They're shown in a familiar pose — on the shoulders of their male counterparts, John Hettig, arts and sciences major from Richardson; Brooke Phelps, finance major from Houston; and Tim Evans, pre-med major from Abilene. They were named from 105 aspirants.

EAT, SLEEP, AND MATRICULATE

The trouble with early morning classes is that you're too sleepy. At late morning classes you're too hungry. At early afternoon classes you're too loopy. At late afternoon classes you're too hungry again. The fact is—and we might as well face it—there is no good time of day to take a class.

What shall we do then? Abandon our colleges to the ivy? I say no! I say America did not become the hope of mankind and the world's largest producer of butterfats and tallow by running away from a fight!

If you're always too hungry or too sleepy for class, then let's hold classes when you're not too hungry or sleepy: namely, when you're eating or sleeping.

Classes while eating are a simple matter. Just have a lecturer lecture while the eaters eat. But watch out for noisy food. I mean who can hear a lecturer lecture when everybody is crunching celery or matzo or like that? Serve quiet stuff—like anchovy paste on a doughnut, or steaming bowls of lamb fat.

And kindly observe silence while lighting your post-prandial Marlboro Cigarette. Don't be striking kitchen matches on your MAID OF COTTON—Two more entries in the Maid of Cotton contest are Nikki Epley (upper) and Susan Murfee (lower). Both are sophomores at Tech. Nikki is from Pecos and Susan is of Lubbock. The deadline for entries has been extended to Friday night.

Homesickness? We're too old for that. We're too blasé. After all, aren't we the "lively ones?" Let's call it mid-semester let-down of a frantic failure to become totally independent of home and things familiar.

The yearning creeps into tired bones and boring books in those wee-hour study sessions. We need a break. We need some peace and quiet and a little pampering from the home front. It's only three weeks until Thanksgiving. We'll look to that.

AS I SEE IT

Latest craze for girls: OOOCHING. I was sitting at my desk studying when the door opened and in "ooched" three girls, in a row.

What it is?

It is hard to explain. Exercises have always been a part of dieting. The theory is to tighten up the muscles.

"OOCHING" consists of sitting on the floor, raising one knee at a time, slapping it down on the floor and (there is no other word) "ooching" down the hall. I don't know if it works, but I can't sit down today, so it does something.

AS I SEE IT

Phi Kappa Psi is having their annual all-school "Lil Abner" dance this weekend. Cedar-choppers (Austin term for the hill people) will abound at the Fair Park Coliseum at 8 p.m. Saturday.

Alpha Chi Omega is taking its sorority retreat to Ruidoso, N.M., this weekend. My, its just in time for the ski season which opens today.

Kappa Kappa Gamma will have its pledge presentation Friday at the Lubbock Country Club from 7:30 until 11 p.m. The fathers of the pledges will present them and then waltz the first dance of the evening with the girls.

The Kappas will hear Dr. Beatrice Cobb, of the psychology department, Monday speak on "Mental Health."

WHITE ROSE PRINCESS — Miss Betty McFarren, junior English major from Cleburne, was named Sigma Nu White Rose Princess for October. Miss McFarren is a member of Zeta Tau Alpha sorority, Junior Council and Mortar Board.

jeans. Instead carry an ember from the dormitory fireplace in your purse or pocket. Place the Marlboro against the ember. Light it quietly. Smoke it quietly. Oh, I know I ask a great deal! I know that one's natural instinct upon encountering Marlboro's fine flavor and filter is to throw back one's head and bellow great, rousing cries of joy. But you must not. You must contain your ecstasy, lest you disturb the lecturing lecturer. You can, if you like, permit yourself a few small shudders of pleasure as you smoke, but take care not to wear garments which will set up a clatter when you shudder—like taffeta, for example, or knee cymbals.

Let us turn now to the problem of learning while sleeping. First, can it be done?

Yes, it can. Psychologists have proved that the brain is definitely able to assimilate information during sleep. Take, for instance, a recent experiment conducted by a leading Eastern university (Stanford). A small tape recorder was placed under the pillow of the subject, a freshman named Glebe Sigafos. When Glebe was fast asleep, the recorder was turned on. Softly, all through the night, it repeated three statements in Glebe's slumbering ear:

1. Herbert Spencer lived to the age of 109 and is called "The Founder of English Eclectic Philosophy."

2. The banana plant is not a tree but a large perennial herb.

3. The Archduke Ferdinand was assassinated in 1914 at Sarajevo by a young nationalist named Mjilas Cvetnic, who has been called "The Trigger of World War I."

