

FRIDAY NEWS BRIEFS

Defense lawyers issue subpoenas

AMARILLO (AP)—Defense lawyers issued a flurry of subpoenas Thursday as the state appeared on the verge of resting its case against millionaire murder defendant Cullen Davis.

The witness list included the names of a doctor, two policemen, a karate instructor and several associates of the defendant's estranged wife, Priscilla. Some of the names were unfamiliar to newsmen who have followed the case since the August 1976 shooting spree at Davis' Fort Worth mansion.

Perhaps notably, the list did not include W.T. Ruffner, a former boyfriend of Mrs. Davis whose name the defense steadfastly bandied about during the nine weeks of testimony.

The summons went out as defense lawyer Richard "Racehorse" Haynes moved into the critical area of bullet identification in his cross-examination of Fort Worth Crime Lab director Frank Shiller.

Prosecutors indicated Shiller may be their last witness during this phase of Davis' trial on charges of killing his 12-year-old stepdaughter Andrea Wilborn. Miss Wilborn was one of two slain in the midnight carnage at Davis' $6 million mansion. Two others were wounded, including Mrs. Davis. Her lover, Stan Farr, 30, was killed and a young mansion visitor, Gus Gavrel, was wounded.

The list included Dr. Thomas Simons, a Fort Worth physician who provided the prescriptions for much of the medication drugs used by Mrs. Davis.

The defense also subpoenaed the doctor's medical records for Mrs. Davis, Farr, Dee Davis, Beverly Bass, Pam Bass, and Sandy Meyers. It requested those records compiled from January 1970 through October of this year.

Dee Davis is Priscilla's 19-year-old daughter and Mrs. Meyers is a one-time friend of Mrs. Davis and erstwhile resident of the Davis mansion.

Beverly Bass, 19, was Gavrel's date the night of the shootings and was one of three state witnesses to identify Davis as the gunman. Pam is her older sister.

Garvin offered position

Informed sources confirmed the associate dean of architecture position was recently offered to Lawrence Garvin from the University of California at Berkeley.

A controversy now surrounds the method used by Engineering Dean John Bradford to choose Garvin for the position. The controversy resulted in a petition signed by 560 of the 700 architecture students.

Members of a student-faculty ad hoc committee Wednesday released a statement referring to "the peculiar chain of events surrounding the recent campus visit of the man who has now been offered the position." Garvin reportedly visited the Tech campus during the summer and again Oct. 10.

An Associate Dean Search Committee was formed last year at the request of Bradford. The committee consisted of three professional architects, three faculty members, and one student representative. The committee selected five candidates and invited them to visit the Tech campus and Garvin was one of the five.

Garvin received a bachelor of science degree in 1948 from Washington and Lee University in Virginia. He received a bachelor of architecture from Ohio State University in 1952, a master of architecture from Massachusetts Institute of Technology in 1948 and was a Hamilton Scholar from Washington and Lee University.

Garvin was formerly employed with the area planning office of Harvard Medical School.

The University Daily was unable to obtain a copy of his resume.

Exotic bird discovered

WASHINGTON (AP)—A flower-eating bird believed extinct for a century has been discovered in Peru by an American ornithologist, the World Wildlife Fund reported Thursday.

The bird is the white-winged guan, basically a charcoal-colored species that lives in trees. It is slightly larger than a ring-necked pheasant.

Dr. John O'Neill, a Louisiana State University ornithologist who has been studying Peruvian birds for 16 years, and Gustavo del Solar of Peru reported seeing four white-winged guans feeding in trees in a garden in northwestern Peru on Sept. 13.

The discovery marked the first confirmed sighting of the species since 1877.

The bird's charcoal-gray plumage is offset with white outer wing feathers, a brilliant red-orange throat wattle and gray bill. Its face is featherless and colored a dull red.

The species spends virtually all its time in trees, running along limbs and hopping or flying from one branch to another. It feeds on flowers, leaf buds and figs.

Only three mounted specimens exist in museums.

"It was fantastic, exciting and tremendous. It's so hard to believe," O'Neill said of the sighting.

On the other hand, he said, he has found so many "new and interesting things" in Peru that "it wasn't a total shock."

O'Neill said he felt confident of seeing the species when del Solar "told me he had a pretty good idea of where the birds were."

German police search for terrorists

BONN, West Germany (AP)—Police in Germany and France launched a massive hunt Thursday for 10 women and six men sought in the kidnap-slitting of top German industrialist Hanns-Martin Schleyer. Protests by sympathizers of German terrorists exploded across Europe for the second day.

French police, reinforced by 500 anti-terrorist specialists, combed the Alsace region of eastern France near the border town of Mulhouse where the body of the 62-year-old Schleyer was found Wednesday stuffed in the trunk of a German sedan. He had been shot in the head.

German police also went into the predominantly German-speaking region to distribute handbills with pictures and descriptions of the suspects. The German government offered a $24,000 reward for information leading to the arrest of each suspect.

In Mulhouse, opposite the Rhine river from Germany, medical experts performed an autopsy on the body of the industrialist, who was kidnaped in Cologne Sept. 5 by members of the Red Army Faction, a West German terror group headed by the late Andreas Baader.

Doctors sought answers to several unsolved questions, including whether Schleyer was murdered before or after Baader and two of his followers were found dead in their maximum security cells near Stuttgart, Germany, Tuesday morning.

Extreme leftist groups across Europe, denouncing official claims that Baader, 34, Jan-Carl Raspe, 32, and Gudrun Ensslin, 37, committed suicide, set off a wave of demonstrations and bombings aimed at West German government and commercial facilities in Europe.

Safety committee reports on inadequate lighting

By KAY BELL
UD Reporter

Members of the Ad Hoc campus Lighting Committee Thursday presented a list of 14 areas on campus they felt needed more lighting.

The list, which was presented to the Safety committee, was compiled after members of the ad hoc committee reviewed maps of campus lighting and surveyed various campus areas. Cited for inadequate lighting were the courtyards of Horn Hall, Knapp Hall, Gaston Hall, Gordon Hall, and Wells-Carpenter Halls; areas surrounding the Journalism Building, English Building, Social Science Building, new addition to the library, Tech Band practice field, Biology Building and the Aquatic Center. Also listed were the campus extension of Flint Avenue and the area east of Stangel Hall.

Ad hoc committee members met with Dewey Schoroyer, director of grounds maintenance, Friday and discussed the areas they felt were inadequately lighted. Schoyer said he would forward the list to the landscape architect of Tech for further consideration.

A plan for the new lighting should be available by the end of November, according to Fred Wehmeyer, associate vice president for administrative services. Tech's landscape architect will review the committee's list and provide administrators with suggestions and a cost estimate of the project, Wehmeyer said.

Project details would then be forwarded to Ken Thompson, vice president for the office of administration. Funding for the new lights, Wehmeyer said, would not come from maintenance funds but from "new" money.

After the report from the landscape architect, committee members will devise a priority list for the various campus areas.

Kathy Cox, Residence Halls Association vice president for women, also pointed out to the committee that a row of lights on 15th Street, between Boston Avenue and Canton Avenue, were out.

Wehmeyer said he would forward the information to grounds maintenance and asked that other committee members continue to note inoperative lights.

Despite periodic lighting checks by building maintenance, Wehmeyer said, many broken lights are missed. "This place is so big it's impossible to stay on top of it," he said.

