Music Organizations To Stage 'Figaro'

As curtain time draws near, final preparations are being completed by the Tech Opera Theater and the Tech Symphony Orchestra for their major cooperative performance of the year, Mozart's comic opera "The Marriage of Figaro."

After three evenings of rehearsals in the Lubbock Municipal Auditorium, the climatic moment will flower tonight in a single performance of the popular masterpiece at 7:30 p.m.

The performance is offered free of charge to the campus community, and to city and area patrons. No tickets are required. A synopsis of the story of the opera is available to interested individuals or groups at the Tech music department office. The performance will be in English.

A 42-piece orchestra, drawn from the ranks of the Tech Symphony, will perform the score in its original form, in contrast to reduced instrumentations often used by touring companies carrying from 15 to 20 players. Tech's two-manual, five-pedal harpsichord will be utilized for recitative accompaniment, as was done in Mozart's time.

The student cast will be headed by Harlan Reddell and Beverly Brandon as the Count and Countess of Almaviva, and Paul Benningfield and Lynda Suduth as Figaro and Sussanna. Barbara Roney will sing the mezzo-soprano role of the page boy, Cherubino.

Carolyn Pendleton, Leasel Richardson, Bettye Lowder, and Dwayne Hood complete the student cast. Faculty members Kent Hill and John Gilbert will be heard as the judge, Don Gurzio, and Dr. Bartolo. A 20-voice chorus, including soloists Janyne Maddox and Dolores McKee, and three dancers, Linda Eberly, Margaret Cribbs, and Carolyn Tubbs, will also participate. Choreography is by Suzanne Aker, director of the Tech Modern Dancers.

Tech Symphony director Paul Ellsworth will conduct, and production and direction are by Opera Theater director Charles Lawrie. Student staff members are technical assistant Leasel Richardson and musical assistant Gene Pickens.

MRC Discusses Dorm Phone, Food Problems

Student mis-use of campus telephones and the dormitory food situation were the topics of discussion given major emphasis in Thursday's meeting of the Men's Residence Council.

MRC PRESIDENT Ray Finfer made the following statement:

"The phone situation isn't going to improve until students realize that they're going to have to use the phones correctly. When they cooperated during last month's telephone test, the situation showed a marked improvement, but now students have started to dial-up and leave their phones off the hook again.

"The situation has reverted to its previous state. We believe that the campus phone lines would prove to be adequate if students would cooperate by using their telephones in the proper manner."

IN A REPORT on the dormitory telephone survey conducted by the council, it was learned that 50 per cent of calls listed on the sheet did not get through. Of the 472 calls listed, only 200 were connected. It was also discovered that calls made to off-campus locations were more easily connected than those made on campus; 77 per cent of off-campus calls were completed.

In regard to dormitory food service, it was decided that the results of the council's survey should be completed and turned over to dormitory food service representatives at MRC's next meeting. Representatives from each men's residence hall food service will be invited to meet with the council at that time. The survey was conducted by MRC council members over a period of weeks in order to get constructive cafeteria complaints, which will be turned over to those in charge of the food service.

FINFER URGED the speedy completion and analysis of the results of the food survey, and reminded council representatives to ask their dormitories to draft letters summarizing specific complaints of each residence hall.

"We believe that by working with the dormitory food services in this matter that we can soon bring about an improvement in this situation," he added.

Schoolboys Tour Tech

The first entourage of top high school athletes are on the Tech campus today for a look-see. The athletes will tour the campus with Student Council members today and Saturday.

The purpose of this program is to give the young men an over-all view of Texas Tech. They will be touring different parts of the school and will be presented to students at Saturday's basketball game according to Becky Parker, Athletic Recruiting Committee member. "This is a beneficial program for Tech students, coaches and the high school athletes," Becky added.

Among the athletes in today's group is James Pool, Dan Dick and Tommy Bell from Cameron Junior College, Lawton, Okla.; Bob Patton from McLean; Thurmon Williamson and Pat Hubbard from Denver City; Louie Faith from Bonham; Howard Van Loon from Rotan; Jacky Booe from Mundy; and Dick Witcher and Ricky Swan from Bakersfield, Calif.

