

Race For Individual Track Honors Is Five-Way Scramble

Harold Davis

Label of top college track man of the year is likely to be pinned on one of these five men. California's Harold Davis and Barney Ewell of Penn State will battle for sprint honors; Ohio State's Bob Wright seeks a double victory in the hurdles; Al Bloss of Georgetown has his eye on the shot-put and discus marks and Les MacMittell, N.Y.U. mile king, may be pushed to a new record.

Les MacMittell

Barney Ewell

By JERRY BRONFIELD
Wide World Features Writer

“EAT IT UP AND WEAT IT UP” was the motto of the meeting, and begging Mr. Kipling's pardon but he wasn't entirely right about them meeting.

Mostly, it is assumed, because he couldn't foresee a couple of human rockets like California's Harold Davis and Penn State's Barney Ewell dashing off 100 yards in faster time than he could dash off a compound sentence.

And, as matters stand, the California Comet and the ebony flash from the Nittany Hills figure to battle it out for the label of No. 1 track star of the year. Capable of 9.5 for the 100 and a fraction under 21 for the 220, either has what it takes to knock off both sprint titles at the national collegiates this spring.

Ewell may even turn out to be the first triple winner since James Owens. Now that Billy Brown of Louisiana State has passed from the collegiate ranks the Penn State jumper looms as the best broad-jumper the campuses can produce. He can better 24 feet every time out.

Wright Is Right

This is not to say that it's to be strictly a two-way battle for individual honors because there are at least three others who must be given a good chance of scoring either double victories or setting new world marks in their specialty.

Bob Wright, Ohio State's lanky hurdle star — a double winner last year as a sophomore—gives every indication of repeating. Latest in a long line of great Buckeye hurdlers which includes Larry Snyder, Phil Guthrie, and Jack Keller, Wright threatens to break 14-flat in the highs this year.

He gave up his Drake Relays crown recently when he hit a hurdle and was forced to drop out but he suffered no injury. Georgetown's giant Al Bloss, now shooting for 88 feet, is a shoe-in to retain his shot-put crown, and in addition may add the discus title. He reportedly has been doing close to 170 feet in practice.

MacMittell Needs Push

Leslie MacMittell, N. Y. U.'s smooth-striding mile king, doesn't need a double victory. He can hit the heights by turning in a new world mark, something that is far from far-fetched. Given good weather, a fast track and some decent push from the field, MacMittell would be well on his way toward a mile in 4:06-plus.

Biggest obstacle in front of a new mark by MacMittell is the lack of collegiate competition. The only one capable of giving him some real push is Indiana's Campbell Kana, who, although he can crack 4:10, possibly will concentrate on the 880, his favorite distance.

Production Slash Drastic Blow To Texas Oil Operators

10-Cent Slash Ordered On Gas Rates

WASHINGTON, May 6 (AP) — The Lone Star Gas Co. of Dallas, Tex., effective May 15, must reduce its natural gas city gate rate from 40 to 30 cents a thousand cubic feet, according to a federal power commission order issued yesterday.

The order ended ten years of controversy and will result in annual savings of more than $2,000,000 to domestic and commercial customers in 280 Texas and Oklahoma communities.

Annual savings for various cities include an estimated $688,000 for greater Dallas; $315,000 for Fort Worth and $102,000 for Waco.

The company decided to waive a hearing at a conference prior to the issuance of the order to which the Texas railroad commission, the Oklahoma corporation commission and Dallas public utilities supervisor acquiesced.

The 10-cent reduction will be effective to all commercial consumers served by the company and various affiliates, including Dallas Gas Co., Community Natural Gas Co. and Texas Cities Gas Co.

Other communities benefiting by the order include Durant and Frederick, Okla., and Wichita Falls, Sherman, Denison, Vernon, Denton, Gainesville, McKinney, Electra and Chillicothe, Texas.

The commission allowed the Lone Star company a return of 1.3 per cent, or $2,455,000 on a rate base of $37,774,000.