"We need more input from people about the lighting situation," Wehmeyer said. "The police are our primary source, but some campus areas are barricaded, such as 15th Street, and they don't get down there."

The Student Association (SA) is also concerned with campus lighting, according to Ronnie Bobbitt, SA external vice president and committee member. Bobbitt read a resolution from College of Business Administration Senator Kathy Henington advocating adequate lighting for all portions of the campus loop system. The resolution was presented to the SA for first reading Thursday night.

Copies of the resolution were sent to Cecil Mackey, president; Glenn Barnett, executive vice president; and Wehmeyer. Wehmeyer said a study of the loop lighting will be made and sent to the SA for further consideration.

Proposed amendments reviewed

EDITOR'S NOTE: In the first of a two-part series on the seven proposed amendments to the Texas Constitution, reporter Larry Elliott looks at the pros and cons of the first four amendments. By LARRY ELLIOTT
UD Reporter

Absentee voting began Wednesday on seven proposed constitutional amendments placed on the ballot by the 65th Texas Legislature.

The legislature proposed 15 amendments to Texas' 101-year-old constitution, which has already been amended 221 times.

Seven of the proposals will be decided Nov. 8, and the other eight will be added to the Nov. 7, 1978 regular election ballot.

AMENDMENT ONE

The first of this year's amendments would expand the Texas Court of Criminal Appeals from five to nine judges and permit the court to sit in panels of three judges in most cases.

Proponents of the measure believe it would relieve some of the pressure on the appellate system in Texas where caseloads have grown by one-third in the past year.

The Texas Court of Criminal Appeals is believed by the Texas Legislative Council to have the heaviest caseload of any state appellate court in the country.

The court's size was increased from three to five judges in 1968 to deal with the growing number of appeals after more than 75 years as a three-judge panel.

The new plan would allow three panels of three judges, and the full nine-judge panel would only hear cases calling for capital punishment or a few other cases requiring the full court.

Opponents of the proposal say it is only a partial remedy to the judicial problems of Texas courts. They believe the civil and criminal court systems should be combined and intermediate appeals courts added to ease the burden of appeals on the remaining high court.

AMENDMENT TWO

Amendment Two would authorize the Veteran's Land Board to issue and sell an additional $200 million in bonds. The proceeds of this sale would be deposited in the Veteran's Land Fund.

The amount of obligation of the state for the fund would also be raised by $200 million.

The amendment provides that an unmarried surviving spouse of a veteran who died in the line of duty would become eligible to purchase tracts of land through the board under certain conditions.

Supporters of this bill feel the state should underwrite more aid for the dependents of veterans.

Opponents say further aid is unnecessary and any other help can be given under existing laws.

AMENDMENT THREE

Amendment Three involves the balance between the rights of accused persons and the safety of society. It allows controversial changes in bail provisions for accused felons.

The amendment permits the denial of bail for up to 60 days to persons arrested for a felony committed while released on bail from a previous felony arrest.

This proposition would also deny bail pending trial for persons accused of a felony involving a deadly weapon if they have a prior felony conviction.

Under present law, bail may be denied to any person arrested for a felony if he has two previous felony convictions. To have bail denied, a prosecutor must show a judge that the accused felon's fact situation substantially shows his guilt.

After bail is denied by the judge, the accused must be tried within 60 days. If not tried within 60 days, the accused may reapply for bail through his lawyer.

Proponents of the measure believe it would strengthen the safeguards against misuse of the denial of bail procedure. They point out that citizens have a right to protection from felons repeatedly arrested for crimes committed while free on bail.

Opponents say the amendment is only an issue raised by "law-and-order" forces to make them appear tough on crime, without gaining any real results.

AMENDMENT FOUR

Amendment Four would provide property tax relief to encourage the preservation of cultural, historical, or natural history resources.

Some historical sites owned by non-profit organizations formed for "charitable purposes" are already exempt from ad valorem taxes. Congress also provides tax relief provisions to cover the cost of restoring property listed in the National Register of Historic Places.

Proponents of the measure say many historic sites are in danger of being destroyed by increasing urbanization. High prices can be paid for land with historical landmarks by developers, and property owners need some incentive to retain their land and preserve its historical value.

Opponents say any tax breaks should not go to property owners of already valuable land which will be taken off the tax rolls. The right of access to such historical sites would not be given to the public, opponents say, but the public would pay for the sites by tax exemptions.

Monday the other three proposed amendments for this year will be examined, including the proposal to allow electronic transfer of funds at remote terminals installed by banks.

Many observers feel this amendment is the first step in the elimination of the checking system.

Bobbitt presents reports

By MARSANNA CLARK

A Tenants Council sponsored through the Student Association is in the planning stages according to external vice-president Ronnie Bobbitt, in a report to the Student Association (SA) Senate Thursday night.

Tech students in the Lubbock community are the target group for the new organization.

A Tenants council is an organization for renters whose primary purpose is to work for legislation and consideration to benefit renters.

Jeanie Ragus, from the College of Arts and Sciences was sent to Austin by the SA on Oct. 15 to attend a workshop on the formation of a Tenants council. According to Bobbitt, Ragus said that the need for a Tenants council was readily seen in the Lubbock area, and those in attendance at the Austin meeting offered to help in any way possible in the formation of Tech's first Tenant Council.

Reporting on the General Store, Bobbitt said that he was very disappointed that only one of the senators supported the program this year by joining, although membership is approximately 250 members which is 25 less than last year.