More boys will be arriving today at noon.

the conference Thursday in the Tech Union.

FOUR STATES

Region 9 is composed of colleges and universities in Texas, Oklahoma, Louisiana and Arkansas. Representatives from student unions in these states will meet today and Saturday to exchange ideas regarding college union programs and leadership opportunities. Theme of this year's conference is "The College Union: The Image and the Individual."

Coffee and entertainment was provided for the delegates after they registered. The Tech Union games room was also made available to the conferees without charge. Individual school displays were also set up at this time. In addition, the delegates were guests at the National Players' production of "Taming of the Shrew" at the Municipal Auditorium.

CERTIFYING CANDIDATES

The Steering Committee also met in the Union Executive Room to certify candidates for election as Region 9 officers.

Registration of delegates will continue in the Union this morning until 9 a.m. During this period, orientation proceedings will be conducted in the Blue Room for discussion leaders and summarizers.

The first general session of the official program begins at 9 a.m. in the Coronado Room. Nancy Connors of Oklahoma State University, chairman of Region 9, will call the general meeting to order; M. L. Pennington, Tech vice president for business affairs, will welcome the delegates to Texas Tech.

The keynote address will be given by Porter Butts, editor of ACU publications and director of the Wisconsin Union. The topic of this address will be "What a College Union Is For."

TECHSANS LEAD

This afternoon and Saturday morning will be devoted to discussion and workshops for special interest groups. These activities will be led by students and faculty members from the attending schools. Workshop leaders from Texas Tech are: Dr. Robert L. Rouse, dept. of economics head, "Process of Evaluation;" Dr. Beatrix Cobb, professor of psychology, "Leadership Workshops;" Adrian Vaughan, director of public information, "Techniques in Publicity;" Dallas Biggers, assistant director of the Tech Union, "Brainstorming;" and Dr. V. P. Luchsinger, associate professor of management, "Executive." The Tech leaders will conduct their groups on Saturday morning.

A general assembly in the Coronado Room at 3:30 p.m. today will be devoted to speeches by officer candidates and the election of officers.

FURGESON WELCOMES

A dinner in the ballroom at 7:15 p.m., where Royal Furgeson, Student Assn. president, will welcome the visitors, will be followed by a variety of entertainment—a dance, floorshow, hootenany or "Comedy Classics."

Workshops will be conducted Saturday morning, starting at 8:30 a.m. Discussion groups will meet from 10:30 a.m. Saturday.

'Sporty' Girl Really Isn't

(ACP) — Paris declared it, so the weird look is back on campus, notes THE COLLEGIAN, Fresno State College in California.

For instance, those little wooden heels on the females' footgear. Even if the girl is flat, her heels are bound to be stacked. The only advantage we've noticed so far is that they tend to discourage freshmen (as well as, fortunately or unfortunately, fresh men).

Look, Fur Fakes

Then there is fake fur, the hottest thing since red flannel. Girls who would just as soon live in a cave and eat mastodon meat as wear the skin of a deceased horse now show up sporting "phony pony," to say nothing of synthetic skunk, imitation monkey and pseudo rat.

Really noticeable are what we used to call "sack dresses" back in the good old days of Elvis Presley and "The Chicken" (it was a dance, kiddies). Well, actually we called them chemises; "sacks" was a term used by fathers, brothers, boy friends, husbands and comedians, the latter being a group including all of the other groups.

The 1964 less-than fitted dress really is neither sack nor chemise; it is more likely shift, A-line or Empire. A girl who sticks to any one of these three fashions is likely to be the victim of all sorts of vicious rumors.

The "sacksy" look is favored by freshmen, social leaders and slobs—who've been dressing that way for years.

The idea now is to have rather long, straightish hair that never looks quite parted or combed, a state of affairs that has beauticians all over the country throwing in the towel—and the comb, brush, rollers, bobbypins, clippers, wave sets, hair spray, permanent wave solutions, neutralizers, tease combs, conditioners, end papers, scissors and razor blades.

The other new trend is the "sportive look." Now, just because a girl shows up in an oversize sweater, tigerskin boots and a baseball cap, that doesn't mean she's going to be any more of a sport than usual.