When Glebe awoke in the morning, the psychologists said to him, "Herbert Spencer lived to the age of 109. What is he called?"

Glebe promptly replied, "Perennial Herb."

Next they asked him, "What has Mjilas Cvetnic been called?"

Replied Glebe, "Perennial Serb."

Finally they said, "Is the banana plant a tree?"

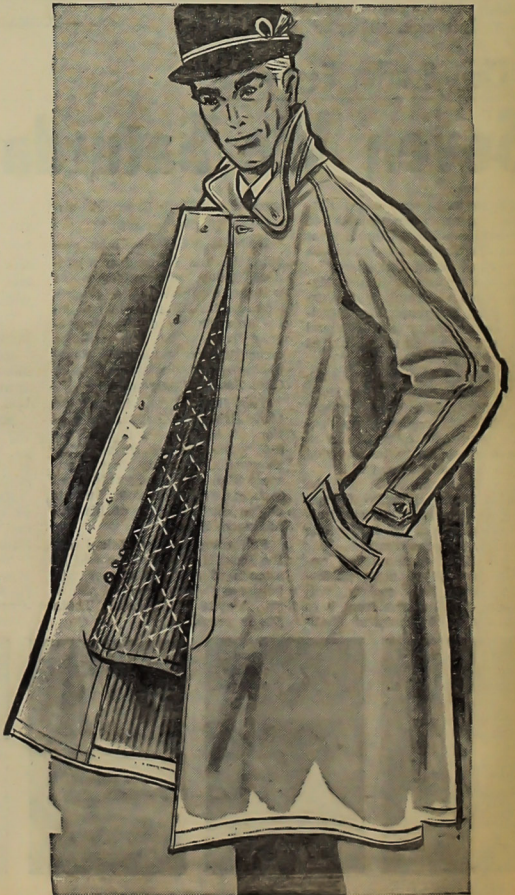

But Glebe, exhausted from the long interrogation, had fallen back asleep, where he is to this day.

PICKING -ER-A - SKI CLOTHES?—These four Tech boys paused during the Lubbock Ski Club style show to look over the new line of ski wear for their forthcoming jobs on the ski patrol. Ski Clubbers Guard Slopes Of Resort-Bound Techsans

Sun drenched snow, a burst of action and a fine spray of powder set the scene. You are off . . . skimming down an incline with only skill and agility to guide you. You're skiing.

Over and over again these actions will be repeated on slopes in Europe, Vermont, Colorado or a scant 200-odd miles west from Tech.

The nucleus of skiers at Tech is small. Because of the areas most of us come from, we are relatively ignorant of the sport and neighboring resort areas available.

Skiing, it seems, has generally been regarded as a fashionable sport. The clothes, expense and inaccessibility have made it so. At Tech, at least, there is a new trend. Take your vacations and go skiing.

The students going to New Mexico this year will see some familiar faces. The Tech Ski Club has some 12 boys going to Ruidoso as members of the ski patrol (four of them are shown in the picture above). These boys have passed six hours of basic first-aid and are expert skiers.

Although the prospect of having a leg broken is not too cheery, it would be comforting to know that assistance is near if needed. These boys learn how to load an injured skier on a sled and get him down the mountain with as little pain as possible.

In addition to the first-aid treatments, the patrol tries to insure safety by shoveling snow on take-offs and packing the snow on the slopes. The boys who will be traveling to the ski sites from Tech are Ken Ballard, Denver, Colo.; John Passow, formerly of Aspen, Colo. — now of San Angelo; Jack Sanford, formerly of New York—now of Atlanta, Geo.; Mickey Smith, Lubbock; Terry Hansen, Dallas and Bill Lewis, Lubbock. The rest of the team will include Mike Sherbert, Petersburg; Rob Westerbugy and Bob Pittman, both of Lubbock; Richard Nestler, Germany and Don Lambert of Wichita Falls.

For Tech students that don't know how to ski, beginners' slopes and instructors are provided. All resorts near Tech teach the "American style" of skiing. This is said to be a faster and easier method. So you won't have to walk up the slopes, a variety of "lifts" are used. The lifts for beginners are usually "poma lifts." These are round discs attached to a big line that pulls you up hill.

Other kinds of lifts used are T-bars, chairs and a new gondola. The gondola is an enclosed cabin that rides to the top of the advanced slopes.

