On The Prevailing Theory of Conduct

If the philosophy of the present student generation were to be set forth in a sentence, it might be characterized as an each-person-his-own-judge, condemn-not, extremely individualistic theory of conduct. The foregoing generalization is admittedly weak in that it does not take into consideration a large and significant group to which it does not apply, but the prevalence of the attitude expressed above affords a definite basis for making such a statement.

The pendulum has swung away from a "my brother's keeper" theory of social relationships to the opposite extreme. The individual is considered to be the best and only warranted judge of what he does. Remorse or attempt at interference with the individual's widespread freedom of action is thought to be unjustifiable. Thus it is that a girl, although possibly considered to drink heavily, considers that it is entirely a boy's business if he wants to parake. Thus it is that a boy, possessing originally high ideals and wholesome attitudes, is expected to be broadminded and a good sport to the extent that he condones any infraction of his ideals. Those character values that condition the welfare and existence of society itself are deemed to be of only such value as each individual may care to assign to them.

Football season may be over, but the discussion of the many questions that have grown out of the season are by no means over. They are becoming more and more serious each day as more students begin to take interest in them. Our notion the highest two of all are those relating to the coaching situation and to the proposed new conference.

What most of the students don't know about the coaching problem would fill a mighty big book. Wild rumors that have been flying so thick and fast since December are not helping things a bit. If anything definite has been done, or is going to be done, nobody knows anything about it. The President declares that in all probability there will be a change, but outside of that there is no definite information.

We believe most everyone will feel greatly relieved when some sort of definite announcement is made, regardless of what it is.

Now about this conference. The desire to enter the Southwestern Conference seems to have died over night. There may be all kinds of reasons for this, but it is doubtful that there are. It seems that the idea that Lubbock is too far away, and that the town is too small to support a Southwestern institution has developed rather quickly. Last November it was the Southwestern Conference or nothing, and now it is an entirely new conference.

We do not altogether agree with this attitude, but we must admit that it has some basis.

There seems to be objection to the entrance of New Mexico schools on the ground that they would not be good drawing cards in West Texas. The decision at Sweetwater to refuse admission to these schools because they are too far west eliminates this matter.

Things must be fairly well divided on the question down at Sweetwater, because President Sandifer stated that in his opinion Simmons would prosper by lining up with the new group.

We have not heard anything as to the attitude at other proposed member institutions, but no doubt we will in the near future. Every one is anxiously awaiting the outcome of the next official meeting at Sweetwater.

Regardless of all this we have another basketball season upon us. The Matadors will meet the Wayland Jackrabbits in a second engagement here tonight. A glance at the schedule convinces us that we are going to see some hectic struggles before hostilities cease.

Evidently there will be no gym dances for the next two months. Mr. Warlick has set up signs in the gym to the effect that no feather shoes will be tolerated on the floor. How long this ban will last we can not say, but it will probably be until after the cage season is concluded.

This will be hard on the social lions, but it will be a great aid to the ball club. Nothing makes a floor any less playable, not to say dangerous, for basketball than using it for dancing. Unfortunately our gym has to serve a multitude of purposes, thus making it impossible to please everybody. We believe however, that the ban on leather shoes is a justifiable action.

Interest is being manifested by the college in the coming meeting of the state legislature in special session on January 20. At this time consideration of the requests of the colleges for appropriations will be given.

Zimbalist, World Famous Violinist Who Plays Here Early Next Month, Finds Oriental Music Very Pleasing

Efrem Zimbalist, the world famous violinist who appears here on February 4 on the Texas Tech artist course returned last spring from a 50,000 mile world tour, during which he gave 150 concerts. While in Japan he had had the unusual opportunity of hearing Chinese music of 2,000 years ago played by the private orchestra of the Emperor of Japan. He is one of the few Europeans, he said, ever to have been invited to hear this imperial body of 35 players, who never appear in public and who constitute the sole means by which ancient Chinese music, introduced into Japan 700 years ago, is perpetuated.

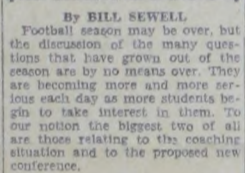

Contrary to popular belief, said Mr. Zimbalist, this authentic type of Oriental music is extremely pleasing even to Western ears. It is subdued in volume, with strongly marked and varied rhythms, and exquisite in its changing color. "Songs of a superlatively beautiful and delicate tone, vibrating for an amazing length of time together with small instruments, with a multiplicity of pipes capable of sounding the most complicated chords, and pungent reed instruments resembling miniature oboes, are combined to produce effects of extraordinary beauty. So far as I was able to determine, the musical scale is not unlike our own, except that it seemed to have eleven semi-tones instead of twelve. The music has definite harmonic laws and is written down in bars by means of figures.

