Khrushchev Leaves Post

Old Age, Ill Health Given As Reasons

MOSCOW (AP) — The Nikita Khrushchev era, embracing 10 years of cold war and coexistence, ended Thursday with his retirement as premier and top man in the Soviet Communist party "in view of his advanced age and deterioration of his health."

His protege, Leonid Brezhnev, at 57, Khrushchev's junior by 13 years, has taken over the key party post. Alexia Kosygin, the man Khrushchev trusted to run the government during his frequent absences abroad, has become premier. Khrushchev's jobs are thus divided, as they used to be.

Disappearance Noted

In the last two days Khrushchev has disappeared from public view. A picture of him mounted near the Kremlin was taken down Thursday night. Three hours later, at midnight, came the official announcement of the changes, capping hours of rumors that Khrushchev was on the way out. Tass said the changes were decided upon Wednesday and Thursday.

Brezhnev, a burly native of the Ukraine who has been a Communist 33 years, has assumed the party post from which both Joseph Stalin and Khrushchev controlled Soviet affairs. The premier's role was secondary for many years, and both Stalin and Khrushchev assumed it after first serving as first secretary. It seems likely to become again the No. 2 spot in the Soviet hierarchy.

Announcement Made

The Soviet news agency Tass, in carrying the announcement, said Khrushchev was "released" from the top jobs and also lost his membership on the Presidium of the Central Committee, a job he had held since 1939.

When Khrushchev defeated his leading party opponents in 1957 in a struggle for supreme power, he ousted them from the Presidium and banished them to remote jobs. Stalin killed many of those he defeated in power struggles.

There was no indication Khrushchev attended the party Central Committee meeting at which he was shelved. His release as first secretary was agreed upon Wednesday and his retirement as premier was voted Thursday, the announcement said, citing his age and health.

Mikoyan Presides

Tass said Anastas I. Mikoyan, the durable old Bolshevik who succeeded Brezhnev this summer in the largely ceremonial job of president, presided at the Thursday meeting of the Presidium of the Supreme Soviet.

The action closes a decade during which Khrushchev dominated most of the Communist world. He wound up with the Red World shaken as Lenin and Stalin never could have imagined — in the midst of an ideological scramble with Red China.

What effect the changes will have with the West remains to be shown.

Brezhnev Responsible

In the eyes of Western diplomats, Brezhnev has seemed to take action and to speak in a responsible way, always of course within the Soviet viewpoint.

Kosygin has been a leading spokesman on the Soviet side in the dispute with China, a quarrel that has tended at times to take some of the heat off U.S.-Soviet relations.

Poor health, and conceivably an appraisal of poor results, were probably the factors behind Khrushchev's fall from power just three weeks before he hoped to preside over a triumphant celebration of the 47th anniversary of the Bolshevik Revolution.

The decision that Khrushchev must go was reached at a session of the Central Committee began Monday, informants said.

Key Address

Mikhail Suslov, another spokesman in the Kremlin's dispute with Communist China, delivered the key address. Suslov has appeared at times to be lukewarm in his support of Khrushchev.

But Khrushchev, now 70 and suffering from high blood pressure and a recurrent heart condition, appeared to have kept his own men in power.

Khrushchev himself said last year: "I am already 69 and I have the right to say so. Everyone understands I cannot hold for all time the position I now have in the party and the state."

The first clear indication that some major announcement was in the making came Thursday when the newspaper Izvestia cancelled its evening edition and reported it would publish simultaneously with Pravda on Friday morning.

No Mention

Khrushchev had not been mentioned publicly for two days, a very unusual thing for the buoyant premier.

A Tass story about Kremlin talks Thursday with the visiting president of Cuba, Osvaldo Dorticos, said Dorticos met "the leaders of the CPSU — Communist Party of the Soviet Union — and the Soviet government."

After the listing of Brezhnev, Kosygin and Mikoyan were the names of Nikolai Podgorny, Yuri Andropov and Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko, Podgorny and Andropov are secretaries of the party.

Every top party leader except Khrushchev attended a luncheon for Dorticos.

Last Seen Tuesday

Khrushchev was at his Black Sea vacation home Tuesday where he met with French Cabinet Minister Gaston Palewski. Rumors started to fly when Palewski was hurried out of town while the talk was still on.

