of Graham; and center Ken Milliken, 190, of San Angelo.

In the backfield will probably be Billy Ryan, 168, of Seymour, quarter; Polson, 185, left half, Jim Tatum, 190, of Tulsa, right half; and George Fraser, 195, of Llano, full.

SAEs Edge Phi Delt's To Create Deadlock

by JOHN LEWIS

Sigma Alpha Epsilon edged by the Phi Delt's, 7-6, to gain a tie in the Fraternity intramural touchfootball league, Wednesday.

The Phi Delt's scored the first time they had the ball and clicked all during the game on passes from Pete Hudgens to Dewey Bryant, but couldn't muster another score.

The Sae's scored their only tally of the game on a pass from Jerry Pearson to Jerry Craft. Ed Robertson kicked the extra point that meant the difference in the game.

The play-off game will be played today at 5 p.m., on G-1, to determine the Fraternity League champion.

In other games played yesterday, the Sigma Nu's beat Sigma Chi, 13-0, Pi Kappa Alpha edged by Phi Kappa Psi, 2-0, Kappa Sigma routed Tau Delta, 18-0, and Phi Gamma Delta defeated Alpha Tau Omega, 13-0.

The winner of the game today between SAE and the Phi Delt's will meet Dorm No. 6 Sunday to determine the All-College intramural touchfootball champion. This game should be as exciting as the other games we have already seen. The Dorm No. 6 team beat a real tough team when they defeated the Roman Rushers, but they will have to play much better football to beat either the SAE's or the Phi Delt's.