If you buy your own equipment before going to the resorts, there are certain rules by which to abide. The poles are chosen by length. They should come to the armpit with an easy grip. The skis should come to the palm of your hand when standing on end. The trend now is to metal skis because they don't break as easily.

The sport of skiing takes years to perfect, as most sports do.

Skiers will tell you, though, that there is no better sport.

Ken Ballard, Tech student from Colorado, has been skiing most of his life. He says, "It makes you feel you have control." So, take hold Techsans because Ruidoso opens today.

An Editorial

Obey The Laws . . .

Regardless of opinion to the contrary, Memorial Circle is not a round drag strip. Your best two-out-of-three times around the Circle could not be of less interest to anyone except yourself.

Except perhaps to the pedestrians who have to dodge traffic.

It's been said but it bears repeating: We've been far more lucky than we deserve in that no one has been killed or seriously injured in campus traffic.

Even though pedestrians seem to disregard red lights, it's important not to run over them.

Even though pedestrians seem to have no interest in their own safety or in courtesy to drivers, they should not be hit.

Even though pedestrians are so intent on that next class that they jaywalk indiscriminately, it's still the responsibility of drivers not to kill them.

A special students' Committee on Campus Traffic-Security has recommended that pedestrians should have the right-of-way. This is as it should be.

They do not, however, have the right-of-way as long as traffic lights attempt to control pedestrians' movements across intersections. No one has the right-of-way against a red light.

So it is a two-way problem: Cars drive too fast and pedestrians violate stop-lights.

If the situation continues as is, there will be no choice but to stop all vehicular traffic for ten minutes between classes.

But this step is almost inevitable with a yearly-growing enrollment and ever-expanding vehicle registration. It can be delayed, however, by responsible behavior on the part of all concerned.

Don't walk against the red light! You might be run over!

Don't drag around the circle! You might hit someone!

Obey the laws of traffic and courtesy.

Letters To Editor . . .

Thanks All Concerned

Dear Editor:

The 1962 Homecoming is now history. It was one of the biggest and best in Tech's history. This was possible through the tireless efforts of numerous individuals and organizations. The officers and staff of the Ex-Students Association finds itself deeply indebted to all those that had a part in this year's Homecoming.

Only a few people probably realize the months of planning and work that go into a successful Homecoming. Chairman Frankie Clauts and each member of his committee did an outstanding job. It was a pleasure to have worked with them and in my opinion they are the "unknown" heroes of this year's Homecoming.

Due to the size of the office staff and the Homecoming Committee, each year we must ask the help of some of the campus service organizations. To the members and pledges of Alpha Phi Omega, Association of Women Students, President's Hostesses, Saddle Tramps and Womens Service Organization, on behalf of the entire Ex-Students Association, I wish to express our gratitude and appreciation for their outstanding contributions to the Homecoming activities.

I know that every Ex-Student who has ever worked on a float, appreciated the efforts of all the students in charge of construction or working on a float. Work on a float means time away from studies and sleepless nights. It also means good times, good fellowship and the idea of doing something for the College and the returning Exes. To those organizations that participated in the Parade, we say a big "Thank You" and only wish that all of you could have been winners.

There are many others to whom credit is due, that we will be unable to thank individually. However, our failure to express our thanks to them is in strict oversight and not in that their contributions to Homecoming were not appreciated.

We also appreciate those members of the College Administration, faculty and staff that helped in the preparation of Homecoming. Without their cooperation the job of the Homecoming Committee and the Association staff would have been most difficult.

Yours for a better Tech,

Wayne James

Executive Director

Ex-Students Association

(Editor's Note — The TOREADOR likewise extends congratulations for a successful Homecoming and thanks to all who helped make it successful. Thanks, also to Wayne James for making this gratitude public.)

Apologizes To Tech

Dear Editor:

Please accept my apologies for firing the SMU cannon while the Homecoming Queen and her court were nearby.

In the excitement at hand, I did not notice that they were nearby until it was too late.

I am very sorry for this negligent act.

Thank you so much for the wonderful hospitality shown the SMU students by the Tech student body.

Sincerely,

Bruce Marcus

SMU

(Editor's Note — Apologies accepted. Accidents will happen. Thanks for writing. We're still friends. Even after that game.)

Prefers U.S. Day

Dear Editor:

It seems strange that Oct. 23, 1962, United States Day, passed almost wholly unnoticed by the administration, the faculty and the student body of Texas Tech.