The violinist also listened to music and instruments of similar type in Java, at a concert arranged in his honor by a native potentate. The latter gave Mr. Zimbalist a large album of colored plates representing the court dancers and enclosed in a carved wooden box.

While he was in Melbourne last August Mr. Zimbalist gave a joint recital with Dame Nellie Melba, the first time the celebrated soprano had sung in public since her Covent Garden farewell two years ago.

"Her singing of Mozart's 'El Re Pastore' and a group of French songs was beautiful, extraordinary in its freshness and power, and she received an ovation from her beloved Australian public," he said.

Noted Violinist

athletic staff has said that Tech had no business in the S. W. Conference. Of hand this seems a peculiar statement, but after consideration we can see that it is logical. T. C. U. is the closest member school to Lubbock. There can be no doubt but that the geographic location of Lubbock would work a hardship on Tech if she were in the Southwestern Conference. Most of the Conference games would have to be away from home, because Lubbock would be unable to furnish a paying gate to many more games than this.

Then there is this to consider. Tech would be a so-called doormat for the first several years. Other members would look on the Tech games as they now look on the Rice games. If Lubbock were the best sporting town in the world this situation would not be so bad for a few years. But it has been clearly shown that the Lubbock sportsman have no use for losing teams. Tech would have to come close to winning the championship every year in order to come out financially, and this of course would be impossible at least for several years. During this time we hate to guess what sort of financial condition our athletic council would be in.

There are a few of the reasons which we believe gave rise to the new conference.

Certainly Tech is sponsoring the movement, but what are some of the arguments advanced by other proposed members, especially those who now belong to strong organizations, such as the Texas Conference?

Let us look at some of the ideas that are being expressed in the Simmons Brand. Our friend, Mr. Haggard, presents some sound and logical argument in his column "Sport Shots." He points out that with Simmons on one end and the School of Mines on the other, the new organization would be the most widely scattered in the United States; that outside of Tech and Simmons, the member schools would not rank very high athletically. This is based on the assumption that Howard Payne will not enter the loop. If this were the case the new conference would probably rank lower than the T. I. A. A. He concludes with the quotation, "That if Simmons wishes to kill whatever residue they have in Texas sporting circles, they will withdraw from a conference that includes schools from all over the state and join in with a relatively weak group of teams that get little notice."

We do not altogether agree with this attitude, but we must admit that it has some basis.

There seems to be objection to the entrance of New Mexico schools on the ground that they would not be good drawing cards in West Texas. The decision at Sweetwater to refuse admission to these schools because they are too far west eliminates this matter.

Students Have Narrow Escapes In Car Wrecks

Several minor accidents occurred to Tech students while going to and returning from their homes during the holidays. Four students barely escaped serious injury Wednesday afternoon, January 3, when the automobile in which they were riding overturned on the Lubbock-Slaton highway about three miles south of this city. Lankford Shaw, Bill Fry, Julius Bergfeld, all of Dallas, and Ellis Drew Kaufman, were occupants of the car, which was badly damaged in the smash.

According to the story told by the students, they were traveling toward Lubbock in a Ford touring car when a negro in another automobile turned into the highway from a side road and crashed into them, causing their car to overturn. The most serious injury was a broken arm sustained by Shaw. The others received minor bruises.

Warren and Robert Huff also had a narrow escape from what might have been a serious accident when their car overturned in a ditch near Justiceburg on their way home to San Antonio at the beginning of the holidays. The car slipped and overturned on the snow and ice in the road and was badly damaged, but the boys escaped without harm.

Preparation for an extensive schedule of debate will soon begin in earnest, according to Miss Annah Jo Pendleton, coach of forensics in the college. Regular meetings of the debate squad were held through several weeks of the fall term, and these meetings will be resumed shortly.

One debate, in which Wayne Castleberry and William Sewell defeated a Simmons team, has already been held. The exact dates of other contests have not yet been determined, but contracts have been signed with a number of institutions, including Texas Christian university, Baylor university, Abilene Christian college, McMurry college and West Texas State Teachers college.

The first debate of the year will probably be this month, with the West Texas State Teachers college. The Tech team will go to Canyon for the contest. The two teams have met three times on the forensics platform, and the Teachers have won twice. Tech won for the first time last year.