A more obvious sign to the average Soviet citizen that something was in the wind was Khrushchev's failure to follow his normal custom of telephoning returning cosmonauts to congratulate them. Although this week's orbiting of three men was the most spectacular Soviet space achievement yet, Khrushchev remained silent after their landing. He had been reported earlier as speaking to them Monday.

Model UN Work Begins For Third Annual Session

By MIKE READ
Staff Writer

With opening day still more than four months away, work is well underway for Tech's annual Model United Nations.

Zafer Cetinkaya, secretary general of the Tech Model UN, has announced that more than 110 nations will be represented in the third campus mock General Assembly sessions Feb. 25-27.

Information concerning possible debate topics for the session will be released, along with application forms, early next week. One topic will be chosen by the Steering Committee and one by delegates.

Topics currently being discussed by the Steering Committee are "Cyprus," "Pakistan and Kashmir," "Jordan River Problems" and "Palestine Refugees."

Letters and application forms, along with additional information on topic selection, will be sent to campus organizations early next week.

The same information and materials will be available to any individuals or independent groups. Application forms can be secured from the Program Office of Tech Union — starting Oct. 20 through Nov. 1.

The Model UN is a series of mock sessions, where countries of the United Nations are represented by delegations from various campus organizations, dormitories and independent groups.

Any three undergraduates and an alternate — not necessarily members of any campus organization — can form a delegation to represent a country.

Entries will be accepted starting Nov. 3 through Nov. 11. The time period between release of application forms and acceptance of applications is planned to allow each possible delegation a chance to become fully informed about the MUN and delegate responsibilities.

Each delegation is expected to represent accurately the views of the country it represents — and to be accurately representative on all issues coming before the General Assembly sessions.

The Steering Committee will make assignments of countries to each entering delegation, and such assignments are final — though delegate preferences will be taken into consideration.

The mock General Assembly has a primary educational goal — to acquaint participants with the many different aspects of a major world problem, and to demonstrate the actual method by which solutions to this problem are sought in the UN.

An entry fee of $10 is charged for each delegation. The entry fee is used to cover the cost of four tickets to the MUN Banquet and the expense of printing individual delegate packets on the selected topics.

GOP, Demos Tangle During BSU Debate

Tech Young Republicans and Democrats exchanged verbal blasts at the Baptist Student Union yesterday as they debated the upcoming presidential election.

Representing the Young Republicans, Charles Lance and Lynn McClellan took the affirmative position on the topic, "Resolved: That Barry Goldwater and William Miller are the best ticket for the American voters in '64 and should be elected in November."

They charged President Lyndon Johnson with being a spendthrift and questioned his tax cut while increasing federal spending.

Taking the opposite side, Young Democrat Roland Cunningham blasted Goldwater saying, "He is not qualified by words or action (for the presidency)." He also said about Goldwater, "His reactionary political philosophy is not suited for the U.S., and ... his election would deprive us of the leadership and experience of Johnson."

The debate was the final session in a series of four programs sponsored by the BSU to improve the Christian's knowledge of political issues.

'Winter Light' Begins Cinema Society Series

"Winter Light," the first of a series of movies to be shown by ticket. All tickets will be good for Tech Cinema Society, will be presented tonight in the Biology Auditorium.

Tickets will be punched. A ticket may be used to admit more than one person at a single showing.

Tickets may be bought for $2 from any member of the Student Honor Council, in the C&O Bldg., room 125, or at the auditorium door.

Student Delay Of Counsel Causes Unnecessary Rush

"A student should not wait until mid-term to determine why he is failing or discuss changing his major," said Dr. James Kuntz, director of the Testing and Counseling Center.

Too many students do wait until then, and the counseling center is swamped with students. Anytime a student feels unsure of his major or is failing, he should consult a counselor immediately, explained Kuntz.

Counseling includes a series of tests and individual discussion of a student's problem.

Federal vs. State Power

THE EXPANDING ROLE of the Federal Government is one of those complex campaign issues that needs more light and less heat.

The issue is not a new one. From the "New Deal" days of the 30's to the present, the size and functions of the Federal Government have mushroomed. This increase in power has horrified proponents of strict separation of state and national powers and a Federal Government of delegated powers only.

