La Ventana awards

Tech's 1981 La Ventana placed first in national competition for university yearbooks from Saturday's annual meeting of the Rocky Mountain College Press Association in Colorado Springs.

The RMCPAExecutive Director Jeff Henderson, Colorado Springs, Colo.

The Tech design will now go into production for the U.S. Senate in 1982. When asked whether he would accept a vice presidential nomination, he said he would accept no position in the non-Hispanic community.

A Tech experimental solar project will provide electricity identical to the electricity produced by the utility. Marcy said the cost per kilowatt-hour of energy produced will be less than that of conventional energy sources. The project is totally false. Apodaca said.

EXPERIMENTAL PROJECT

The system would use 100 modules from the Department of Energy to complete the solar power system. The system would produce 500 watts of energy per hour. The system would be designed to provide electricity to the University of New Mexico. The project is expected to provide energy to the University of New Mexico for at least 10 years.

Sell and lease

To the editor:

On April 20 the Anwar Sadat signed a lease to sell Israel. The Egyptian historic cheap in the market to the Americans. Anwar Sadat gave up the lease to the United States for $1 billion.

Mr. Haidinyak, I just want to tell you some facts. In the United States of America, there are three important facts about the sale of the lease of land to the United States. First, Israel doesn't have the right to sell land to the United States. Second, the lease of land to Israel is illegal under international law. Finally, the U.S. government should not support Israel by selling them land.

Sincerely,

Challange for seniors

Gary Skreth

You could be doing the phone. Or you could have the roommate not call. And you might miss a chance to make a commitment to tech's future. The Tech student foundation members will be calling seniors who have an interest to think about the future of Tech. The money will be used for freshman orientation, academic recruiting, and recreational sports. All are important to attract and retaining students. Attractive good students is essential to the reputation of the university and the image of Texas Tech.

University's students are not the most affluent, but the most affluent segment of the general population. There are many ways to spend $7. But $7 in this case is an investment in the future of Tech.

Junction academic director dies

Robert L. Packard, director of the Tech Texas University Center at Junction for the last 11 years and director of academic programs for five years prior to that, died at University Hospital at 11 p.m. Sunday after a lengthy illness.

Even before Packard became director of academic programs at the center, he taught classes in the biological center at Junction for the last 11 years during summer sessions. Federal services were held at the First United Methodist Church in Lockhart at 2 p.m. Wednesday with Rev. Wade Griffin, associate pastor, officiating. Survivors include his wife, and a son, Joey Seelig, of Conroe, his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Wayne L. Packard of Lufkin, and his grandmother, Mrs. Julian L. Packard, also of Lufkin.

A memorial fund will be established in memory of Packard in France scholarship.

Housing office accepting dormitory applications

Students wishing to live on campus should reserve room spaces now, according to Housing. The Housing Office at Tech expects all residence halls to be full by fall.

Students who want to live on campus next fall but have not yet accepted housing are urged to contact the Housing Office at Tech this week.

Applications for housing from prospective students have been accepted since October, but rooms will not be assigned until dormitory residents move in.

Students unable to reserve a room for the fall semester may apply for housing in the Housing Office Office. Housing will send students of openings as they come from cancellations. If there are cancellations within 24 hours of the beginning of the semester, temporary housing will be provided for the students.

For summer housing on campus, students currently living in the Manhattan-McKinney residence halls may apply for housing in the Housing Office any time April 10 to lock their rooms for the summer sessions. All other students interested in living on campus this summer may apply up to April 20. They will be able to reserve rooms April 25 - May 1, except those invited by members, to attend appropriations and finance committee meetings only on their request.

By the time students receive their residence halls, scholarships are offered along with many other opportunities to demonstrate them. Can any

AUSTRALIAN committee finishes appropriation bill

AUSTIN (AP) — The House Appropriations Committee completed work Monday on a $31 billion state budget bill that has about $17 billion for tax cuts or other spending.

"That finishes the bill," committee chairman Bill Priest, D-Dallas, said at the end of "mark-up" hearings Monday. The appropriations committee will hold one more "mark-up" hearing Tuesday before sending the bill to the full "mark-up" committee.

That remained a formal vote to send the 1980-81 appropriation bill to the House floor, the committee and finance committee meetings only on their request.

70 years of music made in one program

By Ibbie Grant

LUBBOCK, TEXAS

The John Biggs Consort, an ensemble of vocal and instrumental music, celebrates its 70th anniversary this week with a special program at the Lubbock Civic Center. It is a landmark event for the ensemble, which was founded in 1948 as the John Biggs String Ensemble.

The program features works by some of the most significant composers of the 20th century, including Maurice Ravel, Claude Debussy, and Dmitri Shostakovich. The concert will also include performances by the Lubbock Civic Ballet, which has been working closely with the John Biggs Consort on several occasions.

The John Biggs Consort is known for its innovative programming and has performed in nearly every state in the nation. The group has also toured internationally, bringing its unique musical style to audiences around the world.

The John Biggs Consort's May 11 program at the Lubbock Civic Center will be an unforgettable night of music and performance, celebrating 70 years of artistic excellence in Lubbock.
Selby considers one switch enough

JOHN MARK BLAIR
USC Staff Writer

PROFILE—LARRY SELBY

Former USC baseball player and current USC baseball coach, Larry Selby, has been influential in the program's success. He is known for his strong leadership on and off the field. Selby was a standout player in college and has served as a mentor to many young athletes.

Don't think about what you're going to say. Play the game. Think about the people you're playing against. That's what it's all about. The game is a battle. You can't just sit there and think about what you're going to say. You have to play the game and think about the people you're playing against. That's what it's all about.

Selby's coaching style is known for its intensity and focus. He believes in teaching his players the importance of consistency and preparation. Selby has been able to motivate his team and lead them to success.

But do not expect Larry Selby to change his coaching style. He believes in his methods and is committed to his team's success. Selby's passion for the game and his dedication to his players make him a respected figure in the world of college baseball.

The USC baseball team will be looking to make a strong showing in the upcoming season. With Larry Selby leading the way, the team is sure to be a force to be reckoned with.

Broadway game. The 76ers star averaged 28.6 points a game in the 1977-78 season.

By CARL DEOL, AP Sports Writer

But at Dollas, it was a much different story.

The Sixers, who once were 25-25, were now 22-53. And von Oelhoffen, a guard who had played only one game in the previous seven, was averaging 6.2 points.

"He became a bigger influence as the season progressed," von Oelhoffen said. "I think that was the key to the whole season for us.

Dollas was starting to run its offense at full speed, and our defense was improving. We were getting the effort we needed. We were playing like a team for the first time.

"It was a new experience for us. We were playing as a team instead of just a collection of players. We were starting to believe in ourselves and each other."

Von Oelhoffen's success helped the 76ers finish 22-53. The team's top scorer and leading rebounder, Julius Erving, was unable to play because of a knee injury. But von Oelhoffen's presence allowed the 76ers to continue to improve.

"We were able to get him the ball and he could take over the game," said start guard

Herb Williams, who averaged 11.8 points a game. "He got the ball in his hands and he could score. We were able to move the ball around and get him the ball in the right spots.

"He was able to get us back in the game and keep us in it."
