Ad valorem tax may be replaced by alternative building fund

By KELLY COGBRANT

The Texas Tech University Board of Regents has approved a budget plan that would replace the ad valorem tax with an alternative building fund.

The ad valorem tax was reduced in 1981 as a result of the recession and the state property tax was increased.

The alternative building fund, which is designed to provide long-term financial stability for the university, has been scheduled to be phased in over the next several years.

The alternative building fund would be funded by the sale of bonds issued by the university. The bonds would be sold to investors who would then use the proceeds to pay for the construction and repair of university buildings.

The alternative building fund would also be used to fund the university's endowment fund.

City divides over school bond issue

The Lubbock City Council has divided over the issue of approving a $15 million bond issue to fund the construction of new schools.

Some council members believe the bond issue is necessary to address the city's growing population and to provide adequate facilities for the city's children.

Other council members believe the bond issue is unnecessary and that the city should rely on existing tax dollars to fund these needs.

The council is scheduled to vote on the issue at its next meeting.

Antinuclear movement sprouting as anger blossoms

Kippe Hopper

Movement — 2. a series of organized activities directed toward an objective; also, an organized effort to promote or attain an end.

War.

The threat of nuclear war is the issue of the 1980s. And antinuclear movement is rising from an angry crowd that refuses to be appeased about the mushrooming nuclear race.

During the 1960s and early 1970s, the Vietnam War was the issue of a generation that refused to be about a war waged by government bureaucracy.

Today Americans are led to believe, again by government propaganda, that the nuclear arms buildup is beneficial to the United States. The nuclear arms buildup has only one end result: War.

The peace demonstrators in both the anti-nuclear movement and the antinuclear movement have been labeled "Un-American," troublesome elements of "Communism" because they have refused to support the theory of America's man-made disaster.

The participants in the antinuclear movement still cry for peace and the right to a future. The antinuclear participants extend the right to a future to all people — whether they be American, Soviet, or other.

Less than a decade after American troops were pulled out of Vietnam, the voice of hind drance and uneventful columns have entertained and criticized. The criticism of the antinuclear movement is beginning to be heard, the anger is growing in the bush.

Democrats to be in a position necessary for political participation by and bilingual assistance at the polls.

"Stop passing the buck," speaker tells president

WASHINGTON (AP) - House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill Jr. demanded Tuesday that President Reagan "stop passing the buck" and agree to change his political program so a budget compromise can be worked out.

But as negotiations between the White House and Congress resumed private talks later in the day, Republicans and Democrats, O'Neill included, held out little hope for agreement.

"At this point I don't know what you can do," O'Neill, D-Mass., told reporters. "Reagan refuses to admit there are any failures in the program he brought forth."

O'Neill's comments appeared to be part of an effort by the White House and Democrats to be in a position to blame each other if the talks failed.

Bilingual elections supported

SAN ANTONIO (AP) - A study conducted in East Los Angeles, San Antonio and Dallas, Texas, shows that bilingual elections are necessary for political participation by children of Mexican ancestry who voted in the most recent election in East Los Angeles, San Antonio and Dallas, Texas.

The Mexican-American Legal Defense and Education Fund said the study showed that children of Mexican ancestry who voted in the most recent election in East Los Angeles, San Antonio and Dallas, Texas, might have a better understanding of the election process than children of other races.

The study was based on interviews with 150 children of Mexican ancestry who voted in the most recent election in East Los Angeles, San Antonio and Dallas, Texas.

"Bilingual elections have positive social and practical importance, especially for young and elderly citizens," Spanish language assistance in the election process is seen as a vital part of the bilingual education offered by the state," said Mary Elliott, director of Political Access to the White House.

"The study also showed that "bilingual elections can have an effect on voter turnout," said Elliott. "There is a strong correlation between bilingual education and voter turnout."

"The accident was a tragic loss for the community," said Elliott.

Attacks on home "for the birds"

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) - Alfred Hitchcock's movie "The Birds" has been turned into a reality in Indiana.

The state's Department of Natural Resources has received a report of two birds that attacked a home in the town of Westport.

The birds were reportedly seen flying around the house, but they are not considered a threat to humans.

"The birds were not aggressive," said Mary Elliott, director of Political Access to the White House.

"They are just a nuisance," said Elliott.

Women star in rare play

By KATIE WATSON
UH Entertainment Writer

The department of theatre arts will present its final show this weekend in the Lab Theatre. "Stepping Stones," written and directed by Barbara Fierstein, opens Friday, April 9, at 8 p.m., and continues Saturday and Sunday, May 1.

"Stepping Stones" is a play about five close friends who remain together for years after their graduation from a prestigious eastern women's school. Through a series of flashbacks, they examine the difficulties they continue to cope with - some funny, some brutally cynical - which helped to shape their lives.

The story is told from the perspective of Holly Park. The Jam will feature host Joe Ely and an Aberdeen-based band The Planets. Doors open at 7:30 p.m.

The show will rad the characters' lives.

Lifting off

Abilene-based band The Planets will kick off Saturday's Tornado Jam at noon at Buddy Holly Park. The Jam will feature host Joe Ely and special guest Linda Ronstadt, Joan Armatrading and the Blackhearts and Leon Russell. Tickets are $5 and are available at all locations of A&M Machine, B&M Music and Flipside Records.

After more than a week of playoffs only the best remained. The next stop was to our iconic lawn which houses one of every possible being crowed All-University champions.

In the Men’s competition, Sigma Phi Epsilon and Missing Pub battled their way through the draw as an underdog to the finals. Missing Pub pitcher Jimmy Harmon missed the plate three times to help his own cause, but it wasn ‘t quite enough.

The Women’s final proved to be a little anticlimactic as Big Staff routed the Warriors 9-0. Big Staff pitcher Christine noverman baffled the Walters bats. Neoverman fired a two-atter on her way to the shutdown win and her teammates played sparkling defense to thwart any hope the Walla Walla bats.

In the bottom of the first inning Big Staff scored three runs, thanks to Green McCory’s two R.B.I.’s, and they were well on their way to the championship. Neoverman helped herself with three hits and Carolyn Tabu scored a pair of runs and added three hits of her own to pave the winners.

The winners scored five runs in the first inning, three in the second and six in the third on their way to the title. The pace was simply too deep for the Phi Delta IC’s Phi IC.