Concerned over the problem, the U.S. Senate in 1962 created a special subcommittee to study intergovernmental relations. The subcommittee recently released its findings.

Ironically, increases in Federal Government operations during the last three decades were paralleled by the greatest growth in individual state powers and functions in the country's history, the subcommittee reported. From 1950 to 1960, non-defense expenditures increased by $6.4 billion or 24 per cent. State expenditures during the same period increased by $19.3 billion, a growth rate of 146 per cent.

Not included in this picture of increased state operations, but a definite part of it, is the accelerated growth of joint federal-state projects. Highway bulding, public welfare, hospitals, education, and unemployment compensation are just some of the major areas of joint cooperative services carried out within the framework of the federal "grants-in-aid" system — a system which will cost an estimated $10 billion this year.

Another important fact is implied in the subcommittee's findings. After more than 140 years of national growth and profound changes, the problems of our country require solutions that could not have been foreseen by those who framed our Constitution.

This helps to explain the breakdown of the traditional concept of separation of federal and state responsibilities. The combining of the facilities of federal and state agencies, without usurping the power of either unit, appears inevitable, and, in many ways desirable.

For example, many of the great urban renewal projects being conducted in our nation's cities are the result of federal funds (from 75 to 90 per cent of the total cost in many cases) being put to good use by local authorities and state-operated resource development agencies.

Citing the developing relationship between federal and state governments, President Kennedy, two months before his death, stated: "The problems of government are becoming more and more complex, and the relationships between state and federal government more and more interdependent . . . (but) the important point is to remember that we are all allies under the Constitution."

It has been demonstrated during the last 30 years that federal and state governments are not conflicting, overlapping agencies but partners and allies. Moreover, federal power has not been gained at the expense of the states.

Students Hit Rule On Dates

Dear Editor:

We feel it is unfortunate that a student at Texas Tech is unable to attend a football game with his date unless she is also a student here.

Upon attempting to buy tickets for our dates, who attend another university three hundred miles away, we found it impossible to sit with them during the game. We were told at the ticket office that we could sit in the south end zone, or we could buy a ticket for ourselves.

It seems that it is a shame to pay an activity fee and still have to buy a ticket or be forced to entertain out-of-town guests at a Texas Tech football game — from the south end zone.

We pay a fee for the privilege of attending the games just as everyone else at Tech does. We, however, are being penalized because our dates are not students here by not being allowed to sit with them as we might if they were Tech students.

This new ruling applies to married students and to any student who attempts to attend a game with someone who does not attend this institution. We believe attendance and school spirit will be dampened.

We agree that something must be done about seating in the student section, but this is not the solution. This rule is unfair and unjust, so we hope that the Athletic Council will re-evaluate their decision and allow us to sit with our dates, parents and friends.

Sincerely,
DON FERGUSON
JACK BUMPUS

Machines Called 'One Arm Bandits'

Dear Editor:

Isn't it a nuisance to put your money into a vending machine and not get anything in return? It is no wonder they are called "one arm bandits." I feel sure that most everyone on the Texas Tech campus has at one time or another lost money in this way.

The loss is not great, naturally, but when multiplied by the many visitors and others who may pass by, it may amount to a tidy sum for those handling those concessions.

This is not to imply they intentionally neglect the machines in order to make the extra money... but it could be an incentive!

I felt that if the students knew the number to call to report a machine out of order, it might serve to keep the vendors more on their toes to keep the machines in order... and we would all benefit!

I believe the frustration of being denied a drink or a bite of refreshment at the moment of need is greater than the loss of the money involved! Don't you agree?

After searching and calling several numbers I was able to find the proper numbers to call. For machines in the buildings on campus (excluding dormitories) the number to call is 2127, which is the office of the Business Manager, Taylor.

For machines in the dormitories the number to call is 2170, the office of Mr. Moore, Director of Residence Halls.

The Prolific Pen

By JIM GSELL
Staff Writer

Of prime importance, as most students will agree, is a place to park when one finds he will be late to class. Sometimes, any old parking lot will do, but a student likes to get as close to his classes as possible.

All too often, the closest he can park is a short five-mile walk from his car to his class.

We have examined the situation rather thoroughly and, after making prolonged observations have reached a solution.