T. C. U. will be debated in Fort Worth, and A. C. C. will be debated in Abilene. One team will probably encounter both of these schools on the same trip. Baylor will send a team to Lubbock this year for the third debate between the two institutions. Tech has won both previous debates.

Prospects for a successful season are good, according to Miss Pendleton. Only one man, J. W. Jackson, has been lost from last year's squad.

Practice of the military band will be held every Monday and Friday afternoon from 5 to 6 o'clock in the basement of the engineering building, according to Cadet Captain Stancil Bagwell.

H. L. Hersey, senior agronomy student, has a position with a large wheat farming co-operation at Hereford, Texas. He worked at his new job during the holidays. In the summer he will return to Hereford to begin permanent work for the company.

This large organization is headed by Hickman Price, of Kress. It comprises 30,000 acres of land located in Swisher, Deaf Smith, Castro, Potter, and Moore counties.

Mr. W. M. Corry, principal of the high school at Snyder, spent part of the Christmas holidays in Lubbock visiting his brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. O. C. Corry.

A dog I saw chasing a car—
And I paused to ponder about it.
What does the hound think of the star?
Does he think a hen should hatch it?
And what would a dog do with a car?
If perchance he should catch it?
And a thought occurred to me

Old Campus Leader Makes Visit Here

Guy Carter, former Tech student and campus leader, visited here last week. Mr. Carter is now a junior in law at the University of Chicago, where he has achieved considerable distinction and recognition. He is president of the junior class in the law school and also of the Delta Theta Phi law fraternity. He plans to practice civil law in Dallas after he receives his degree next year. Mr. Carter expressed himself as being very much pleased with the law school in the University of Chicago.

Mr. Carter was glad to see the development that Tech has made during a short period of three years. He stated, "I think that Texas Tech will become the greatest school of the South because of its wide range of vocational courses and because of the extensive territory from which it can draw students. One of the greatest things that Tech needs now is a number of good dormitories. I am proud that I am a graduate of Texas Technological College."

Public presentation will be given the three one-act plays that are selected by members of the class in technique of dramatic art as the best of those produced in the class during the winter term.

Mr. Carl Henninger, of the German department, with his family spent the holidays in San Antonio. While there Mr. Henninger made a special study of some of the old missions.

Interest is being manifested by the college in the coming meeting of the state legislature in special session on January 20. At this time consideration of the requests of the colleges for appropriations will be given.

not the man-made creeds of the church will be revised to keep pace with the times I do not know. On the other hand it is my opinion that too much change is as bad as too little.

"The question of religion is one that every man must settle for himself without the aid of science. Science cannot help him one way or another. But it is true that a smattering of science generally results in skepticism, but a profound knowledge of science tends to restore one to a belief in a Creator."

Basketball Team

29 and 30, but this is not definitely settled. If the Matadors are able to cage the Wildcats they will have done their share for one week. A. C. C. is always tough. Past games establish this fact.

On February 3 the Tech five begins its invasion of Abilene. First they will storm the camp of the McMurry Indians for two nights. There will be a single game with Simmons on the 5th and two games with A. C. C. on February 6 and 7. For the past two years, Tech has managed to win a majority of the games in Abilene.

The season climaxes on February 10 and 11 when the renowned Buffaloes come to town. Tech has won only one game from the Teachers since the two institutions have been engaging in cage conflicts. The games are always bitterly contested and full of thrills. The season will close on February 19 and 20 when Tech visits Canyon. Coach Payne is none too thrilled over the prospects for a good season. He says that his hopes for the best team he ever had were blasted when a large number of last year's letter men failed to report for the squad this season. The list of last year's material that will be available this season includes Fisher, D. Vinsar, Tadlock, Hodges, Fincher, and Dalton. Maxwell comes from last year's Fish team, and Harris was discovered in intramural play. Other men that are showing up well are: Hart, Grimes, Puckett, Hill and W. G. Vinant.

New Course Deals With Roman Life

"The Private Life of the Romans" is a new course which is being offered in the Latin department this term. It is attracting quite a bit of attention and interest, and 20 have already registered for the course. There is no Latin prerequisite for the course, and it counts toward a history major. Mrs. William Dingus is the instructor.

Chapman Davis, sophomore in the school of liberal arts, is now the proprietor of a tailor shop located at 1918 Nineteenth street.

Sock And Buskin To Hold Try-Outs

Applications for permission to try out for membership in the Sock and Buskin club will now be received, according to Miss Ruth Pirtle, sponsor of the club. These try-outs will be given very shortly, and the new members accepted will be initiated at the next meeting of the club on Tuesday night, January 21. At this meeting "The Wonder Hat," directed by Miss Louise White will be presented.