Since we, the American people, are almost the last stronghold of personal freedom in a world surrounded by enemies—both passive and militant—it seems almost an act of sacrilege to glorify United Nations Day projected over and beyond United States Day by the amount of relative publicity given to both days.

America has participated in two world wars to make the world a better place in which to live. She has contributed many billions of her money, plus armaments, food-stuffs, appurtenances of war, and countless lives of her manhood; yet, since the inception of the United Nations, over 650 million people have become slaves behind the Iron and Bamboo Curtains.

"Police" actions of sorts have not halted the steady advance of communism, but the United Nations has provided a propaganda forum and network of foreign espionage agents to subvert this wonderful land of ours. It is a source of amazement that we should forget our proud heritage of freedoms as a nation purchased in lives and resources.

Are we committing national suicide by allowing this farce to continue unabated on our shores? Or is it possible, as a great patriot once remarked, "Historians of the future will marvel most of all at the non-resistance of those who had the most to lose?"

GOD BLESS AMERICA

Louis R. Jones

(Editor's Note — Thanks for sending this letter. You're sympathies are entirely worthy, but opinions to the contrary have been received and will be published later.)

"Just Sign Dotted Line"

An enterprising group at UCLA printed up 400 cards, erected a sign saying "Registration of Frosh Women for Campus Directory," and rated incoming coeds for sex appeal this fall.

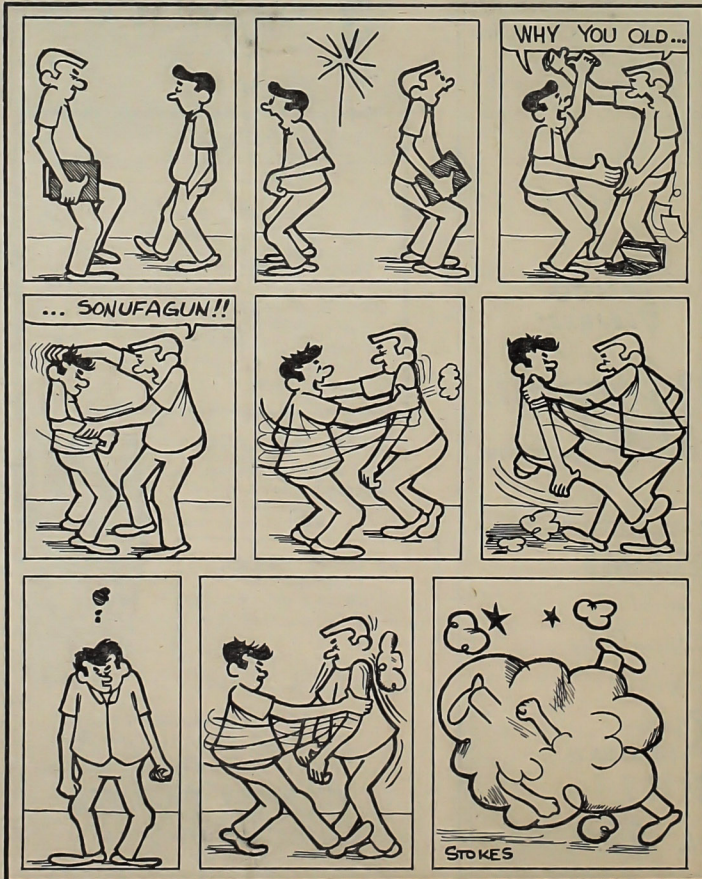

According to Associated Collegiate Press, the fake registration booth netted girls ranked from No. 1 ("just a girl") to No. 7 ("unbelievably great")

Classes 8, 9 and 10 were purely academic, since no coeds were luscious enough for these categories.

The group is being very generous with the cards since they are dated up for months.

It's not a new idea, but it works!

WHERE OH WHERE DEPT.— One of the virtues (or vices) of living in a state the size of Texas is the time it takes to drive home from school. Even for those living in Dallas, it is quite a trip, and for those living as far as Houston, the homeward trek takes on the aspects of a safari.

Caged in a car for five to ten hours, we grow restless and search the countryside for some break in the monotony. In this way, many of us become experts on the location of obscure places known only to God and the U.S. Post Office Dept.

For instance — a sign on the Abilene-Lubbock highway points to Noodle Dome, Texas. Between Houston and College Station, there is Dime Box, Texas, and Old Dime Box, Texas. Signs pointing to Felix, Stink Creek, Loving and McGargle flash by. And we hear vague reports of towns called Smyer, Archer City, Rosebud and Winthorst.