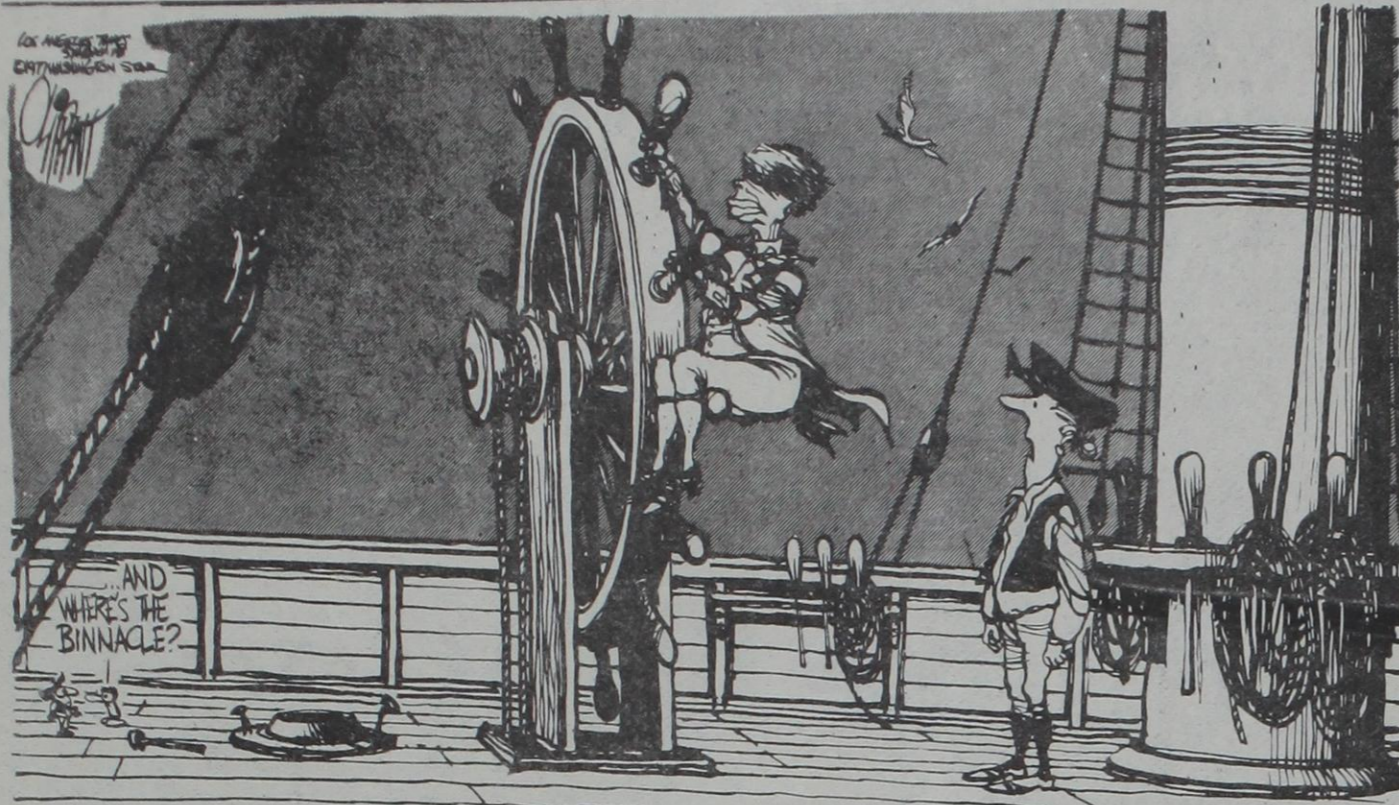

Bobbitt said the Book Exchange, now in its fourth year of operation was very successful this fall. "A total of 319 books were sold and sales transactions between students totaled $1329.65."

"Response to the Housing Guide," Bobbitt said, "has been very favorable.

Copies were sent to the Lubbock Chamber of Commerce and as a result many apartment owners not currently listed in the guide have contacted the SA about doing so." Preparation for the new Housing Guide will begin in late November.

In other business, seven supreme court justices were sworn in at the meeting. They were Rob Shive, chief justice, Robert Hammer, Robert Ratcliff, Kerwin Stephens, Hank Clements, Bill Van Fleet, and Pat Evans.

Senate resolution 13:8 was passed on the third reading. The resolution proclaimed the Texas Tech Intercollegiate Rodeo will be held in Lubbock during "Texas Tech Rodeo Week," Oct. 23-29.

"AND WHERE'S THE BINNACLE?"
"ALL THE CHARTS ARE MISSING. WE CAN'T FIND ANY OFFICERS TO VOLUNTEER FOR SERVICE, CONGRESS SAULMAKING COMPANY HASN'T DELIVERED, AND THE JEWISH MEMBERS OF THE CREW HAVE MUTINIED, SIR!"

Mourning lost love; Myrtle the Mustang

I have suffered a traumatic experience. It is comparable to losing Rodney Allison in the Texas A&M game, discovering Charcoal Cody is a filly (he's really not) or the City of Lubbock doing something that makes sense.

The reason I am writing this column is to share with you, the Tech populace, my sorrow and in some way hope you will understand. I doubt that I shall ever recover from this. As a result of this action I shall never be the happy-go-lucky suave, debonair, sophisticated, cultured young man that I was before this happened to me.

Now I realize what is going through your mind right now. You believe I have finally let my Spanish course get to me and have flipped my lid. Right? Not so.

Earlier this month necessity forced me to sell my one, true love. She was the prettiest little blue 1966 Mustang you could ever hope to see in your whole life. For the sake of nostalgia I will refer to her as Myrtle.

Myrtle was amazing. She never failed me. Whenever I became intoxicated, which was seldom because of my upright and high moralistic beliefs, Myrtle always seemed to be able to find her way back to my home. She would glide slowly and with utmost care until I was deposited in front of my very own door.

I have spilt more beer on Myrtle's floorboards than most drunks have spilt in their mouths. And yet she bounded back from all of my neglect and often harsh treatment.

I won't be able to tell you of the many romances Myrtle and I survived together, mainly because I got married a few months ago and would like to stay that way for at least a little while longer. But, oh, the joys and the heartaches we went through side by side together. Ever since I bought Myrtle four years ago, I have been meaning to write the Ford Co. and discuss the possibilities of enlarging the back seat of their 1966 Mustangs. But I rather reverted to the old American cliché of where there's a will there's a way.

So now she is gone. A Tight-buddy and I drank a last toast in Myrtle before I sold her. We even went to the trouble of spilling some on her floorboard, just for the sake of old times. I could have sworn I saw her blink her headlights and her grill just might have been grinning. Although that could have been from the time she lost control and slipped, gently mind you, into a light pole.

I sold Myrtle, with much reluctance, to a used car dealer and for all I know now she is in the hands of another. I really don't mind though as long as they don't jack up her rear end hang their graduation tassel from the rear view mirror, or even worse, win a pair of dice at the fair and hang those from the mirror.

I know this has been difficult for you to read without a tear coming to your eye and a lump to your throat. But that's okay because I appreciate your concern and it helps me to bear my sorrow a little better.

I wouldn't want you to feel too depressed though because I am not left without any form of transportation—almost, but not quite. My wife, Tricia, saw fit two years ago to buy a yellow Gremlin. As the advertisement for a local bar says, "It ain't much, but it'll do."

So at this point in my life I appreciate Paul Anka and the songs and advertisements he has done for the Kodak Co. I am left with memories. Myrtle lives on.

If you happen to see a little blue Mustang driving down the street without me at the wheel, look hard at her headlights and see if there is a tear. Chances are people will stop you, look at you deeply and, with much deliberation, ask you, "What in the hell are you doing?"

Palestine theories, practices in relation to U.S. questioned

By SALIH JADALLAH
Arab Student Organization
TTU Box 4233

In 1947, the United Nations, then dominated by the United States, recommended that Palestine be partitioned into a Jewish and an Arab state. The Jews were to get 56 per cent of the country even though they only owned about 6 per cent of it. In 1948 the Zionists waged atrocious terrorist assaults on Palestinian civilians forcing them out of their homes and occupying 21 per cent more of the area of Palestine. As an example of these atrocities, it was Menahim Begin himself, the present Prime Minister of Israel and the past commander of the Irgun gang, who ordered his Irgun terrorists to massacre 251 Palestinian civilians in Deir Yasin on April 10, 1948. Begin, who ordered his gang to dismember bodies of civilians, boasted later on that without this massacre the state of Israel would never have been established.

In 1967 Israel took possession of the whole of Palestine in addition to the Golan Heights of Syria and Sinai of Egypt. Begin claims now that part of Israel's Biblical land has been "liberated" and he reiterated the slogan of his Likud party: "There are two banks to the Jordan (river), one is ours, the other is ours as well." This slogan is apparently a stark representation of Zionism's expansionist and racist policy. It is a policy based upon mythical imaginings of a "greater Israel" composed of a gradual takeover of Arab lands. Biblical illusions about greater Israel are not, according to Begin, fables; they are to be ransacked from the Holy Book to justify a ruthless policy of annexation and grabbing of Arab lands, inflicting devastation and killings reminiscent of the Nazi atrocities against the Jews.