The commission said the Texas railroad commission in 1932 began an investigation of Lone Star rates and in 1933 ordered a 23-cent a thousand cubic feet rate. This order, however, has been in litigation ever since. Acceptance of the federal order by the Texas commission ended these proceedings.

Strong Roosevelt Man Wins Nomination In South Dakota

By the Associated Press

Senator W. J. Bulow, South Dakota democrat, lost renomination for a third term to an out-and-out Roosevelt supporter who charged him with pre-war isolationism, incomplete returns from the headline contest in primary voting of four states indicated today.

Former South Dakota governor Tom Berry held better than a 2 to 1 lead over the 72-year-old senator, who since Pearl Harbor has pledged support to the war effort but reserved the right to criticize administration domestic policies.

Gov. Harlan J. Bushfield appeared certain to be Berry's republican opponent, holding a decisive lead over Olive A. Kingsrud, secretary of state. Rep. Karl Mundt (R) was renominated. He will be opposed by Fred Hildebrandt, a former representative who retired in 1940 to run for the senate.

The state's four-way republican gubernatorial race was so close it probably must be decided at the June party convention.

Unofficial results of voting yesterday in the other states: INDIANA—Rep. Schulte (D), a labor leader, trailed Ray J. Madden; six other representatives were unopposed; the other five incumbents held safe leads.

ALABAMA—Senator Bankhead and six representatives, all democrats, were unopposed; Rep. Grant (D) was renominated, and two incumbent democratic representatives, Patrick and Jarman, faced the prospect of a run-off primary June 2 because of close contests. Chauncey Sparks led four other democratic candidates for governor.

FLORIDA — Four democratic congressmen were renominated; Rep. Green led democratic balloting for a new sixth seat gained through apportionment, but both this race and that for the fifth seat, which Green vacates, reappeared headed for May runoff primaries.

Smaller Ones Are Facing Bankruptcy

AUSTIN, May 6 (AP)—While federal and state petroleum regulatory agencies struggled with transportation and rationing problems today, Texas oil operators, once furnishing nearly half the nation's supply, braced themselves against possible bankruptcy.

Borely pressed by production slashes caused by lack of tankers which formerly carried a huge portion of Texas oil to the east gulf coast, an estimated 3,000 small independent operators hoped desperately they would not be forced to quit and throw thousands out of work.

Unsettled was the controversy between Federal Petroleum Coordinator Harold L. Ickes, who insists Texas production, more than 1,500,000 barrels daily in January, be curtailed an additional 300,000 to a total of 900,000 this month, and the state railroad commission which contends the drastic cut is unnecessary.

Texas' 99,000-odd wells currently are permitted to produce approximately 1,070,000 barrels daily under a commission order covering the first 10 days in May but actual yield is estimated at 100,000 barrels a day short of that figure due to pipe line proflation.

Still another problem is proposed rationing of gasoline in Texas as a means of conserving tires. This would further stifle the flow of crude in an area "drowning in oil," as commission Chairman Ernest C. Thompson put it.

Formerly working hand in hand with the office of petroleum coordinator, a majority of the Texas commission, which prorates oil production, believes additional production curtailment unnecessary, in the face of approximately 49,000,000 barrels of available storage space and demands from purchasers for more than 1,965,000 barrels daily.

Commissioners Jerry Stadler and Olin Culberson assert increased cuts would force half of the state's 1,800 independent operators to the wall, a condition which would reduce competition of major oil companies, better able to weather the present situation.

Trinity Floods Rich Farm Land

HOUSTON, May 6 (AP) — The Trinity river neared a flood crest today in Polk county, where an estimated 60,000 acres of rich farm land were under water.

At least 50 families in the Oklahoma community were homeless. Isolated families and much of their goods were removed by boats from Lufkin, Nacogdoches, and even from Tyler. There was no loss of life.

The Livingston-Houston highway below Goodrich was threatened.

Jett Brock, owner of much land inundated, said the flood was the worst he had ever seen and the water was higher than in 1908.

Liberty county residents braced for what they feared would be one of the worst floods in the county's history.