The Ad Bldg., a venerable landmark to Techsians could be put to better use. This ponderous structure, squatting in blissful satiation on the campus should be revised. It should be abolished, but a revision to suit the current needs could suffice.

We suggest that the board of directors review parking needs of the students and made the Ad Bldg. an indoor parking lot.

Students need an indoor parking lot. This West Texas weather spoils the finish on all the bright shiny, new cars Tech students are given to driving at break-neck velocities through the campus.

Professors, too, have trouble with Texas weather conditions marring their cars, but professors don't drive new cars. They drive old ones or walk, so the Ad Bldg. parking lot should be relegated to students with new cars.

Admittedly, the Administration has improved the parking situation this year with lots near the new women's dorms. But the situation has only been slightly alleviated.

Turning the Ad Bldg. into a student lot would be the best thing that has happened to the campus in 40 years, second of course only to the proposition for a Tech Law School.

Since little of merit is enacted in the Ad Bldg. anyway, we think the needs of students (with bright shiny, new cars) should be foremost in the minds of our administrators.

Another possible solution concerns the new library. We have heard that there isn't enough money to complete the top two floors. We have a remedy.

Turn the top two floors into another parking lot. This time a pay parking lot. Then, after several years, (it might take several years anyway for money to be raised to finish it), the funds charged for parking could be returned to the library fund and the library completed.

Of course, the question arises of what to do with the University administration when the Ad Bldg. is turned into a parking lot for students, with bright shiny, new cars.

Never fear, we have thought this point out too.

We have noticed, on the campus, a rather unsightly number of buildings across from the new men's dorm. While the Ad Bldg. is being turned into a student parking lot, the campus administrators could be transferred here.

Admittedly, this move could not be accomplished without some static from the higher echelons of campus heirarchy.

So we have a possible solution to this slight problem. We are ready to make sacrifices, too.

If the men of the Ad Bldg. were to order immediate destruction of these shacks and barns, there would be no place to put Ad Bldg. administrators.

If there were no place to put the administrators, removed from the new student parking lot, the parking lot-Ad Bldg. idea would have to be tabled.

We might settle for this compromise.

Annual Tax Institute Sessions End Today

More than 230 persons from Texas, New Mexico and Colorado are on campus today for the closing sessions of the Texas Tech annual Tax Institute.

Tax experts in various fields began lecturing yesterday morning and will continue through today. All technical sessions are being held in the Tech Union Ballroom.

Presiding over today's general session is Rupert L. Dowell. "Tax status of Multiple Corporations and the Revenue Act of 1964" will be the topic of discussion in the morning session. Ernest L. Wehner, graduate of Texas A&M University, will lead the discussion.

CPA In Three States

Wehner is a Certified Public Accountant in Texas, Louisiana and New York. He is also a member of the Texas Society and American Institute of CPA's and editor of the "Tax Topics" section of the Texas Certified Public Accountant.

Charles O. Galvin, Dean of Law School at Southern Methodist University, will deliver the second address, "Reflections on Efforts to Accomplish Major Tax Reform." Galvin is a member of the Advisory Group of the Commission of Internal Revenue and the Dallas and American Bar Assn.

Beginning the afternoon program, Godfrey W. Welsh will speak on "Family Planning — Oil and Gas Matters."

Author Of Several Articles

Welsh is the author of numerous articles on accounting and taxation. He has spoken at various tax institutes and is a regular participant of Texas Tech Tax Institute.

Completing the two day institute, Leland E. Fiske will preside for a program on "Oil and Gas Taxation." Fiske has spoken at various tax institutes and is presently a partner in the law firm Kilgore & Kilgore, Dallas.

A business and luncheon meeting of officers, representatives of sponsoring groups, and past presidents will be in the Anniversary Room of the Union Bldg. at noon today.

Mike Arrives For Busy Day At Tech

Mike Goldwater will be on the Tech campus today to boost the Republican cause, and the candidacy of his father for the presidency.

He is scheduled to arrive at the Lubbock Municipal Airport, where he will be met by Lubbock Republicans, at 10 a.m. Newspapermen will interview him in the airport lounge.

A motorcade will take him around the Tech Memorial Circle and the Engineering Circle at the 10:55-11 a.m. class change.