In 1977, and for the first time, and American President touched the core of the Palestinian question and, consequently, the Mideastern crisis. For the first time an American president speaks of a homeland for 3.3 million Palestinians, and of their rights. In theory, at least, the United States recognized a fact to which previous administrations blinded themselves. At last, America is about to stand in step with the rest of the world.

However, President Carter's pronouncements, which constitute the nucleus of his Palestine Policy—commendable as they might be—are vague and astoundingly inconsistent. They have led to a vacillating position, which if not put right, will add to the confusion and complexity of an already intricate crisis. These inconsistencies are a reflection of Israel's intransigence and they may be stated as follows:

1. While the President acknowledges Palestinian rights he denies the Palestinian people equal representation. Thus George Orwell's famous witticism that all animals are equal but some are "more equal" than others, has been made the basis of a policy: All peoples are equal but the Palestinian people are less equal than the others.

2. The President demands acceptance by the Palestine Liberation Organization of Security Council resolution 242 as the basis of settlement, although this resolution totally ignores the very existence of the Palestinian people. This resolution was passed in the aftermath of the 1967 war, and in 1976 the U.S. cast the only negative vote in the Security Council to amend this resolution and remedy its shortcomings.

3. The President insists that the P.L.O. should recognize the right of Israel to exist. However, England has the right to exist, but does it have the right to exist on American soil? Also, shouldn't Israel be asked to mutually recognize the right of Palestinians to exist?

4. The President demands that the P.L.O. should amend its charter to delete those articles considered incompatible with the peaceful coexistence of an Israeli and Palestinian state. However, this demand does not meet the condition of fairness, for it does not call upon Israel to delete from its principles, programs, and formal policy declarations, articles that are incompatible with this kind of peaceful coexistence.

Notwithstanding all this, President Carter has put his finger on the most complicated problem in all times. By so doing, he moved one step toward solving this problem which only the United States can peacefully solve. President Carter may thus be the man whose name history will never forget. To qualify, he must solve the problem, and to do so he needs to overcome two major obstacles. First, the inconsistencies of his Palestine Policy, as noted above, have to be resolved, and the vagueness of this policy needs to be clarified. Second, the pressures of domestic policies and the protestations of Israel's American constituency need to be tempered. This is a prodigious task for President Carter who is faced by unprecedented and ferocious attacks from Israel's base in the United States.

But the President knows that unless the Israelis come within reason this theory will remain ink on paper. The Likud party of Mr. Begin is such an extremist, and assumes such an expansionist attitude that it cannot be tamed except by sincere and intense American pressure. Only on August 30, 1977 Begin said, according to the Washington Post, that "with a cabinet including three generals," Israel is "ready to fight another war." If the theory of Mr. Carter's policy is not put into practice, Mr. Begin's theory and practice will drive the world into that "another war" whose consequences are more disastrous than can be envisaged.

On architects, Bakke

On selection process

To the Editor:
This is an answer to a doubt expressed in the Thursday morning article in the UD, "Architecture Majors Upset over New Dean Search." The statement was made that some faculty members "have misconstrued the search committee as an employing committee..." The role of the Search Committee has been clear to faculty and students from its inception.

In the recent letters sent to President Mackey, Vice President Hardwick, and Dean Bradford, the following statement was included, "The faculty of the Division of Architecture is aware that it is the prerogative of the Deans of the University to make appointments of Associate Deans."

The letter did not question this right but pointed out dissatisfaction on the part of faculty and students over procedural matters and asked for a reopening of a search for a candidate for Associate Dean-Chairperson of the division of Architecture.

Sincerely,
Elizabeth Skidmore Sasser
Professor, Division of Architecture

Liberty, justice for all

To the Editor,
I urge the U.S. Supreme Court to overturn Bakke v. U. of California Board of Regents and for Texas Tech School of Law to institute whatever policies are necessary to increase the number of minorities at the law school.

The basic premise for the American judicial system is "Liberty and Justice for All." To obtain this goal it is necessary to acquire access to all the various legal mechanisms including the courts and the legislature. This access requires skilled minority lawyers.

Historically, the legal profession has been instrumental in establishing the social institutions of today. The legal profession, therefore, must be held responsible for leading the way in curing the defects.

Minorities are far from equal in this society, socially, politically or economically. Thereforms of the past decade made little inroad in the legacy of 400 years of discrimination: the median income of non-whites, for instance, is currently about 60 per cent of white income, virtually unchanged in over 20 years. Given this fundamental inequality, equal treatment of individuals according to the standards of white America leads to continued discrimination against third-world people. Economic, social, and educational disadvantages replace overt-racial classifications as means of perpetuating the inequitable status quo. "Equal protection of the law" now serves to prevent affirmative steps toward eliminating the effects of historic discrimination. This new form of discrimination is all the more insidious because it is cloaked behind a progressive sounding appeal for "equality."

We can not ignore the problems that the racial history of our country has left us. In order to continue on into the 21st century as a freedom loving democracy we must fulfill the mandate the Constitution prescribes—"Equal Justice for All". Anything less than equality will be disastrous. Any arguments or decisions made that result in less than equality in view of the historical overt discrimination and today's covert discrimination are in direct contradiction with the spirit and intent of the United States Constitution.

Sincerely,
Stephen C. McIntyre
17711 18th Street

Students recruit at area schools

By ANGEL BIASALTI
UD Staff

Tech is unique in having a organized group of 65 students recruit for Tech. Three admission counselors assist this group in recruiting students for Tech.

The 65 students will sell Tech at the small high schools within a 100 mile radius of Lubbock, because Tech's enrollment comes from small towns within a 100 miles of Lubbock, David Nail, assistant dean of students said.

Susan Hill, Kelly Cash, and Steve Campbell, admission counselors, recruit for Tech full-time. This is the first time Tech has had full-time recruiters. The admission counselors provide prospective students with pre-admission counseling and information about Tech.

Tech has three representatives compared to the University of Texas at Austin with seven representatives, Kelly Cash, admission counselor said.

The University of Texas at Austin office of admissions provides a major emphasis on minority recruitment.

Augustine Garza, UT-Austin admissions counselor said. The UT admissions office has a program called "Project Info" which hires students to help recruit minority high school students. Students also travel with admissions counselors, write letters and call prospective students who the counselors have met at college days, Garza said.

At Texas A&M University, usually the assistant and associate director of admissions travel to recruit, Daniel Hernandez, associate director of admissions said. A&M recruiters visit high schools scheduled by (TACRAO) Texas Association of Collegiate Registrars and Admissions Officers. Students only recruit on occasion when they are needed, Hernandez said.

At Austin College, full-time representatives live in different areas and recruit students, Admissions Counselor Susan Hill said.

At East Texas State University there is not an organized group of students that recruit, according to Ronny Barnes, former ET director of student financial aid and now financial aid director at Tech.

Tech has plenty of financial aid possibilities but not enough scholarships, the admissions counselors said. All universities give up to 1,152 scholarships to valedictorian students of one year free tuition, Barnes said, Tech Admissions Office and the Ex-Students Association sponsor the valedictorians at Tech.