Our Civilian Allies Need Help

Somewhere on England's south coast last week an 18-year-old girl was killed in action while serving with an anti-aircraft battery. Another girl immediately filled the post, and the rest of the feminine contingent carried on un interruptedly throughout the hour-long raid. With like courage and determination, other British women, and, in fact, the entire population, have been carrying on during nearly three years' close contact with the destructive fury of war.

Americans, just beginning to feel the stringency of war measures, can appreciate more than ever the plight of Britain. Their home territory untouched, yet concerned with the threat of bombings, Americans sense more keenly what actual raids have meant in the wholesale destruction of houses, stores, warehouses, factories, and so on. Faced with a shortage of oil with which to warm their homes, but untouched by it as yet, Americans cannot help thinking of the thousands of thousands of people in the British Isles, who, with no homes left, are forced to brave the elements in tents and even caves. For with all available man power and industrial capacity engaged in war production, there can be very little restoration or rebuilding.

Americans, accepting good natured restrictions on styles, reflect ruefully on the report that more than two million English men, women and children will suffer from lack of proper clothing this winter unless more help is extended from the United States. With goods scarce and every possible factory converted to the war effort, Great Britain has no means of replacing the tons of wearing apparel, blankets, and the like destroyed by bombs.

Jimmy Rogers Is Lot Like His Dad

By ROBBIN COONS
HOLLYWOOD - The lean, raven-haired young man in the dungarees, boots, and old felt hat stood there on the set, chinning with Mary Brian, when we came up. "Glad to know you," he said, shaking hands. He tilted back his hat, and grinned. There's nothing very startling about all this, except that it set the clock back about 10 years. The resemblance, the uncanny similarity, the easy-going manner - he brought back Will Rogers.

This was Jimmy Rogers, Will's youngest boy. Jimmy is 28, and getting started in pictures. Will, Jr., the older, is publishing his paper in Beverly Hills, and getting set to run for Congress. Jimmy is letting Will, Jr. take care of the politics. "I don't know much about it myself," he said. "Just about what the average man knows. . . . That brought back Will Rogers too. All he knew was what he read in the papers. Jimmy isn't exactly a stranger to the movies. When he was five or six, he played with his dad in some of those early silent films. He doesn't remember much about them, and he didn't think of pictures again until Hal Roach and Hal, Jr. decided he ought to make a try. Jimmy was a ranch and cattle man. Had about 10,000 acres up in Santa Barbara county. It was such a nice big place that the Army stepped in, bought it, and turned it into Camp Cook. That left Jimmy looking for a place to start raising cattle again, and a little time to make some movies. With Hal, Jr. directing, he's with another junior - Noah Beery's boy - in "Dudes Are Pretty People" and "Calaboose," first in a series of westerns.

Like father, like son - Jimmy is leaving the movie love-making to others. It's Noah Beery, Jr. who goes after Mary Brian in "Calaboose." "Do love scenes?" said Jimmy. "I'd be scared to go home - my wife'd wrap a coathanger around my neck!" He didn't think they'd be making a glamour-boy out of him soon, either. "I don't know much about it," he grinned, "except that it's an absolute impossibility." It is. They never could put any glamour on Will Rogers, either. There are some people that just have to struggle along without it. Like his dad, Jimmy used to be quite a hand on the polo field. He now has a 4-goal rating, but he doesn't play much. Nobody does more, he said. "It's this way: a football player's legs give out, a baseball player loses his arm, and it's the same with a polo player - his dough gives out." If he goes over in pictures, he's still going to be a part-time cattle man. "Taking care of 2,000 cows can keep you pretty busy. And a cow isn't as fickle as the public's supposed to be - she doesn't care who herds her around." If he's taken out a lariat and twirled it, or if he'd taken a chew of gum, you could have sworn. . . . But it was good, seeing a Rogers boy around the sound stages again.

Washington Daybook - President Resumes Old Gay Spirit

By JACK STINNETT
WASHINGTON - Get a crowd of Washington correspondents together these days and almost certainly the conversation will swing at some time to the change in President Roosevelt's mood in recent weeks. Almost every press conference lately has found him cheerful and in good spirits - a mood that has been almost totally lacking since those gray days that followed the Jap attack on Hawaii.