He will speak at a noon luncheon at the KoKo Palace. Following the luncheon, he will leave Lubbock to attend rallies at Amarillo Junior College and West Texas State University.

Goldwater will return to Lubbock to attend a 7 p.m. reception, sponsored by the Tech Young Republicans, at the Tech Union.

He also will be on hand for a "hootenanny" at 7:30 p.m. in the Tech Union ballroom. The Cumberland Trio and the Durham Folk Singers will be featured.

Goldwater will conclude his Lubbock visit at a breakfast Saturday at Furr's Cafeteria in Family Park shopping center.

Pi Kappa Alpha

Nearly a century ago, (1868 to be exact), six young men at Virginia Military Institute joined in a bond of friendship and brotherhood. From this association of friendship came Pi Kappa Alpha.

The Epsilon Gamma Chapter of PiKA was chartered at Texas Tech on May 16, 1953, and became the 109th chapter of the fraternity since its founding. The chapter beginning at Texas Tech was an evolvement from a local social club... the Los Comarados.

In pledging a fraternal organization such as Pikes... means the fun socials like the Pike Fiesta, the Pike Dream Dance and the Tramp Turnout. It means watching your brothers fight for the colors of Texas Tech on the sports field... but most of all it means an unbreakable bond of friendship and a lasting knowledge of a full life in college.

Cardinals Are World's Champions

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Iron man played their rags to riches rise from seventh place July 24 to the championship of all baseball at the expense of the proud Yankees. A tumultuous crowd poured out of the bleachers and surrounded the happy knot of white-uniformed Cardinals after Dal Maxvill snared Bobby Richardson's pop for the final out. Maxvill was warmly embraced by Dick Groat and then the whole club converged on the mound, pounding the exhausted Gibson on the back.

The rangy right-hander, who once played basketball with the Harlem Globetrotters, broke all Series knockout records with a total of 31, including nine in the finale with big money on the line.

A crowd of 30,346 boisterous fans roared, trumpets blared and horns tooted as the Cardinals com-wishers, finally scooting under the rail in front of the dugout.

'We Want The Birds!'

Hundreds of youthful fans stood in front of the Card dugout for several minutes, chanting, "We want the Birds. We want the Birds." Only a posse of police kept them from charging down the steps toward the clubhouse.

Obviously tiring under the heavy burden of pitching a 10-inning game in New York Monday afternoon and another complete nine-inning job in this one for all the dough, Gibson staggered a bit in the ninth. Solo home runs by Clete Boyer and Phil Linz narrowed his lead to two runs but Manager Johnny Keane never made a move in a fine tribute to his big pitcher.

Gibson's knockout feat erased Sandy Koufax's total of 23 piled up in last year's Los Angeles Dodgers four-game sweep over the Yanks. It even surpassed the musty old record of 28 set by ancient Bill Dinneen of the Boston Red Sox in 1903 in an eight-game series.

The victory was a sweet personal triumph for Keane, who had been reportedly on the brink of being fired in late season before the Cards started their spurt. It was equally sweet to Bing Devine, the general manager who was let out by the Cards Aug. 17 and later hooked on with the New York Mets.

Long Climb

The Cards nestled in fourth place in the National League, 11 games out, on Aug. 23 and still trailed the Philadelphia Phillies by 7½ lengths as late as Aug. 31. They won the pennant, of course, on the last day of the season and followed it up by going the route in an exciting Series.

Gibson's opponent, rookie Mel Stottlemyre, also was attempting to come back with two days rest in his third starting job of the Series. The 22-year-old right-hander left for a pinch hitter in the fifth after his Yankee defense let him down in the Cards' three-run fourth inning.

St. Louis added three more in the fifth, starting off with Lou Brock's homer off Al Downing, and finished their scoring with Ken Boyer's homer in the seventh.

Mantle Homers

The Yanks, shut out for five innings, came up with three in the sixth when Mickey Mantle smashed his own Series record with his 18th homer, a three-run blast into the bleachers in left center over the 379-foot mark.

The home runs by Clete Boyer and Linz in the ninth served only to delay the inevitable outcome. Roger Craig and Ray Sadecki were heating up in the bullpen but Keane wisely let Gibson finish his own job.