Tech gives two other types of scholarships to entering freshmen. The University Scholars Scholarship, and the Texas Tech University Scholarship, Barnes said. In 1976-77 Tech scholarships were awarded to freshman because of entrance exam scores. Ten University Scholars Scholarships were given in 1976-77. This scholarship program gives students $1,000 for each of four years when a 3.0 grade point is earned the first year, and a 3.5 grade point average the other three years.

Texas A&M awards Opportunity Award Scholarships to 400 freshmen per year. This scholarship is unrestricted as to majors and degrees. And the student must maintain a standard of scholastic achievement and personal conduct satisfactory to the Faculty Scholarship Committee.

UT-Austin achievement committee for minority students gives more than 100 $1,000 scholarships for four years to minority students who are in the top quarter of their high school class, Garza said.

Tech gives scholarships of $500, $250, or $300 each year to minority students of black or Mexican-American descent, Barnes said.

Tech is not heavily specialized in one area but all six colleges are strong, Hill said. Tech is less expensive than other universities, Cash said. Tech costs approximately $2,400-$2,700 a year, Cash said. At UT-Austin, a year it costs approximately $3,200 according to the 1977 UT undergraduate catalog. A&M costs $1,930 a year for students not including books, according to the Texas A&M undergraduate catalog.

These amounts vary with arrangements for living at the university. The most expensive on-campus residence hall was used in compiling these figures.

Directories due for sale

Tech Directories will be on sale beginning Oct. 31. The directories are late this year because the printer had an overload of work, Women's Service Organization (WSO) member Margie Biehler said. WSO members will sell the directories 4:30-6:30 p.m. in dormitories. Directories will also be available in the University Center, Business Administration Building and Home Economics Building. The directories will cost $1.25. Information given in the directories is the name, Lubbock address, telephone number, classification, major and hometown of Tech students. Faculty, administration and department addresses and telephone numbers are also given in the directories.

The Freshman Directory will be distributed the first or second week in November.

Pictures of freshmen, their names and hometowns are given in the Freshman Directories.

Mystery mail mauler caught

HIRAM TOWNSHIP, Ohio (AP) — For the last several weeks, Wilbur Miller has been losing his mail. It hasn't been missing. It's just that when Miller has gone to his roadside mailbox, he's found his letters and envelopes torn in shreds. Finally he complained to the Portage county Sheriff's Department and the identity of the vandal was discovered.

It seems Miller's neighbor's pet crow observed the mailman making rounds and then swooped down on the box, adroitly tapped open the latch, chewed up the mail and flew away leaving no pawprints. Henry Dilley told Authorities he wasn't aware his pet was breaking a law by taking mail and promised to keep the lawbreaker in custody.

Tech Center offers varied services

By MARSANNA CLARK
UD Staff

The Tech Counseling Center offers students professional help and training to help them make the important decisions in their life and cope with the ever-changing environment.

The Counseling Center offers many different types of services including personal concerns, vocational-career development, academic concerns, growth experiences and testing programs.

The Tech Counseling Center is located at 212 West Hall, 742-3674; and is open from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m., Monday through Friday. All Tech students are eligible for the services at the counseling center.

The records at the counseling center are confidential and private. The records are destroyed after three years. All the information and interviews with the counselors are confidential.

Counseling records are not open to faculty committees or organization membership committees.

About 6,000 students come to the counseling center each year. Of those students approximately 1,000 students receive individual counseling.

The counseling and workshop groups are free. The only charges are for the speed reading courses or credit-by-examination.

The speed reading program is a 30 hour program which can be taken in the same schedule as normal academic courses. It usually doubles or triples a student's reading rate while maintaining or increasing his comprehension level. No academic credit is given for this course.

The center also offers a free Academic Rescue Squad program to teach study skills. The six hour mini-course deals with the most important skills needed for academic success.

One of the areas offered by the Counseling Center is career development! The center provides assistance in helping the student determine his ability, interests, values and personality. Students are welcome to examine occupational information which gives up-to-date material on different careers. The center can also refer a student to a faculty member that can explain a particular academic area.

The counseling center has a professional staff of counseling psychologists and doctoral students. Each of these counselors has received extensive training in counseling.

The center does not give medication to students. A referral to a physician will be made if medication appears necessary.

The center's aim is to help students solve their own problems, by helping them become aware of their feeling, goals and alternatives.

Organizations schedule Faculty Recognition Week

Faculty Recognition Week, this year sponsored by Omicron Delta Kappa, Mortar Board and the Student Senate, has been scheduled for Nov. 14-18.

Each day of the week, one teacher will be honored. Teachers will be recognized on the basis of overall leadership, personal and civic contributions, enthusiasm and continuous motivation.

Forms may be obtained from the Student Life office in 163 Administration Building and the student Association office in the University Center.

Forms will also be attached to posters in these buildings: Home Economics, Business Administration, Architecture, Agriculture, Foreign Language and Math, Electrical Engineering, Social Sciences, Biology and Mass Communications East.

All forms must be returned to the Student Life office by Nov. 3.

Chris Perkins, chairman for Faculty recognition Week, said that any individual can nominate any teacher.

Faculty Recognition Week will culminate Nov. 18 with reception in the University Center for those honored.

Honored last year during Faculty Recognition Week were Dr. Herschel Mann, Business Administration; Dr. Lorum stratton, spanish; Dr. Billy Marshall, physics; Dr. Beverly McGill, child development and Dr. William Huffman, chemical engineering.

'Beat Texas Bash' slated

A Beat Texas Bash sponsored by Delta Tau Delta will be Saturday, noon-7 p.m. at the Delta Tau Delta lot on Greek Circle.

Mike Mock, Rodney Allison, Bill Adams, B.T. Express, Curtis Reed and some of the Tech cheerleaders will make an appearance in the afternoon to put on a pep rally, Delta Tau Delta member Mark McClure said.

Trophies will be given to winners of the beer relay and tug-of-war of which losers will fall into a mud pit. Trophies also will be given to the man and woman winner of the arm wrestling contest. Free beer tickets will be given to winners of the sack race, balloon stomp and hot pepper eating contests.

Delta Tau Delta President Gorde Holmes will swallow a goldfish every hour.

There will be continuous music throughout the day, McClure said, and Ronnie Blakley, a progressive country western band, will play at 3 p.m.

Beer, Red Raider punch, nachos, hotdogs, t-shirts and Lone Star caps will be sold at the bash.

"The entire campus is invited to come have a good time and raise some Cain," McClure said.

By EDDIE GOLDBERG
 UD Entertainment Staff

The weekend is here, and for those who have nothing to do but watch television, I will try to give you some insight as to what to watch.

"Donnie and Marie" (ABC, 7 p.m.)—For those who enjoy getting nauseated on a Friday night, this is for you. I will admit that Marie used to be cute, but now that she's sophisticated she has lost her appeal. As far as Donnie is concerned, I would rather watch a two-hour collection of Elvis Presley memorabilia ads than see five minutes of Donnie Osmond waltzing his way into my stomach, and making my stomach turn.

"Wonder Woman" (CBS, 7 p.m.)—The question here is deciding whether seeing Linda Carter in her Wonder Woman costume is worth watching the corny plot that goes along with it. I'm sure the corniness of the show is intended by the writers, but what I ask is: Does it belong at 7 on a Friday night or 10 on Saturday morning?