Winter activities of the club were begun last night in joint business and social session in room 202. The principal business of the meeting was the election of club officers for the winter term. The Sock and Buskin club in conjunction with Alpha Psi Omega plans to give two public performances during the year. These will be the "Merchant of Venice" and "Madame Butterfly."

Several Old Students Fail to Put in Appearance for Winter Registration

With the opening of the fifth winter session of the college many students have dropped out of school on account of illness or because they are doing outside work. Some of them are teaching, appraising property, and others are working in the oil fields.

Raymond Eakins of Rotan is working for a wholesale gasoline company.

Sydney Knowles of Jonesboro and Mary Greathouse of Tahoka were among those who finished the work required for a degree at the end of the fall term.

Billie Baker, Coleman, has transferred to the University of Texas at Austin.

Harvey Byrd of Brownwood is working in the oil fields near there. Thomas Bartlett of Dallas is appraising property for a loan company in Lubbock.

Ray Waller of Pickton is teaching school.

Lillanale Reid of Tahoka has entered McMurry College at Abilene. Frances McCoy of Tahoka is recovering from an appendicitis operation. She will re-enter Tech in the spring term.

Irma Womack of Colorado City did not return for the winter term because of illness.

Marie Warren of McGregor is studying expression in Waco this term.

Allan Cunningham of Taylor is attending business college at Fort Worth.

Maud Keese of Seagraves has gone to Amarillo and is taking extension work from the college. Pauline Patterson, sophomore in the college is teaching school at Sardia. Her home is in Rotan.

Because of the illness of her father, Grace Brown of Clovis, New Mexico did not register this term. She expects to re-enter school in the spring term.

Others who are not in school are:

Carl Deirrich, La Pryor; Glenn Coppage, Hollis, Oklahoma; O. Crabtree, Fort Worth; George Best, Woodville; Maud Keyes, Amarillo; Everett Lovelace, Brownwood; Robert Lane, Clifton; Mrs. Alma Merchant, Bomarton, Jake Schober, Fort Worth; Merle Chamberlain, Goree; Gladys McGee, O'Donnell; Irma Palmer, O'Donnell; Thelma Youngblood, Glarendon, and Juanita Bell, Vernon.

In A Hurry Fish Want Grading Done Overnight

Explaining things to freshmen is like double cuts before holidays—"all wet." At least this is what one Tech professor thinks. As one student left the room on examination day he asked when he might get his grade. The prof. replied "As soon as the registrar gets them out." Dame Rumor got busy, and early the next morning some fifty students of the class stormed the registrar's office in quest of their grades. They probably thought the poor registrar sat up all night to grade papers and then the next morning might be paging students in the halls in order to give them their grades. The disappointed mob was repulsed and no further disturbance resulted. Anyway, one prof has learned that the easiest way to tell a student anything is by keeping still.

The largest classes offered under the English department this term are in Elizabethan drama and Old English.

Librarian Calls For Back Issues To Complete Files

The college library is in need of a number of old copies of magazines to complete volumes before having them bound, according to Miss Elizabeth West, librarian. Miss West announces that it will be greatly appreciated if students and members of the faculty will try to supply the missing copies, and also that the library will be glad to send one of its staff to check over the magazine files of anyone who does not have time to do so himself. Below is a list of the needed magazines:

Earl Collins, dairy products senator in the school of Agriculture, has recently secured a position with the Bell Ice Cream company of Lubbock. He is in charge of the market milk department.

L. H. E. Killin was host Tuesday night to the members of the Regular Cadet Officer club at his home at 1312 Avenue N.

SHADOWS of weariness in your eyes will betray you! This breathless pace of living tires the eyes—they look heavy, dull—they grow old. But you can help them to stay young!

Kathleen Mary Quinlan has devised a sure way to keep your eyes conditioned, bright, and sparkling. Three simple rules of Nature guided her.

The Quinlan Eye Bath cleanses and refreshes; Eye Cream nourishes and frees from lines the delicate skin around the eyes; Eye Astringent insures firm smoothness to the sensitive surrounding tissues. If used faithfully, these will preserve the young beauty of your eyes.

To enhance their loveliness, Kathleen Mary Quinlan has prepared Cosmetics to accentuate brows and lashes; Eye Shadow to intensify the color of the eyes, to make them alluring.

All Quinlan preparations are on display in our toilet goods department. Individualize your beauty. Ask for Miss Quinlan's booklets.