She may not want to play at all, so just watch it.

WINNING HORN DOOR — Martha Neil Taylor, Dimmitt sophomore pre-med major, stands in the threshold of her room in Horn Hall where the door designed by her and her roommate, Evelyn Justiss, Claude sophomore advertising art major, won first place in the door decorating contest. Research Economist Hits At Right-To-Work Laws

Marvin Friedman, a research economist with the AFL-CIO, spoke on right-to-work laws Wednesday in the Tech Union.

Friedman, sponsored by the Young Democrats, outlined a history of union activity in the United States and argued against right-to-work laws. His argument was based on union security and responsibility as a collective bargaining agent.

Friedman, whose major field is employment and manpower, spoke Thursday to a gathering of four government classes on the organization of the AFL-CIO and present labor problems.

At this meeting, Friedman pointed out that the economic inconvenience brought on by labor is much smaller in scope than is commonly thought.

Some of Friedman's ideas received opposition by some Tech government students.

Carr Files For Hearing

AUSTIN (AP) — Atty. Gen. Waggoner Carr filed with the U. S. Supreme Court today the state's request for a hearing on an appeal of the congressional redistricting case.

The filing conforms to an agreement with Houston Republicans who brought the suit to speed the filing of documents to reduce delay.

A three-judge federal court in Houston decided the case Oct. 19 in favor of the Republicans and held unconstitutional the state law defining congressional districts because it favors rural areas.

The court, in a 2-1 ruling, ordered Texas' 23 congressmen to run for re-election in the state at large next year if the legislature fails to redistrict by Feb. 3. This order, however, was stayed Oct. 24 until the Supreme Court disposes of the appeal.

Carr told the Supreme Court the state contends federal courts have no power to rule on congressional districting. He also contends the court was wrong in ruling that population is the sole factor to be considered in creating district boundaries.

Registrar's Office Requests Forms

It's that time again, and students are urged to fill out their A & H forms for spring semester registration.

According to Don Renner, assistant dean of admissions, forms may be picked up in room 160 of the Ad. Bldg. Renner added, "The longer students wait the more delayed the processing of packets will be and we may not be able to insure everyone scholastic order of registration."

Conservatism Debate

Read Challenge Looney

Mike Read, Young Democrat Club president, challenged Young Republican president Glenn Looney to a debate on the issue of conservatism in its modern political usage. The challenge was issued at an informal Young Republican meeting Wednesday.

Read challenged Looney to debate on conservatism as outlined in the writings of Russell Kirk, author of many works dealing with the new conservative movement.

The Young Demo president requested a standard debate, with Looney selecting a partner to debate with him against Read and a partner of his choice.

Looney said that the challenge would be referred to the Young Republican Executive Committee for consideration. He said that Kirk is not a Republican and that the debate could therefore be misleading.

Read, when contacted about the challenge, said, "I really don't know if Russell Kirk is or is not a Republican—it really doesn't matter. The issue is not Republicanism, but conservation. Russell Kirk has written many articles on conservatism, and he has presented one of the most complete outlines available on the type of thinking that is presently finding voice in the many conservative-labelled movements in this country.

"Glenn Looney, as most of the local Young Republicans, claims to be a conservative. Therefore, it would be interesting to see whether or not he knows what conservatism is or even what he, himself, believes," said Read.

Approximately 17 persons attended the Young Republican meeting where the challenge was issued, and they heard Looney outline a history of the club. The meeting was an informal one, and no business was conducted.

'Cowpokes' Creator Reid To Spin Tales For ARMS

Asa E. "Ace" Reid, creator of the Southwest's hardest "Cowpoke" cartoons, will tell the story of his two hard-luck cowboys, Jake and Zeke, at a banquet today of the state convention of the Texas Section of the American Range Management Society.

"Cowpoke" cartoons, a feature of the local newspaper, were "born" on Reid's drawing board during one of the Southwest's hardest droughts. Reid, the Kerrville cowhand-turned-cartoonist, is a nationally known Western artist and has traveled more than 35,000 miles in the last year for speaking engagements. The banquet will be at 7:30 p.m. in the Pioneer Hotel.