"Sanford Arms" (NBC, 7 p.m.)—If you take the "Sanford and Son" set and all the people in it, except for Redd Foxx and Demond Wilson, you have "Sanford Arms." The only other change is that Fred Sanford's cousin is running the Sanford Arms. If you watch the show, it may seem familiar to you because it's about a black widower trying to raise his family all by himself with interfering relatives. It's been done with every minority in America, and recently done in white on "Eight is Enough" when the wife died.

"Chico and the Man" (NBC, 7:30 p.m.)—Apparently the producers didn't feel like the death of the show's main character was reason enough to cancel it, so they brought in a replacement for Chico, Raoul (played by Gavriel Melgar), and had good old Ed Brown adopt him. The original "Chico and the Man" was bad, but this one is insane. I don't understand why it's still around. It is supposed to be a comedy, but the writers must have felt that humor shouldn't be interjected in the show. I get this impression simply because nothing in the show is funny.

"Logan's Run" (CBS, 9 p.m.)—The television show is supposed to be a spin-off of the movie with Logan searching for his paradise. There are, though, certain changes that make the show different from the movie: such as the introduction of more enemies and new means of transportation. Other than that, the show is senseless, and should be off the air by Thanksgiving.

"The Bionic Woman" (NBC, 7 p.m., Saturday)—I've got it on the sly that the next episode of this show is about a cockroach that accidentally becomes bionic and takes over Stangle-Murdough cafeteria. The ending of the story, though is obvious. Lyndsey Waggoner gives it a bionic stomp with her bionic foot. Come on NBC, I think we deserve better. This one should be following "Wonder Woman" on Saturday morning.

"Fish" (ABC, 7 p.m.)—airs at the same time as "Bionic Woman". At first it was different to see this kind of character portrayed, but just how much enjoyment are we supposed to get from a grumpy old man who is constantly constipated.

"On Our Own" (CBS, 7:30 p.m.)—This is a show about two unbelievably innocent girls in the advertising business. The show is far from realistic. The word that would classify it better is stupid. It does, however, have potential if the girls get a little less cute and stop overacting.

"All in the Family" (CBS, 8 p.m.)—How can a show stay on for 7 years and not go one inch down hill? The progress that has been made since the show was conceived, was natural and honest. The characters have developed in that time span. Archie Bunker may have changed, but it was a slow, natural change that a normal person makes, not an overnight change after 50 years of acting a certain way, like some shows try to make us believe. If you saw the show last week, you saw one of the most superlative acting jobs ever broadcast on television. The realism in this show makes for the peak of Norman Lear's career. "All in the Family" is what television was meant to be.

Raoul and the Man
 Gabriel Melgar plays Raoul, Chico's replacement, in "Chico and the Man." The NBC program is broadcast at 7:30 p.m. Fridays. Jack Albertson and comedian Franklin Ajaye also star in the show.

Top singles reflect fading summer

By ANA MORALES and KEVIN PHINNEY

UD Entertainment Writers
Summer's waning days are often reflected in the tunes which haunt the Top Ten. These are songs from which memories of the season (that is, night-long parties, heavy dates, etc.) are preserved.

Songs like "Dreams" by Fleetwood Mac, "I'm Your Boogie Man" by KC and The Sunshine Band and Rita Coolidge's abominable "Higher and Higher" have dulled listeners' senses all summer long. Mercifully, most of them have dissipated into the vaults of "oldies," which are our mainstay.

Now we have a whole new crop (or is it crock?) of potential heartbreakers waiting to find a comfortable spot near a recently acquired Elvis collection. Here are the singles that will soon serve only as reminders of Fall '77.

"You Light Up My Life," by Debbie Boone (Warner Bros.) — Pat's daughter does a passable Linda Ronstadt impression on a recently released movie's title song. Reports from the women's dorms affirm that this is, indeed, the Number One song in the nation.

"Nobody Does It Better," by Carly Simon (Elektra) — A great song, with a fabulous vocal by Simon. "Nobody" was written by Carole Bayer Sager, who also wrote Leo Sayer's "When I Need You." A real contest seems to be developing here: To see if the soundtrack from "The Spy

Who Loved Me" will do better than the movie itself.

"That's Rock and Roll," by Shaun Cassidy (Warner Bros.) — Okay, so we're supposed to hate this one, but the fun is so infectious, and the melody is so catchy, that, not unlike KC, you like it in spite of yourself. That's rock and roll.

"Keep It Comin' Love," by KC and the Sunshine Band (TK) — This is possibly the most heard song of the year by the undisputed masters of the 4-4 beat. The song is much better in its entirety, with "I'm Your Boogie Man," but this way the record company manages to spread a little KC a long way, and clean up in the big bucks department at the same time.

"Boogie Nights," by Heat Wave (Epic) — Lubbock was one of the first radio markets to feature this nifty ditty, and sadly enough, the tune is still moving. A good, danceable beat, but quite monotonous.

"Cold as Ice," by Foreigner (Atlantic) — This is a follow-up to one of the summer's biggies, "Feels Like The First Time." It's not the inspired number its predecessor was, most bands would give their drumsticks for two hit singles off the same L.P. Nice job, guys.

"Brick House," by the Commodores (Motown) — Doing a 45 degree (or should it be rpm?) turn from "Easy," the Commodores return to the style of "Slippery When It's Wet" and "Fancy Dancer," which sends them to the dance floor every time. Not quite knowing why, this number is reminiscent of the Ohio Players. (The clue may lie in the enunciation of "house.")

"I Feel Love," By Donna Summer (Casablanca) — Bass-heavy synthesizers characterize this single, which comes in two versions. The first is the regulation three-and-one-half minute version, and the second is almost 20 minutes in length. Because of the redundancies of the melody and instrumental lines, the number is bound to become a bore sooner or later. For the time being, though, "I Feel Love" makes one itch with the urge to dance.

"Star Wars," by Meco (Melleni). Aside from the fact that this is an outrageous (exploitation of a grandiose soundtrack the musicianship really can't be faulted. Trivia fans will note that Lou soloff (formerly of Blood, Sweat and Tears) plays lead trumpet. Stereo freaks will enjoy the sounds of blaster fire being exchanged between the speakers. The song is as fun as the film.

"Swaying to the Music (Slow Dancing)" by Johnny Rivers (Big Tree) — Ana's sister's cat, Grey, likes this song, evidenced by the cat's docility when the song is aired. The therapeutic value of the song ends there, though. It does not cure corns, or even make lunch. Musically, "Swaying" is best appreciated in soft lighting with a person of the opposite sex. Rivers is definitely mellowing in his old age.

To be blunt, there have been better Top Ten's, but this week's is passable. If you're into discos or movies, then more than likely these selections are palatable. As for the remainder of the musical public, remember your stereo sounds better than any AM radio on any given day.

Gino Vanelli

Singing sensation Gino Vanelli will appear in the Memorial Civic Center Oct. 28 at 8 p.m. tickets for Vanelli's performance are $6 and $7. All seats are reserved. Tickets are available at B&B Music, Al's Music Machine and the Main St. Saloon. The concert is being sponsored by Main St. Productions.

Printmaker slates silk-screening demo

Thomas Seawell, internationally known printmaker and artist, will be here today to demonstrate his methods of silk-screening.

Demonstrations of silkscreening are at 10 a.m. in the art department print lab. Seawell is a professor of art at the State University of New York at Oswego. He received his bachelor of fine arts from the St. Louis School of Fine Arts and his master of fine arts from Texas Christian University.