Records fell all over Busch Stadium. Mantle contributed four with his 18th Series homer, 123 total bases, 39 runs batted in and 42 runs scored.

Joe Sneed's Column

Darrell Royal, who habitually tutors his Texas Longhorns to various types of championships and is therefore considered to be a man other football experts listen to, does not favor the forward pass. "There are three things that can happen when you pass," says Royal's oft-quoted rule to live by, "and two are bad."

About the only way to check a guy's philosophy is to take a look at the record, and Darrell is seldom second-guessed on the point. Longhorn fans watch long, grinding drives and ferocious defenses, and go home happy. May not be too exciting, but who argues with No. 1 ratings?

Ninety miles north of Royal's happy dominion lies Waco, a town that looks like Gotebo, Oklahoma, multiplied by 10,000. Waco has a college of its own, Baylor University, and Baylor has a football team that hasn't won a Southwest Conference championship since Calvin Coolidge was having his afternoon naps in the White House. The Bears will not win this season either.

John Bridgers is football coach at this fine Baptist institution, arriving in Waco after a stint with the Baltimore Colts. At Baltimore Bridgers saw Johnny Unitas, the best passer alive, win game after game with his tosses, and became convinced that to play football was to pass.

At Baylor, Bridgers started to institute his convictions. He came up with a guy named Don Trull and another named Lawrence (don't call me Larry!) Elkins, and went a long way last season. He came close to beating Texas' ground game, but of course not close enough. Everybody was sorry that the Bears had their best team in years at the same time that Royal had one good enough to win the national championship.

Trull, the man with the talented arm, is now doing his throwing for the Houston professionals, but a couple of sophomores have stepped in behind the center and Baylor is passing as often as ever. But the Bears are not enjoying it as much. They have yet to win a game.

Statistically, the Baptists have as fine an offense as there is in the conference. In the three losses they have moved the ball an average of 289 yards a game—248 in the air and only 41 on the ground. Of course, the rushing figure is somewhat misleading since it includes yards lost when the quarterback was trapped behind the line trying to pass. Still, the air output is stunning.

A peek at the defensive side is even more stunning. Baylor has surrendered 312 yards a game to the opposition, and you don't win football games doing that.

Still, the Bears are a fine team to watch, if not play against. Which is what, of course, Texas Tech's Red Raiders must do this Saturday night. Coach J T King has been defending his pass defense all week after TCU went through it for over 200 yards in Fort Worth last time out. "Yeah, but we dropped them for losses seven times and intercepted three passes," he says. "And we won."

And back we go to Royal's truism. Those bad things happened to TCU and hurt. In other words, throwing the football can earn a lot of yardage, but can cut deep when it backfires.

When Tech and Baylor do get together, they ought to put on quite an offensive show. Terry Southall will be tossing at every opportunity, mostly to All-America Elkins. Tom Wilson will fling a few in between runs by Don Anderson, Jim Zanos, and John Agan.

The winner?

It ought to be Tech, but only if the Raider secondary can stifle Southall's long shots fairly well.

Wyomia In Dash Final

TOYKO (AP) — America's Wyomia Tyus attempted Thursday night to become the female counterpart of Bob Hayes, the Jacksonville, Fla., flash who proved he was the world's fastest human by winning the 100-meter dash and leading the United States to its biggest gold medal day at the Tokyo Olympic Games.

Miss Tyus, a leggy lass from Griffin, Ga., entered the finals Wednesday when she won her 100-meter heat in a world record equaling 11.2 seconds. Then Hayes, who had run a wind-aided 9.9 seconds in the semi-finals, captured the men's 100-meter crown and also matched the world record with a 10-flat clocking.

The sprinters' amazing performances highlighted an outstanding day for the Americans, who received expected gold medals from discus thrower Al Oerter and swimmer Don Schollander while adding two more from unexpected sources — diver Lesley Bush and the Vesper Boat Club. U.S. medal total for five days to 34.

Three other victories — by a pair — oared with coxswain team in rowing, the women's 400-meter freestyle swimming team and shooter Gary Anderson—brought America's gold medal production gold, six silver and nine bronze. America has won 15 gold medals, nine silver and 10 bronze. The Russians have won 22 medals, seven gold, six silver and nine bronze.