We also hear that there is a town located between Brazosport and Freeport named Hysteria, Texas. Hysteria, it is said, is located on the site where Barnibus Hysteria was pecked to death repelling an attack of seagulls back in '05. Since Hysteria cannot be located on any existing map, we are inclined to doubt this.

STATE OF THE UNION DEPT.—The Union has scheduled a poetry hour for 4 p.m. today on the sun porch. Speaker will be Rabbi Alexander S. Kline. Rabbi Kline will discuss "Hebrew Poetry in the Psalms," and will also have a forum at 7 p.m. in the Coronado Room on "What is Judaism."

Friday at 4 and 8 p.m. and Sunday at 2:30 p.m. a movie—"Pomanoff and Juliet" — is scheduled in the Coronado Room. Entirely written and directed by Peter Ustanov, this film is a sly comment on the ineptness of the Russian and American diplomatic corps. It stars Ustanov, Sandra Dee and John Gavin.

New Book, Old Story

Back in 1957, the sexy best-seller, "Peyton Place" topped paperback sales lists. It was followed in due time by "Lady Chatterley's Lover," "Lolita," and more recently "Poor No More" and "The Carpetbaggers."

And now Harold Robbins, author of the million-seller "Carpetbaggers" has brought out a new one. Entitled "Where Love Has Gone," it follows the standard Robbins formula of sex plus plenty of gossip about some fictionalized person whose name has figured prominently in lurid headlines. This formula has proved tried and true — the hero of "The Carpetbaggers" was eccentric millionaire Howard Hughes, under a different name of course. By merely changing the name, Robbins was able to leave his readers with the impression that they had really gotten the poop on Hughes. And because the names are changed, there is hardly any risk of a libel suit.

"Where Love Has Gone" is no different. The story involves the daughter of a beautiful and talented sculptress who kills her mother's lover. The case is terribly reminiscent of the 1958 murder case in which Cheryl Crane, daughter of Lana Turner, killed Johnny Stompanato. And the disguises are thin.

There is a hidden danger in this. Readers who translate the name "Dani Carey" to Cheryl Crane may assume that they have been told something about the real-life figures. But several national publications have assured us that Robbins' imagination takes over from there.

A Soviet emergency move apparently was already under way.

As Castro apparently balked, Moscow disclosed that Anastas I.

Mikoyan, Soviet first deputy premier, will leave for Cuba Thursday via London and New York and is due in Havana Friday. British officials in London saw his unexpected flying trip as an effort to get his friend Castro to comply with Premier Khrushchev's decision to pull Soviet missiles out of Cuba.

Moscow's dispatches indicated one purpose of Mikoyan's visit was to remove any possible Cuban roadblocks such as a refusal to permit admission of U.N. inspection teams.

In a related development at Washington President Kennedy called off his news conference scheduled for Thursday, awaiting what the White House called clarification of the Cuban situation.

PSC Group Gives Kids Halloween

Ghosts, goblins and witches stepped out of Fairy Tale Land Halloween night for a group of migrant workers' children.

Tech students from the Presbyterian Student Center clad in costumes portraying Halloween characters for the children ranging in age from six years and up.

The children, some barefoot and without coats, possibly enjoyed the first Halloween because of these thoughtful Techsans.

The Presbyterian group has been entertaining the migrant workers who live near a local gin west of the city, for several weeks. The church organization took this opportunity to give the workers and their children a real treat instead of a trick.

The migrant workers from Olancho, Mexico were thrilled with the pinatas the Techsans had made. The pinatas made in Halloween style contained pumpkins were filled with pop corn and candy.

Entertainment in the form of movies, games, songs and records delighted the guests.

While listening to the music the children entertained the group by doing the twist. "The little boys and girls as well as their parents really enjoy these get-togethers," Sall Long, Tech freshman, said.

Assignment: build the "grease gun"
into our cars

We went to the mountain to make 1963 Ford-built cars go 30,000 to 100,000 miles between major chassis lubrications

Quite a task faced Ford Motor Company engineers when they set out to eliminate the traditional trip to the grease rack every 1,000 miles.

Like Mohammed, they went to the mountain—Bartlett Mountain on the Continental Divide in Colorado. More molybdenite is mined there than in the rest of the world combined. And from molybdenite ore comes the amazing "moly" grease that helps extend the chassis lubrication intervals for Ford-built cars. This grease sticks tenaciously to metal, stands up under extreme pressures and resists moisture, pounding and squeezing. It is slicker than skates on ice!