Seawell was selected to appear in "Who's Who of American Art" and "40 Years of American Printmaking." His work has been displayed by the Smithsonian Institute, the Pushkin Museum of Art, the British Museum, and the Library of Congress. The demonstrations are free to the public.

Chuck hiding the facts

Contrary to what Chuck McDonald put in his column this week, I never called him any names for choosing his buddy Keith Mulkey as guest forecaster.

I did put his typewriter up for sale and instructed the printer to remove his name from the staff box—I never called him a name.

During the past week, I have listened to the self-righteous Mulkey brag about having the best record (9-1) of any guest forecaster this year. Still, the question is, what does he have to do with Tech athletics? UDer linebacker is a pretty weak connection.

Chuck failed to reveal to readers his recent conduct. Reports have been filtering back to me that when asked to mention the Texas Bash by the Delts, he asked if there was any free beer involved in the deal. The man is trying to make a profit from his writing—a real freelancer.

Mulkey did manage to spot the best ever for a guest forecaster. This week we have a legitimate forecaster, Charles Hardwick, Vice President for Academic Affairs.

Chuck had an angle on this pick too. According to Chuck, Hardwick has three very lovely daughters. One is married, but Chuck said Kay and Karen are still available. Chuck's comment, "How's that for credibility?"

You ask, does Chuck McDonald enjoy losing? No, but there is something about remaining last that appeals to him. Chuck came through with his typical 6-4 to firmly entrench himself at the rear again.

After posting a semi-humiliating 3-7 the week before, I was able to post a second-best 8-2 this week. I remain within striking distance of first place. Fourth place is where I will remain, it seems I have a destiny.

That wraps it up. Next week, the results. In an unrelated matter, I am receiving flack from my brother (B.C. Skrehart) and his lovely wife Kathy (a Tech ADPI). In the trivia column last week a question asked why anyone would want to play football for TCU. My brother graduated from TCU and is one of those people who actually goes to the TCU games and even cheers. His wife Kathy still supports Tech but has become a Frog supporter too. The point: everything they have mailed to me this week has been addressed "From the home of the fightin' Frogs".

Harriers face Kenyans in Tech meet

With hopes of upending its foreign rivals from West Texas State in the final of a three-meet series, Tech will host its annual invitational cross country meet at Mackenzie Park Saturday at 11:45 a.m.

In the two meetings between Tech and West Texas State this season the series is tied. Tech took the opening meet at Wayland Baptist by a single point, but West Texas State rebounded with a decisive 28-point victory at its own invitational last Saturday in canyon.

The five-mile race over the hilly Mackenzie Park course will be an international clash between the native texans of Tech against the foreign contingent of West Texas State. The Raiders will run its varsity squad of Texans Marc Johnson, Ricky McCormick, Greg Lautenslager, Randy Yates, Robert Wilson, Richard Postma, and Tony Lozana.

West Texas State's squad will include Kenyans Joseph Kemei, John Chemarango, Gabriel Boit, Joseph Barno, and Canadian Tim Dale.

Heavily favored to capture individual honors is West Texas State's 4:01 miler Kemei, who has not lost a cross country race this season. Despite the credentials of Kemei, the team battle appears much tighter as the Raider harriers Lautenslager, McCormick, Johnson, and Wilson capable of crashing into the top seven places.

This year's Tech Invitational will include six races with four high school races, a junior college race, and the university race. The first race will begin at 10 a.m. with the university finale set for 11:45.

Besides Tech and West Texas State, the university race will include Wayland Baptist, Lubbock Christian, Angelo state, and Eastern New Mexico.

'After long and tedious research,' forecaster makes picks

Last week, after long and tedious research, I got back to my winning ways going a respectable 9-1 to tie guest forecaster (and tight buddy) Keith Mulkey. This week, however, is much, much tougher.

As my editor Jay Rosser told me, "This is the week that will separate the men from the boys." Jay didn't exactly coin the phrase but with classic battles such as Southern Cal at Notre Dame, Colorado at Nebraska and others on tap this weekend, I would have to agree...even with Jay.

One note before I get into my fearless prognosticating: the sports staff extends an apology to the Tech football trainers and managers.

Sorry, we were unable to include your annual "Toilet Bowl" game Sunday in Friday's Fearless—frankly I'm surprised Chuck McDonald didn't include it.

But, I guess he's more than a little intimidated by this week's guest forecaster—Dr. Charles Hardwick, vice-president for academic affairs. (How's that political science class coming along anyway, Chuck?)

As I'm currently tied with Jay for first place, I'm going to go for all the gusto I can grab for this week. After a few secret phone calls and such, this week's predictions are:

AIR FORCE ACADEMY at BAYLOR — Freshman QB Scott Smith is now guiding the Bear attack since Sammy Bickham went out for the year with multiple injuries. The Bears currently are holding a 2-4 win-loss mark, but five of the six opponents played in post-season bowls last year, Tech included of course. The Falcons are currently 1-4-1, and the competition has not been nearly as rough as Baylor's. Choice—Baylor by 21.

TEXAS A&M at RICE — The Aggies are still led by the running tandem of George Woodard (105.0 yards per game) and Curtis Dickey Rice is still ranked last in the SWC in both total offense and total defense. Frosh QB Randy Hertel, however, looks to be a dandy for the future if he doesn't become too disenchanted with his Owl cohorts. Choice—A&M by 45.

TEXAS at SMU — Both teams scored late for big victories last week, Texas in a 13-9 victory over Arkansas, and SMU with 20 points in the final 39 seconds for a 37-23 victory over defending Cotton bowl champ Houston. Earl Campbell, who is the nation's No. 3 rusher at 137 yards per game, leads the strong UT offense, while tackle Brad Sherer leads a young defense that has yet to allow a TD.

SMU QB Mike Ford is questionable for the game with multiple injuries. The No. 2 ranked Longhorns (5-0) have too much strength, speed and bench power for the green but much improving Ponies (3-3). Choice—Texas by 21.

MIAMI at TCU — The Froggies have had an extra week to reflect on their first win in 15 games, a 35-15 whopping of Rice. While the frogs will try to extend their winning streak, the Hurricanes have a streak of their own to protect. After losing their first two, the Hurricanes have rolled off three consecutive victories. They shouldn't have too much trouble extending it to four. Choice—Miami by 20.

HOUSTON at ARKANSAS — Both teams lost tough ones, however the Razorbacks (4-1) dropped a tight one to highly ranked Texas, while the Cougars (3-2) were surprised by SMU. The key in the game lies in the arm of Hog QB Ron Calcagni. If Calcagni, who according to Head coach Lou Holtz has improved immensely in his throwing, can get any type of a passing attack going against the Cougars, the Hogs could win convincingly.

Cougar QB Delrick Brown is no slouch for the Cougars though. Brown does, however, tend to rely on split end Don Ball a little too much. Scouting reports reveal that when Bass is covered, Brown has a tendency to tighten up and hesitate when trying to pick up a secondary receiver. This is a problem Brown and the Cougars must solve if they are to retain a good chance of defeating the Hogs. Choice—Arkansas by 3.