It is almost a capital axiom that President Roosevelt wears best in adversity. When things are going wrong, he shoulders the load and seems almost to relish the carrying of it. Certainly there has been no war President who has borne up so well as President Roosevelt since Pearl Harbor. But until recently something was lacking. Press conferences, even those in which the rare bits of good news were given out, had an atmosphere of depression.

It was something that could not be entirely attributed to adverse reports from the war front. It was something that seemed to flow from the President himself. It is true that he was working prodigiously, but the President has always done that without losing his buoyant spirits or his confidence in the future of the United States. It is true that he was not always well, being twice threatened with those annoying colds to which he is subject. But some time ago now, Rear Admiral Ross T. McIntire, the White House physician, persuaded him to drop some of the late night detail work which was too much of a drain on even the President's great energies. Generally, his physical condition has been excellent. Then suddenly a week or so ago, the President changed and the new mood, or rather resumption of that old one which Washington newspaper men know so well, has been maintained.

They Talk A New Slangage

By PAUL J. C. FRIEDLANDER
Wide World Features Writer
NEW YORK - A new American slangage is in the making. It is being created wherever American soldiers, sailors and marines are fighting, wherever under strain of battle and of adjustment to new surroundings, men are coining bright words.

Some Haven't Changed
A gull is a gull in this war as she was in '17 and '18, and probably was in '61 and '12. A gull? That's sailor talk for a girl, preferably pretty, on shore; so is a blimp and a blister. A sea gull follows the fleet. You can go on from here alone.

YOU call it a blimp, but to a soldier, it's an elephant, or fat friend. . . .

Both sailors and marines have adapted some new words: Pig for aerial torpedo, eggs for amphibian planes. But they still share with the army most of the large compendium of food slang: Pot wallop and pearl diver for dish washer; punk for bread; battery acid for coffee; chow, mess, sium, etc.

The air and armored forces have their own, unique slangages, some of it Babylonian in the best tradition of heroic military slang.

Are You Gear Happy?
A tank becomes a galvanized gelding, an iron horse, roller skate, doodle bug or hell buggy. When a gasoline cowboy (chauffeur to a tank or armored vehicle) slips his clutch, he complains too much; he is gear happy (shifts gears too much); he takes part in a rat race (mounted review).

Ready In May
A compilation of new American military slang made by USO staff officers and scouts at army posts, naval bases and air force stations shows more than 100 new words and phrases already in common use. The compilation is to be distributed in May in connection with the USO campaign and to help the home folks understand what their boys are talking about.

COFFEE? Probably, but in camp, more commonly known as battery acid. . . .

his wings yet. Fat friends, elephants - observation balloons and blimps; flava pot - bomber's power gun turret pea shooter - pursuit plane. Girls furnish most of the routine military slangage, new and old. Thus: Skirt patrol - out picking up a girl; sugar report - letter from the girl friend; blind flying - blind date; dragging - taking a girl to a dance.

And until the boys in uniform get an increase in pay, this will serve wherever soldiers do: "He bought his girl a chubbly," meaning "He was so broke he gave his girl a pinch on the cheek and spent the evening smoking her old man's cigars and raiding the ice box."

GASOLINE cowboys in their hell buggy, ready for a rat race. Get it?

Secret Orders

Changing Jails
After that, Stephanie stood long hours at the grilled window watching the shadows of late afternoon creep slowly, steadily into the alley. She was helpless to do anything now. At best, it would be late evening before anyone at home became really alarmed. Knowing she'd been called to Headquarters, they'd probably think she had just stayed on through the night. She had on several occasions. There was no hope for help from that direction. A little old Chinese beggar woman poked into the alley picking up tin foil. Idly Stephanie watched her. Back and forth through the rows of garbage cans. Poor old Stephanie watched her tread slowly past the window, the hem of her filthy dress just touching the sidewalk, her face hidden by a battered old felt hat. The beggar disappeared and Stephanie went back to her own thoughts. Too nervous to relax, she paced the narrow room slowly.