New, improved seals were developed. Bushings, bearings and washers of many materials were investigated. Slippery synthetics, like nylon and teflon, were used a number of new ways.

The search for means to extend chassis lubrication also led to New Orleans—where experimental suspension ball joints tested in taxicabs in regular service went two years without relubrication.

It took time. And ingenuity. But the effort paid off when Ford-built cars were the first to build in chassis lubrication good for 30,000 miles or two years—whichever came first.

Another assignment completed—another "Ford First" and another example of how Ford Motor Company provides engineering leadership for the American Road.

Rabbi Kline Presents Three Union Programs

Rabbi Alexander S. Kline will speak today at a poetry hour, a forum and a luncheon in the Tech Union.

Rabbi Kline's first appearance will be a luncheon at noon today, sponsored by the applied arts department. He will speak about religious ideas on the college level. "Hebrew Poetry in the Psalms" will be the rabbi's subject at the poetry hour at 4 p.m. today on the sun porch of the Tech Union. He will also address the Forum at 7 p.m. in the Coronado Room. The topic will be "What is Judaism?" The Poetry Hour and the Forum are sponsored by the Ideas and Issues Committee of the Union.

These three programs are planned from a non-denominational and academic viewpoint, according to Sandra Cox, Ideas and Issues Committee member.

Rabbi Kline is affiliated with the congregation of Shaareth Israel in Lubbock. His appearance at the Tech Union is supported by the Jewish Chautauqua Society. The society promotes and understanding of Judaism throughout the world through a five-point program it has outlined. Approximately 394 summer camps and 1,152 colleges and universities, including Tech, have employed the lecture services provided by the Jewish society.

Rabbi Kline is appearing in a 10-week seminar at the West Texas Museum, in addition to his appearances at Tech today. His seminar at the museum concerns "Northern Painting."

Levelland Fans 'Hang' Coach's Figure In Effigy

LEVELLAND (AP)—J T King, football coach of winless Texas Tech was hanged in effigy Wednesday.

The figure was 60 feet high. By using a bow and arrow the figure was suspended from an advertising sign on a main street of Levelland.

"It seems the local Tech supporters just aren't happy," police said. Four Raiders are from Levelland.

Halloween

The migrant workers do not go to school; instead they work all day in the fields with their parents. The workers live in old barracks around the gin area.

Some 50 men, women and children usually gather to enjoy the rare gift of entertainment that the young people bring.

KAY CRAVENS, junior from Anthony, has been selected Director of Public Relations for the Union Board at the Tech Union.

Del Morgan Award Given

LUBBOCK (AP) — Texas Tech has made its first award honoring the memory of Del Morgan, the former Texas Tech coach who was killed in an automobile accident last March.

The award will be presented annually to the football player who best exemplifies the characteristics of the man who coached the Red Raiders for 10 years.

End Larry Jones is recipient of the first award.

Polish Ship Hopes Navy 'Nose' Best WARSAW, Poland (AP) — Now that tension has let up in Cuba, Poles are telling a joke about the U.S. blockade.

The captain of a ship said to have docked in Havana on Monday—nervously asked Warsaw for instructions as he neared the line of U.S. warships.

"What," he asked, "shall I do if the Americans refuse to believe I am carrying onions?"

As one official tells it, the government wired this reply: "Tell them to smell."

KEYBOARD WANDERINGS

Eugene G. Gibson sat back in his chair and began to talk like a man who has just found a million dollars. You could look straight in his eyes and see the glint of glee appear at the beginning of every sentence. And when he had finished, you were convinced that he was talking about something big, really big.

It was big, and it will probably become bigger. "It" was the freshman basketball team. After two scrimmages with the varsity cagers, the freshmen proved the speculations that they are, perhaps, the best first year basketball team to gather at Tech in many years, maybe ever. You really can't tell too much until a few games have passed, but they look tough.

"Some of the boys have improved as much as 100 per cent this week," said Gibson. "They really look good." Gib is watching the freshmen as close as he can, because they will play a vital part in the 1963-64 SWC cage race. But right now Charles D. Lynch is putting the Picador basketball show on the road. And he stalks around with that just-wait-'till-you-see-what-I've-got look.

Of course, you have to stay on the court until the Picadors come of age, and Gib has a varsity that might do more than just stay on the court. This year's Red Raider cage squad reminds you faintly of a Tech team two years ago that grabbed the SWC title when no one was looking . . .