USC at NOTRE DAME — This nationally televised game pits the fourth-ranked Trojans (5-1) against the tenth ranked Fighting Irish (4-1). Notre Dame has not looked as impressive this year as some had expected, but the Irish will unveil a new look in this game. For starters, they have installed the "I" formation very similar to USC's, in the past two weeks. They also have a new backfield, one that has been moving the ball with much more proficiency than the previous one. There is a new QB, Joe Montana, and a new tailback, Jerome Heavens. Montana was the hero of the 31-24 comeback victory over Purdue, as he came off the bench and completed nine of 14 passes leading to 17 points—all in the fourth quarter. Montana has started ever since. Heavens is another Cinderella story, as he rushed for an Irish record of 200 yards last week. Heavens missed all of last year with a serious knee injury.

On the Trojan side of the ledger, they have posted a 7-1-2 mark against the Irish in the past 10 years. With QB Rob Hertel and tailback Charles White in the backfield, the Trojans have a very potent and balanced offensive attack. The USC defense is strong too. They have not been scored upon in the first half this year. (Notre Dame has not scored in the first quarter)....The key to the game is "containment", according to Head coach Dan Devine. If the Irish can contain USC's attack allowing no breakaway runs or bombs, they stand a very good chance of upsetting the favored Trojans.

Additional Note: QB Hertel has never played before the raucous Notre Dame fans—that is an Irish advantage. Call this my upset pick of the week. Choice—Notre Dame by 2.

COLORADO at NEBRASKA — This game is another one that could go either way. On a hunch, I feel that Nebraska which is always tough at home will bounce back from last week's stunning loss to Iowa State and upset the Buffaloes. In fact, it is quite possible (although Nebraska officials would not admit it) that the cornhuskers were looking ahead to this key Big eight game. Look for I.M. Hipp, the Nebraska walk-on sensation, to run wild in this game. Choice—Nebraska by 1.

CALIFORNIA at UCLA — Starting Bear QB Charlie Young is back on the track, and if the 14th ranked Bears can slow down Bruin runningback Theotic Brown, they should win. Brown in recent weeks has been hampered by an elbow injury. Choice—California by 3.

HOUSTON at PITTSBURGH — Sorry, not this week either, Oiler fans. choice—Pittsburgh by 7.

LOS ANGELES at MINNESOTA — Neither team has looked all that impressive, but the Rams have looked worse. Besides Fran Tarkenton is a distinct advantage to a team when the game is close, as was witnessed by the overtime victory over the Bears last week. Choice—Vikings by 3.

Volleyballers defeat WTSU

Tech volleyball team brought its season record to 26-10 with another win over West Texas State Thursday night in Canyon. Although this was Tech's fourth defeat of the Buffs this season, it was a much closer match.

The Raiders pulled the first game out 15-13, but WTSU came back with a 13-15 victory in the second game to even up the match. The third and fourth games (playing best 3 out of 5) though, belonged to Tech as they finished off a little stronger 15-11 and 15-7.

Wilbert Cunningham: His mother his biggest booster

Cunningham

By BETSY MCGILL
UD Sports Staff

"My mother—they could put her in a uniform and I believe she could be put on a team and she could go," says Wilbert "Booker" Cunningham. "She encourages me all through football. She's one of my head coaches."

The 6-3 senior offensive tackle plays behind All-America candidate Dan Irons. "We sort of split time—he'll play a series—I'll play a series," Cunningham said.

AFTER A SERIOUS knee injury his senior year at Ball High school in Galveston, Cunningham almost decided to throw in the proverbial towel. "It was the last game of the season," he remembers. "It was homecoming and the last day of practice. We were going to scrimmage the junior varsity, and the coach always wondered if I could play offensive tackle. So they decided to put me in there."

"That day they handed the ball to a back and he ran in there with his head down and hit me in the side of the knee and tore the ligaments. It was homecoming. I was a senior and I was just laying in the hospital. I couldn't believe it."

BUT CUNNINGHAM bounced back—if you can bounce back wearing a waist-high cast for nine weeks. While in the hospital he told himself, "This is it—I'm not going to play anymore football."

But one of his coaches, Mike Ellis, gave him encouragement. "He acted like I'd be up and walking any minute," Cunningham said. His mother probably helped out too. After all, if she couldn't be in on the football action herself she would at least have a son who could.

Or maybe two sons.

WHEN CUNNINGHAM was a sophomore on the varsity team in high school, his brother, then a senior, was a teammate. Cunningham admits he was a little cocky, and his brother helped him put the game into the right perspective.

On the first play of a scrimmage the offense ran a trap.

"I was just standing there," Cunningham says, "waiting for the back. About that time a guard came across, hit me in the chest and knocked the wind out of me."

"I didn't want anybody else to know I was hurt," he said. "I think the only person in the huddle that knew was my brother. He just kind of looked over at me and sort of smiled. The rest of the game I settled down."

TECH COULD HAVE lost Cunningham to the mountains of Colorado. He almost signed with the Buffaloes the minute he stepped off the plane. But he decided to look around, and chose Tech because, "here, they talked to me like I was a human being and not like somebody at a livestock market." He compares other schools' recruiting practices to someone trying to buy a side of beef.

"When I got up here," Cunningham said, "one of the coaches on the staff talked to me about the campus and the atmosphere out here. He talked to me as a person. Everywhere else I was going it was always just a big sales pitch."

Cunningham rarely played offense in high school, and when he was placed on offense at Tech he accepted the position admirably.

"WHEN I CAME UP here I knew I wasn't as quick as I was before my knee operation," he said, "so they put me on offensive tackle, and I've played that ever since."

"I kind of figured I probably wouldn't get the chance to play defense again, so it's just like looking for another job. It's worked out all right."

Cunningham considers his parents a real inspiration. They got a big kick out of going to all his games in high school. "When you leave home a lot of people say 'I'll never go back there.' But I'm always glad to get the chance to go back home to see my folks. I can count the times on my hands and feet that I've been able to see them since I've been up here."

"I guess I'm just like everybody else—I think I have the greatest parents in the world. I'm really serious about that point."

Cunningham doesn't like to talk much about past records or football accomplishments. He enjoys the game and that's enough for him. All that doesn't matter when you get to college anyway, he says. You're just like everybody else.

BEFORE HOME games he sits around his apartment and turns his music up—Average White Band—Barry White. Music is important to this offensive tackle. He looks around at the pictures on the wall. He likes to be in familiar surroundings. When the team travels he turns his music down and lets it mellow him out.

Cunningham stays calm before the games. "I think there are very few things that really excite me," he says. "I've never been nervous before a game."

Fem golfers in Houston

The Raider women golfers travel to Houston this weekend for a tough tournament at Houston Baptist University.

Coach Jay McClure said the tournament should be a good learning experience for his golfers.

"Well, we're not too sharp yet," McClure said, "but this tournament should give us some good experience. SMU will be there, and they'll be real tough. also, the University of Miami, who are the national champions, will be there."

The 16-team tournament begins Monday. McClure said Kerri Kranz, Jane Gray, Debbie Lamont, Liz Remy and Patti Johnson will represent Tech in the tourney.

Professional boxing tonight

Professional boxers will fight at the Fair Park Coliseum Saturday at 8 p.m. featuring such fighters as featherweight James Martinez, ranked fourth in world and heavyweight Nick Wells, ranked 16th in world. The charge for the six fights will be $4 for general admission and $3 for those with Tech IDs.