Blondie

Seven O'Clock
At that moment, Henri's watchdog apparently sensed Stephanie's excitement. "Something interesting going on?" he growled over her shoulder. Instantly, Stephanie drew back from the window, shrugged carelessly as she walked to the cot, sat down. "Nothing more than an old beggar hunting for tin foil." "Nothing, huh?" He peered out the window and Stephanie's heart stood still. "You seemed mighty interested in nothing." It was nearly five o'clock then. For the two hours following, Stephanie tried hard not to let her hopes rise too high. It seemed unwise to depend on so flimsy a thing as a fleeting recognition. Because how could that have been Liu - dressed like that, poking around a miserable alley. And yet if Liu had missed her, suspected that might have happened, it was just possible she had disguised herself that way in the hope that - But Stephanie couldn't even be sure that Liu had actually seen her. It would be difficult, if not actually impossible, to recognize anyone down in this dark hole. And through a window as dirty as that one, too.

bodily into the back seat, climbed in after her.

Not a word was spoken as the car pulled away from the curb, moved rapidly through what Stephanie recognized immediately was the dingy end of Chinatown. Down steep, narrow one-way streets, through deserted districts that, during the daylight hours, teemed with wholesale produce trucks, but deserted now, echoed hollowly as the big car rumbled along.

Crashed firmly between Henri and the huge, silent man on her left, Stephanie was helpless to move. And in the front seat, the man beside the driver sat half-turned in her direction, his hand under the lapel of his coat, threateningly.

Not once during the much-too-short ride to the waterfront, did she so much as see an officer. Hardly a pedestrian even. It was as if the streets had been cleared purposely. Any stray hope she might have cherished in spite of Henri's warning, had to give up now.

At the waterfront, she was transferred so quickly from the tonneau of the big car to the deck of a small boat that she had only time to recognize that it was the same fishing boat she had surprised Henri visiting. Was that only a few weeks ago?

Fishing boat it might seem to be, she realized moments later as, thrust into the cabin she sat huddled in the corner of a leather-covered window seat and tried to collect her senses. But only from the outside! Here in this trim cabin was grim evidence that it was not fish these men were after.

Along one wall, racks of guns of all sizes. At the end, the glistening dial of a huge radio. A sending set, probably, and the operator wearing the headphones, she saw instantly, was one of the gardeners from the Miller house!

Sure, every acre's raising more... Now what's upping the mileage from this oil?

How does prize wheat or corn at the county fair get that way? Sure, man-made soil improvers—modern synthetics—were added to improve on nature.

AND MODERN SYNTHETICS IN CONOCO Nth motor oil make it yield mileage that outscored all other brands tested in the sensational Death Valley Certified Competition. Five big-name quality brands got every fair chance against Conoco Nth oil. All were run till engines failed and none came closer than 58% of the mileage totaled by Conoco Nth!... the oil you can have for your needed Spring oil change that's now overdue... the oil whose best known man-made extra substance—at no extra premium—gives your engine OIL-PLATING.

OIL-PLATING backs up the familiar fluid type of oil film with a surfacing of lubricant close-bonded to inner engine parts. Every cylinder wall, for instance, becomes a wall of OIL-PLATING that doesn't all drain dry during all the time you use Conoco Nth. Even after all-day parking, the OIL-PLATING is still up to the topmost piston rings, ready to lubricate before any oil can circulate. That's one plain way of flogging excess wear, and keeping up mileage with your engine OIL-PLATED.

But Conoco Nth oil also includes Thialkene inhibitor... another synthetic... invented to inhibit or restrain the dangerous "jelling" of oil under excess strain. Engines heat and pressure can even gum up oil into something like fly-paper coating—only dirtier, and not much better for mileage. Against this threat, Thialkene inhibitor was created for Conoco Nth (U. S. Pat. 2,218,132). And Conoco Nth out-mileaged the others in the Death Valley Test—from 74% all the way up to 161%. You can get real optimistic about your own mileage. Conoco Nth will come through for you. Change at Your Mileage Merchant's Conoco station. Continental Oil Company
